WORLD COURT IS PLACE FOR U. S.—COOLIDGE

Exile War or Face Disaster, Warning.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Declaring that if this generation fails to devise measures for prevention of war it will deserve all the disaster which will surely be visited on it, President Coolidge today reaffirmed his position in favor of American participation in the world court in an address before delegates to the national conference on the causes and cure of war. Establishment of such a court, carrying with it as it would the means for formulating and promulgating honest judgments and matured public opinion of the world, would be a decided advance toward assured world peace and the outlawry of war, the President said.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE. [Walinger Photo.]

The President cited the intelligence of the mass of individuals and the moral opinion of the community as the two forces which have lifted society to its present level of civilization and which would enforce the decrees of any international tribunal set up by the world court.

[illegible] No Longer Possible.

"It is unthinkable," the President declared, "that the forces of public opinion which are adequate to maintain order within the limits of a great nation should still be incapable of adaption to the international, intergovernmental differences which grew into the causes of the war. Nor is it believable that a world-wide public opinion which frowns on war would be defied by any nation, no matter how powerful. The interdependence of peoples and nations becomes more marked with every year.

"I am convinced that if our civilization is worthy of its name, then physical force is not the only authority which may enforce an anti-war policy. I feel strongly that public opinion, based on proper information, working through agencies that the common man may see and understand, may be made the ultimate authority among the nations.

Understanding Is First Step.

"We shall not be able all at once to set up instrumentalities to accomplish this. But if, first, we can turn the light of more information and better understanding on the problems of diplomacy; and if, then, we can adhere to a tribunal of the nations and can gradually work out a system of international law and procedure deserving the support of the intelligent public opinion of the world, we will have made a great contribution to lasting peace. It will be a triumph of moral rather than physical forces.

"As the cornerstone of such a system would stand an international tribunal whose character and abilities would deserve and retain confidence. Such a tribunal would rely for enforcement of its decrees, not on armies and fleets and all the related means of destruction, but rather on the two most constructive forces in the world.

The Forces of Civilization.

"These two forces have lifted society to its present level of civilization. They have eliminated private war and personal feud. They have fixed the rights of property and the rights of man so firmly that civilized people do not longer think of enforcing their rights, or protecting their persons, through violence. These two forces are the intelligence of the mass of individuals, and the moral opinion of the community."

President Coolidge emphasized that if this country is going to enact measures which will end in the outlawry of war it must act while the memory of the last war is still searingly fresh in the minds of the people. He continued:

"It has been said that the peace which ends one war commonly sows the seeds of the next war. I believe that in our policy of readiness to assist in whatever measures would help to restore, to stabilize, to reestablish security and peace among the nations, we have taken the most helpful attitude feasible at the time.

"I believe that, just as the Washington arms limitation conference was a timely and convincing coöperation on the political side, so the Dawes plan was a similarly timely and effective effort for rehabilitation on the economic side. I believe that the next step which we may well take is by way of participation in the permanent court of international justice."

COOLIDGE PUTS VETO ON NEW BELL BOTTOM STYLE OF TROUSERS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[United Press.]—President Coolidge does not approve of the prevailing styles in young men's trousers.

Three Princeton students called at the White House today to invite the President to address the American Whig society at the university, an organization founded by President Madison and led at one time by President Wilson.

After a brief conversation, the President glanced at the bell bottoms of the students' trousers and asked why they did not wear suspenders.

When it was explained, to him such trousers are the style, Mr. Coolidge announced as his opinion that it would be preferable to arrange to keep them off the ground.

The President told them that his son John, had come back from college last fall with similar trousers and that he had made him put on a pair of suspenders.

MEXICANS DIE BY HUNDREDS; DUE TO STORM AND COLD

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, Jan. 24.—After six days of intense cold, rain, and continuous storms, the sun lifted the curtain of mist and fog today, revealing a sight not seen in the valley of Mexico for a generation. All the high peaks are covered with snow.

Mount Popocatepetl, which had been stripped completely of snow by the heat of the volcanic eruptions, is now covered with a white robe and a bridge of snow connects it with White Woman peak, twenty miles away. The snow line has crawled a full mile down the mountains.

There is intense suffering among the Indians living in the higher altitudes around the 300 mile rim of the valley of Mexico and reports from there tell of hundreds of deaths among the illy clad poorer classes.

Boy Robber Is Slain Trying to Steal $1.10

A boy highwayman probably paid with his life last night in an effort to steal $1.10 from William Ubert, a west side butcher. William H. Boss, 1637 Ford street, the robber, is dying in the Bridewell hospital.

Sergt. John T. Cunningham and Patrolman William Doyle saw Boss and two others holding up Ubert at Paulina street and Grand avenue. When the boys saw the policemen they fled.

The policemen fired and Boss dropped with a bullet in his head.

Arrest Four with 75,000 Weight Machine Pennies

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 24.—Two men and two boys were arrested here today with 75,000 pennies after a policeman had noticed them carrying small heavy sacks into a rooming house. Later the pennies were identified as the property of a weighing machine company.

MILLS RESIGNS HIS PASTORATE

Decides He'll Yield to Trustees.

The Rev. Thornton Anthony Mills last night decided to yield to recent demands of trustees of the famous old New England Congregational church that he resign his pastorate.

REV. THORNTON A. MILLS.

He will end a controversy of several months today by presenting his formal resignation to the congregation in morning and evening sermons.

The trustees, many of them having borne the financial burden of the church since it was rebuilt after the great fire in 1871, declared when matters came to a head that they felt entitled to objection when Dr. Mills brought Dr. Ben A. Reitman's hobo colony en masse into the dignified old edifice.

Steadfast in Aid.

One of the trustees, at least, has put $100,000 into the support of the church through the years, and others have likewise invested. They asserted some rights in choosing the sort of people with whom to worship.

At first Dr. Mills denied this right. After a meeting was held with the trustees and a committee appointed to investigate the entire controversy, Dr. Mills decided, it was said last night, that there was a certain justice in the contention of the trustees. For the harmony of the church as a whole, he decided to leave the picture.

His sermons today will be entitled: "The Golden Rule" and "Jean Valjean," a dissertation on Victor Hugo's French criminal, that he formerly used on the Chautauqua circuit.

Against War, but Helped.

The Rev. Mr. Mills showed his modern tendencies, with centuries of orthodox religion and Americanism in his veins, when during the war he declared himself opposed to the strife, but ready to enlist. This he did, and emerged with the rank of major.

He came to the New England Congregational church in 1921. In this old edifice in Chicago's history, located at Delaware place and Dearborn street, with its font that came to America on the Mayflower, he started preaching.

Shortly dissatisfaction came and it reached a point when Dr. Reitman's followers descended on the ancient bulwark of north side aristocracy's faith in a body.

WOMAN, WED AT HOSPITAL AFTER OPERATION, DIES

Mrs. Harold F. Deacon, who was married in her bed at the Presbyterian hospital at midnight Thursday, died yesterday.

Mrs. Deacon was Miss Adelheid Schindler, a divorcee, employed as a nurse at the Home for Crippled Children. She had been engaged for some time to Harold Deacon, a student of pharmacy at Valparaiso university, when she was obliged to undergo an operation on Christmas morning.

She became steadily weaker. Deacon was advised on Thursday that his fiancée's condition was serious. He went late at night to the home of County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, who issued the marriage license. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. E. Sandstedt of the Bethlehem Lutheran church.

FLEE SMOKE IN FRIARS, TOTING WHAT-NOTS, TOO

Scores of merrymakers in the Friars Inn were forced to the street early this morning when fire from the Wexford block, 343 South Wabash avenue, caused smoke that filled the cabaret.

While fire engines chugged outside bright eyed young men and giggling girls collected their vanity cases, coats, hats, sticks, and what-not—especially what-not—and poured through the smoke to the fresh outer air.

When the smoke died they returned, with their what-nots, vanity cases, etc.

HERRIN RAIDER, HIS CHIEF FOE, DIE IN BATTLE

Fight It Out While Crowds Watch.

Gunmen in both Chicago and Herrin, Ill., carried out private executions yesterday and last night. S. Glenn Young, scourge of bootleggers in Williamson county, was slain, as were three others. In Chicago yesterday afternoon, Johnny Torrio, master of rum running and vice, was shot five times and badly wounded at his door step. Details of the Torrio shooting on page 5.

BULLETIN.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 25, 2 a. m.—Maj. Robert W. Davis, with thirty men from the headquarters company, 130th infantry, from Carbondale, will be in Herrin by daylight this morning, Adjt. Gen. Carlos Black announced here this morning. The men will make the trip in trucks.

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 25, 1 a. m.—[Special.]—S. Glenn Young, klan liquor raider, was killed last night in a pistol fight in which his arch enemy, Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas, also died.

Two other men were killed. They were George Forbes, klansman and chief assistant to Young in his raids, and Homer Warren, a klansman.

Five more persons were wounded, some of them, it is feared, fatally.

Fire 50 Shots in Battle.

More than fifty shots were fired in the battle, which took place in and in front of the European hotel in the center of the city.

The battle was the result of personal animosity between Young and Thomas. Both had been pledged to remain away from Herrin as part of the truce which was made up after the last outbreak when five men were killed several months ago before troops could be rushed in.

Young Returns to Herrin.

Young came back to Herrin five weeks ago from a hospital. He said he was writing his autobiography, which included his story of the twenty killings which he is supposed to have committed.

The bitterness which had died down following the armistice between the rival factions has been growing of recent weeks because of his return.

At the same time Thomas kept coming to town from time to time for one purpose or another. The few neutral citizens feared the worst.

Ora Thomas was appointed a deputy sheriff by Sheriff George Galligan, an avowed enemy of the klan. Thomas was among those caught by Young in his liquor raids and served a jail sentence upon his conviction in federal court for that offense.

When Young heard that Thomas had been appointed deputy sheriff he said, "I will stay in the county as long as Thomas."

How the Fight Began.

Last night Young and his men learned Thomas was in town in connection with a trial in the City court. They announced they would drive him out.

Crowds gathered in the street expecting trouble. Many were armed. Others were there out of curiosity. There was hint of trouble half an hour before the battle when a shot was fired by some one at a group of policemen and court attachés in front of Guildoni's drug store.

"That was Ora Thomas trying to pick me off," one of the policemen, a klansman, was heard to remark.

Soon after the trial ended Thomas was seen to enter the European hotel. A few minutes later Young and his men approached the hotel. A shot, according to klansmen, was fired at Young from a second story window of the hotel.

The opposite version is that a klansman fired through the window of the hotel at Thomas.

Young and his men rushed into the hotel lobby.

An Eye Witness Story.

One man gave this version of the battle:

"Thomas was shot at but he wasn't hit. He ran behind the hotel cigar counter.

"As Young and his men came into the lobby, Thomas poured shots at them. He dropped Young, who was at the head of his band. He wounded Forbes. Thomas had a pistol in each hand and was blazing away with both of them at once.

"Forbes was lying on the floor of the lobby. He took aim at Thomas, who was now standing, and his bullet hit

Letters Penned to Nurse Stir Shepherd Case

Two letters, written ostensibly by William D. Shepherd to Miss Estelle Gehling, a nurse living at 454 Melrose street, came into the hands of Coroner Oscar Wolff last night, to furnish the latest development in the official investigation into the death of Shepherd's foster son, Winnetka's millionaire orphan, William Nelson McClintock.

Miss Gehling, as she turned the letters over to Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, declared she had known Shepherd for seven years. There were other letters, she asserted, of which she kept only four. The two which Judge Olson handed to the coroner last night are two of that four.

To Be Read at Inquest.

All four are to be read into the record of the coroner's inquest when it reconvenes on Feb. 19, the date to which it was continued at the request of the chief justice.

The earlier letter of the two made public at the coroner's office, is dated Nov. 12, 1919. It reads as follows:

"Precious Sunshine:

"I have about ten minutes on my hands and I know of no better way to spend them than by writing to the dearest and sweetest girl in the whole world, so I write to you. It seems ages since I saw you and I am getting desperate. I need you so much, for you put new life into me and brighten the world for me. I have an appointment with Dr. O. today (supposed to refer to Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of the judge), so I will be at the H—— some time during the day and I shall try to get a peep, at least, at you. I did not get through last night until after 10 o'clock, so was very tired when I turned in. I aim to keep myself very busy so that I shall not have too much time for thinking, although I must admit that my dreams of you are most pleasant indeed.

Calls Her Dream Girl.

"I wanted to call you early this a. m., but was bothered by so many people that I could not do so. I wish that I might hear your voice all the while—I want to kidnap you and carry you away where I could have you with me always—some day when dreams come true. Now, my sweet Estelle, I must close for this time. Take for your dear self, Sweet Dream Girl, the very best wishes and the boundless love of your. "D."

"D," Miss Gehling explained to the officials, represented "Darling."

Darling His Middle Name.

"Mr. Shepherd's middle name is Darling," she continued, to make the situation perfectly clear.

For a time, said the investigators, the nurse expressed unwillingness to part with the letters. It was gathered that she expected a monetary consideration for them from some source.

The second letter is written on March 11, 1920.

"My Sunshine," is the salutation, and it continues:

"After hearing your dear, sweet voice this p. m. I jumped into the work with new spirit and have gone in top speed ever since and I am now ready to leave the office for the day. . . . I will take a train tomorrow for Springfield at 5:19 p. m., will appear before the Supreme court at 9:30 a. m. . . . I can meet you at 3 if that is O. K. with you. I will talk it over with you tomorrow. . . .

"I love my darling Estelle more than life. Take care of my dear pal of mine and be happy. As ever yours, Loving Darl. Lots of love, dear girl."

The two other letters, not yet made public, are said by the girl to have been written her by Shepherd at a still later date, the last one not long before young McClintock's death. In it, the nurse declared, according to Judge Olson, that Shepherd wrote that a critical circumstance was impending which might influence their friendship.

SUN AND MOON GIVE SCIENTISTS RADIO LESSON

Eclipse Clears Up Wave Problems.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

This generation yesterday played out its last card from the deck of astronomical experiments when it concentrated every hitherto undiscovered scientific yardstick to measure the effects, electrical, barometric, photographic, aerial and magnetic, of the eclipse of the sun by the moon.

In the large pattern of history this card, the last to be drawn for several centuries, was a trump, notably along the east coast.

In Chicago the heralded ace was an acute failure. Wrong winds, unfavorable clouds and persistent smoke, plenty of it, combined to make Chicago have to read about the phenomenon after it was over.

New Inventions Aid Science.

In his study yesterday, man used three inventions, unavailable when the last former total eclipse was experienced. They were the dirigible balloon, the airplane, and wireless.

Off the Atlantic coast, the Los Angeles, soared aloft with forty-two men aboard, equipped with every invention for the study of the heavens. From Mitchel field, New York, aeroplanes roared upward above the clouds until their occupants had an unobstructed view, and down at Dayton the intrepid Lieut. John A. MacReady, with an aerial photographer, Lieut. E. C. Plant, went up 31,500 feet to get a front seat for the show.

Learn More by Radio.

For something like two hours yesterday nature furnished the laboratory and the major equipment for some mighty interesting revelations about radio, temperature, "jumping rabbits," "corona," "time lag" and the like.

Since the birth of broadcasting radio operators, professional and amateur, have known that radio reception on long wave lengths was clearer and more regular in the night than in the day. Nobody knows precisely why; and there was considerable speculation that it was the conditions of "night" rather than the conditions of "dark" that were responsible for the improvement. But even science couldn't take it out of the realm of speculation.

Rays Dull Waves.

Yesterday, however, nature stepped forward and obligingly turned off the switch for a couple of hours. The moon passed in front of the sun. It was "dark." It was not "night." And radio, according to the official testers, learned:

The sun's rays are responsible for the reduced power of broadcasting during the day.

Or, more formally: Ionization of the air in the day time due to the sun's rays causes absorption of the electro magneto wave.

Harold Gray of the research department of the Zenith Radio corporation, who made the tests, declared this information was only a point of departure for still further revelations.

Something to Work On.

"Now we have something definite to work on," he said. "Before, all we knew was that the power was about one-tenth during the day of what it is at night."

Standing at his receiving station in Chicago, Gray heard the announcer broadcasting from WJAZ at Iron Mountain, Mich., on a wave length of 268 meters, from 4 a. m. until after the solar eclipse. Tests of the same nature made at Northwestern university were unsuccessful, it was announced. At no time was the station able to hear WJAZ, eastern station in the shadow belt, although Cincinnati and Louisville, below the belt, were picked up.

For the first time in radio history, broadcasts in daylight from America, were caught in England. Not only that, but stations in England picked up clear as bell tones, messages from Melbourne, Australia, and from Mosul in Mesopotamia.

Learn About Short Wave.

But there is the balance wheel of the short wave in radio, and when the shadow of the moon yesterday created night conditions radio experts learned also about the short wave.

From tests made by the Radio Corporation of America it was deduced that a short wave length follows the sun, whereas a long wave length, irregular before the eclipse, became noticeably regular during totality.

Explains Radio Phenomena.

Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, chief broadcast engineer in charge of experiments made yesterday from WCY at Schenectady and picked up at the Bronx laboratory, explained it this way:

"The short wave could not be heard until just before sunrise, when it came faintly. As the sun appeared the waves grew stronger. As the short waves increased the static increased. During totality the short wave was blotted out and conditions were exactly the same as before the sun rose. When the eclipse ceased the short waves and static returned as the sun appeared."

And the third radio discovery made, or, rather, reinforced, by the sun eclipsing the moon is this: that static is not entirely a local condition, because it was affected by the general conditions yesterday.

Airmen Help Science.

Less applicable, perhaps, to dinner table conversation, but equally important with the radio, was the modern airplane's connection with the eclipse.

Standing out in the Atlantic off Nantucket lightship, the dirigible Los Angeles, at a height of 8,000 feet, furnished the 1925 scientists with their easternmost and most modern observatory. With scientific impudence, cameras perched on top of the ship shot relatively near "closeups" of the meeting of the sun and the moon.

Twenty-five planes piloted by representatives of Uncle Sam soared up on the eastern coast to "see what they could see." On their return all of the pilots reported what they had felt. Each man declared that at the instant of totality of the eclipse his thermometer had dropped from 18 above zero to 20 below zero, and had risen again to 18 above directly totality ceased.

Explains Bulb Action.

The downward flop, they explained, was instantaneous; the upward climb a bit more casual, but still faster than the mercury climbs on the earth's surface. Dr. David Todd, famous 70 year old professor of astronomy at Amherst, and in charge on the ground of this expedition into the air, explained the temperature phenomenon this wise.

The atmosphere at the elevation of the planes, from 13,000 to 16,000 feet, had taken on characteristics of the atmosphere that envelopes the moon. This atmosphere is believed to contain less inertia than that enveloping the earth, and this excess vitality, as it were, enables it to record heat and cold changes almost instantaneously.

Talks of Moon's Atmosphere.

Going a step further into the infinite that is being catalogued by so many finite inventions, Dr. Todd suggested that this report of the aviators might lead scientists to the conclusion that the air surrounding the moon is constantly subject to these quick changes, so that the moon, after the fashion of a man with his face to a roaring fire, and his back to a chilly blast, often has a pretty cold time of it. [Many scientists declare there is no lunar atmosphere.]

Things more active than thermometers engaged the attention of air pilots. "Jumping rabbits," for instance. Lieut. G. W. Goddard, chief of the photographic division of the air service, is believed to have caught them in what is termed "the greatest eclipse picture in the history of astronomy."

Photographs Racing Shadow.

Goddard's photograph, made with a specially designed camera, was taken a second before totality from a height of 16,000 feet above Poughkeepsie, N. Y. It shows virtually all the area of darkness in its perspective, and details of sky and earth are plainly discernible at a distance of some 100 miles.

And in the middle ground, with no mistaking them, are the "jumping rabbits" that have suddenly come into front page prominence. These "jumping rabbits" are the phantom shadow bands of the moon's shadow at the moment of the eclipse's totality. Until yesterday these grotesque images that frisk about with incredible nimbleness before the shadow of the moon were not particularly well known to anybody.

Time Lag Checked.

Another modern invention played a zealous handmaiden to the ancient trilogy of the sun and the moon and the earth yesterday when telegraph keys, operated under the direction of the Bell Telephone company, checked up on the "time lag." At each of the observatories in a line from Buffalo to East Hampton, N. Y., an observer pressed a telegraph key when the edge of the sun and moon first came together; when the sun's last glimmer was covered; when first reappearance was recorded, and when the two planets separated. A lag of the shadow from three to five seconds behind scheduled time was detected.

Scientists say the lag is due to irregularities in the motion of the moon.

Blotted Out in Chicago.

Those millions, and there were millions in the path of the eclipse, who had their feet on the ground yesterday morning, made observations and deductions as well as the fellows up in the balloons and dirigibles.

In Chicago, where the eclipse was to have been 95 per cent perfect, the whole performance was given in chambers, thanks to the clouds, and wind, and smoke. At Yerkes observatory, Williams bay, where Edwin B. Frost, professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago, had charge of an earnest party, there was nothing to be seen.

At Iron Mountain, Mich., where another University of Chicago expedition, under the direction of Profs. Frank A. Ross and Oliver J. Lee, had many times rehearsed their part in the experiment, the blank cartridge rehearsal had to stand. For there was nothing to be seen.

But the layman, back Chicago way, throws his smoked glass into the waste basket, adds two hundred years to his age, and murmurs:—

"Well, it'll be some time before I'll try to look at another eclipse."

Eclipse Helps Radio.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—[By United Press.]—Success in long distance radio reception during daylight hours marked the period of the eclipse of the sun today.

Not only were American stations heard in England for the first time in daylight, but from the other side of the world came the clear notes broadcast by a station in Melbourne, Australia. At the same time the remote station of Mosul was picked up. Hence for the first time, four continents were linked together through the medium of radio.

Photographing the Eclipse in the East

This photograph of the eclipse was taken at New Haven, Conn., at 9:11 o'clock yesterday morning. It shows the moon obscuring the sun completely. With its disk completely hidden, the corona of the sun presented a magnificent sight. Bailey's beads, large masses of the sun's incandescent atmosphere, were plainly noted.

Three phases of the moon's course across the sun as snapped at New Haven, Conn. Top to bottom the eclipse is shown at 8:20, 8:30, and 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

CLOUDS SHROUD ECLIPSE

BY, JOHN HERRICK.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—The moon blotted out the sun this morning, promptly at two minutes and three seconds past 8, just as science had predicted, but the expedition sent here by the University of Chicago did not see it.

Clouds and mist, overcasting the whole sky, hid the spectacle of a total eclipse, which will not return to this part of the world for many a long year. Not even a glimpse of the sun was seen, and mournfully Profs. Frank A. Ross and Oliver J. Lee, standing by the $500,000 instruments, which were worthless without something to picture, were forced to term the expedition a complete failure.

Result from Radio.

Only one positive result was obtained. This was with the radio, which, listening to signals from Arlington, showed a slightly clearer reception during the eighty-nine seconds of partial darkness.

"There may be something on some of our special light ray plates," said Prof. Ross, without conviction. "Perhaps some rays in the infra red, the coronium green, or the ultra-violet filtered through.

"It's very improbable, however," he sighed.

But it was an impressive spectacle, sun or no sun. We all got up early. The 7 o'clock whistles were blowing in the valley as the procession clumped its way up the road beaten through the snow to the summit of Pewabic hill.

Scientists Gather on Hill.

Half a dozen assistants, Prof. Lee, Prof. Ross, Dr. S. A. Barrett of Milwaukee, and Dr. F. D. Urie of Elgin were already gathered about the precious instruments, incongruously set up on makeshift stands of rough lumber.

If there is one chance in a million it is not going to be missed. Lenses are focused, shutters adjusted. The duties of the assistants are rehearsed just as though the horizon wasn't hidden by a smoky mist.

Sunrise is at 7:24. It's past that now. And no sun. Even the pines and the birches just across the snowy hollow on the opposite hill are dimmed by haze.

It is five minutes of 8. What is it that seems to be creeping over everything? Is it getting darker? So slowly does the twilight settle that it is intangible. It is like an invisible mantle settling so gently that it can scarcely be perceived. Yet it seems to have weight. It is awesome.

"One minute to totality."

The two hundred who have gathered on the hilltop hush instantly into silence.

The invisible mantle falls faster. It can be felt now, chill yet warm, fearful yet very close and friendly.

Every one of the 200 is talking now The mantle which brought silence is gone.

"Too bad, a shame," they console with the astronomers cheerfully.

They stream down the path through the drifts. They chat gaily.

Unused bits of photograph film strew the snow.

MOON REVEALS FLAME CYCLONES SPINNING ON SUN

Scientists in East Watch Eclipse in Clear Sky.

BY DR. J. THONE.

[Copyright: 1925: By Science Service.]

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Clear weather at all points east of Buffalo permitted observations of the solar eclipse to be made without a hitch. A lag of the moon's shadow from three to five seconds behind scheduled time was detected through the preparations of the Bell Telephone company in New York City.

At each of the observatories along its path from Buffalo to East Hampton, N. Y., an observer pressed a telegraph key when the edges of the sun and moon first came together, again when the last bit of the sun's rim disappeared, again when the first gleam came out on the opposite side, and finally at the instant when sun and moon parted company.

Moon Off Schedule.

Telegraphic pens here made automatic time records on a paper tape. The time lag is explained as being due to irregularities in the motion of the moon, which are well known to astronomers.

At New Haven Prof. Ernest W. Brown, in charge of Yale observatory, reports observations highly successful. Dr. John A. Miller of Sproul observatory, Swarthmore college, used a camera sixty-two feet long, making exposures varying from a second to thirty seconds.

Prof. C. L. Poor of Columbia university employed a camera of his own design to test the Einstein theory by measuring the moons' apparent size.

Had Narrow Escape.

At Ithaca, N. Y., a very narrow escape was reported by Director Samuel L. Boothroyd of the Fuertes laboratory of Cornell university. A cloud got in front of the sun, but drifted away at just the critical moment. The program of observations with our coronal camera and coronal spectrograph were carried through without a hitch, thanks to the efficient work of Mr. E. C. Slipher of the Lowell observatory," Dr. Boothroyd said. "The corona was of the minimum type with an interesting spike at the northwest edge of the sun."

Prof. Harlow Shapley of the Harvard observatory reported disappointing results at Buffalo due to a clouded sky. But he said that photographs of coronal light with pinhole cameras taken by Harvard astronomers eastward had been probably 75 per cent successful. From Bridgehampton, N. Y., Ernest S. Clowes reports observations showing a segment of the shadow bands from north to south for two minutes before and an equal period after totality. The temperature fell from 15 to 9 degrees above zero during the eclipse.

Dr. E. E. Free of New York reported for a party at Easthampton, L. I. Just before the sun darkened they saw the Los Angeles high in the air out at sea. Two solar prominences, great whirlwinds of flame from the sun's disk extending high above its surface into the corona, were detected.

A party from the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie institution of Washington established headquarters at Greenport, Long Island, N. Y. Dr. Louis A. Bauer reports that at this point two fiery prominences were visible and that the corona had a long, forked extension.

At the Vassar observatory at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Prof. Caroline Furness reports all operations carried out successfully.

Sun Influences Radio.

Support for the theory recently put forth that during the day the radiant energy of the sun gives the air an electrical charge, which interferes with good radio sending during daylight hours, was announced.

Within ten minutes after the total phase had passed, when WOR of Newark, N. J., received many telephonic reports, all agreeing that during the period of darkness reception had been much clearer.

Dr. Edwin Eslosson, director of science service, reports from Saugerties on the Hudson that New York state scores over California for fair weather, for the sky was practically clear today, while in 1923 the astronomers who had journeyed from all parts of the world to Point Loma and Catalina saw nothing but clouds.

Corona Bright Halo.

A thousand people brought by three special trains from Albany, Schenectady, and Troy disembarked barely in time to scramble up the hillside and set up cameras, telescopes, and radio receivers. The corona appeared as a bright broad halo completely encircling the sun, with streamers on both sides, those in the northeastern quarter being the longer.

This is the intermediate type of corona, as was expected since the eleven year sun spot cycle has passed its minimum. Red prominences of fountains of flaming gases were visible on northern hemisphere. Shadow bands showed as fine faint lines drifting over the snow at about eight miles an hour. The darkness was never too dense to prevent reading fine print.

On the campus of Columbia university, which lay close to the edge of the totality area, students "rooted" for the eclipse. Downtown the moon's shadow ate up the sun until only a crumb of fire remained hanging to its left edge. Then the weird light of the corona flashed out briefly, while the crumb of fire slid around under the sun, and gradually widened into crescent as the moon slid away.

ECLIPSE LIKE HIS PARTY, WILL SHINE AGAIN, BRYAN SAYS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Standing in front of the White House, William Jennings Bryan today took a long look at the eclipse of the sun through a piece of smoked glass obligingly lent him by a photographer. As he lowered the glass to the accompaniment of camera clicks he began to smile.

"The eclipse is just like the Democratic party," he remarked; "the sun will soon shine again for us."

The former secretary of state had come unheralded to the White House shortly after 9 o'clock, and, after chatting for a few moments with C. Bascom Slemp, the President's secretary, regarding the wonders of Florida's real estate and climate, was admitted to the President's private office, where he conferred with President Coolidge for twenty minutes.

"Just a social call," he said, in answer to queries as to what had inspired his visit.

Navy Dirigible Takes Eyes of Science Mile Toward Eclipse

BY OLIVER H. P. GARRETT.

New York, Jan. 24.—Men reached toward the sun. A mile above the gray surface of the Atlantic, eighteen miles out to sea from Montauk point, the man made dirigible Los Angeles was suspended like a drop of moisture in the sky while the earth and the moon raced on their orbits to pass on the path of the sun.

It was man's gesture of awakening power, puny in comparison to an eclipse, but vast in comparison to the flight of the Reindeer men, faces averted from the spectacle they feared because they did not understand, in the ages before there was history.

Forty-two Busy on Board.

There were forty-two men on the dirigible. Naval officers were in the control car watching the motors. Naval scientists in the Pullman like compartments stared at the receding sun with instruments, charts and specially prepared time pieces. Naval photographers on the tiny platform atop the gas bag itself snapped cameras toward the sky, like dogs baying at the moon. And in one of the red curtained cabins below a young man, shivering with cold, dictated an account of the flight to a wireless telegrapher who wass tossing the staccato clicks into the air to be caught up a hundred miles away at the naval air station in Lakehurst, N. J.

If no men have ever seen an eclipse quite like the one of today, also no eclipse has ever known men to meet it in this fashion. The Los Angeles traversed only one of the 240,000 miles between the earth and the moon, but the little thrust of its nose into the sky was the first time scientists have approached an eclipse to study it beyond the surface of the earth. The results were largely unknown tonight, pending development of plates taken by the photographers.

Twelve Hours in Air.

The ship was returned to its hangar at Lakehurst without mishap at 5:22 o'clock in the afternoon, twelve hours and twenty-two minutes after its departure. The crew, observers and scientists crawled stiffly down the ladder. During most of their trip they had been exposed to below zero weather.

The record of the observation of the eclipse from the dirigible was told in the story by Watson Davis, assistant editor of Science Service, dictated to the telegrapher while the dirigible was suspended in the air under the shadow of the moon.

After the Los Angeles had been returned to its hangar, Dr. C. C. Kiess, assistant physicist of the bureau of standards at Washington, who was in chargre of the spectroscope, said he had determined hydrogen and helium gas rings in the sun. Capt. S. B. Littell of the naval observatory said the corona had thrown off rays of about 1,700,000 miles, or twice the diameter of the sun.

HINES-HOWARD WEDDING ONE OF CITY'S MOST COLORFUL CEREMONIES

LORETTA HINES BECOMES BRIDE AMID SPLENDOR

Cathedral Service Is Rich in Color.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

And so they are married:

Loretta Margaret Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines of Evanston, and Howell Hoffman Howard, son of Col. and Mrs. H. Maxwell Howard of Dayton, O.

It had taken weeks of preparation, this abundantly complete wedding of yesterday, with its fourteen bridesmaids and fourteen groomsmen, with its Paris gowns and its Rue de la Paix jewels, with its opera singer and members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, with its lilies and smilax and candles.

And it will be months before the 2,000 invited guests and the other 1,000 uninvited guests who jockeyed for positions in the Holy Name cathedral will be through telling of the splendor of that white, and silver, and cardinal red ceremony.

Only Took Three Minutes.

But, actually, it took less than three minutes, and exactly 155 words for George Cardinal Mundelein to ask the age old questions and receive the age old responses which gave the stately young brunette in the white velvet gown the right to lift back the bridal veil and smile up at her husband.

Not everybody in the huge cathedral could hear those hundred and a half words, so freighted with religious and personal responsibility. But even the tiny, wistful little girl with the mud on her dress who slid into the church between a policeman's club and the silk topper of a frock-coated gentleman—even she knew what was happening at each precise minute.

For white booklets, the outer cover of which was adorned with an ecclesiastical emblem in red and gold, and with the monograms of the bride and bridegroom, containing the marriage service, the nuptial mass, the names of the celebrants, and of the musical program, were distributed at the door.

Guests Gather Early.

The prelude to the wedding really begins as early as 10:30 when people start filling the pews of the cathedral. The pillars are entwined with smilax, hundreds of candles send out softening glimmers to the thousands of Easter lilies that bank the altar, supplicate at the shrines, and do sentinel duty down the aisle.

The middle part of the church is reserved for the families and closest friends of the wedding party. In the very front is a line of gold chairs for the attendants. Acolytes in red cassocks and white lace and surplices make their way softly about the church.

Some of the others aren't quite so quiet. At the door a squad of policemen, in charge of Sergt. Steven J. Laidy, and another group under the command of Sergt. Simon Rush of the East Chicago avenue police station, are combining religious reverence with their vested authority and doing a mighty good job of it, too.

"Make It Snappy" at Door.

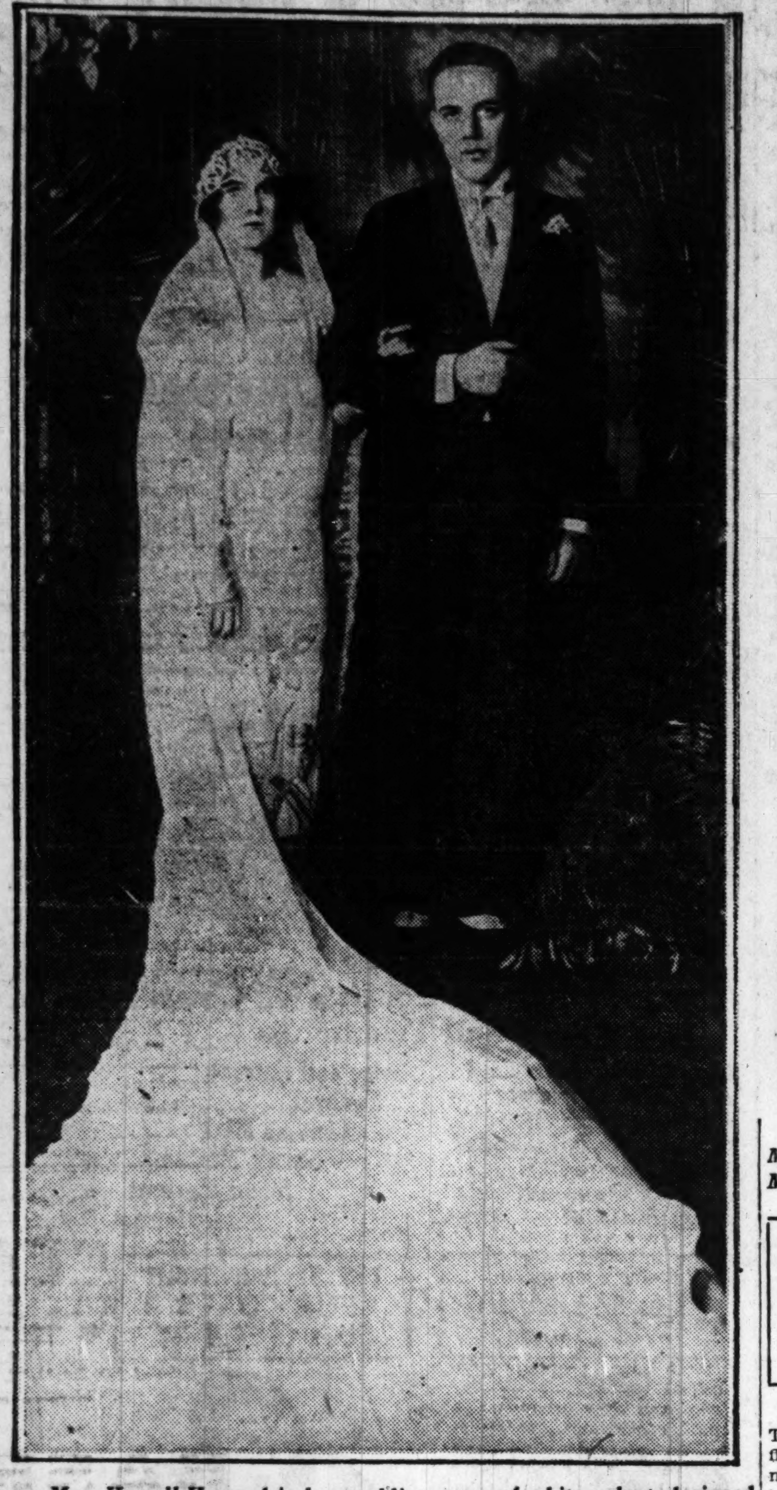
The State street cars are blocked; limousines and taxis halt at the carpet, where a doorman urges them to "make it snappy." It takes ten minutes to get from the carriage step to the door of the church.

The cathedral is jammed now, crowds of august men and gentle women have spilled over onto side steps and transcepts. There doesn't seem to be room for another person, unless it's the bride herself. It's just noon and the bride has arrived. She is driven up in a limousine lined with satin. The crowds banked in nearby windows and in trees look—and feel repaid.

Mrs. Hines, in a gown of powder blue chiffon, with a coat of midnight blue velvet trimmed with chinchilla, is led down the aisle to her place in the first pew to the left. That is significant, and the people draw themselves nearer the center aisle. Through a side door comes Tito Shipa, a music roll under his arm. He smiles and nods to several prominent musicians near the wall. Then he hurries to the back of the church

Cardinal Takes His Place.

The cardinal's procession comes in. Acolytes, priests, monsignors, in a kaleidoscope of symbolic colors, mostly red and silver. Mrs. Hines is the first to kneel as the cardinal passes along, his hands making the sign of the cross in blessing of the congregation. Accompanied by the Rt. Rev. M. J. Fitzsimmons and the Rt. Rev. M. A. Purcell, the cardinal goes to his red throne to the left of the enclosure.



Mrs. Howell Howard in her wedding gown of white velvet, designed by Drecoll of Paris. She is wearing the diamond pendant which is her husband's wedding gift to her. In place of a bouquet the bride carried a white prayer book, the gift of Bishop Kelley, and the crystal rosary beads which Pope Pius XI. sent her with his nuptial blessing.

His red cape is removed; a silver one is put on. The tall, silvery mitre is placed on his head, and the cardinal takes his place in front of the altar.

It's still now, very still.

From somewhere back in the church a bugle blows. Another hush and the deep tones of Lohengrin's wedding march seem almost to set the lilies swaying with the reverberation.

A long line of ushers, seven pairs, to be exact, make their way up the aisle. They are Charles M. Hines, a brother of the bride; Delano W. Ladd, Plainfield, N. J.; Charles Clapp, Greenwich, Conn.; Noel Armstrong, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Peter J. McHugh, Chicago; Edwin T. Lamb Jr., Norfolk, Va.; Nathan G. Osborne, Chicago; and Edgar M. Thacker Jr.; James P. Thacker, Samuel Markham, Raymond Ohmer, John K. McIntire, Frank T. Huffman Jr., and Willard N. Kirkpatrick, all of Dayton.

Silver Line Steps Up.

When the file of black is well to the front the graceful line of silver steps up.

Miss Eunice Howard, sister of the bridegroom and the maid of honor, comes first. Then in pairs—Miss Florence Notz, Miss Anne Schuttler, Miss Sarane Otis, Miss Dorothy Curtis, Miss Scytha Mark, Miss Edwena Love, Miss Eleanor Davies of Washington, D. C., Ruth Patterson of Cleveland, Miss and Miss Elizabeth Telfer of Pittsburgh. And last, Mrs. Champ Carry of Chicago, matron of honor.

The slim silver silhouettes are swathed in Drecoll models in silver cloth and satin, with long sleeves. Their madonna caps are of silver cloth with a cluster of silver balls on the head in the back. The girls carry formal bouquets of Easter lilies.

Another wait; then from behind hats and flowers and candles and policemen, the guests catch a glimpse of the bride, on the arm of her father. Her white velvet gown is simply made; her tulle veil covers her face and sweeps out far behind her. She carries the white prayer book which Bishop Francis Kelley gave her and the crystal rosary beads which Pope Pius XI. sent her with his nuptial blessing.

Pair Move to Altar.

As Miss Hines makes her modest but confident way up the aisle, Mr. Howard and his best man, Ralph J. Hines, another brother of the bride, come in from the right transcept and wait for her.

A wave of suppressed adjectives of admiration seems to sweep through the audience as the girl in white meets the man in black, and the pair move to the altar.

The cardinal commences to speak. A few personal remarks about "those who have known you long and loved you well;" then the 155 words, beginning, "Howell Hoffman Howard, wilt thou?" and ending, "I join you together in marriage: In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

The cardinal goes back to his throne; the couple kneels at the white draped prie-dieu; from the back of the church Tito Schipa is singing. And in the front is the altar, where Bishop Kelley, assisted by Fathers Smyth, Diedenburg, and Shannon are making ready to celebrate the nuptial mass.

The mass is over. The cardinal and the religious procession pass down the side aisle, as the congregation kneels. A wait; then Mr. Howard and his bride walk down the aisle as the congregation stands on tiptoes.

At the door, the wistful little girl with the mud on her dress, stands, transfixed; the cardinal has blessed her; the bride has smiled on her. It's a wonderful day.

FLAPPING IS BARRED NOW, GIRLS; SLENDER DIGNITY'S THE THING

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—That coy creature of past seasons, the flapper, is to be passé this spring. The new fashionable American girl is to be a tall, slender, dignified young woman.

This was the decision announced today by Charles Dana Gibson, artist; Leo Lentelli, sculptor, and Frank Alvah Parsons, head of the School of Applied Design.

The artists indicated their choice by selecting six young women to wear hats that will be launched in the fashionable world for spring. They were unanimous in choosing tall young women with heads set high on slender throats.

Although they banned the flapper, the fact that several of the young women chosen have bobbed hair indicated that this vogue will continue during the coming season.

CONFIDENCE MAN IS ARRESTED BY EVANSTON POLICE

Charles Phillips, said to be internationally known as a confidence man, was taken into custody yesterday by the Evanston police and is being held on the complaint of Herbert J. Marks, a Milwaukee building contractor, who had been selected by Phillips and two other confidence men as a prospective victim. The companions were not caught.

Marks was called to Evanston on a business deal by one of the men, who gave the name of "Mr. Dunn," who said he was a wealthy Pittsburgh real estate dealer. He proposed erecting a number of homes and offered Marks the contract.

The men told Marks that they were going to play the stock market, and a few hours later returned with the report that they had won $30,000. They offered to let Marks in on a "good thing," and he was told to get $1,200 to place in the pool. He left to get the money, but became suspicious and notified the Milwaukee police.

Lincoln Park Policeman Retires; Served 21 Years

Charles Ohrwall, a patrolman, for twenty-one years connected with the Lincoln park police, retired last night and will have his pension check forwarded to him in Helfingborg, Sweden. He expressed the desire of spending his remaining days in the land where he was born fifty-four years ago. "I'd like to serve on the force longer, but I can't," he said.

EVANSTON SEEKS REFERENDUM ON SUNDAY MOVIES

Petitions for a referendum to permit Sunday movies in Evanston will be circulated there this week under the auspices of the Downtown Evanston Business Men's association, it was decided yesterday. The petition will be presented to the city council and will ask for a popular vote at the April election.

"Unless we permit Sunday movies I am afraid that a great many of the newcomers in our suburb will favor union with Chicago," said Ira Rosenberg, president of the Business Men's association.

He added that several large theaters would be built in Evanston should the vote prove favorable.

Charged with fleecing Mrs. Almena Giddings, a widow, 82 years old, of her life savings, $12,000, H. I. O'Hayer, a Chicago bond salesman, was held in bonds of $10,000 yesterday at Elgin. Mrs. Giddings told the police that he obtained possession of $7,300 worth of her stock by telling her that it would be necessary for the certificates to be filed in Chicago.

BLIND PEDDLER, FATHER OF 16, DIES.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—William Edward Dane, 58, a blind broom peddler and the father of sixteen children, died here last night. Only seven children and his widow survive. He had been married three times.

STORE COLLECTOR IS ROBBED OF $2,000 RECEIPTS

Martin Jacobson, 7854 Peoria street, a collector for the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, was robbed of $2,000 last night as he completed his day's work by picking up the receipts of the store at 605 East 79th street.

As he was about to reënter his car he found himself confronted by an armed man. He was ordered to drive to a dark alley, where the gunman took his bag containing the money and hopped into another car which had been following.

Jacobson was unable to pursue the highwaymen because the gunman had taken the key to his ignition system.

U. of C. Student, Alleged Son of King, Is Robbed

Aktande Essies, who says he is the son of an African king and is a law student at the University of Chicago, was robbed of $215 yesterday in Philadelphia, it was reported from there. He said two Negroes robbed him when he asked them to direct him to a hotel.

S. GLENN YOUNG KILLED; 3 MORE DEAD; 5 WOUNDED

Herrin Civil War Breaks Out Again.

Thomas in the head. The klansmen picked up their dead and wounded and cleared out."

This account makes no mention of Thomas' allies in the battle, but other witnesses insisted that three or four armed men assisted the deputy.

As soon as the word reached klansmen that Young had been killed patrols were sent out to guard the roads and no one was allowed to enter or leave the town who did not give the klan password.

The klansmen also ordered every one off the city streets and are patrolling them.

Further trouble is feared unless troops arrive here before the inquest today. The funerals also may bring trouble.

Young's Status Doubtful.

The status which Young occupied since his latest return to Herrin is doubtful. Following "the truce of Williamson county," Sam Stearns, who, as head of the county klan, brought Young to the county, refused to finance Young any longer.

Although divorced from the state klan by an official order of Grand Dragon Palmer, Young has been free lancing lately and was supported by a few klansmen and personal friends. He has conducted raids at various times, taking prisoners to Benton, where they filed bond for appearance in federal court.

WHY TROOPS WERE SENT.

Gov. Small, after being informed of the killings by a TRIBUNE reporter, communicated at once with residents of Herrin.

"I was told that at least two men had been killed and perhaps two or three wounded," he said. "It looked as if there might be trouble at the inquests and so I decided to send the company from Carbondale which is nearby.

"I expect the troops will get there before morning. My reports are that everything is quiet at the moment. It is too early yet to say when the troops can be withdrawn."

BROUGHT CIVIL WAR.

S. Glenn Young appeared in Herrin and Williamson county soon after the Herrin massacre. Since that time his activities and those of enemies have brought about a condition of civil war throughout the county.

Young first claimed to be a federal prohibition agent, and his spectacular career has been featured by violent episodes which reached far outside the county and culminated in his being ambushed and shot May 24, near Okawville, Ill.

Employed by Klan.

Later it became known that Young's dry raid activities were entirely unofficial and that he had been brought to Williamson county by the Ku Klux Klan, who employed him as leader for numerous dry raids.

The choice of Young was backed by his earlier activities as a law enforcement agent.

His first act to startle the public was his capture of the noted Crawleys, a gang of world war draft evaders for whom United States troopers and federal officers searched for months in the mountains of northern Georgia, western Carolina, and eastern Tennessee. Young attacked the draft evaders single handed, caputured them all, and brought them to Knoxville, Tenn.

HERRIN DRY RAIDER IS KILLED

Young as he appeared when he was the law in Williamson county and earned the sobriquet "Two Gun Glenn."

Ora Thomas, deputy sheriff of Williamson county, who killed Young and was slain by the dry raiders.

Later as an unrelenting foe of liquor he won prominence and the soubriquet of "man killer" through his activities against moonshiners in the mountains of Georgia and Tennessee. Still later he was dubbed "Two Gun Young" when he started carrying two pistols, and sometimes three or four after many threats against his life had been made.

In ten years Young had a record of more than 3,000 arrests, and all he had to show for them were six or seven scars. He once estimated that he had killed more than a score of men. For fifteen years he worked for the department of justice, and seven years of that time were spent in hunting down deserters from the army. His activities, it was said, cost the government $60,000 in rewards offered for the arrest of those Young captured or killed when they resisted arrest.

In 1920 Young's crusade brought him into Illinois, and almost from the time he entered the state was in the public eye. He first startled the people of the state when he entered the home of a farmer at Madison, Ill., in search of liquor and allowed the owner to snap a pistol at him three times before drawing his own weapon and firing nine shots into the man's body.

Raids Follow Arrival.

With this background Young came to Williamson county already torn by factional strife—klan, anti-klan, mineunion, nonunion, and the like — and found fertile ground for his activities.

A series of sensational raids followed his arrival. Saloons, stores, and homes were entered, arrests were made, liquor confiscated.

Backed by Sheriff George Galligan, the anti-klan faction fought these activities and charges of robbery, assault, and other forms of violence were made resulting in the arrest of Young and sixty of his associates. Young was indicted thirty-one times and his bonds totaled some $41,000, which later were forfeited when Young failed to appear for trial.

Made Himself Chief.

The climax of Young's career in Herrin came early last February when he usurped the office of chief of police of the city after Chief John Ford had been kidnaped and taken out of the county.

Fear of a serious outbreak caused Gov. Small to send state troops to the county under command of Maj. Gen. M. J. Foreman, who disarmed Young and took charge. Young then left the county.

From time to time he was heard from in various parts of the state. In May, while driving to St. Louis, he and Mrs. Young were ambushed near Okawville, both being wounded. Previously Young had been indicted in federal court at Danville, Ill., on charges of impersonating a federal officer.

A week later Williamson county citizens met and agreed on terms of peace. One of the provisions was that Young was to be dismissed by the klan and was to keep out of the county.

ROBBER GETS 20 LASHES AND FIVE YEARS IN PRISON

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 24.—[United Press.]—In a biting cold wind, Horace Fox, 22, was given twenty lashes on his bare back at the whipping post here today. Fox shivered as a loose coat draped over his shoulders was removed, his hands trussed about his head, and Warden Leach applied the "cat." Fox pleaded guilty to robbery of a number of homes. He must serve five years in prison in addition to the whipping.

IBANEZ ROASTS ALFONSO AFTER KING DROPS SUIT

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Blasco Ibanez bears no gratitude to King Alfonso for his "liberality" in dropping his suit in the French courts against the "rebellious novelist."

In a letter thanking Premier Herriot for his part in the matter Ibanez brands King Alfonso's act as a simple dodge to avoid the condemnation of the world, while at the same time making a grandstand play with credulous Spaniards.

"Now in Spain they are going to say that but for the king's gracious act I would have been condemned at least to the guillotine," Ibanez writes, "while, as a matter of fact, had the case been pushed I would have been sentenced to pay a 1 franc fine.

"King Alfonso is merely seeking to cover his disapproval abroad, but he will soon be seeking shelter from an awakened Spanish opinion."

TORRIO IS SHOT; POLICE HUNT FOR O'BANION MEN

Rum Czar's Driver Is Also Hit.

John Torrio, czar of bootlegging and vice in Chicago, was shot five times yesterday in front of his home, 7011 Clyde avenue. He is expected to recover.

The assailants escaped. The police and the underworld are convinced they are gangsters loyal to the memory of Dean O'Banion, the beer runner who was murdered in his flower shop two months ago. O'Banion had challenged Torrio's control of beer running and was killed by Torrio's men, police are certain.

See Death Challenge.

Torrio attended O'Banion's wake. His presence was interpreted by the underworld as a warning to any who challenged him that they might expect to sleep in silver-bronze caskets surrounded by thousands of dollars worth of flowers.

But Torrio's enemies were not cowed. A week ago they tried to assassinate his first lieutenant, Al Capone.

That attempt failed. Yesterday three of them lay in wait for half an hour opposite the Torrio home, waiting for Torrio to return. At 4:30 o'clock Torrio and his wife, Anna, drove up in a heavy sedan. While one of the gunmen remained at the wheel, the other two jumped out and shot Torrio, who tried to escape by running into the apartment building. The attackers leaped back into their machine and fled.

Trailed by Underworld.

Torrio's bravado carried him to O'Banion's wake but immediately afterward he disappeared. So did several of O'Banion's most loyal followers, the police said. They believe the O'Banion men trailed Torrio to Hot Springs, Ark., and then Havana, Cuba, and to St. Petersburg, Fla.

Torrio returned from St. Petersburg a fortnight ago and his wife followed him back to the city last week. The O'Banion men arrived a few days ago.

The police ordered a search last night for George Moran, a former associate of O'Banion. He was in the safe-blowing business before prohibition offered him a more profitable field of endeavor, it is said.

Meanwhile the police were piecing together the story of the shooting. Torrio himself gave them no help. To Assistant State's Attorney John Sbarbaro he said:

"I know who they are. It's my business. I'll tell you later."

What Price Hunting?

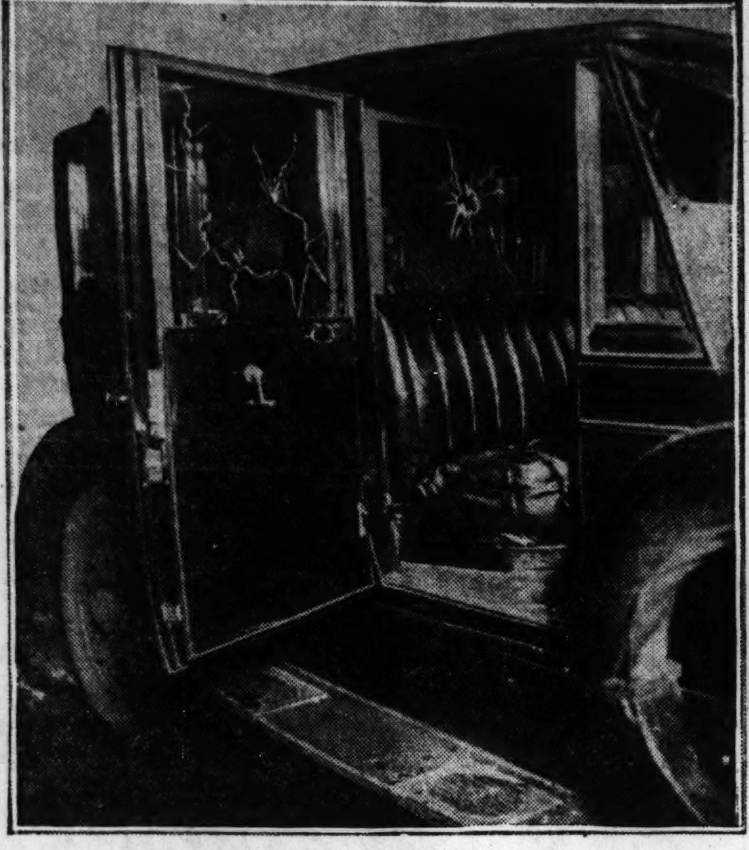
Mrs. Torrio told the circumstances of the shooting but said she would not help in finding the gunmen.

"What good would that do?" she inquired.

Torrio and his wife, Anna, were returning to their home from downtown with a load of parcels. The car was driven by Robert Barton, a chauffeur. As it drew up in front of the Torrio home, two men jumped from a gray Cadillac which was parked around the corner on 70th street. One was armed with a shotgun, the other with a pistol.

Mrs. Torrio left the car first. She was half way to the steps and Torrio was still inside the car collecting the parcels when the gunmen opened fire. The man with the pistol was shooting at Torrio from the front of the machine while the man with the shotgun sent a charge of buckshot through the coachwork of the Lincoln.

VICE CZAR SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY RIVAL GANGSTERS



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Picture shows how Johnny Torrio's car was riddled yesterday when underworld rivals of the vice baron wounded him and his chauffeur in front of Torrio's home, while Mrs. Torrio looked on.

Closeup of Johnny Torrio, shot down yesterday by underworld foes.

Torrio Runs.

Barton was wounded in the knee, but Torrio wasn't scratched. He dropped the parcels and ran toward his front door. He was the apex of a triangle of which the two gunmen formed the other corners. They fired again.

A .45 caliber pistol bullet struck him in the arm. He wheeled around and at the same time tried to reach his own pistol, witnesses said. A shotgun charge struck him. One slug hit him in the jaw, breaking the bone. Two struck him in the chest. A fourth caused a painful wound in the abdomen. Torrio slumped to the sidewalk.

Frightened Away.

The man with the pistol had emptied his weapon. He stopped to reload it to finish off his victim. Something frightened him and his companion. The two assassins fled to their automobile and sped rapidly away on 70th street. At Stony Island avenue they turned north to 67th street, according to Walter Hildebrandt, 3737 North Keeler avenue, a driver for the Oriental Laundry company. Hildebrandt followed the fugitives to 67th street, where he lost the trail. He told police he could identify them.

Meanwhile Mrs. Torrio had dragged her husband to the vestibule, where she attempted to stop the flow of blood. Motorcycle Policeman Roy Carlson, who heard the shots, hailed a passing cab and took Torrio to the Jackson Park hospital.

Barton the chauffeur, who was wounded at the first shot, had sped away in the car as soon as Torrio jumped from it. A former police sergeant, John Connolly, noticed the back of the car was torn with bullet holes and followed Barton, with Policeman Roy Saunders, who happened to be passing.

GEORGE MORAN.

Police last night searched the precincts of vice for George Moran, former ally of Dean O'Banion, in connection with the Torrio attack.

They overtook Barton at 71st street and Jeffery avenue. He refused to tell how he was wounded. He was taken under arrest to the Jackson Park hospital and although Torrio was already there, Barton refused to make any statement.

Al Capone, Torrio's righthand man, rushed to the hospital. He was in tears as he approached his chief's bedside. He arrived almost at the same moment that Assistant State's Attorney Sbarbaro came.

Blames "The Gang."

"The gang did it! The gang did it!" he kept repeating as he waited outside Torrio's room, but he refused to explain who "the gang" was.

To Sbarbaro he said:

"I'll tell you more when he gets well."

Capone, in his capacity of field marshal of the Torrio forces, took command in the sick room. He ordered the employment of two nurses for the night.

Capone was finally taken into custody for questioning. The police admitted he had revealed nothing to them.

The car in which Torrio and his wife were riding was not theirs. It belongs to Jack Cusick, also a figure in the underworld. Jack is the brother of Harry Cusick, the pander. The Cusicks are on the best terms with Torrio because it was Torrio who interceded successfully with Gov. Small for Harry Cusick's parole.

Borrowed Cusick Car.

Jack Cusick, owner of the car, left for New Orleans on Monday. He turned his car and his chauffeur over to Torrio. Had Torrio driven his own car—he never allowed a chauffeur to run it—he might have been killed because he would have offered a more conspicuous mark.

Mrs. Torrio said she had left home in the morning with her husband and her brother, Thomas J. Jacobs. She said her husband and Jacobs left her to have a conference with former Ald. Kenna.

Jacobs said he had come to Chicago only recently and had found a job, through Torrio's help, in The Ship a gambling house in Cicero under Torrio's protection. Since that place was closed by the Cicero police, Jacobs said he had continued to draw his pay for going out there daily and keeping the cigar counter properly moist.

The shooting of Torrio will delay his serving a federal sentence for violating the prohibition laws. He has repeatedly kept out of jail by the use of political pull and expert legal advice, but eight days ago he ran into the buzz saw of federal justice.

Judge Adam C. Cliffe sentenced him to nine months in the Du Page county jail for his leading rôle in the liquor running from the Sieben brewery. He was granted until next Tuesday to straighten his affairs before going to jail.

Torrio was one of ten convicted in this case. Three others of the beer aristocracy, Dean O'Banion, John Phillips and Thomas, escaped sentence—killed by rival thugs in the interim between their arrest and the trial.

Another defendant in the same case is Louis Alterie, who found the air of Colorado more healthful than Chicago's after the O'Banion shooting.

In his closing argument, limited necessarily to the facts in the case then pending, Assistant District Attorney William F. Waugh charged that Torrio was the principal offender. In fact, Torrio is regarded as the chief figure in the enormously profitable liquor trade in and around Chicago.

It is a matter of common knowledge in the underworld that Torrio collects his percentage on the sale of virtually every pint of illicit liquor sold in the city. It is not necessary that he handle the liquor himself. The power of his organization of thugs is so great that virtually every bootlegger who gets booze or beer into Chicago does so by paying Torrio for not interfering with it.

Torrio thus has a position not unlike that of the medieval barons. He levies tribute on trade. While bootlegging is his principal source of income, he also has an iron hand on its handmaiden, vice.

Came from New York.

Torrio has had a spectacular career. He learned his trade of thug with the Five Points gang in New York in which he rose to the rank of assistant boss. He was implicated in the shooting of Rosenthal and was an associate of "Lefty" Louie and "Gyp the Blood."

Jim Colosimo imported him to Chicago when Colosimo was troubled with a lot of threatening letters from persons trying to blackmail him. Torrio was Big Jim's bodyguard and organized his intelligence service. The blackhand letters stopped coming and Torrio rose in the Colosimo organizations.

He rose to the point where he threatened Colosimo's dominant position.

The breach between the two reached its climax when Torrio opened a resort in Burnham which was a commercial rival to Colosimo's own establishment in that tough community on the border between Illinois and Indiana.

Not long afterwards, Colosimo was killed. Torrio was suspected. He disappeared. When he reappeared the suspicion had been transferred to other quarters and he was not implicated.

Makes Immense Profits.

Where the profits of vice and booze had been measured in the hundreds before that time, they now began to be measured in thousands and hundreds of thousands. Torrio started with the toughest gang in town behind him. He finished by taking tribute from virtually every gang of toughs in the city and in Cicero, whence he directed most of his operations.

His hand reached out inevitably into politics. He became a power with whom public officials who had hoped for reëlection had to reckon. He became extremely wealthy. One of his recent purchases was of a seaside estate in Italy, where he housed his elderly mother, born a peasant. He gave her fifteen servants and an automobile.

RETURNS AFTER 25 YEARS; FINDS RELATIVES DEAD

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Albert Titus, son of Lawrence Titus of Fremont, a small village near here, a twentieth century wanderer, has returned home after an absence of twenty-five years. During this period he roamed throughout the United States and Canada. He finally settled down in Omaha, Neb. Like Rip Van Winkle, he is having a difficult time proving his identity.

The wandering boy ran away from Fremont when 16 years old. Not a word was heard from him until January of last year, just twenty-four years after he had mysteriously disappeared. He was believed to have been dead until the receipt of a letter from Omaha.

Titus was shocked today on his return to learn that his mother and a brother, Adam, died while he was away. Since leaving Fremont in 1900 Titus had considerable ill luck. He was married in 1909 and three years later while in Canada his wife and 2 year old babe were killed in a tornado.

Starting Tuesday Evening, February 3rd, 1925

FROM a standpoint of local pride, we should like to see "home folks" win all of the $5,000 in awards in the Brunswick "music memory" contest.

It opens in a few days . . . via radio, over the stations listed, on Tuesday, February 3rd, at 9 P. M., Eastern Standard Time—8 P. M., Central Standard Time.

$5,000 cash will be awarded each month until further notice

If you have no radio, come in to our shop and we will receive the whole program through our new Brunswick Radiola, the most remarkable of all radios.

Contest is open to all. You buy nothing, render no service in order to enter—or to win.

You simply identify the artist or orchestra, and the name of the piece each renders.

The most nearly correct answers win the prizes. A contest blank, which we will gladly give you, is all you need. It gives all particulars.

It lists all the artists, orchestras and singers by name. And gives a list of the selections from which the contest program will be taken.

Blanks ready—call for one

Get your blank today. And see that the children are supplied. It tells all the details.

This is the most important educational contest ever consummated. The awards run into large sums. Anyone can win. Anyone can enter without obligation.

Be sure to enter. Arrange to receive the program in your home over your Brunswick Radiola, and invite your friends in to do so with you. We'll give you all the blanks you need for the occasion.

Call for your contest blank—no obligation

AIR VIKINGS IN ICELAND DWARF NORSE OF OLD

Arrival Is Rated Above Feats of 1,000 Years.

Yesterday's installment of the story of the world flyers told how Lieuts. Wade and Ogden were rescued from the ocean by the cruiser Richmond after their plane had been wrecked on the hop from England to Iceland. Today's chapter tells of the triumphant arrival of the remainder of the airmen in Iceland and of a lost battle with the sea in their first attempt to get away for Greenland.

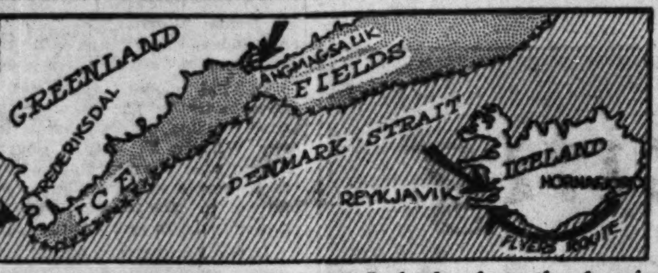
SECTION LXV.

FLYERS FIND GREENLAND NOT SO GREEN



The region between Greenland and Iceland, where the American world flyers learned there was too much ice for safe flight. They finally decided to omit East Greenland altogether and to fly directly to West Greenland. Even this, however, was a perilous journey.

According to Arnold, prior to the arrival of the world flyers, no airplanes had ever been in Iceland, and the inhabitants regarded their visit as the most historic event since the original discovery of the island by the Norsemen over a thousand years ago. The Icelanders said they even intended to commemorate the episode in their folk songs just as the early voyages of the vikings were described in the sagas of old.

"Our flight from Hornafiord to Reykjavik was, of course, the first cross country aerial journey ever made over Iceland," added Arnold. "But we followed the coast line all the way and, on account of clouds of vapor and gases that hid them from view, we missed seeing the many smoking craters for which Iceland is famous.

"However, it was far from being a monotonous trip, for we passed nearly a hundred different glaciers, and underneath us along the rocky shore line were scores of wrecked ships piled up by the angry seas that lash this arctic island.

Modern, Rousing Reception.

"But what amazed us most of all were the well tilled fields over which we flew. As we approached Reykjavik we could tell at a glance that we were going to be out of luck if obliged to come down in the outer harbor. No plane could survive such seas as were sweeping in from the gray Atlantic. But, fortunately, we found that our bouys had been placed in the shelter of an immense breakwater.

"Along this wall the entire population of Reykjavik, fully 25,000 people, were waiting to give us a lusty welcome. And we discovered that in addition to our two aerial cruisers there were four American warships in port with 2,500 sailors on board. In fact, we were responsible for a veritable American invasion of Iceland. Up to this time, according to the inhabitants, not even an American man-o'-war had ever visited them. So crowded were the streets and docks with our sailors, and so numerous were the newspaper reporters who roamed about like lost souls, that Reykjavik seemed just like a New England port.

"Not many minutes after we had moored, in steamed the Richmond with our unlucky companions, Wade and Ogden. They immediately put off in a launch and joined us on the dock while we were being welcomed by the prime minister of Iceland. Poor old Wade put his arms around Lowell and his eyes filled with tears. Although we were overjoyed to have them with us again, lumps came into our throats, because we, too, took the sinking of the Boston to heart nearly as much as they did.

Thoroughly Modern City.

"Next day, while waiting for wireless reports from Le Clair Schultze regarding the ice along the coast of Greenland, we wandered around Reykjavik. We had expected to find it a village made up of Eskimo igloos, a community inhabited by fur clad, seal spearing, blubber eating natives. So imagine our astonishment when we found that we were in a thoroughly modern city, a metropolis peopled entirely by folk of Danish descent, a city with well paved streets attractively illuminated by clusters of electric lights. Instead of igloos of ice and walrus hide, we found up to date cafés, well appointed hotels, banks, clubs, attractive shops, modistes who displayed hats and frocks from the Rue Royal and the Rue de la Paix, and even manicure parlors. So, under the circumstances, we thought that the most appropriate way for us to celebrate our arrival in Iceland would be to have a manicure. Lo and behold, the manicurists even chatted with us in English! On our way back to the hotel we had to watch our step to keep from being run down by taxis. Just imagine what a sad ending to our world flight if we had been bowled over by taxis in Iceland!

Frigid Climate a Myth.

"The people, because of their Danish origin, have blue eyes, just like Erik. The girls of Iceland were simply stunning. Instead of four parkas and muckluks we found them garbed in the latest Parisian styles. They may even have had their stockings rolled down from their knees. Who knows?

"As to the frigid climate, well, it wasn't frigid at all. In fact, it was balmy. You may not believe it, but away up there on the edge of the arctic circle in Reykjavik there is less snow and ice in winter than there is either in St. Louis or Denver. In the future, when our friends ask us to suggest some salubrious clime where they may escape the rigors of a Chicago or an Omaha or a Cleveland winter, we are going to suggest as a substitute for Miami or the Isle of Pines that they try the golf courses of Iceland.

"Iceland belongs to Denmark, and the prime minister receives his appointment from Copenhagen. One of the first functions we attended was a formal luncheon which he gave for Admiral Magruder, the captains of our American warships, and the six of us. 'Hank' and I were somewhat conspicuous at this gathering because we were the only ones who couldn't go in uniform. We had to appear in our breeches and khaki shirts, which were a blot on the scenery in the midst of all those naval officers in their resplendent full dress. At first we felt about as comfortable as a couple of longshoremen at a Junior League ball. Anyhow, we had a good time and voted Iceland a great success.

Advance Boat Icebound.

"Our long stay of thirteen days in Iceland was most irksome in one respect. We were anxious to get on. But we kept receiving adverse reports from Greenland. First we heard that the Gertrude Rask, the Danish boat on which Lieut. Schultze was trying to get our supplies to Greenland, was stuck in the ice about forty miles from Angmagsalik. So Admiral Magruder and Smith held a conference and decided to send the cruiser Raleigh on a reconnoitering cruise to see whether or not there might be some other place on the coast of little known Greenland that might do. Wade, who of course knew all our requirements, went along, and there were also two small scout planes on the Raleigh. Next we received a wireless from Schultze saying that the Gertrude Rask was still floating helplessly in the Arctic ice pack, that it was now eighty miles from Angmagsalik, and fast running out of coal.

"All this time we were going over every inch of our planes, making sure that they were in shape for the two long jumps ahead of us—jumps where if anything went wrong it would be certain to mean disaster. We cut down our weight to the bare essentials, even leaving out many of our tools, and abandoning all clothing but such things as sweaters, one khaki shirt apiece, heavy breeches, rubber boots, and fur flying suits.

"Our next message from Schultze said that the Gertrude Rask had finally broken through the ice and reached its destination. This was a great relief not only to us but to the American newspaper men who had turned ultra-pessimistic and were making bets with us that we could never get through and that the flight would have to be abandoned. I believe there was only one lone newspaper man, a correspondent for a Washington paper, who sided with us and still thought we would make it.

Italian Flyer on Job.

"On Aug. 11 the advance agent for the Italian flyers arrived. The only thing delaying us now was that Schultze had wirelessed it would be impossible for us to light on the water in the harbor at Angmagsalik owing to the fact that there were too many floating cakes of ice. Aug. 16 came and still these young icebergs were too thick. Moreover, the Raleigh was encountering fifty mile gales en route. In disgust we now gave up hope of going by way of Angmagsalik and laid plans for a far longer flight, not to the eastern coast of Greenland, which was nearest us, but away around to Fredericksdal, 830 miles away, on the west coast. Seven hundred and fifty miles of this flight would have to be made right across the open ocean, and much of it over icebergs.

"Shortly after noon, Sig. Locatelli, Italian war ace and adventurous member of the chamber of deputies in Rome, arrived in Hornafjord from the Faroe islands in his superflying boat. The next day, while the American warships were getting into position between Iceland and Fredericksdal, Locatelli reached Reykjavik. We were much impressed by his keen looking, twin motored monoplane with its steel hull. It was just about as efficient looking as any aerial thing we had ever seen, and Locatelli seemed to be a splendid, dashing fellow.

"The following morning we were up before dawn, out on the planes, waiting for favorable wireless reports. At 10 o'clock fairly good news came, and at 10:15 we taxied to the outer harbor and attempted to take off. There was not a breath of wind, but the swell was so great and the planes were so heavily loaded with fuel, heavier than ever before on the entire flight, that we were unable to make it. The propeller on the New Orleans was struck by a roller and broken off. A wave hit the Chicago and tore off the front spreader bar. Both planes had a great many wires loosened while diving and careening through the waves. So we were reluctantly obliged to return to our moorings. On this one day the harbor at Angmagsalik was clear of ice for three hours, then it filled again, and from then on it would have been impossible to land there.

Damages All Repaired.

"At dinner that evening Lieut. Crumrine, the advance officer for us as far as Iceland, and noted both for his quietness and his seeming desire to always remain in the background, astonished us, as well as the Icelanders, by appearing in the big café in a flaming red shirt. Of course, he was the center of all eyes, and he apparently liked being in the spotlight for a change, so vowed he would wear that red shirt as long as we remained in Iceland.

"On the night of the 19th of August we entertained the Italian crew and Smith invited them to fly along with us in order to thus have the protection of the American cruisers and destroyers. Locatelli accepted with alacrity.

"It was not until 2:30 a. m. on the morning of Aug. 21 that we finally finished repairing our planes with the spare parts which the Richmond had just brought back to us. As we were returning to the hotel favorable reports came in, and without having had any sleep whatever we climbed into our planes and started for Greenland on the longest and most hazardous leg of our entire flight."

RITTEN FIRES ORE SHOTS FOR EFFICIENT NAVY

nds Jap Protest About Pacific Maneuvers.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Spe-al.]—The naval construction contro-y bobbed up again on the floor of house today when Representative A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], ranking ublican member of the naval af- committee, read a resolution ed by the Japanese house of peers ting the American naval maneu-s in Hawaiian waters this year.

The resolution was sent to Mr. Britten by Teiichi Sugita, a member of the e of peers at Tokio, with a letter sting him to exert his good of-s in having the navy department don the maneuvers.

Asks About British Ships.

During the course of his remarks, Britten also stated he desired e information concerning the con-ction of two British ships, which all intents and purposes are air- e carriers, but which the speaker ted out are mounted with sixteen guns.

"I want to know," he demanded, whether Great Britain is pulling the l over our eyes again and con-ting airplane carriers in the guise two capital ships."

Protest of Japan.

The Japanese resolution of protest lows:

"Whereas, America has decided to centrate her whole navy on the cific for the purpose of holding nd naval maneuvers, with Hawaii the central base of operations, ex-ding over a period of nine months m January next;

"Whereas, America intends to in-te Australia and New Zealand to rticipate in the said maneuvers;

"Whereas, the above action of America tends to disregard complete-y the spirit of the Washington con-ference and to menace the peace of e far east;

"We, Mitsuri Toyama and the mem-rs of the Tai Bei Mondai Yushi kai, representing all classes of the panese people and all political par-, publicly assembled today, Dec. 1924, do hereby earnestly hope that American government, out of due ard to international morality and cause of world peace, will imme-tely abandon the disquieting plans."

Cites Senate Proposal.

The debate occurred during the dis-sion of a bill authorizing an increase the cost of two airplane carriers now der construction to a total of $34,000,-0. The bill was passed by a vote of 2 to 34 and was sent to the senate. e ships affected are the Lexington d Saratoga.

Representative Butler [Rep., Pa.], airman of the naval affairs com-ttee, started to explain the needs r the increase when Representative rner [Dem., Tex.], ranking Demo-rat of the ways and means committee, terrupted to call attention to the fact at an amendment had been added to the navy bill in the senate calling for another arms conference.

"The work on these airplane carriers will be about half through by July," he said, "but suppose a dis armamant conference is called and decides to do away with the carriers. Will you sink these ships then?"

Recalls Other Parley.

"The question is very hard to answer," Chairman Butler replied. "If I thought the resolution would result in a further limitation of armament, I would say 'Yes, sink them.' At this time let us move on, not for the purpose of threatening any nation but for the purpose of equipping ourselves for the national defense."

Representative Vinson [Dem., Ga.], ranking Democrat on the naval affairs committee, explained each of the vessels would carry four squadrons or seventy-two airplanes in all.

"It is pertinent to state here," he said, "that under the treaty we are not up to the ratio allowed in airplane carriers. As a matter of fact, we could construct another."

Not Up to Ratio.

Mr. Britten asserted that when the carriers are completed the United States and Japan will have three apiece, while Great Britain will have six, but from the ratio standpoint Uncle Sam should have five to Japan's three. He then referred to the new British ships.

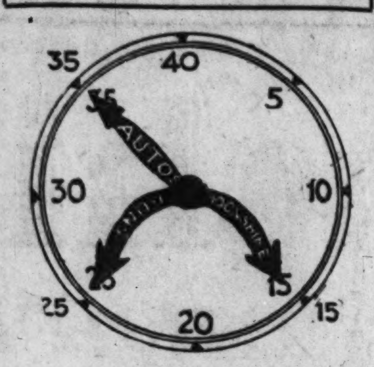
"These ships are being constructed in a rather secret manner," Mr. Britten said. "We do not know what is going into them. We have been told by experts that they are plane carriers and by other experts that they are capital ships, and their construction indicates they might be both. When we try to elevate our guns Great Britain objects. Great Britain is constantly protecting herself by her superior diplomacy, and I want the United States to do the same thing, and it will not do so unless attention is directed to specific things."

Charges Jingoism.

After Mr. Britten had read the Japanese resolution, Representative Wingo [Dem., Ark.] was applauded when he said the people of both the United States and Japan were being inflamed by demagogues.

"Talk of a big navy always brings forth the cry of 'Jingo!' by the little navy men and pacifists," Mr. Britten said later. "There is not the slightest prospect of war between this country and Japan, and I will go further than that and say there never will be a war between this country and Japan so long as we control the Pacific."

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the twenty-fourth day of 1925.

DAY PASSES WITH NO AUTO DEATHS; FAREWELL IS HIT

Statistics Show Decrease in Fatalities.

The hand of the automobile death clock was still yesterday. Not one person was slain by a motor car in Cook county in the twenty-four hours and the death toll for the young year remained at 35.

JOHN V. FARWELL.
[Moffett Photo.]

Two accidents occurred yesterday. Oscar Tilden, 20 years old, 5931 South Peoria street, was struck by a vampire automobile and received several injuries. The accident occurred at the corner of Broadway and Montrose avenue. Tilden was taken to the American hospital, where physicians said that, though his injuries were dangerous, he would recover. The driver of the car was not apprehended.

Mike Kubon, 1533 4th avenue, Phoenix, Ill., was probably fatally injured last night when he was struck by the automobile driven by Al Franzen, 8147 Justine street, Chicago. Kubon had just been released from the hospital, where he was taken a month ago when an automobile ran over him and broke three of his ribs. He has a wife and seven children.

John V. Farwell Injured.

John V. Farwell, 229 Lake Shore drive, president of the wholesale dry goods house that bears his name, is in St. Luke's hospital suffering from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile Friday night. The accident occurred at the corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe street.

Last night physicians reported that Mr. Farwell's condition was improving rapidly and would recover.

Mr. Farwell was walking from the University club to the Hotel Sherman. The machine that struck him as he tried to cross the street was a taxicab driven by Ben Fishman, 1215 South California avenue. The merchant was knocked down and at first it was feared that his skull had ben fractured, but an X-ray examination showed none.

Statistics Show Decrease.

Forty-two boys, who represented safety patrols of three grammar schools, appeared at the city hall yesterday and congratulated Mayor Dever's safety commission upon its success in cutting down automobile accidents in the city.

Statistics compiled by the commission from 1919 to the year just closed show that, while the number of vehicles in operation is steadily increasing, there has been a slight decrease in fatalities.

THE publication of the Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form at a sweeping reduction in price has proved an amazing success.

Within a very few months 20,000 sets were sold. This tremendous demand completely exhausted the first two printings. As a result we were forced to order a new printing early last December, and the first sets have now come from our presses.

46% Saving!

Today, therefore, we can again offer the large page, large type Britannica, complete and latest edition, at a price reduction of 46 per cent! This will be good news to all who failed to order in time to obtain one of the sets of the last printing.

It is news of the utmost importance to you and to thousands who have said, "Some day I will own the Encyclopædia Britannica."

It means that you have the opportunity, if you act promptly, of obtaining this wonderful set of books, together with a handsome free bookcase, at a price so low that every person, no matter what his circumstances, can afford it.

Everyone can now own the Britannica

It is no wonder that the Britannica in the New Form has made a sensation. There is no work of reference to compare with it as a source of authoritative information—yet the Britannica in the New Form costs less than others.

And the price includes the beautiful mahogany finish bookcase with glass doors, specially designed for the New Form by a world-famous firm of cabinetmakers. The offer of this free bookcase is in itself unique.

This Beautiful Bookcase Free

This beautiful bookcase, in mahogany finish, especially designed by Maple & Co. of London, will be given free with each set in the New Form while this offer lasts.

The unprecedented success of the New Form is proof that here at last is the ideal Britannica.

Contents identical with issues selling for twice as much

These are the big features which make the New Form so popular:

1—The large, clear type—printed from the plates of the famous Cambridge issue, on clear white opaque paper, thin but durable.

2—Handsome appearance of the 16 double volumes bound in green cloth or half-morocco.

3—Beautiful free bookcase, in dark mahogany finish, fitted with glass doors.

4—Saving of 46% in price as compared with the celebrated Cambridge issue.

5—Easy-payment plan, by which you can have a set delivered to your home for an initial payment of only $5.

The Britannica in the New Form is the newest and latest issue, containing not only a full and authoritative account of the World War and its momentous consequences, but all the latest developments in industry, art, science, invention, etc. It contains 49,000,000 words, 33,000 pages and 15,600 illustrations.

Do you own a radio set, a phonograph, a typewriter or a washing machine? Any one of these things costs more than the Britannica in the New Form at the present sweeping reduction in price. And you can obtain this great set of books for a first payment of only $5, paying the balance in small monthly amounts.

Any new printing of the Encyclopædia Britannica is a stupendous task requiring months to complete. It taxes the capacity of the biggest printing and binding plants in the United States. We have ordered a third printing of 10,000 sets. Nearly half of these will be required for sales abroad. That leaves less than 6000 for the United States, and this is all we can hope to obtain for many months to come.

Our third printing cannot last very long, and it is impossible for us to keep pace with the demand. We offer you the opportunity to obtain your set now!

Write for free booklet

It tells all about the Britannica in the New Form, reproduces a number of specimen pages (many in color), explains easy terms of payment, and tells how our experts made possible such an amazing reduction in price. 56 pages of interesting reading! Free on request if you mail the coupon today.

ONE LAW HAS INVALIDATED ALL THE OTHER LAWS AND A NEW MORAL HAS DRIVEN OUT THE OLD.

The juvenile code of ten, twenty, and thirty years ago was against drink. The boy who came drunk to a party would have been outlawed. The boys' own code was against it. We do not indict all of American youth for bad habits, but there is much evidence of laxness. Occasionally there is some such story as that of the wild debauch of the Toledo high school students, of boys and girls in an abandoned riot. There were none ten years ago.

We know that many parents of daughters now have to make inquiries as to the habits of boys with whom the girls associate to find out whether they drink or not. Youth has found a premium of adventure put upon habits which before had nothing associated with them but disrepute.

Apprehensive parents are concerned as they note new and dismaying tendencies in the youth about them. There is unfortunately too much evidence that many young people of today have avoided self-discipline and escaped home discipline.

The outstanding features of the present day in the United States are successful corruption in politics, betrayal of trust in public service, depravity and brutality in crime, decrepitude in justice, and senility in the attitude of public moralists towards the requirements of a disciplined and ordered state.

The disorders and distortions in adult life find reflection in juvenile life.

December of last year had the worst crime record for that month in six years. There were twenty-eight murders, 234 holdups and robberies with gun, and 211 burglaries reported to the police. Banks are putting in machine guns and instructing employés how to use them. Money is carried through the city at midday in armored cars guarded by men with automatic rifles. Women are afraid in their houses. The customers in outlying stores are shot as the proprietors defend themselves from holdups.

Men and women are attacked while driving home in their automobiles and the women are lucky if they are only robbed of their jewelry and furs and the men are lucky if they are only beaten up. These crimes are going into the police records day by day.

The Chicago record is our concern here locally, but there is not here an outstanding exception to the conditions prevailing elsewhere, particularly in metropolitan districts of the country.

The records of the Chicago Municipal court show that offenses against sobriety and good order have increased from 38,901 in 1919 to 91,362 last year. Offenses against the person increased from 6.703 to 7,908, and against chastity and morals from 1,368 to 7,165. Increase in population does not explain this.

Many people see all these evidences of weakened law and discipline and character written in the annals of crime and disorder, and are not only dismayed, but are puzzled to account for the dissolving of old standards. To us cause is as evident as it is logical.

Present day America is dominated by people of one law and one moral. The law is not derived from the Mosaic code, from Roman law, or from Anglo-Saxon law. It is of their own making. It is prohibition of alcoholic beverages. It has been law for five years.

The people whose moral code for public regulation is concerned solely with such prohibition have no time for any other law. This is the one law. Their standard of personal respectability and morality is prohibition. Their standard of public responsibility and honesty in public service is prohibition. Their requirement of a community is only one, prohibition.

This is an obsession and it is a morbid dominance of the country. A person dominated by a single idea will be eccentric. A country controlled by people of a single idea, of one law and one moral, will be demoralized.

In politics and public service the people of one law and one moral who dominate both major parties in this respect apply one measurement. Will the man vote dry? If he will he qualifies as honest and competent. It is an axiom of political rascality to seek a virtue which costs nothing and under its protection proceed about the business of the day, which is spoliation and corruption of government.

Politicians who wanted to go about this business knew that if they voted dry their record was closed to further examination. It would not be inspected. Criticism would stop at the dry vote. Public morality was served by the dry vote and other fields were entirely unguarded.

Old organizations which have served public good such as here the Legislative Voters' league and the Municipal Voters' league find it increasingly difficult to gain any audience for their criticism and warnings. The general and essential good of communities has been sent crippled to the rear. The people of one law and one moral not only make this one paramount and forget the others, but they assail other citizens who do not bow the knee to this code, but who are trying by precept work and organization to oppose crime and support good government. These citizens are scoffed at and their good work derided and their reputations attacked, to the general public detriment.

Prohibition has supported on the dry issue public servants who have sold the public out. There has been no criticism of their misdeeds because the people with one law are not otherwise concerned. This has been a blanket protection. Persons who want misgovernment to profit from it have made full use of their advantages and the consequences of that have gone into the far corners of human life.

You cannot give a man full virtue for one hypocritical concession to a prevailing obsession and not find, if he is a rascal, that he has taken advantage of his immunity from the consequences of doing wrong. If the only people who could make trouble for him will do so only if he votes against their one law he is relieved of nearly all his responsibility and he acts accordingly.

The old challenge of the community to its representatives and servants has ceased. That is the case in this country. One moral hound is in full cry. The others are asleep.

The decadence of political morality is the product of the perversion of political criticism. There is free field for rogues. Our dominant moralists have discarded everything except regard for one sumptuary law which contains their whole world of public morality.

When a public standard is so lowered the social consequences will be felt. We cannot ignore many of the evidences of the collusive arrangements of politics and crime. The very nature of prohibition enforcement is in the direction of corruption of the agents of government. Local, state, and federal offices are in touch with a trade which pays enormous profits. But this attack on normal honesty in law enforcement, coming naturally from the operation of a repressive law not morally indorsed by the people upon whom it is imposed, is not so bad as the effect upon other walls of the social structure.

The general breakdown in public vigilance has opened holes for the thug, murderer, and degenerate, as well as the spoiler and grafter.

It is not strange that disorder has extended from adult to juvenile life.

Coercion of habit and custom by law has weakened control of habit by character. The people of one law and one moral have attacked the will and the individual has responded by rebellion which has extended to youth.

We are proving that a country cannot be conducted by sumptuary law placed above the general moral code, above the essential law of the land and above government by character, will, conscience, and individual decision.

It is a policy of strength in intolerance and weakness in character. We see the results.

MR. COOLIDGE IS NOT THE DUKE OF WURTTEMBERG.

Some people have written in to say that they do not like to have President Coolidge called Cal. They think it is offensively undignified. President Wilson wasn't called Woody much. Taft was called Big Bill once or twice, but it did not stick. Cleveland wasn't called Grover except opprobriously in campaigns. Harrison wasn't called Ben except offensively on the same occasions.

Presidents who have been called affectionately by familiar diminutives of their first names in the time of us and our fathers were Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, Abe and Teddy. Cal is not in bad company.

What would you? This is a democracy. Mr. Coolidge is not the duke of Wurttemberg. An American President is generally a first rate citizen shot with luck. He is not elected because he has made a campaign in the German forests and come home to Rome with a string of captives or because he has promised the pretorian guard more pay or the populace more cakes.

Except for the incident which twists currents towards him he might remain in obscurity or semi-obscurity, a man of modest repute. Suddenly he becomes the most consequential ruler in the world and to some extent a strange divinity doth hedge him.

Later he may go back to practicing law or keeping a general store. Some day the United States may have a President who will go back to being the popular undertaker of a small town. It is unlikely, but possible. This is a republic, a real democracy, and the people know it and their President is Cal, not in their address to him, but in their talk of him.

Mussolini went into a lions' cage in the Rome zoo the other day to give a little hint of his position facing the opposition. All an American President has to do is to go to the senate. Nevertheless, he has more real power within the law than Mussolini has outside of it.

The army and navy of the United States endeavor to wrap the President in the folds of the purple. That is a necessary part of the military life. Such a man as Napoleon or Grant could dispense with it. Either one could have gone unbuttoned to a military review. Alexander or Hannibal or Cæsar might have commanded in B. V. D.s, and Gustavus Adolphus might have worn a wool night cap, but Haig, Foch, Joffre, Pershing, and others, good as they were, had to look to their boots and hats. Otherwise they were not in the picture as the army must see it.

Naturally, the military endeavors to high hat the President, who is the commander in chief, and naturally the democracy if it wants to calls him Cal.

Mr. Coolidge, when he is the age his father is now, may be doing as his father does now, taking a lamp and going to bed in the upstairs of a Vermont farmhouse at 9:30 p. m.

BILL TILDEN, SCIENTIST.

Bill Tilden will retire from the world's championship of tennis. The player-writer rule is too much for him. If he cannot be both journalist and amateur tennis player he prefers journalism.

Bill says he was first a journalist and will be last a journalist and his retreat from tennis shows that championships are only interesting intervals in his newspaper career.

Bill's misfortune seems to be that tennis made his journalism more successful than it might otherwise have been. It raised his journalistic income, which in turn helped him to keep on at tennis. The executive and rules committee didn't like this economic cycle. They claimed that tennis should have no part in the financial support of amateurs. So Bill is going to be a journalist without the tennis.

Defining amateurs has become one of our most interesting cross-word puzzles. In spirit, if not in technical fact, Bill Tilden, everybody knows, is not a commercial athlete. The technicality that hangs him up on the hooks of the has-beens may be necessary, but it does not apply spiritually to Bill Tilden. His heart is in tennis, and his earnings were for tennis, not vice versa. Had a committee of journalists ruled him out of journalism because he subordinated his profession to his game, there would have been more reason.

Tilden is neither commercial nor an amateur in essence. He is a scientist. Perhaps most American athletes are scientists. He prepares for his campaign with the conscientious thoroughness of the German general staff. It is a technical study. It is a project worth detailed inspection and study. It is a life work.

These athletic virtuosos of America have swept foreign competition before them. But the carefree spirit of the British game is gone. Perhaps our way is better. It wins victories. It draws crowds. It makes heroes. Amateur means lover, but love with a treatise on courtship and the technique of winning, somehow is different from the old fashioned way.

WHY LAKE WATER SHALL NOT RUN TO THE GULF.

The discussion of the Chicago sanitary canal and the gulf waterway before and by the senate committee revealed that the opposition is opposition to navigable water from the lake to the gulf. It is opposition of other routes to this route, of the eastern section to the midwest, of the Atlantic seaboard to the Illinois and Mississippi valley.

This opposition has to find a cloak or two cloaks. The more the better for it, in an effort not to betray the real purpose. The lowering of lake levels is one cloak, but that cannot be kept on. The diversion at Chicago is the only diversion objected to. There is none to the federal work which has increased the flow in the Sault and St. Clair regions. That diversion profits the east and consequently it is not there regarded as affecting the levels.

If lake levels had any importance with the opposition the offer of the sanitary district to build compensating works would be accepted. The offer is backed by cash. It is backed by engineering opinion that, regardless of the flow through the sanitary canal, the only way to maintain levels is by such works. If the eastern opposition were honestly stating its case the offer would be accepted. Instead of that it is not considered.

The objection that a great city should not use Chicago's method of sewage disposal is another cloak. The eastern lake ports and seaboard do not care what Chicago does with its sewage. If nothing but pure lake water were running down into the Illinois river and if that did not affect the levels a tenth of an inch in a hundred years the opposition would be quite as active.

It is opposition to the finding of a new outlet from this section to other than eastern ports. It is the assertion that this is the hinterland of the east and that all its streams must flow east. As we have said before, this has precedent throughout our history. The east asserts an economic sovereignty, maintained by political dominance at Washington, over the midwest as a tributary section.

Before the revolution, after it, and now the east has said that the midwest shall not have free, easy, and undisputed access to the gulf. It was impossible to prevent the building of railways, but it has been possible to prevent the development of waterways which would connect the lakes, rivers, and gulf.

So long as the east can maintain political dominance in Washington it can maintain this opposition. When the people of the midwest and the whole western region affected by the issue, get political unity on this proposition and use it with energy and shrewdness they will prevail. They must play the other fellow's game. They must carry the fight into his camp and use his methods. They must make trouble for him, stop some of the privileges he constantly receives from the federal government, and bring him to reason by interfering with him enough to make him reasonable.

A successful attack on the rivers and harbors bill might bring about a different state of mind on the east coast. A passive midwest will get nothing.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Late January, with the sun a third of the way back up toward the equatorial line from the winter solstice, beguiles with an occasional friendly signal or an illusion. There may be at noon a bright sun. Icicles are melting at gutters and eaves and from the honeysuckle and wistaria vines by the south and west walls.

It is warm enough to sit on a bench by the wall. The surface of the snow is thaw marked. Bluejays flash in and out of the oaks. The woodpeckers and sap suckers make mucilaginous alightings flat against the trees with metallic cries. The chickadees sing "phoebe" in the firs, and there is a congregational twitter of sparrows.

Overhead there is a honk. A wedge of wild geese fly west into the marsh, and in their regimented flight stir old memories. From a nearby tangle of wild grape in the cottonwoods comes the spring song of the crested cardinal. After dark, from far away across the snow, dogs bark, and in early morning a cock crows.

Illusion is rustling behind the curtain.

Editorials of the Day

A COLLAPSE THAT DIDN'T COME.

[Kewanee, Ill., Daily Star-Courier.]

Last summer and fall, when the prices of wheat and corn were steadily going up, it was not uncommon to hear street talk that the rising prices of grain were due to a political conspiracy and that as soon as the election was over the whole thing would collapse.

Such charges were manifestly ridiculous, but here and there could be found a man who believed them and who felt that the whole trend of the grain market was due to manipulation in the interest of certain candidates.

The election came and went, but still grains continued to ascend until this week we have seen wheat being bought by millers at over $2.00 a bushel. It is now the middle of January and if there had been anything whatsoever to this political story, we would now see wheat selling at a dollar or less a bushel.

As a matter of fact, the prices of corn and wheat are high because the old law of supply and demand is operating at the same old stand. The only sad fact about the situation, so far as our local territory is concerned, is that not many of our farmers have much wheat or corn to offer, no matter how high the price may go.

Most of them, however, are glad to see a strong market on these products, for it bespeaks a betterment of general farming conditions.

ALL AGAINST CHICAGO.

[Buffalo Express.]

Delegates from virtually every lake port united at the Cleveland convention in resolutions protesting against the diversion of water for the Chicago drainage canal.

This is encouraging. Time was when it was left to Buffalo almost alone to carry on that fight. If the lake ports cannot make themselves heard and heeded by the members of congress it will be very strange.

Incidentally these other ports might well consider that it is wise to listen to Buffalo, also, on that other favorite project of the Chicago propagandists—the St. Lawrence seaway. If instead of letting themselves be deluded by office chair dreamers they will talk with their own practical lake navigators they may see the point without having to wait till the mischief has been done, as has happened in the drainage canal case.

WINTER SPORTS.

WINTER sports are life savers. Summer sports are luxuries. A man can stay in the house all summer long and do fairly well. The man who stays in the house all winter long is a candidate for pneumonia and rickets and a lot of other trials and tribulations. That hot, dry air is killing. And then the dark of it! In certain parts of the inhabited world there is but one hour of sunshine a day on the average, and some of that shine grades low.

From sunrise to sundown is just nine hours over much of the United States at the winter solstice. Of that nine hours, cut off at least one hour from both ends of the day for red sunlight and long shadows, subtract the hours of cloud, rain, snow, and fog, reduce the remainder by the effects of smoke and dust, and what is left?

Recall that most of the sunlight time that is left is spent behind glass, and glass filters out the best of the light ray. Again, the man who stays in the house all winter long is a candidate for pneumonia and the kinfolks of the klan.

Now, there is no use talking about the advantage. To get people out in the cold they must be pulled out with a corkscrew. Play is the corkscrew. Skating? Can't beat it. Vigorous exercise of the leg muscles in maintaining poise; competition; racing; exhibition of skill; fresh air; keen cold—a great combination. Snowshoeing? Great. All the muscles used. Snow beating in the face, maybe. Long walks. Periods of great hunger. Adventure. What more could you ask for? Skiing? Competition. Excitement. Skill. Open air.

The spectator gets his share of the benefit. He spends hours in the open air. Tramps around in the snow. The thrill which the onlooker gets is by no means without its health value. While the participant gets value from the contest that is denied the onlookers, the latter become excited and thrilled, and that is, in some measure, a substitute for participation.

A few years ago a professor at the University of Nebraska wrote a study of the spectators at major contests, such as football and baseball. He might have included snow jumping. His conclusions were that the spectator got out of the game about the following:

Some hours in the open air and sunlight.

A brief return to the primitive (hard benches, crowded conditions, cramped positions, exposure to weather).

Some muscular fatigue.

A change in mental stimulation—emotional urge, thrills, physical ideals, admiration for courage, daring, physical development, and keeping fit.

In the light of this study one forgets to make fun of the spectator.

CHLORINE WON'T HELP.

G. E. C. writes: That he has bronchiectasis. He coughs up a pint of thick yellow pus a day. He recently moved from Ohio to Denver hoping for some relief. He has tried a treatment which consists of inhaling 4-5 times a day for ten days a mixture containing creosote and ether. It did no good. Will inhaling chlorine gas be of benefit, he asks.

REPLY.

The reports on chlorine gas inhalation do not indicate that the measure has merit in the various forms of chronic bronchitis.

TOO MANY COVERS.

C. A. G. writes: A very healthy, rugged girl of 15 sleeps under four thicknesses of wool blankets, a sheet, and a bedspread. All this in a steam heated apartment.

Her mother, past 50, is perfectly comfortable under two thicknesses of blanket and a sheet, although she is known as one of the "cold" kind.

Should this girl be given less covering? If so, why?

REPLY.

Yes.

In order to develop her heat making abilities.

STREET IS MUSSED UP.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—[Friend of the People.]—La Vergne avenue from Crystal to Potomac avenue was in an impassable condition until the adjacent property owners at their own expense paved it with cinders, using over 100 cubic yards. Recently an eight foot gas main was laid and the street was so torn up from it that it is now in worse condition than when the property owners fixed it up. Can we compel the gas company to restore the street? T. T.

Investigation shows that there is a passable roadway in the center of this unimproved street and that the street intersections are in good condition. The trench backfill is in as good condition as it is possible to place it at the present time, and was refilled high in anticipation of settlement with the first thaw. Filling in at that time will be done by the gas company and suitable material used to leave the street in a satisfactory condition.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

WORK TO KEEP CLEAN.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When one lives in a two family house, who does the janitor work, the tenants or the landlord? I refer to such work as sweeping the sidewalks, removing screen doors, cleaning the basement, etc. The landlord lives nearby and one tenant says this work is up to the landlord, while the other has to do all the work to keep the place looking respectable. J. E. P.

The work should be done by the person who wants to have it done, unless there has been an agreement to the contrary.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NIGHT LIGHTS IN HALLWAYS.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a law compelling the owner of an apartment building to have a light in the entrance and halls of the building after dark?

2. Does the owner have to clear the snow off the sidewalks and stairs? G. R. G.

1. The ordinance requiring lights in the halls of apartment buildings was held unconstitutional by our state Supreme court.

2. Yes, in the sense that they would be liable for injuries due to dangerous condition of parts of the premises under their exclusive control.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 25, 1865.

SPRINGFIELD.—Gov. Oglesby received yesterday an official statement from Provost Marshal Gen. Fry that the number of troops due the general government is 35,541. The claim is believed to be largely in excess of what the number should be, and Gov. Oglesby has dispatched an agent to Washington to have it corrected.

ST. LOUIS.—The state convention is having an exciting discussion, proposing forfeiture of the estates of rebels.

ST. LOUIS.—Lieut. Col. Stuart, commanding at Mexico in North Missouri, has ordered, through his provost marshal, that families of twenty-two persons of Boone county report at Hannibal City Feb. 22, when they will be deported south for disloyalty.

CHICAGO.—The many friends of Rush Medical college will be gratified to learn that the commencement exercises will be held in Smith & Nixon's hall this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The degree of doctor of medicine will be conferred upon more than 100 of the class, the largest number ever graduated at one session in the west.

CHICAGO.—Ralph Waldo Emerson will give his new course of lectures on "American Life" in Unity church (Rev. Robert Collyer's), commencing Jan. 26. These lectures have been given in Boston with great success and must constitute the great feature of the winter in our literary circles.

CHICAGO.—Zoe, the versatile actress and danseuse, continues to draw splendid houses at McVicker's. At the Woods museum the Giant will appear as Cousin Joe in "The Rough Diamond." He is an immense attraction in every sense of the term. The beautiful play of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" is on for the evening.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 25, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Judge Orrin N. Carter is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Illinois. He announced last night at a meeting of Twelfth ward Republicans that he had decided to permit the use of his name.

LONDON.—The war office has received a telegram stating that Gen. Warren has occupied Spion Kop. The suspense in England is the greatest since the war began. An English battery destroyed a powder magazine at Modder river. British losses to date are placed at 8,216.

CHICAGO.—According to Prof. Cox of the weather bureau, a cold wave is scheduled to arrive in Chicago early this morning, bringing with it a drop of nearly 25 degrees. Lilacs, honeysuckles, and other plants are budding on the lawns of the south side owing to the mild weather.

PARIS.—Last night the Correctional Tribunal pronounced a verdict of guilty against the twelve Assumptionist fathers and sentenced them to pay nominal fines. In addition the tribunal ordered the dissolution of the order and the government has placed its seals on the chapel and convent buildings. This is the most violent anti-Catholic measure taken in France in years.

CHICAGO.—"Shut down the high schools," was the advice given by Trustee Keating at the meeting of the board of education last evening. The annual appropria[illegible]ill was up for discussion. The [illegible]ce committee had recommended a reduction of 5 per cent in the salaries of teachers drawing between $700 and $1,100 a year; 10 per cent reduction in the salaries of those receiving more than $1,100 a year, and 5 per cent reduction for all employés receiving more than $50 a month.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 25, 1915.

LONDON.—The German armored cruiser Bluecher was sunk and two German battle cruisers seriously damaged in a running battle with Vice Admiral Beatty's patrolling squadron yesterday. The British fleet suffered only slight injuries. So far as known only 123 of 885 men on the Bluecher were saved.

GENERAL FIELD HEADQUARTERS OF GERMAN ARMIES IN FRANCE.—"I am surprised to learn that my phrase 'A scrap of paper,' which I used in my last conversation with the British ambassador in reference to the Belgian neutrality treaty, should have caused such an unfavorable impression in the United States," said Dr. Von Bethmann Hollweg, German imperial chancellor, yesterday. He said his remark had been made in quite another connection.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In a letter made public tonight by Secretary of State Bryan he denies that the government is unduly favoring the allies in the war by the sale of munitions. He said there is no power in the executive to prevent the sale of ammunition to the belligerents.

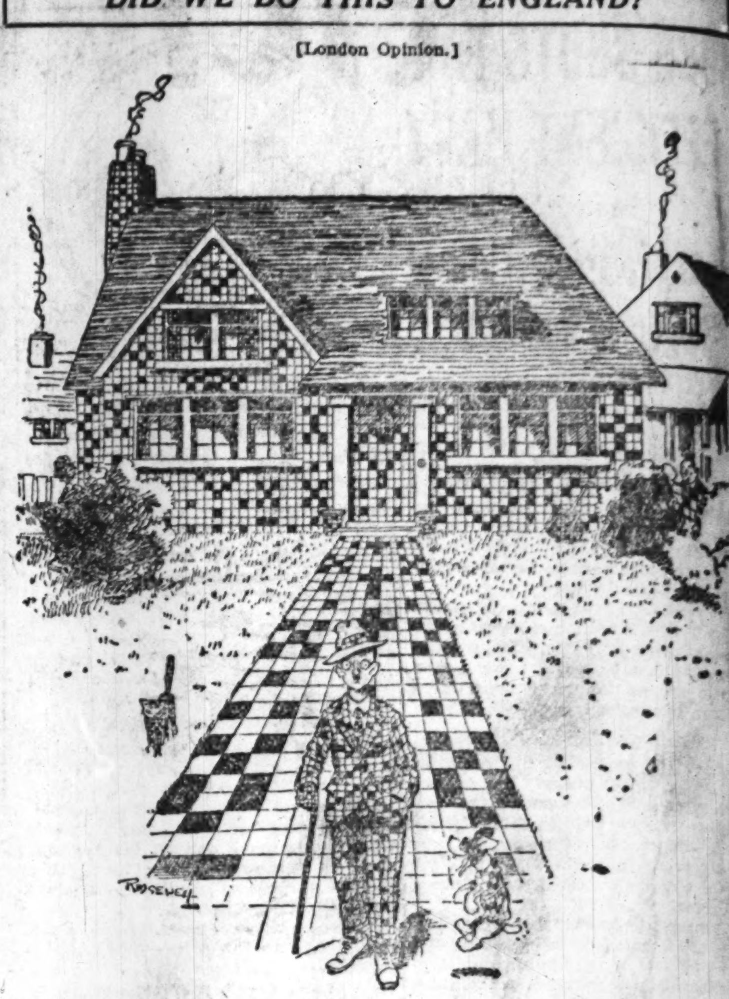
CHICAGO.—In an appeal issued yesterday by the industrial commission, authorized by the city council, it was announced that more than 100,000 persons in Chicago are out of work.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Democratic leaders will renew their fight tomorrow for the passage of President Wilson's ship purchase bill. Senator Kern of Indiana, the majority leader, said a sufficient number of Democrats to make a majority are pledged to support the measure.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. M. P. Boynton, pastor of the Woodlawn Baptist church, in his sermon last night warned against compromising with the "rum power" in the Illinois legislature, even if the deadlock in the house should continue indefinitely. Better to have a deadlocked assembly than one working under the domination of wet leaders, he said.

DID WE DO THIS TO ENGLAND?

[London Opinion.]



The cross-word square champion of our garden suburb comes out for a little much needed exercise.

FOR A BRIDGE AT RUSH.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Now that work is under way on the boulevarding of South Water street, or Wacker drive as it is to be renamed, it would seem that some consideration should be given to the traffic situation that is bound to occur at the intersection of this new drive and the Michigan link bridge, when the work is completed. With the opening of this magnificent driveway in the next three years or so, there will develop a traffic congestion at the bridge that will compare with the old "bottle neck" congestion at the intersection of Michigan boulevard, River street, and the old Rush street bridge, before the present improvements had been put through.

The remedy is another outlet to the north over a bridge at Rush street. This new bridge could be a single deck structure, as the lower level of the Michigan link bridge is capable of taking care of a much larger volume of freight traffic than it is at present caring for. With a bridge at this point, north bound traffic over Wacker drive could be diverted from Michigan boulevard, doing away with left turns at the link bridge, where traffic is continually increasing. It would also care for the north bound traffic on Wabash avenue that now goes over to Michigan boulevard, thus eliminating more left turns at the boulevard.

With a wide approach, a bridge at Rush street would not in any way interfere with the proposed Soldiers' Memorial shaft, as traffic could go around it from either direction.

Two great driveways pouring their steady streams of automobiles at the Michigan link bridge will tax that bridge beyond its capacity. The feasible relief is a bridge at Rush street.

HE LIKES WBCN.

Whiting, Ind., Jan. 12.—I live twelve miles from the Englewood broadcasting station, WBCN. I have not found it to be a nuisance, as alleged by critics who have written to this column.

I am provided with a five tube Neutrodyne, which is provided with a 110 foot aerial, including lead-in. The selectivity of any set depends upon several factors: Length of aerial, control of A battery current to filaments, control of B battery voltage to plates; these latter are of the utmost importance. Noises and other interferences are cut out by changing amperage to filaments, or voltage to plates; these changes also alter the dial settings for any station where such changes are necessary.

Here is my experience when WBCN was on full blast, separating them from the above station without any trouble whatever: WTAS, Elgin; WJJD, Mooseheart; WTAY, Oak Park; KFKX, Hastings, Neb.; WWAE, Joliet; KFKB, Milford, Kas.; WCAY, Milwaukee.

The local stations which interfere most with the reception [I have found] of out of town stations are WLS and WQJ. I hope this letter will be helpful to radio fans in that by exercising a little judgment and ingenuity they can make their receiving sets more selective.

IN BEHALF OF BISHOP BROWN.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Bishop Brown "guilty of heresy"? There seems to be but little chance for an honest religious world for a while, at least.

The church is following in its old time steps and making history that, to the coming generations, will be regretted. Pray tell me why the church will not allow its minister to be an honest man and speak the things he honestly believes? We know today that much of the orthodox creed is absolutely erroneous and contrary to modern knowledge and belief.

Has the church forgotten George Burnham Foster and many other honest clergymen who have had the courage to speak their honest beliefs boldly, to the admiration of the Christian world?

The Brown verdict makes the future look dark and gloomy to the man whose heart is yearning for moral and intellectual improvement. So long as the pay envelope influences men's decisions on religious dogma we can hardly expect rapid improvement.

How can we expect to ever have an honest, upright world when the church will not permit an honest minister to preach the truth as he sees it without being brought before a board of inquisition and expelled as an heretic? Yours for a new "church of freedom."

CHARLES JACKSON LUNDY.

LET THE KIDS HAVE SHOWERS.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Taking candy away from the baby is nothing compared with taking the pennies away from the school children for a towel so they can take a shower at school. Little Mr. McAndrew knows how the children look forward to their turn to take a shower. Even if some of the homes have bathtubs, how many of them are warm enough or how many of them have the convenience of hot water? Some of the children may get a penny on Sunday, but who of them will save it to pay for a towel? Remember 'way back when we were kids, we would always rush to the first candy store. They are only children once, so let's give them all we can.

Don't let the world laugh at the board of education of the city of Chicago.

Let's show the world we are not pikers.

DEVER ATTACKS TRACTION REPORT BEFORE IT'S MADE

Recalls He Opposed Plan for Appraisal.

The much discussed report of the three engineers retained by the city and a group of traction bankers, which, it is said, will fix the fair cash value of the street car properties at more than $200,000,000, will be submitted to the council local transportation committee tomorrow afternoon, Ald. U. S. Schwartz [4th], the committee chairman, announced yesterday. The engineers are William J. Hagenah for the bankers, Maj. R. F. Kelker for the city, and William Barclay Parsons, neutral.

U. S. SCHWARTZ.

With the announcement came a statement from Mayor Dever disclaiming all responsibility or desire for the appraisal, which, it is reported, gives much comfort to the bankers and the surface lines' security owners they have represenuted in negotiations with the city.

Denies City Will Suffer.

At the same time, Ald. Schwartz denied that the city has been maneuvered into sanctioning a valuation of the properties which will fortify the existing 7 cent fare rate against reduction and furnish a new basis for price discussions in future purchase negotiations, if the present opportunity to acquire the lines for $162,500,000 ordinance price is rejected by the voters.

"I didn't want an appraisal and always was against it," Mayor Dever declared. "The council transportation committee thought it necessary. Although I had fought against the idea all through my conferences with the bankers, there was nothing I could do to interfere when the committee ordered the valuation. I did, however, insist that the appraisal follow certain definite principles which were accepted by the banking group."

The fact that it adheres to the principles outlined by the mayor and was made at the direction of the transportation committee will make it difficult if not impossible for city lawyers or experts to attack the valuation in fare rate litigation or future purchase negotiations, one of the mayor's close advisers admitted yesterday.

"Any change that there may be in the situation with respect to the properties in trust since the report of a year ago is all to the good," said the report signed by Bernard Sunny, chairman of the Chicago City and Connecting Railways collateral trust.

The collateral trust controls the Chicago City Railways and the Calumet and South Chicago Railways company, whose underlying stockholders it is indicated may receive within a few days their first dividend in nearly seven years.

Strawn Attacks M. O. Idea.

During the day members of the Union League club in their regular weekly forum heard Silas H. Strawn, attorney for the traction lines' bankers, admit his belief that municipal ownership and operation is "a hell of a way to run a street car system."

Mr. Strawn, Ald. Schwartz, sponsor of the certificate plan for purchase of the street car lines by the city, and Ald. Guy Guernsey [6th], a member of the council local transportation committee, sought to explain the mayor's traction ordinance to the club members. Ald. Guernsey declared he harbored a horror of municipal ownership and operation that was not dispelled after a thorough reading of the administration ordinance.

Commenting on the recent agreement of the bankers to the city's demand that the control of the street car lines should be vested in the city when 51 per cent of the certificates it will issue in payment for the properties have been retired, Mr. Strawn warned the listeners that it would be far better if the lines were to be operated by the security holders until the last dollar was paid.

Sees No Promise to Pay.

"The city cannot and does not, under the proposed arrangement, obligate itself to pay a dollar," Mr. Strawn said. "In reality, all the owners are getting for their property is an income bond which is dependent entirely upon efficient management."

"Do you think it possible that investors will buy those certificates if there is any possibility that the city council will have a voice in the control of the properties before the last certificate is retired?" queried E. L. Lobdell, a La Salle street investment banker, when the meeting was thrown open for general discussion.

"The retirement of 51 per cent of the certificates will be ample demonstration of the success of the scheme," answered Mr. Strawn. "If the scheme is a failure it will be shown long before you reach 51 per cent."

"Ald. Schwartz, would you advise trustees for widows and orphans to invest money in those certificates?" asked Mr. Lobdell.

Calls Certificate Idea Sound.

"I am persuaded that those certificates will be the best security on the market with the exception of government bonds," answered Ald. Schwartz. "Infinitely better than those now in existence, which were issued without any provision for retiring them when they become due in 1927. And they were sold to widows and orphans by the bankers. The city's certificates will be amply protected by a sinking fund."

OVERWORK FATAL

MRS. JEANNE C. HIGGINSON.
[At Time of Her Marriage.]

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Mrs. Jeanne C. Higginson, the wife of A. Henry Higginson, died today at South Lincoln. Mrs. Higginson, as Jeanne Calducci, was prominent on the stage before her marriage to Mr. Higginson in May, 1907. She was a native of Philadelphia. During the war she entered relief work with great vigor and it was felt that overwok then seriously impaired her health.

FRED S. SPIEGEL, ONCE MAYOR OF OHIO CITY, DIES

Frederick Siegfried Spiegel, former mayor of Cincinnati and a national figure, who died at the Chicago home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas A. Byrne of 7234 Merrill avenue, will be buried in Cincinnati tomorrow.

Mr. Spiegel's son, former Judge Arthur M. Spiegel of Cincinnati, left with the body last night, accompanied by his mother, the widow, and his sister, Mrs. Byrne. Another daughter of Mr. Spiegel is Mrs. Olga Landeskco of New York.

Mr. Spiegel was born in Prussia sixty-six years ago. He became judge of the Cincinnati Superior court in 1908 and in 1913 was elected mayor, serving two years.

Funeral Tomorrow for Veteran Field Employe

Charles Fred Haberle, for more than fifty years with Marshall Field & Co., died Friday and will be buried tomorrow from the family residence, 1446 Cuyler avenue, at 1 o'clock, to the First St. Paul's church. Interment will be at Rosehill. Mr. Haberle was born in New Haven, Conn., April 4, 1854. When not yet fifteen years of age he began working for the Field, Leiter company, predecessor of Marshall Field & Co. Shortly after completing fifty years of service he suffered a stroke of paralysis and has been living in retirement since. Surviving Mr. Haberle are his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Clara S. Karrer, and a granddaughter, Unice B. Karrer.

Hursen's "Funeral-Homes" Relieve Home-Crowding

There are many who desire to preserve the environment and facilities of home when a funeral takes place. Yet, the space is small and the visiting friends are many. Often the furnishings in the house or apartment are entirely moved out to avoid the discomfort and crowding which are inevitable.

At each of the 3 Hursen "funeral-homes" in Chicago there are elegant, spacious suites set apart in quietness for the very purpose of having funerals conducted as in the home, without the crowding or discomfort.

Each suite or apartment is furnished as at home. It has the environment of home, the space, the exclusiveness, the peace and quietness and the facilities of home. It has more. There is a service to family and visitors which it is rarely possible to render in the home.

This is why each of Hursen's 3 funeral establishments in Chicago, the most elegant in all America, are in fact "funeral-homes." They are built to accommodate funerals of any size, large or small. Yet there is no extra charge for the use of these suites or for the chapels.

The charge for "Hursen" funerals is but a fraction of the charges usually exacted elsewhere. "Hursen" funerals cannot be surpassed for elegance. Call Hursen, of course!

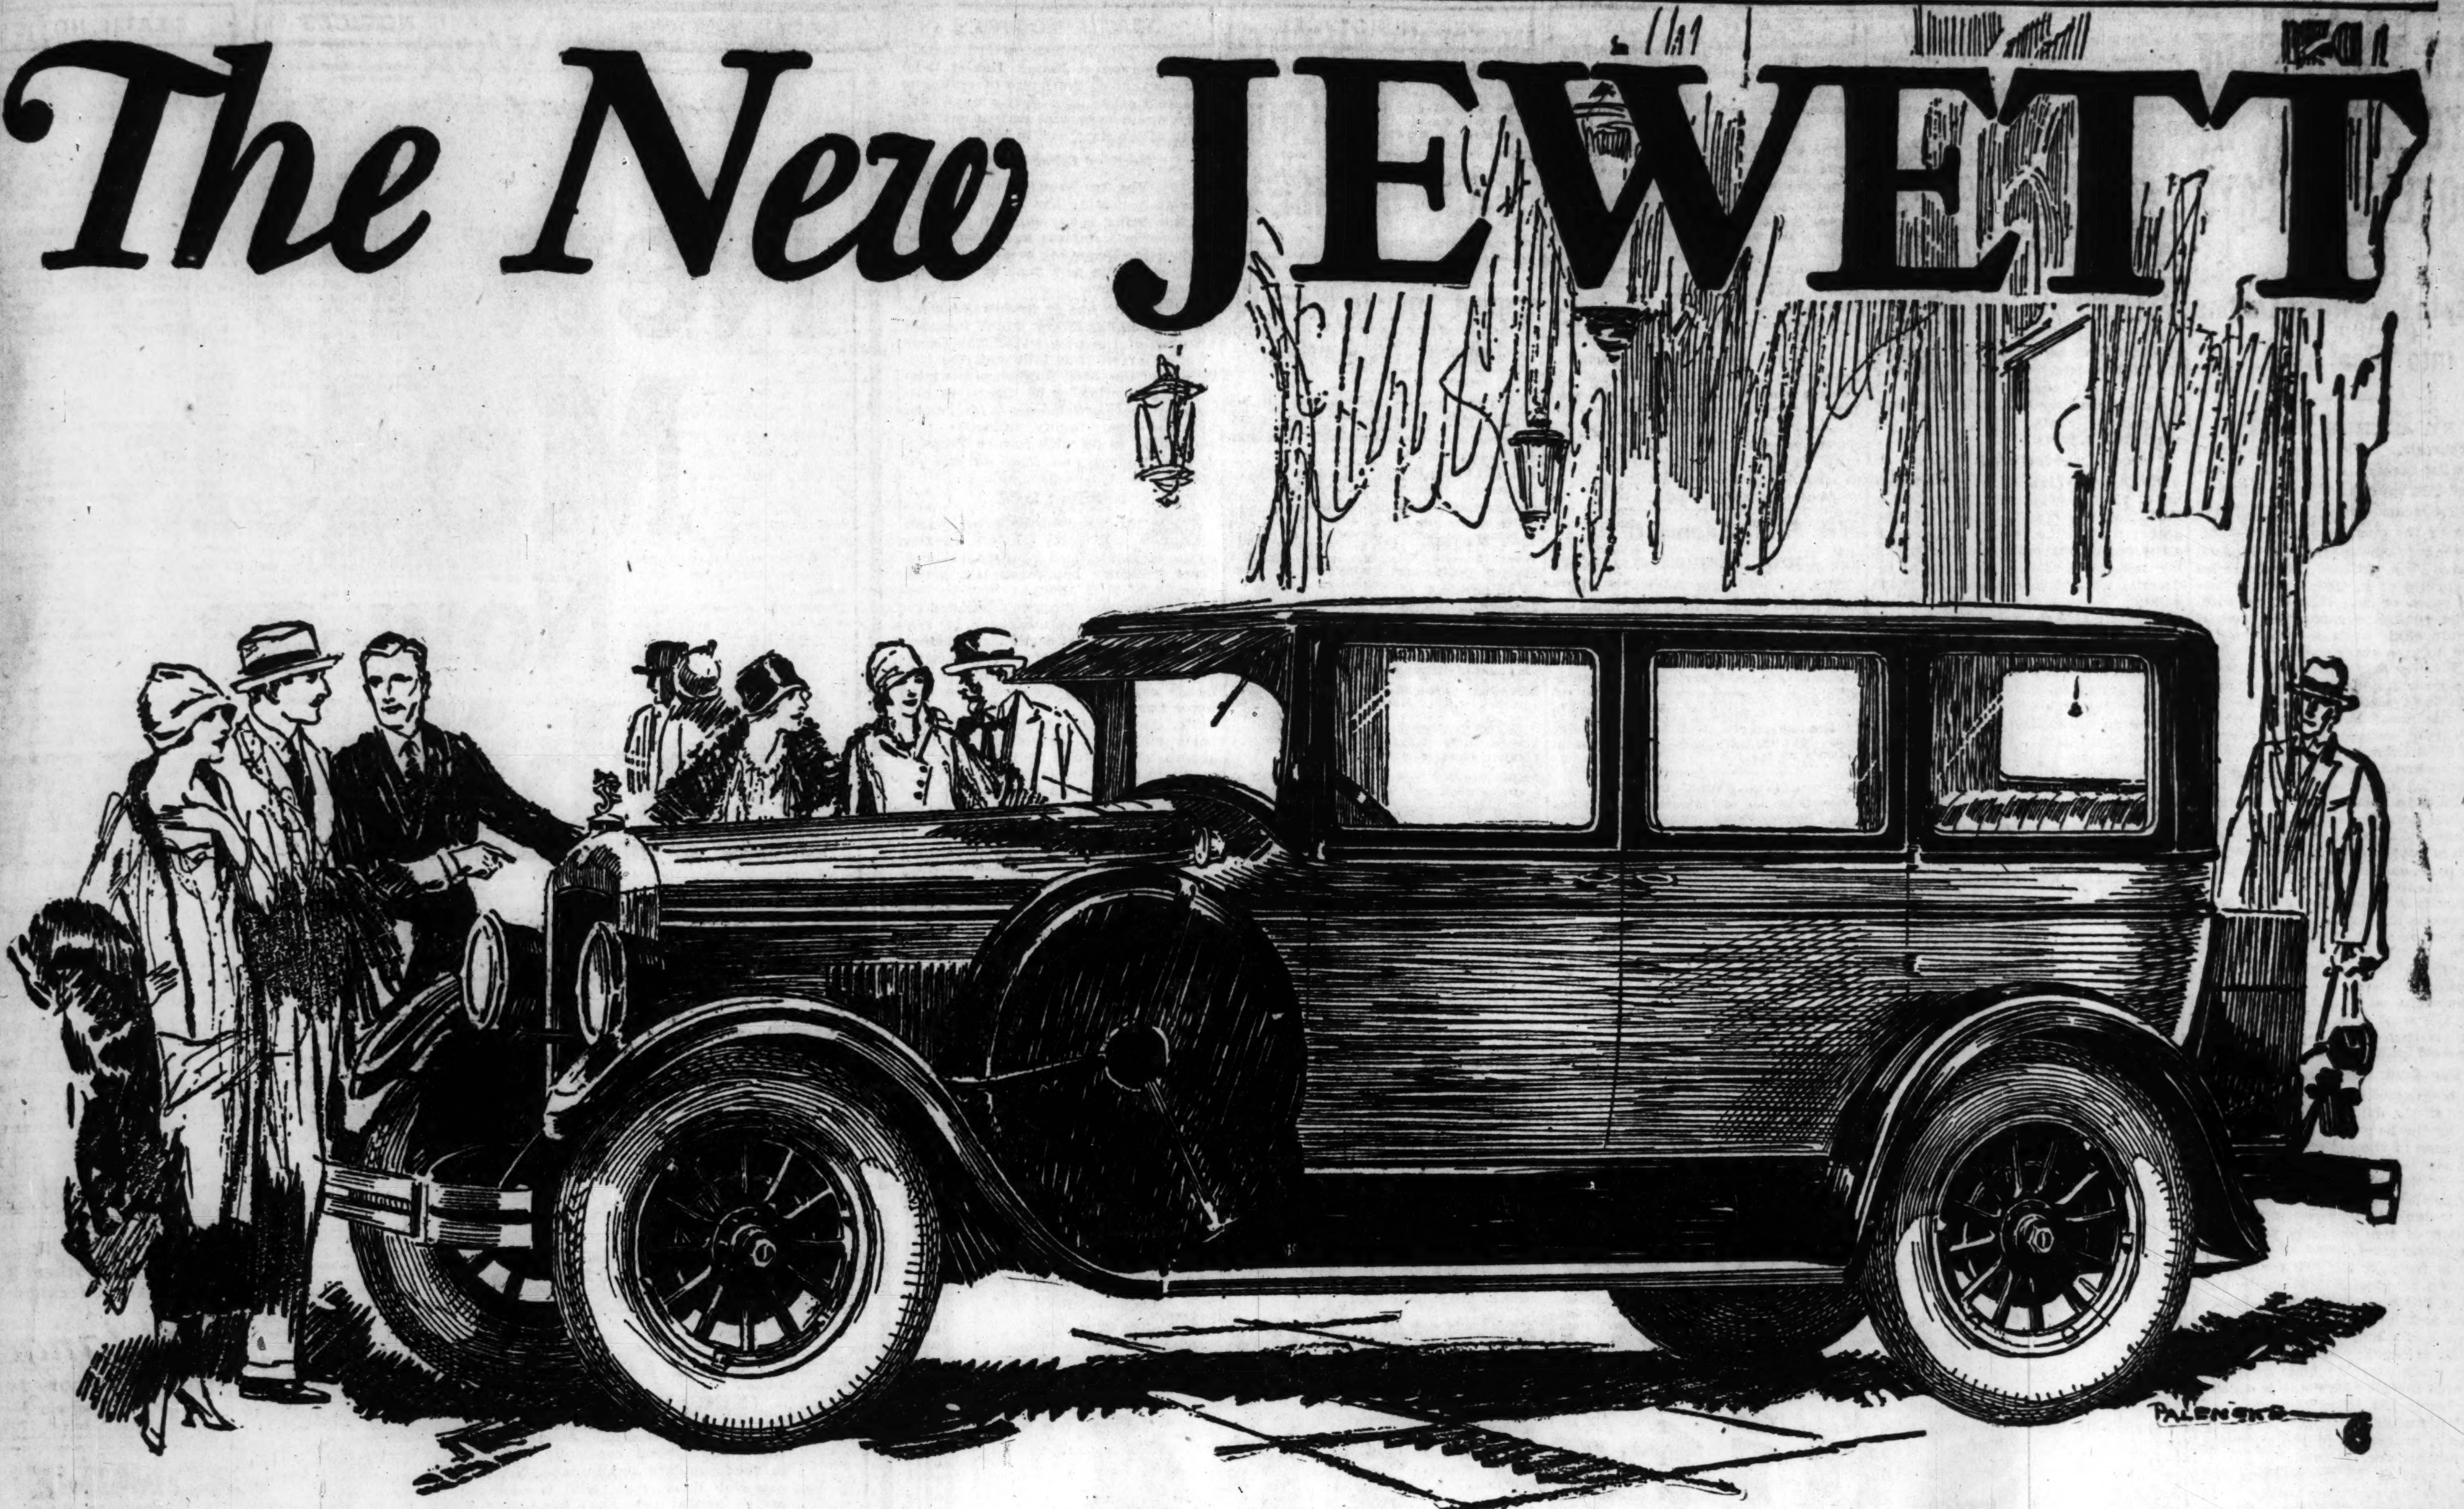
The New JEWETT



A Challenge to All Cars!

DRIVE the New Jewett yourself! Give this wonder car your own kind of a test. Then judge for yourself. In ten minutes you will have a new idea of motor car performance and value.

Step on it! Its silent rush of power will amaze you! You will marvel at its velvet smoothness! Its snap and getaway in traffic.

And when you need speed—Jewett is ready—instantly! From 2 miles an hour to top speed is but a matter of seconds—in high gear—with never a hint of vibration. Jewett's new counter-balanced crankshaft (102 pounds in weight) eliminates vibration. A perfected, silent chain drive insures quiet—for the life of the car.

You must see the New Jewett yourself—sit back of the wheel and get the full thrills of its new power.

Don't think even of Jewett excellence as you have known it in the past—the New Jewett far surpasses it—it's a greater car in every one of its many new qualities.

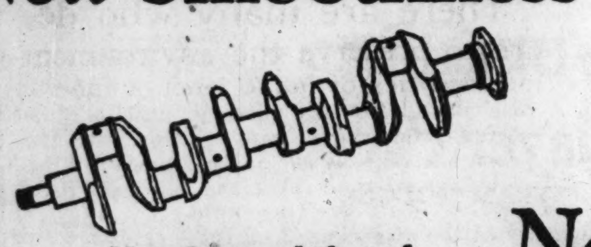
Here is a new conception of beauty—keen admiration greets it—in any company. Long—low appearing lines—and quality—clear through! In its equipment—much of it exclusive with Jewett—convenience is the keynote.

Is it any wonder this car astonished even its maker? It is a challenge to all cars—sixes and eights—regardless of price.

The New Jewett gives you a full 25% increase in value without increasing the price. Compare Jewett quality—Jewett beauty—compare it as a whole with any car you know of.

So complete a combination of power—beauty—performance and comfort will cost you far more than Jewett's price in any comparable car.

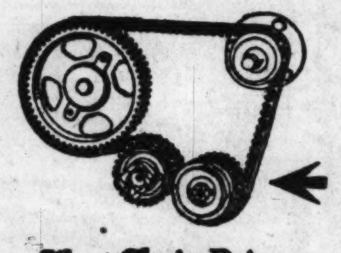
New Smoothness



New Counter-balanced Crankshaft

A counter-balanced crankshaft statically and dynamically balanced gives new smoothness to Jewett. Vibration cannot be detected—regardless of speed. Silken smoothness at all speeds. Its substantial weight—102 lbs.—indicates its strength. We don't know of a heavier crankshaft in any car.

New Silence



Silent Chain Drive

The Jewett motor is built with a new silent chain drive for pump, cam and timing shafts. Chains wear, stretch after a while, so we provide an automatic take-up sprocket (indicated by arrow) with a coiled spring which, expanding, keeps a constant tension on the chain, completely offsetting the effects of wear (stretch), preventing backlash and retaining timing accuracy. Silence is permanent.

HAIR TONIC MADE INTO HOOTCH BY BOOTLEG EXPERTS

Easy to Transform Lotions Into "Real Stuff."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Barber shop tonics, shaving lotions and toilet waters are being transformed into spurious Scottish whiskies parading under ancient and highborn names by the moon and bootleg guild. According to the prohibition agents, no fewer than 185 hair tonic factories have sprung up in Chicago in the last three years or so. These are withdrawing enough denatured alcohol, if the scalp elixir business were on the square, to give every sheik in the Mississippi valley three hair shines a week and to grow a doormat on every bald pate in the Great Lakes basin.

But the great bulk of the alcohol, so the rum sleuths declare, goes in the front door and out the back door and is rushed to recooking joints. It is redistilled in crude apparatus and is mixed with water, a touch of resin and alum being added to give it the semblance of smoothness and ripeness. A dash of bourbon extract adds authority, a little caramel sweetening gives it a complexion.

If Scotch is wanted, a slash of creosote bestows the peatsmoke flavor. So the government chemists describe the process. It then goes into genuine non-refillable bottles, made by west side counterfeiters, and is decorated with imposing labels and stamps printed on the west side. The converted hair oil is then ready for its debut as genuine old stuff.

85 Per Cent Goes Into Hootch.

The bootleggers get no less than 85 per cent of the denatured alcohol withdrawn by the hair tonic plants, according to some of the government agents. Others say 75 per cent. The reason the hair tonic alcohol is in such popularity among the moonmakers lies in the fact that it is denatured by one of the least poisonous of the formulas prescribed by the government.

This is formula No. 39b for the denaturation of alcohol for use in perfumes, toilet waters, alcoholic barber supplies and lotions. Under this process two and a half gallons of diethylphthalate are added to every 100 gallons of pure grain alcohol. This denaturement with the difficult name is an oily liquid, heavy like glycerine. A small dose of it makes the taker sick, fearfully sick, according to the chemists, but is not necessarily fatal.

In the eyes of the moonmakers and bootleggers its supreme beauty is in the fact it is almost colorless and has little smell. In recooking the alcohol the unpronounceable denaturant is likely to go over in the steam, but when the product is dolled up the customer has no chance of detecting it with the eye or the nose, while a dash of creosote is disguise enough even for some sophisticated palates.

Just how great is the run on this 39b denatured alcohol is shown in the fact that last year in the United States no less than 7,256,000 wine gallons of it were withdrawn out of a total of 33,000,000 gallons of specially denatured alcohol withdrawn.

The gravest danger, it appears, lies in the fact that the bootlegger, instead of getting slightly denatured alcohol of the hair tonic type, may put into his apparatus alcohol that has been denatured by the most poisonous of the many formulas set down by the government.

The government laboratories are inclined to ascribe the recent appearance of the flood of wood alcohol hootch to this. In recent months the inspectors have been clamping down on the slightly denatured alcohol, and this possibly has increased the volume of violently denatured stuffs run through the cooking joints. They will recook anything, it seems.

Alcohol Production Increases.

The huge volume of denatured alcohol of various types that gets into the hands of the hootchmakers may be gathered from the reports of the commissioner of internal revenue. In 1920 the amount of alcohol produced at industrial alcohol plants was 19,000,000 gallons. In 1921, it was 85,000,000 gallons, and in 1924 the amount had grown to 136,000,000 gallons. These are production figures. The consumption figures are perhaps more illuminating.

The government has two groups of formulas for denaturing alcohol. There are seven prescribed ways for complete denaturation. These are used to load down with poisons the alcohol used in general cleaning and manufacturing, in paint and varnish, radiator fluid, shoe blacking, brass polish, etc.

The one most generally used is No. 5, which calls for the mixing of wood alcohol, benzine and pyridine bases with the grain alcohol. The formulas were picked expressly for the purpose of circumventing the purification of the denatured alcohol by redistilling.

Like Hair Tonics Best.

The second group is the special formula alcohols. The purpose of these formulas is to permit, for particular industries, like the hair tonic and perfume, the use of special denaturants. This is the field in which the hootchmaker seems to be most diligent.

Nearly seven times as much denatured alcohol is being produced as there was ten years ago. In 1914 about 10,400,000 gallons of completely and specially denatured alcohol were produced in the United States. The war gave great impetus to its use, and the volume rose to 55,600,000 gallons in 1917. Then it receded until in 1921, the second year of dryness, it was 22,400,000 gallons. Then it began to jump, until in 1924 it reached a mark of 67,700,000 gallons. It was three times what it was three years before.

Mrs. J. M. Adams, Ill on Train, Reported Better

Mrs. J. McGregor Adams of Highland Park, Ill., is greatly improved, according to word received here yesterday. Mrs. Adams was treated by her physician on her private car at Birmingham, Ala., and arrived at Thomasville, Ga., in good condition. Her illness led to a delay of twenty minutes in the departure of a Louisville and Nashville train from Birmingham, Ala., on Friday.

SLIVER CAUSES DEATH.

Andrew Sundon, 41 years old, 1345 Sloan street, died yesterday morning in Jefferson Park hospital of an infection from a sliver imbedded in a finger.

HERBERT ASQUITH TAKES EARLDOM FROM GEORGE V.

Expect Him to Give Up Liberal Leadership.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—What is likely to be generally regarded as the end of a great political career came today with the announcement that Herbert H. Asquith had accepted the honor of an earldom, offered by King George V. on the advice of Prime Minister Baldwin, "in recognition of his great services to the nation," and had chosen the historic title Earl of Oxford, famous in the country's annals.

H. H. ASQUITH.

The earldom of Oxford, vested in the famous De Vere family, flourished from 1142 to the death of Aubrey De Vere, the twentieth earl, in 1703, when it became extinct, but was revived in 1711 in the person of Robert Harley, who was speaker of the house of commons and held other high government positions, again to become extinct with the death of the sixth earl in 1853.

Declined Other Honors.

Precedent has been followed by the king in bestowing the honor separately, this being the custom in cases of distinguished statesmen, instead of including the honor in the usual list distributed at the new year or on other special occasions.

Mr. Asquith has on former occasions declined similar offers, which included an offer of the bestowal of the Order of the Garter, thus following the traditions of the great English prime ministers, preferring to be known to history by their own names. It may be assumed that family influence had something to do with former Premier Asquith's change of mood in this respect.

New Earl Is 73.

While there have been great prime ministers and party leaders in the house of lords, Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury being the last great exemplars, it is thought that in the present case Mr. Asquith's decision to go to the quiet atmosphere of the upper house almost certainly betokens his decision no longer to take an active part in the leadership of his party, which can best be exercised in the lower house.

Mr. Asquith is 73 years old. His party suffered a disaster in the last general election and he himself failed to obtain a seat, while fewer than fifty of his followers, and those mainly belonging to the Lloyd George wing of the Liberals, were successful candidates.

WETS FORM NEW COMMITTEE TO MODIFY DRY ACT

Increased Activities Plan of Volstead Foes.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Announcement was made today by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment of the formation of a new committee of fifty of the nation's leading men and women who will aid in an extensive campaign to bring about the modification of the Volstead act. With the assistance of this committee the association plans to increase its activities tenfold this year and organize "political groups" with adequate backing in fifteen congressional districts now represented by "bone dry" congressmen "who are defying the wishes of their constituents on this question."

The association also announced it is organizing another committee of leading American scientists and economists who, "after exhaustive study and observation of the alcoholic beverage situation both in this country and abroad, will draft and submit to congress and to our people constructive plans for workable liquor control systems with the object in view of finding a method to bring about the greatest possible degree of temperance in the United States."

Members of Committee.

The committee of fifty includes the names of Senators Bayard [Dem., Del.], Wadsworth [Rep., N.Y.], Bruce [Dem., Md.], and Edge [Rep., N. J.], as well as those of Representatives Britten [Rep., Ill.], Boylan [Dem., N. Y.], Brumm [Rep., Pa.], Celler [Dem., N. Y.], Eagan [Dem., N. J.], Griffin [Dem., N. Y.], Hill [Rep., Md.], La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], Lampert [Rep., Wis.], Mead [Dem., La.], O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], O'Sullivan [Dem., Conn.], Schafer [Rep., Wis.], Sherwood [Dem., O.], Voigt [Rep., Wis.], Minahan [Dem., N. J.], and Perlman [Rep., N. Y.]. It also includes the names of such writers as Irvin Cobb, Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, Rex Beach, Augustus Thomas, and Mrs. Katherine Newlin Burt.

Among others listed are Hudson Maxim, Frederick W. Brill [Brill Car company, Philadelphia], Charles W. Brown [Pittsburgh Plate Glass company], Oscar T. Crosby [former assistant secretary of the treasury], Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, Rear Admirals W. W. Kimball and C. F. Goodrich, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Charles H. Sabin, and John Sullivan, labor leader, New York.

Like Committee of 1776.

"We believe that no citizens' committee of this character has been formed in America since the Declaration of Independence was conceived," the announcement reads. "A grave menace to our country's welfare existed then. It exists to an equal degree now."

The announcement states the committee was formed after the great bulk of American voters have seen "the creation and enormous growth of an illicit liquor business which knows no restraint and pays no tax to the government, but which is directly responsible for a tremendous orgy of poison liquor fatalities, debauchery of youth, corruption in politics and governmental machinery, and much lawlessness and contempt for law in our national life."

DETECTIVES MUST APPEAR TO FACE CONTEMPT ACTION

Detective Sergeants Anthony McSwiggin and John Murphy of the detective bureau were ordered yesterday by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle to appear on Feb. 14 to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court. The detectives, according to Judge Lyle, took into custody Jacob Shuster, 113 West 63d street, a barber, wanted in Chelsea, Mass., on charges of wife abandonment immediately after Lyle had released him in connection with pending extradition proceedings.

The detectives argue that Judge Lyle declined to grant extradition of Shuster after legal requirements were fulfilled, and desired to accommodate a Boston detective who had come here for the man. Following his second arrest, Shuster attempted to gain his freedom through habeas corpus proceedings. This phase of the case will come before Judge William J. Lindsay in Criminal court tomorrow.

PRESIDENT URGES SPEEDY PASSAGE OF PINES TREATY

Original Pact, Sought by Senate, Is Lost.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—Two developments today marked the progress of the Isle of Pines treaty toward a senate vote. One was the request by President Coolidge for early action on the pact. The other was the discovery that the original treaty between the United Sttaes and Cuba ceding the isle to the latter country is lost.

President Coolidge called several senators to the White House for short conferences on the treaty. Although nothing was given out as to the nature of the talks, the President is understood to have impressed on his visitors the importance of speedy action on the treaty as a means of promoting better relations with Latin American countries. The senators who appeared at the White House included Cummins [Rep., Ia.], Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], Harreld [Rep., Okla.], and Ernst [Rep., Ky.].

On several occasions the President has indicated that he favored passage of the treaty.

Announcement that the original twenty year old treaty has disappeared was made in the senate by Senator Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], who said a search of the files of the state department had failed to reveal it. He offered a resolution, which was referred to the foreign relations committee, asking the state department for information on the subject.

Officials of that department, on the other hand, let it be known that they considered responsibility for the treaty rested with the senate through its foreign relations committee.

Fear Violence on Island.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—An appeal by American residents of the Isle of Pines for military protection to prevent possible violence as a result of tense feeling between Americans and Cubans there over the pending Hay-Quesada treaty, has resulted in the dispatch of Maj. W. H. Shutan, military attaché of the United States embassy here, and Dr. Ignacio de La Torre, Cuban substitute secretary of interior, to investigate, it became known today.

MAYOR PLEDGES HELP TO FIGHT AIR POLLUTION

Wants Public Buildings to Set Example.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Dever defined his policy on smoke abatement yesterday morning before the health subcommittee on air pollution.

"Chicago has too much smoke," he said. "It affects public health. Other cities have eliminated smoke, and I do not see why this city cannot. This subcommittee has undertaken a highly valuable task for Chicago. I stand, and the commissioner of health stands, for as many employés as are needed to clean the air effectively and completely.

Wants City to Set Example.

"Let us start at home. Clean up the municipal buildings first. Call in the chief engineer of the board of education, then later representatives of the railroads. While I look on the subject as largely legislative at present, I am at your service to aid in every way possible."

The subcommittee, of which only Ald. Albert, McKinlay and Seif were present, immediately requested the chief engineer of the schools to appear next Tuesday afternoon at 2.

Ald. Woodhull and Touhy also appeared before the committee to pledge support to a policy of clean air in Chicago.

"I consider clean air vital to the health and comfort of the residents of the city," Ald. Woodhull said.

Causes Other Losses.

"On the other hand, smoke means waste to the burner of coal. The man who is informed knows that he is saving money by eliminating smoke, because he is getting that much more heat from the coal burned. I am heartily and whole heartedly with a campaign to clean the air."

"We cannot do anything better than protect the lives and health of the people from disease," Ald. Touhy added. "If dirty air causes disease, why can't we appropriate enough money to clean the air? What money could be better spent?"

Ald. Moran also was sufficiently interested in the subject to listen to the discussion, and asked for an opportunity to tell the committee at its next session of three deaths in his ward which the physician ascribed to dirty air. All of the aldermen have been invited to coöperate, but only those three appeared yesterday.

Dirty Air Brings Death.

Health Commissioner Bundesen, in whose department the smoke abatement bureau operates, gave the subcommittee considerable information.

"We say definitely and positively," he declared, "that pollution of the air affects health adversely. It hastens deaths. It is the cause of deaths. Pittsburgh, which has been known as the smokiest city in this country, has the highest pneumonia death rate of any city in this country, and so far as we know of any city in the world. Chicago is fast approaching the pneumonia death rate of Pittsburgh. Dirty air diseases in Chicago are increasing and deaths from them are increasing.

"There is no question about the accuracy of these statements. All of them can be confirmed by the deaths and death rates.

Question of Expert Firing.

"I am urging on you the urgent necessity for more combustion engineers to aid in cleaning the air. There is no need for smoke inspectors. Every one knows the air is polluted with smoke. The need is for combustion engineers who will teach the firemen how to fire their boilers so the air will not be polluted. The primary need is education of firemen and we haven't the teachers.

"We have arbitrarily pulled fires right and left when we have caught an offender the second time. We have pulled the fire in the Central Steam laundry, the Paris laundry, the Bismarck hotel, the Chicago Beach hotel, the Hyde Park hotel and others. Yet the small force cannot get the air clean."

The statements impressed Ald. McKinlay, a member of the subcommittee.

"We are getting such beautiful buildings as The Tribune, Straus, Wrigley, and soon the dirt will make them look like other old structures," he said.

"All that doesn't impress me so much as the health aspect," Ald Albert commented.

"As Mayor Dever suggested," Ald. Seif added, "let's start at home.

"Let's have the city buildings obey first."

ROBBERS GAG STOREKEEPER, WOMAN; FLEE

As Mrs. Stankiswa Jankowski of 2040 Lyndale avenue entered Reed's clothing store at 3222 Lawrence avenue yesterday she began to scream. She was frightened by the sight of the proprietor, J. B. Bernstein, and his clerk, Louis Baron, who were standing in the middle of the store with their hands above their heads. Two men were pointing revolvers at them.

Mrs. Jankowski was hit three times over the head with a revolver by a third gunman and she and the two men were then hustled in the back room of the store, where they were bound and gagged.

Bernstein estimated that 175 suits were stolen, together with $200 in cash.

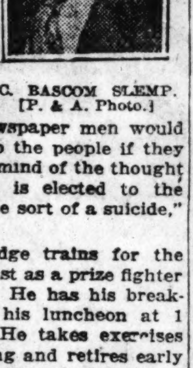
Loot Safe in Coal Office of Former Chief of Police

While J. E. Whitlock, 723 North La Salle street, an old, crippled watchman, was held captive and forced to pull a box at the proper intervals, burglars early yesterday forced a safe in the Eureka Coal and Dock company offices, 1509 Cortland street, and stole $800. Charles Fitzmorris, former chief of police, is president of the firm.

COOLIDGE GAINS ON JOB CALLED A MAN KILLER

Slemp Tells How Health of President Is Guarded

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the President, today laid low the popular supposition that the presidency of the United States is a man killing job.



C. BASCOM SLEMP. [P. & A. Photo.]

Exhibit A of the evidence was the record of the presidential weighing machine, which disclosed that President Coolidge had gained 8 pounds in the eighteen months he has served the American people as chief executive.

"I think the newspaper men would do a real service to the people if they relieved the public mind of the thought that when a man is elected to the presidency it is some sort of a suicide," said Mr. Slemp.

"President Coolidge trains for the work of his office just as a prize fighter trains for a fight. He has his breakfast at 7 o'clock, his luncheon at 1 and dinner at 7. He takes exercises early in the morning and retires early at night. His working schedule is arranged so that his job is not a twenty-four hour drive. I have arranged for his appointments to come in the morning. That is the driving time. But after 1 o'clock the President is free to do as he wishes. He can summon those he wishes to talk to; he can simply relax, or he can take recreation."

Secretary Slemp, who a few days ago announced his resignation, made his remarks today after he had been presented with a brief case by the White House Correspondents' association. He will be succeeded by Representative Everett Sanders [Rep., Ind.], when he retires within the next few days.

"The matter of maintaining the health of the President is a question of systematic work, relaxation, and rest, and I think that we have to a certain extent found a solution," said Mr. Slemp. "I think it will be reassuring to the American people to know that they are not killing their President. The administration of the office for the last eighteen months is proof of this. There could not have been more difficult circumstances, with a nomination, general election, and investigations.

"I think the President has used the resources at his command to better advantage than many others have."

THIEF BLAMES CICERO GAMES; BOSS FORGIVES

George D. Stillman, who pleaded guilty of taking $3,949 from the Dependon Asphaltum Roofing company, where he was employed as cashier, was forgiven in court yesterday by his employer, who put him back on the pay roll.

"The gambling dives in Cicero were the start of my downfall," Stillman told Judge Hosea Wells. "I lost $700 playing the ponies and shooting craps in Lauterbach's gambling house at 4823 West Roosevelt road. I tried to win it back, but I only went further into debt."

John H. Klunder, president of the roofing company, pleaded to place Stillman on probation. Attorney William J. Mannion stated he would sue the gamblers to collect three times the money lost by Stillman.

STEAL DRUGGISTS' BOOZE.

Seven cases of whisky and $150 were stolen from William Hamilton's drug store, 4060 Ellis avenue, yesterday by four armed men.

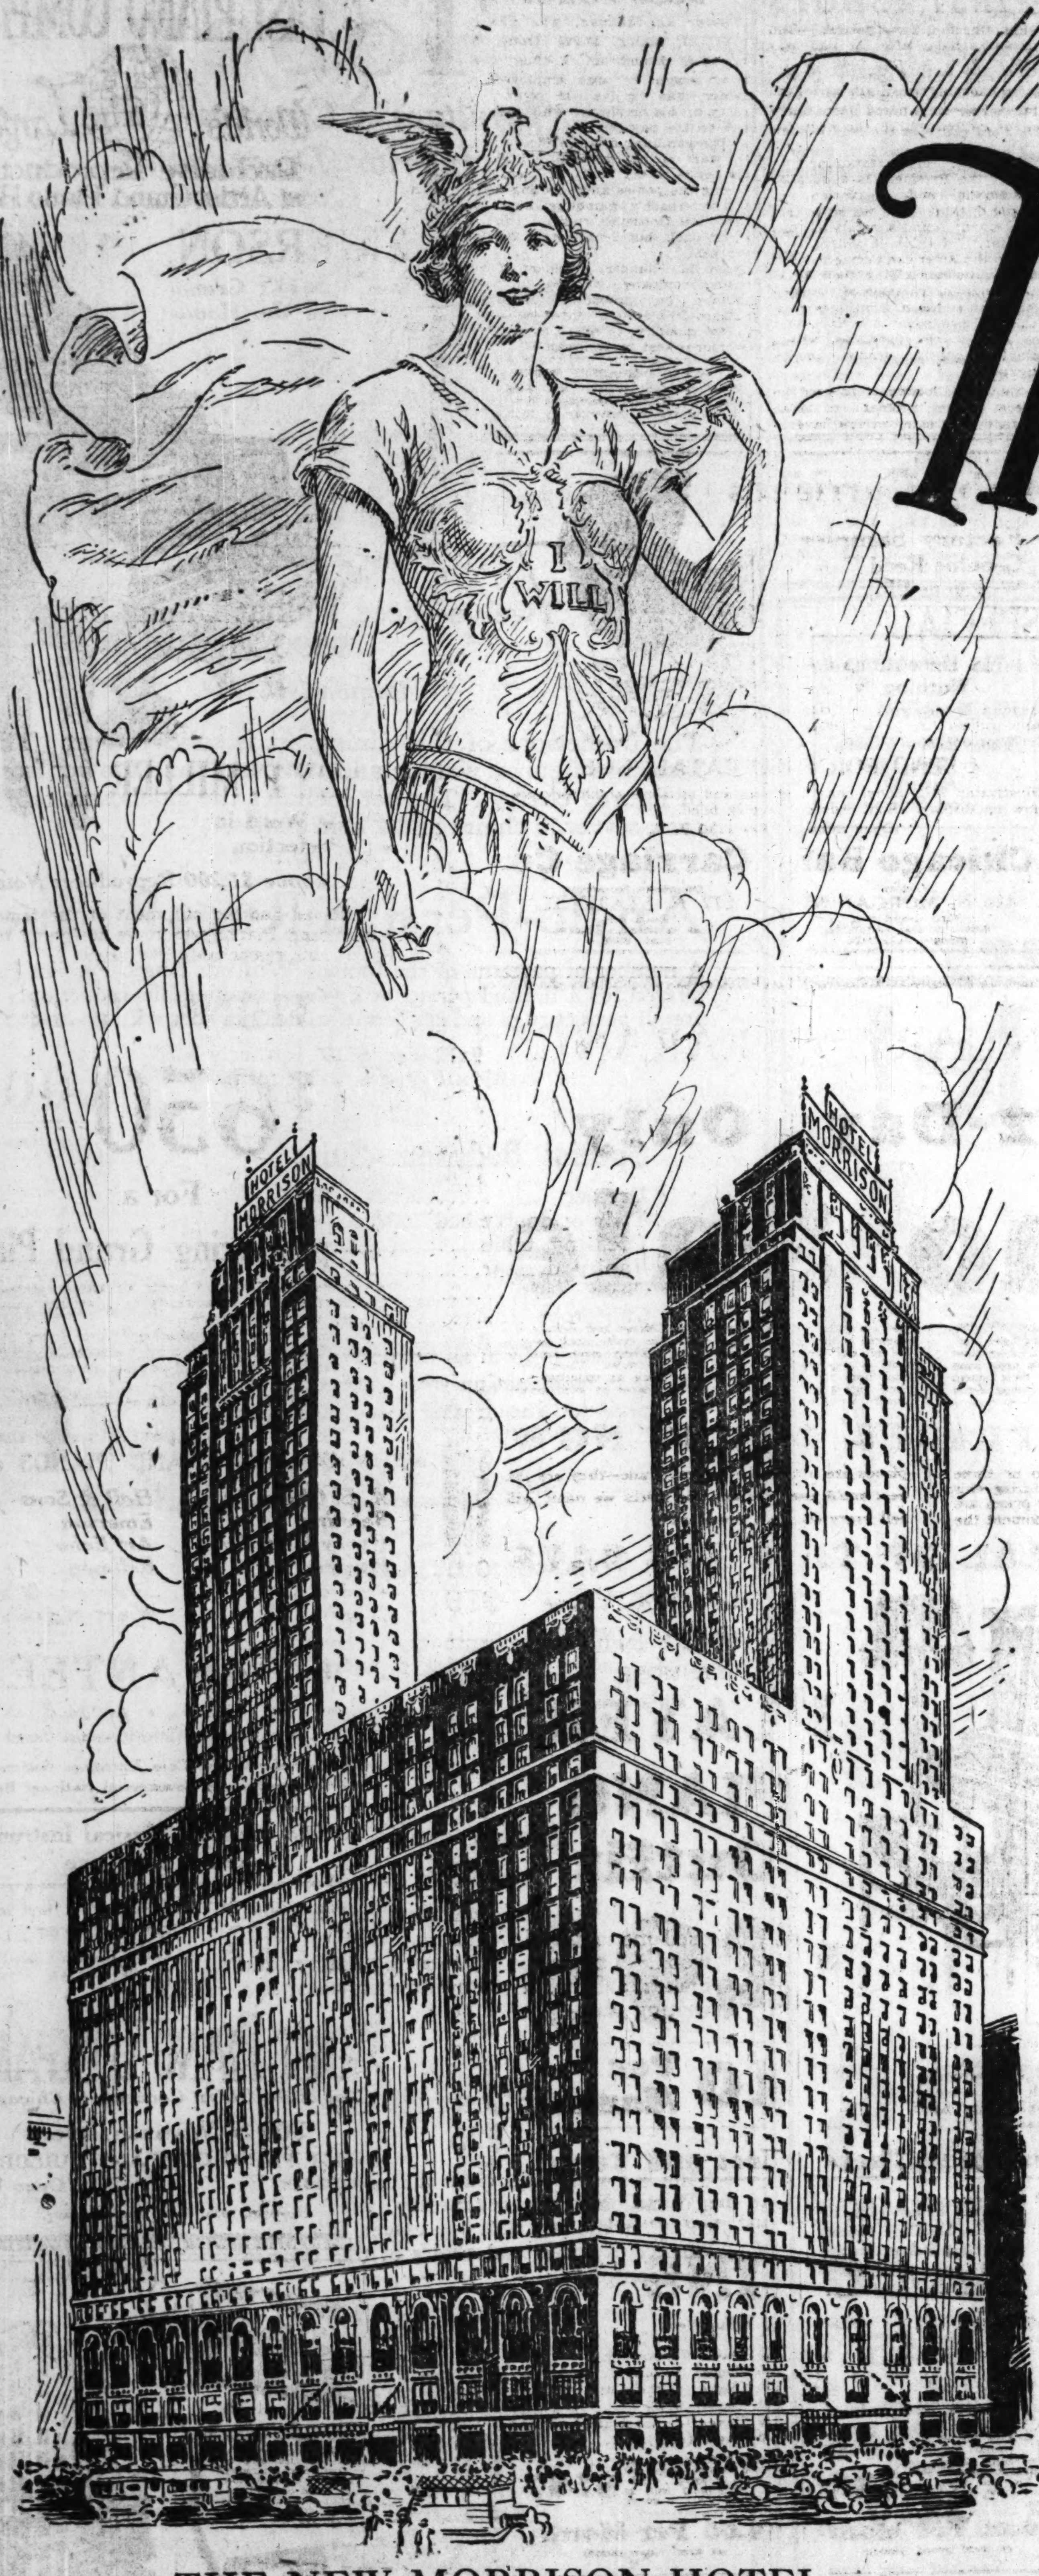
The Ultimate In Service

Reflecting the "I Will" Spirit THE MORRISON HOTEL Keeps Pace with Chicago's Growth



THE NEW MORRISON HOTEL
—will contain 3,400 rooms—the largest and tallest hotel in the world
Architects: HOLABIRD & ROCHE

A NEW era dawned in architecture with the coming of the American "skyscraper." It is as clearly identified with its birthplace and period as the Ionic temples of the Athens that Pericles knew.

It is the form chosen by Harry Moir to express the broadening out of a lifelong purpose and the fulfillment of a thirty years' dream.

Since World's Fair days the Morrison Hotel has steadily grown to meet every marked advance in Chicago's vast expansion. As the centre of travel and traffic on this hemisphere, Chicago's hotel resources have faced a far more insistent call than those of other cities, and the Morrison has borne no small share of the load.

But in expanding once more to parallel the city's amazing development, it moves far beyond the limits set by former traditions of hotel builders. The Morrison is to become the largest and tallest hotel that the world has ever seen.

But the mere physical grace and vast size of the new structure are far from sufficient to satisfy the ideals of service that have made the Morrison a proverb throughout America. Every detail of its equipment—even the smallest item of interior trim—will be perfect in kind, from giant caisson and ponderous girder to push-button, window-catch, and water-faucet. Luxury there will be, and artistic beauty in the utmost measure, but details of decoration are not more scientifically planned than those of mechanical equipment—and hygiene.

The Imperial Flush Valve

to be standard equipment throughout

The New Morrison Hotel

After critical comparison of models, it has been decided to install the Imperial Flush Valve in every bathroom in The New Morrison. The unerring certainty of its flushing action, due to its self-cleansing seat and its ease of regulation, has determined the management in its favor, although all other standard models used in hotels of premier standing were offered for comparison.

And no recognition of its merit could be more significant than its inclusion in the equipment of the greatest hotel in history.

NEW LAW ROLLS BACK FLOOD OF ALIENS INTO U. S.

Immigrant Tide Is Cut Down by a Half.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—The tide of alien settlers, which at one time threatened to swamp the United States, has been stemmed at last by the new immigration restriction law which went into effect July 1.

Only half as many immigrants are now being admitted as last year. At this rate about 350,000 aliens will enter this fiscal year, compared with more than 700,000 in 1924.

There also has been a marked reduction, estimated at 50 per cent, in the number of aliens who sneak across our borders at unguarded points. This has been accomplished by the new border patrol, which is not only guarding the frontier but is waging war on the operations of gangs in Mexico, Canada, and Cuba engaged in the profitable business of bootlegging aliens into the United States.

Mexico's Smuggling Nipped.

In the case of Mexico, a country to which the quota restriction does not apply, immigration has fallen off by two-thirds since the new law went into effect, and the activities of the border patrol have been so effectual that the old days when illegal entries in the neighborhood of Laredo alone sometimes amounted to 500 in a single day are only a memory.

The problem of the alien seaman also has been solved, at least in part. Last year 34,000 alien seamen deserted in American ports, of which number 28,000 were actually immigrants who shipped solely as a means of entering the United States. The present indications are that the number of such desertions this year will be about 50 per cent of that number.

Cuts Immigration One-Half.

For the countries of south and central Europe the reduction effected by the new law is very much more than one-half the immigration previously admitted annually.

From Czecho-Slovakia for the three months of July, August, and September, the alien arrivals in 1924 were 941 as against 7,555 in 1923; from Italy 3,038 as against 22,239; from Poland 958 as against 13,216, and from Russia 790 as against 8,418.

For the nonquota countries, in view of the recommendations of Secretary of Labor Davis urging the application of the quota to all countries, including Canada, Mexico, and Central and South America, the figures showing the arrivals for corresponding periods in 1923 and 1924 are interesting as showing what has been accomplished in the way of limiting immigration from these countries under the provisions of existing law.

The provision in the new law by which only the native born are exempt from the quota limitation, all others being charged to the quota of the country of nativity, has been the principal factor in reducing the immigration from Canada and the West Indies. The reduction is shown by the following figures on immigrant aliens admitted from nonquota countries for the corresponding periods in 1923 and 1924:

CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND.

	1923 (old law).	1924 (new law).
July	16,184	8,370
August	16,396	10,751
September	16,657	10,683

MEXICO.

July	9,110	3,045
August	9,322	3,555
September	8,097	3,670

SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA.

July	1,192	665
August	1,354	940
September	1,616	939

The total immigration from Mexico last year was 89,336. According to Commissioner General Husband, the record for the period of July 1 to Nov. 30, 1924, is 10,212, indicating an estimated legal immigration of perhaps 30,000 for the entire fiscal year. Statements as to the vast numbers of aliens arriving legally and illegally by way of the Mexican border, he said, were exaggerated.

"If there is any truth in them," Mr. Husband told the committee, "we cannot verify it. Our findings are to the contrary. I might say that in my opinion the Mexican route is now substantially a failure so far as any large number of Europeans are concerned."

On both the Canadian and Mexican boundaries and in the Florida district the border patrol has gone into action, with the results shown in part by the following record for the period July to November, 1924, inclusive:

Patrol districts—	Arrests.	Turned back.	Arrests involving seizure.
Canadian border	684	1,548	111
Jacksonville, Fla.	333	2	1
Mexican border	462	1,811	124
Total	1,479	3,361	236

During the above period Mr. Husband said, patrol inspectors had questioned 35,373 persons on the Maine border alone, and 28,600 on the New York and New Hampshire Canadian border line.

Increase in Arrests Shown.

The increase in the number of aliens arrested during the period from July 1 to Nov. 15 in 1924, as compared with 1923, is shown in the following table:

	July 1, 1923.	Nov. 15, 1924.
Los Angeles district [including southern California and part of Arizona]	91	310
El Paso district [parts of Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico]	377	465
Florida district [Tampa, Key West, Jacksonville, Miami, etc.]	84	333
Buffalo	234	414
Detroit	177	387
Spokane	19	45

For Grand Forks, which district comprises Minnesota and North Dakota, there were 288 arrests in 1923 while the number of arrests from July 1 to Nov. 15 of 1924 were 268.

Here's How Law Stems Alien Tide

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—(Special.)—The marked decrease in immigration under the new restrictive law is shown by the following comparative figures on aliens admitted:

	1923 (Old Law).			1924 (New Law).
	Immigrant.	Nonimmigrant.	Total.	Immigrant.	Nonimmigrant.	Total.
July	41,241	12,001	53,242	11,661	11,112	22,773
August	42,735	12,298	55,033	23,290	13,966	37,256
September	49,881	17,135	67,016	27,941	20,057	47,998
October	54,129	17,063	71,192	27,402	17,822	43,224

LICHTENBERGER SAYS GIRL FIRED FIRST 2 SHOTS

Pekin, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Did Mary Eitenmiller fire the first two shots in the terrible tragedy of last Tuesday morning when she and Fred Lichtenberger were found unconscious in his Ford coupe in the field a quarter of a mile from the farm home of William H. Eitenmiller? Fred Lichtenberger says she did.

"I told her I didn't want to get married for two months, as I did not have enough money saved up," was Fred Lichtenberger's statement to State's Attorney Dunkelberg, Sheriff Neuhaus, and Attorney Harold Rust at the Pekin hospital.

"Mary took the revolver out of my right hand coat pocket and fired two shots. The first I knew was when I came to, and it looked as though the car was turning around and over. The next thing I saw was the revolver lying at her feet and blood running down the side of her face. I grabbed the revolver and she came to and said for me to shoot her again and to make sure that both of us would go. I was shot in the head, but it only stunned me. I did not know what I was doing, I guess, but I shot her in the head."

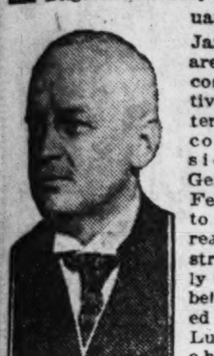
GERMANY SOUNDS ALLIES ON PLAN FOR FRENCH PACT

Luther Pushes Scheme to End Arms Search.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]



DR. HANS LUTHER.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—England, France, and Belgium not only failed to evacuate Cologne on Jan. 10, but they are planning to continue the activities of the interallied military control commission throughout Germany during February. Word to that effect reached Wilhelmstrasse unofficially today, and it is believed this caused Dr. Hans Luther, the new chancellor, to push his plan for a military guarantee pact with France with new vigor.

Instructions have been sent to the German ambassadors in all the entente countries to sound out the allied premiers regarding what they think of Germany's proposal for a security treaty, which Dr. Luther believes will be a great step towards permanent peace in Europe.

Germany wants to know beforehand that such an offer will not fall on barren grounds and it is prepared, should the first informal reply be optimistic, to present a complete treaty for the military security of France, which also probably will contain clauses satisfying France's eastern ally, Poland.

Calls Cabinet Council.

A special cabinet council has been called for next week for the discussion of the security pact. By that time the German ambassadors will have reported the attitude of the allied premiers.

Extraordinary secrecy is maintained regarding the security treaty, especially with reference to the settlement of the eastern or Polish question.

This problem also includes the Polish corridor, the upper Silesian boundary, and the neutrality of the Free State of Dantzig. It is believed the Czecho-Slovak frontier security also will be mentioned, so that should the treaty result numerous breeding places of future wars will be wiped out.

France to Protect Poland.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Difficulties, particularly as regards the question of the Polish-German border, stand in the way of any proposed security pact with Berlin, the French foreign office indicated today. It was stated, however, that no official mention of such a proposal had yet been received by France, and the report is regarded as having been thrown out vaguely by the German government in order to test out the French opinion.

Another obstacle to the conclusion of a Franco-German agreement of this kind is the negotiations which have been under way for some time for a British-Franco-Belgian alliance, which is more likely to meet popular approval in France.

OUR JOHN AT HONOLULU

Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon arrived at Honolulu Jan. 13, and the above photo was snapped before they landed. They are decorated with the lei, the wreaths of welcome of the Hawaiians. The photograph was sent to The Tribune by J. R. Farrington, managing editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

NEW ENVOY SURE FRANCE WILL PAY ITS DEBT TO U. S.

Only Give Us Time, He Asks in New York.

EMILE DAESCHNER
[Kadel & Herbert.]

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Emile Daeschner, newly appointed ambassador from France, arrived today on the liner Paris, accompanied by Mme Daeschner and their two daughters.

M. Daeschner was reserved in discussing political matters. He said that as he was coming here to take up a new post he did not think it would be good diplomacy to discuss any questions between the United States and France.

"The general impression is that France will pay her debts, as she has always done," he said. "The only question is the way to do it. France must have time."

Informed by the reporters of the angry debate in the French chamber last week and the address by Louis Marin and the memorandum of Clemental, the ambassador said:

"It would be impossible for me to give my views until after I have submitted my credentials. To do so would not be courteous to the government of the United States nor to President Coolidge."

"What do you think of Marin's attitude on the debt issue?"

"His views are personal, as are so many views now being expressed. They do not by any means represent the sentiment of France. I feel confident that the question of the payment of the debt will be amicably adjusted. I have not entered into any conferences in connection with France's external debts. The two governments will settle these matters and public opinion will follow."

Mr. Daeschner departed for Washington, where he will spend several days conferring with Ambassador Jusserand before presenting his credentials and officially relieving M. Jusserand.

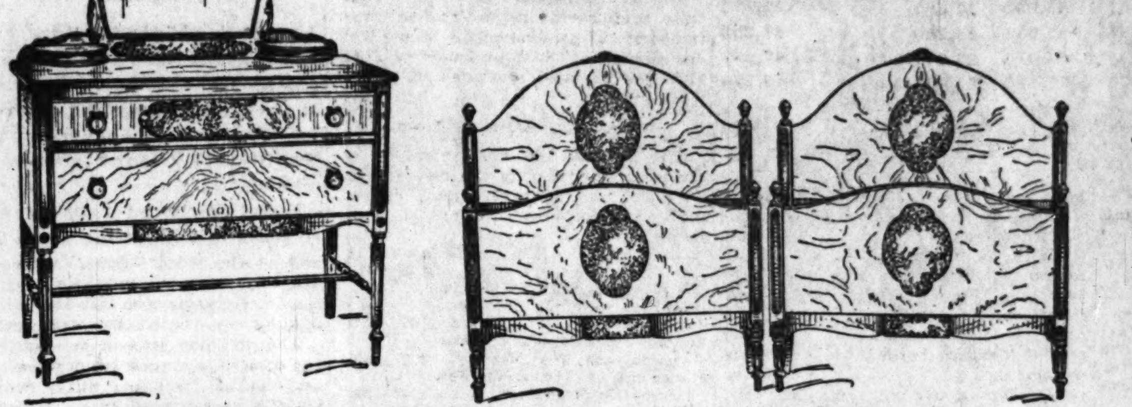
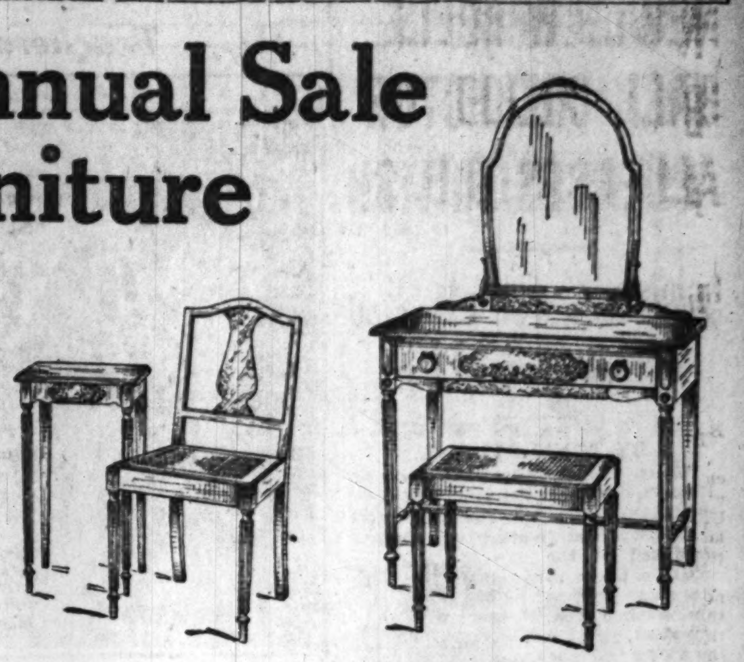
Scholle's Semi-Annual Sale of Good Furniture





Solid walnut Hepplewhite bedroom group with burl walnut overlays, antique gold decorated, drawer construction of white quarter-sawed oak.

	Sale Price		Sale Price
Dresser	$93.00	Dressing Table Bench	$15.00
Twin Beds, each	54.00	Writing Table	40.00
Full Size Bed (not shown)	59.00	Night Table	15.00
Dressing Table	60.00	Chair	15.00
Chest of Drawers	66.00

NOW, here it is again—Scholle's big semi-annual sale. We're sure there are many who have had it in mind in considering their furniture needs.

We've had it in mind, too, for a long time. We went to our manufacturers months ago, when the best of them were not very busy, and gave large orders for their fine goods; these orders kept the factories going at a time when they might have had to curtail operations.

The result is that we got our kind of merchandise, made as we want it, in materials, design, workmanship; we got it very close to the cost of production, which makes it possible to sell it at very low prices.

This is much better for you than if we had bought so-called "bargains" or "surplus stocks" from factories making cheap stuff. All the goods we bought were made for us, chiefly for the purposes of this sale. Entirely new productions, in the highest type of Scholle quality. We include in the sale, of course, such merchandise as we had on hand; but most of it is fresh from the makers' hands.

Our customary policy of satisfaction guaranteed is not affected by a sale, or sale prices. Anything you buy here that is not satisfactory may be returned, exchanged or money refunded.

For Our Out-of-Town Customers

It is often possible to deliver your purchases direct from the store to your own door in our own trucks. It saves a lot of packing and annoying delays in shipping by rail; if the distance isn't too far, the trucks can do it. You get your things quickly direct into your home.

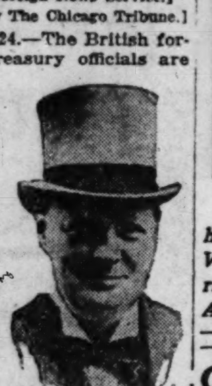
UNCLE SAM AS BILL COLLECTOR PLEASES BRITISH

America's Dun Expected to Make French Pay.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]



WINSTON CHURCHILL.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The British foreign office and treasury officials are delighted at the attitude taken in America toward the French debt situation. The handling of the debt question is now regarded here as a triumph for British diplomacy. Great Britain by paying its own debt and claiming the right to be paid by France in equal payments with America has succeeded in placing America in the position of debt collector for both.

The European situation makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the British to press France and Italy for prompt payment, but it can without appearing harsh insist that if these nations pay any one else they must pay it in equal proportion. If America, therefore, succeeds in bringing France to a realization that its debts must be paid Great Britain will benefit.

British Like Borah's Speech.

Senator Borah's speech Thursday in reply to the suggestions of debt repudiation by Deputy Marin in the French parliament was hailed with delight here, and it is hoped that the effect in France will be good from the point of view of a creditor.

Winston Churchill is trying his hardest to figure out some way to grant a reduction in income taxes in the next budget. He is anxious to make a reduction of a shilling in a pound, but treasury officials cannot see how they can sacrifice more than sixpence of the present taxation unless some money is obtained from Great Britain's creditors. If the United States, then, can induce France and Italy to pay something, the British taxpayers will benefit and the present government will gain popularity.

Bankers Exert Pressure.

The action of the American bankers in declining to float a new French loan also is believed here to have a good effect. This, probably more than theoretical talk of international honesty and sanctity of obligations, it is believed, will bring the French into line. It is recognized that the French must have fresh loans, and if they discover that they cannot get them until the old ones are recognized and arrangements made for their payment it is believed they will come to the conclusion that international honesty is the best policy.

It is pointed out here that France is the lightest taxed of the great powers and has a great reserve of untapped wealth which, if taxed, would soon allow a debt settlement.

GEORGE J. GOULD HEIRS AGREE TO TERMS OF PEACE

End of Litigation Up to Chancery Court.

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—All the litigation in New Jersey growing out of the estate of George J. Gould will be settled if the Court of Chancery approves an agreement reached by attorneys for Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair Gould and the executors of the estates of George J. Gould and Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, his first wife.

MRS. GUINIVERE S. GOULD.
[Kadel & Herbert.]

This was announced today by Ralph E. Lum, counsel for Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair Gould, who was George Gould's second wife. He said further that the agreement would be presented to the court next week.

The agreement, it is believed, will lead to a settlement of other litigation pending in the New York courts. Neither Mr. Lum nor other attorneys in the case would admit this, however.

Withdraw Claim for $1,000,000.

Under the terms of the agreement executors for the estate of the first Mrs. Gould withdraw their claim to $1,000,000 in Liberty bonds given by George Gould to the then Guinivere Sinclair. The second Mrs. Gould also withdraws her claims for one-third of the Gould art treasures, valued at more than $1,500,000.

In agreeing to relinquish her claim to the art works of her husband, Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair Gould sacrifices her own interests for those of her three children. Under the terms of the agreement the art treasures will go to the estate of George J. Gould.

Second Wife Gets Liberty Bonds.

Under the agreement all of the claims of Mrs. Gould on behalf of herself and her children are withdrawn. The chief of these was that involving the art works. In return the executors for Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould waive their demand for the Liberty bonds, and these bonds will be turned over to the trustees of the George J. Gould estate for Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair Gould and her three children.

The executors of the first Mrs. Gould's estate also relinquish their claim to $2,500,000 representing the income from stock of the Pacific Express company, and this amount also will remain in the estate of Mr. Gould.

Youth in Stolen Car Shot Fleeing Police

Charles Lessiak, 17 year olds, 716 North Ada street, was shot in his right side yesterday by members of Lieut. Hugh McCarthy's detective bureau squad when the lad refused to heed their commands to halt at Arthur street and Grand avenue. Lessiak had been sitting in a stolen car.

TEACHERS ROAR DISAPPROVAL OF SCHOOL BOARD

That the Chicago Teachers' federation is not at peace with the board of education was demonstrated yesterday at the silver jubilee celebration of the organization at the Morrison hotel. Nearly 1,500 teachers attended the meeting.

Round after round of applause greeted songs that hit at the school board and at the word "fight," uttered repeatedly from the speakers platform, the teachers, jammed into every corner of the room, roared their approval.

The occasion was in celebration of the campaign waged twenty-five years ago against five public utility companies for payment of taxes which resulted in these corporations turning more than $600,000 into the coffers of the county treasurer.

Urge Fight to Continue.

Now, as then, the fighting spirit must be maintained, speakers told the teachers. The body was urged to grit its teeth and carry to a successful conclusion the new fight about to be waged against tax dodgers.

Miss Margaret Haley, who with the late Catharine Goggin, led the fight twenty-five years ago, recited the details of the beginning of the suit and the long battle in the courts that resulted in the teachers receiving $250,000 in back pay.

To add realism to her tale, former Judge Owen P. Thompson, who handed down the decision in the teachers' favor, and Judge E. S. Smith of Springfield, then the state's attorney for that district who aided in the prosecution, sat beside her.

Educators, labor leaders and public officials joined with the teachers in their celebration. Among them were John Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Victor Olander, secretary-treasurer; Oscar Nelson, vice president, and John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Peter A. Mortenson, former superintendent of schools; School Trustee J. Lewis Coath; Miss Rose Pesta, principal of the Pullman school and former president of the Principals' club; Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th]; Lawrence F. King, president of the sanitary district and others.

McAndrew Meeting Disturbed.

A telegram endorsing the teachers' causes and expressing regret at being unable to attend was sent by former Gov. Edward F. Dunne from Palm Beach.

Supt. William McAndrew, who has been obliged in the past to learn of the teachers' attitude through the press, was able yesterday to get first hand some idea of their stand. He was speaking at a meeting of the Assistant to the Principals association on the floor above. So great were the cheers and applause of the federation meeting that the McAndrew meeting was compelled to close its doors so that he could be heard.

DENY BROOKHART SENATE SEAT, IOWA G. O. P. ASKS

Elected by Deceit, Fraud, Leaders Charge.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.] — The Republican party of Iowa through the state central committee, today officially repudiated Senator Smith W. Brookhart and moved to have his seat in the United States senate declared vacant on grounds of alleged fraud and deceit.

SENATOR BROOKHART.
[Seabold Photo.]

A resolution adopted by the committee today directed chairman B. B. Burnquist of Fort Dodge, to prepare a bill of complaint and file with the senate, charging that Senator Brookhart, prior to the November election, posed as a Republican until it was too late for the committee to bring out another candidate, then aligned himself with the La Follette movement, denounced the Republican national ticket and divorced himself from the Republican party, thereby deceiving the electors of Iowa.

Puts Premium on Trickery.

"The acts of Smith W. Brookhart," says the resolution, "are contrary to honesty and political morality, and to permit such acts to stand unchallenged, would be to put a premium on trickery and deceit and to permit an unscrupulous person to become elected to a public office by the use thereof."

The appearance of the senator's name on the Republican ticket, the resolution continues, "saved him from an overwhelming defeat" and resulted in "a glaring fraud upon the Republicans of Iowa and the United States."

Brookhart Replies.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—"That gang that passed that resolution are the ones who practiced any 'fraud and deceit' in Iowa," Senator Brookhart declared upon reading the dispatch concerning the state committee's action.

JAPANESE IRE ON IMMIGRANTS NOT JUST, HE AVERS

Complaints of the Japanese government against recent immigration laws enacted by the United States have no just grounds, Edward J. Hanning, assistant secretary of labor, declared in an address yesterday before the German club of Chicago.

"The American government merely reaffirmed the first immigration laws, passed in 1797, which limited the privilege of naturalization to persons of the Caucasian race," he explained.

"The biggest problem facing the immigration authorities is the prevention of unlawful entrance of aliens into America," Mr. Henning said, "and at the present time, there are approximately 30,000 Europeans and 20,000 Orientals in Cuba, awaiting their opportunity to be smuggled into the United States"

WARREN LINCOLN TAKES CHARGE OF HIS DEFENSE

Adopts the Shield of Unwritten Law.

Geneva, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Warren J. Lincoln, as a lawyer, took charge of his own case today in his trial for the murder of his wife, Lina, and her brother, Byron Shoup, whose heads he sealed in a cement block.

N. J. Aldrich and D. Harvey, counsel appointed for him, were retained, but Lincoln insisted the unwritten law be emphasized in his defense, instead of the insanity plea they offered for him.

In contrast to his indifference during the tedious selection of the jury the lawyer-florist was attentive, and made copious notes when State's Attorney Charles Abbott addressed the jury. Mr. Abbott said Lincoln had planned "a perfect defense, which crumbled only because he lost his nerve."

Says Lincoln Was Safe.

"There was no clew against this cunning criminal," Mr. Abbott said. "The bodies of his victims were gone, the heads in a block of concrete. Trained lawyer that he was, he knew that there might be suspicion, but no proof. Then, because the hunt was persisting in the city dump, where he had thrown the block in which he had placed the heads, he got frightened and confessed.

"It was no delirium," the prosecutor said, "that caused this man to chop up the bodies of his victims, to place their heads in cement. It was to get rid of the evidence.

Sued Dead Wife for Divorce.

The prosecutor also referred to Lincoln's filing suit for divorce against his wife months after he had killed her, instructing an attorney to sue Byron Shoup, then dead, for damages.

"All part of a perfect alibi plot," Mr. Abbott said.

"Besides a low form of jealousy," Mr. Abbott added, "there was a money motive for Lincoln's crime. He wanted to get hold of property his wife and brother-in-law had. Also he owed his brother-in-law $1,600."

Mr. Abbott explained after his speech he did not ask the jury to hang Lincoln because he simply was outlining thec rime to be proved against Lincoln, but in his closing argument he will demand the death penalty.

DARED WIFE TO SHOOT HIM, SUIT REVEALS

In these days of trigger finger wives, consider the suggestion of John P. McCormack, 6624 South Peoria street, to his wife, Clara, that she take a gun from his hand and shoot him.

Failing in reconciliation, McCormack, according to his answer to Mrs. McCormack's divorce bill, filed yesterday by Attorney Jay J. McCarthy, appeared before his wife, tendered the pistol, and told her to fire away.

"But I'll be arrested," she protested, according to the answer.

"No, you won't," replied the astute McCormack. "Here is a document I've prepared absolving you from all blame, and showing you acted in self-defense."

McCORMICK SEES VICTORY FOR CITY IN WATER FIGHT

Health of Chicago to Be Guarded, He Says.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.] — Senator Medill McCormick [Rep., Ill.] predicting victory for Chicago in the water diversion fight announced officially today as chairman of the senate committee on a lakes to gulf waterway that the report of that committee will be presented to the senate next week.

SENATOR McCORMICK. [Seabold Photo.]

Senator McCormick also predicted Secretary of War Weeks will decide the question in favor of preserving the health of Chicago and announced as his opinion that the entire question is free of international controversial points.

Root's Opinion Impresses.

"The committee was deeply impressed," Senator McCormick said, "by the opinion of Elihu Root as secretary of state; of Chandler Anderson, solicitor to the state department, and by the unanimous opinion of the joint commission of Americans and Canadians, that the United States or the sanitary district had the right to divert from Lake Michigan through the Chicago to the Mississippi water shed as much as 10,000 cubic feet per second.

"Lake Michigan is an American lake and not an international lake.

"I cannot believe that any open minded man, reviewing the history of lake diversion, and the legal authorities' opinion, can hold any other opinion that the the President and the secretary of war have a right to authorize the diversion through the Chicago river of a flow of water up to 10,000 cubic feet per second. The law concerning navigable waters confirms the secretary of war in this right. Therefore, the immediate responsibility to permit the continued flow and to preserve the health and lives of the millions of people in Chicago and the adjacent territory lies not with congress. but with the executive.

Believes Weeks Will Act.

"The secretary of war must act. His is the responsibility. I have no doubt that he will act, and decide in favor of Chicago, as soon as the facts and the law are brought formally to his attention.

"The testimony of Mr. Randolph proved that among the score of the greatest cities of the United States, only two had done as much as Chicago to dispose of sewage by means of disposal plants. The greater number of them pour their sewage untreated, or almost untreated, into the adjacent waters.

"The committee must consider and report upon the other evidence regarding the lake to the gulf waterway—this is, how much water must be diverted from the lake into the Illinois and Mississippi watershed to make possible the most economical construction of a nine foot channel, and to assure the most efficient and cheapest navigation of that channel by the largest possible barges.

Representative Hull Pleads for Lakes to Gulf Waterway

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Plans for an organization of a body to support legislature for a clean Illinois river and a lakes to gulf waterway were complete here today when representatives of fourteen Illinois valley counties met and named an organization committee.

WILLIAM E. HULL. [Harris & Ewing.]

The organization will be perfected when 105 representatives of twenty-one valley counties gather in this city next Thursday to adopt a platform and frame a constitution for the association.

The consensus at the meeting today leaned toward harmony in the valley and passage of the Hull waterway bill in an amended form. Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria, and Henry T. Rainey of Green county addressed the gathering which was presided over by Mayor E. N. Woodruff of Peoria.

Importance of Illinois River.

"The Illinois river is the best river for navigation in the United States," Mr. Hull said. "Connection between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river through it, is an absolute necessity for the success of an inland waterway."

"Of course, we all want to eliminate the sewage from the river, and as quickly as possible.

"The Supreme court of the United States has given the power to congress and the war department to force Chicago to build treatment plants to take care of its sewage, but, mind you, after the solids are taken out of the sewage I predict that every one in this valley will see the importance of holding the 10,000 cubic feet a second flow of water that was given to us by the treaty in 1910.

"But if the water is taken from us by the Canadian government, which is in reality the British government, then we can kiss it good-by for all time to come."

Supported Various Channels.

"I supported the bill that gave a six foot channel from St. Paul to St. sissippi, and a six foot channel from Louis to New Orleans, a nine foot channel from Pittsburgh to the Mississippi, and a six foot chanel from Kansas City to the Mississippi, and a nine foot channel from the Mississippi through Louisiana and Texas to Galveston. I knew at the time I was making the speech that if we agreed in our own territory and if our people had stood for a bill to make a deep waterway by the wave of the hand, it would have been passed, and Peoria would have seen barge lines float down the river which would increase the population of this city double its present size."

Representative Rainey insisted that no matter how much water comes down from Lake Michigan it must be pure.

"Disposal of Chicago sewage through the river," he said, "has ruined the fishing, pearl and pearl button industries, and rendered the river a serious menace to health."

RICKARD SANDLER NAMED SWEDEN'S NEW PREMIER

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—Rickard Sandler, formerly minister of commerce, was appointed prime minister of Sweden today, succeeding Hjalmar Branting, who has been forced to give up his post because of the illness which afflicted him several weeks ago, and which, the doctors say, will keep him confined for some time to come.

M. Branting remains a member of the cabinet and it is hoped will be able to resume his work.

The shift of personnel brings no new political forces into the Swedish cabinet, which consists entirely of Social-Democrats, and was formed by M. Branting in October last, following Social-Democrat gains in the last election.

1920 RATES ON SECOND CLASS MAIL ARE URGED

Barnum Tells How Boost Hurts Publications.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—J. D. Barnum, chairman of the postal committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, issued a statement announcing publishers throughout the country will approve the amendment to the Sterling bill offered today by Senator George [Dem., Ga.] providing for a return to the second class rates which were in force in 1920.

Mr. Barnum calls attention to the fact that the postal increases made during the war were repealed on first and fourth class matters but not on second class mail.

Rate Boosts Hit Publications.

"The first two increases on second class mail produced approximately $13,500,000 additional revenue," he said. "The next two increases produced less than $100,000 additional revenue above the $13,000,000 which was gained by the first two. The last two increases drove from the mails nearly one billion copies of publications whose subscribers either could not or would not pay the increased postage demanded.

"In the opinion of publishers the George amendment will serve to bring back into the mails great quantities of such publications which have been driven therefrom by present excessive rates. This amendment, if enacted into law instead of decreasing the revenues of the postoffice department, will increase the revenues.

High Transportation Costs.

"At the present time the department pays the highest rate of transportation of all mail, irrespective of the time essential to its delivery. It is the hope and the expectation of publishers that the George amendment, which is a revenue producing amendment, will be adopted by the senate and enacted into law if the pending postal measure is passed by congress."

BUILDING TRADES ELECT FRIDAY; RYAN RUNS AGAIN

With each faction confident of victory the annual election of officers of the Chicago Building Trades council will be held Friday night in Electricians' hall, Ogden avenue near Washington boulevard. The Australian ballot system, it was said, will be used in this year's election.

MICHAEL ARTERY.

Edward (Pop) Ryan, incumbent, will be a candidate for reëlection as president. He has directed the policies of the trades council for more than two years and succeeded Fred (Frenchy) Mader, ousted from office and union membership when the conservative element took over control of the councials accepted the Landis award, which trades council for a few months and had for his lieutenants "Con" Shea, "Big" Tim Murphy, and Emmett Flood, an organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

Ryan is opposed for office by Michael Artery, business representative of the machinery movers' union. Both officials accepted the Landis award which meant nearly a 40 cent an hour cut for members of Artery's union.

Cadillac Welcomes this Market—and this Market Welcomes Cadillac

The motor car market of today is a searching market. Buyers, for their own protection, are weighing values with extreme care.

They are demanding quality—not merely surface quality, but deep through and through goodness of design, materials and construction.

They are demanding value—not temporary price concessions, but real dollar for dollar value in an automobile which will remain fine and fashionable.

They are demanding economy—not the expensive economy of short lived cars, but true economy represented by long, reliable service, low upkeep and high resale value.

They are demanding security—not promises but proof of quality, in a car of sound, tested design backed by long years of performance and an established reputation.

Cadillac welcomes this market—and as sales of V-63 cars show, this market welcomes Cadillac.

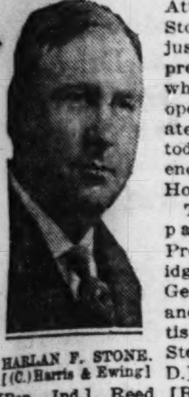
PRESIDENT TAKES HAND IN SENATE ROW OVER STONE

Prosecution of Wheeler Is Storm Center.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Evidences of opposition to the confirmation of Attorney General Stone as associate justice of the Supreme court which have developed in the senate resulted late today in a conference at the White House.



HARLAN F. STONE. [(C.) Harris & Ewing]

Those participating included President Coolidge, Attorney General Stone, and Senators Curtis [Rep., Kas.], Sterling [Rep., S. D.], Watson [Rep., Ind.], Reed [Rep., Pa.], and Butler [Rep., Mass.].

The conference was understood to have been arranged at the request of some of the senators. What took place was not disclosed, but it was indicated that the situation was thoroughly canvassed. The senators were understood to have been furnished the reasons of the department of justice for seeking an indictment in the District of Columbia in the case involving Senator Wheeler [Dem., Mont.].

Senate Debate Flares Up.

Attorney General Stone, on leaving the conference, indicated that he had called at the White House at the request of the senators rather than of the President.

The White House conference came on the heels of a spirited discussion of the nomination of Attorney General Stone which broke out suddenly in the senate, both in open and executive session. Decision as to the next step in the matter was deferred until Monday.

After a rule had been invoked to close the doors of the senate there was brought into the debate the action of the department of justice in moving to seek the indictment of Senator Wheeler in the District of Columbia in connection with the case in which he has been indicted in his home state.

Two Plans Offered.

Leaders said that during the hour of more or less informal discussion two propositions were put forward. One was to defer action pending an inquiry into the new effort to indict Senator Wheeler. The other was to send the nomination back to the judiciary committee with a view to calling Mr. Stone for a statement regarding the action of the department of justice.

POLICE LEAVE TO ACCOMPANY BISCHOFF HOME

First Assistant State's Attorney George Gorman and Sergt. George Homer left last night for Los Angeles to bring back Raymons J. Bischoff, the fake financier who gave his investors his I. O. U.'s for nearly $3,000,000.

State's Attorney Robert Crowe announced that he would go before Chief Justice Jacob Hopkins Monday and ask the three indictments against Bischoff be reinstated and put on the call docket at once.

The state has already prepared the case and will be ready for trial immediately upon Bischoff's arrival.

EX-CONVICT ARRESTED.

Stonewall Jackson, colored, 42 years old, who escaped from the state penitentiary at Parchman, Miss., four and a half years ago, after serving six months of a life sentence for murder, was arrested yesterday on complaint of his wife when he returned to Chicago.

LEO NIEDZWIECKI NEW GROUP CHIEF OF U. S. DRY AGENTS

Appointment of Leo Niedzwiecki as group chief of the Illinois prohibition force was made known yesterday at the office of Prohibition Director Percy Owen.

LEO NIEDZWIECKI.

Niedzwiecki, who lives at 1629 West 16th street has been a member of the prohibition department for two years.

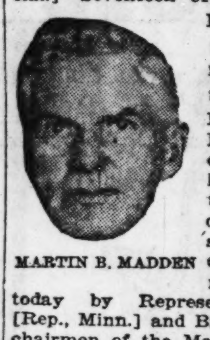
The new group chief is a graduate of the University of Illinois college of pharmacy, class of 1909, and also of St. Ignatius college. He is a leader in the Polish branch of the Catholic Order of Foresters and an official of the Iroquois Sportsmen's association, a west side social organization.

His appointment is to fill one of tw vacancies made by the resignations of Sellac Graham and Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgway. Prohibition Agent Charles Line is said to be prominent among the candidates for the other vacancy.

Mark Carson, oldest prohibition agent in Illinois in point of service, who has been serving as acting group chief in Chicago, also has been urged for permanent promotion.

MADDEN SEEMS CERTAIN TO WIN SPEAKERSHIP

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Seventeen of the thirty-seven Republican states will vote solidly for Representative Martin B. Madden [Rep., Ill.] for speaker of the house, and half the delegations from seven other states will support him, according to an announcement made today by Representative Newton [Rep., Minn.] and Britten [Rep., Ill.], chairmen of the Madden for speaker committee.



MARTIN B. MADDEN

The announcement was after a meeting of the committee today attended by representatives from thirteen states. A poll of all states having Republican representatives in the house was taken.

Four more state delegations have met and unanimously declared for Madden, it was stated, since the Kansas delegation voted 5 to 1 for the Illinois leader. These were Nebraska, North and South Dakota, and Idaho.

"Madden is receiving strong support from all the states in the Mississippi valley, where his record for constancy and tremendous capacity are well known," said Representative Newton.

Army Supply Bill of $332,180,000 Is Passed

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—The annual army supply bill, carrying $332,180,000 was passed today by the senate. The senate added just $3,000 to the bill reported by its committee. This was to provide for purchase of a rifle range at Auburn, Me. As passed the appropriation was $5,327,000 under those of the current year.

The bill carried $40,000,000 for continuation of river and harbor projects, $750,000 for the Panama canal, $25,000 for experiments with gas to exterminate the boll weevil, and $10,000,000 for Mississippi flood control.

"OPPORTUNITY"

"I confess I am greatly surprised at the splendid wear the rugs give. Their fine texture and color are a growing delight. Your system of satisfying customers and ability to fit yourselves into their needs is truly appreciated.

"Certainly the opportunity you gave us to pay the bill over a period of time was a real one for us."

Would not any firm be pleased with the reception of the above letter?

ACTORS' EQUITY BALL A SUCCESS; COLORFUL SCENE

Stage Stars and Society Enjoy Program.

Society lent a gay and willing hand in the lively festivity which was the annual Actors' Equity ball at the 131st infantry armory last evening and this morning.

The decorations, scarlet, silver, and white, were in futuristic style and had been executed by Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who evolved last year's "Russian snow scene."

Boxes Painted Scarlet.

The three tiers of boxes were painted a bright scarlet, and illumination from huge crystal chandeliers, and the myriad scattered electric lights decorated a veritable forest of potted trees. The white tablecloths on the supper tables set beneath the trees and surrounding the dancing space served to carry out the effect of the decorations. A stage was constructed at one end of the huge hall for the midnight performance by the best stage talent in Chicago. The stage was flanked on each side by openings representing county fair or circus sideshows. From one of these supper was served, and the other served as a dressing room for the performers.

Doors were opened at 9:30 o'clock and at 10 the orchestra struck up for general dancing until midnight. With the stroke of 12 began the Equity Revue, a series of entertainments which continued until 1:30 o'clock. After that supper was served, and the general dancing continued.

Those on Program.

The program, arranged by Joseph Santley, included "Midnight Jollies" as the first number; Blanche Ring in "Moon Love," a fox trot by Florence O'Denishawn, Nelson and Charles Columbus; "Poor Little Cinderella," presented by Anne Caldwell, Maxine Brown, Ruth Thomas, Claiborne Foster, Marion Saki, Ivy Sawyer, Jack Barker, Paul Frawley, Jay Gould, Eugene Revere, and Frederic Santley; "Do You Remember When?" presented by John Burke, Hugh Cameron, Lulu McConnell, Solly Ward, Phil Baker, Joe Laurie Jr., Charles Winninger, Georgie O'Ramey, De Wolf Hopper, Fiske O'Hara, Wellington Cross, Frank McIntyre, Billy B. Van, and George Lemaire; "Song Birds of My Heart," by John Steele, and Josephine Whitte; and "Eight Pickaninnies and Santa Claus" by the Dolly Sisters, Joseph Santley, Vera Dale, Marjorie Hallick, Gladys Lake, Marjorie Kollock, June Leslie, Emily Roper, Helen Shepard, Marion Strasnick, the Trado Twins, and Louise Groody.

The revue which was performed not as it was last year on the dancing floor but on the specially constructed stage was continuous, and formed a more unified entertainment than last year's pageant with the queens of society (represented by Miss Genevieve Carpenter), the stage and the movies.

Red High Commissioners Order Boycott on England

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 24.—The Moscow council of high commissioners has ordered the trade commission to declare an economic boycott against England, according to a statement appearing in the newspaper Ekstrabladet this afternoon. The trade commission is ordered to avoid buying anything from England and the Russian trade Socialists, now visiting London, have been ordered to leave for Paris and Berlin until the Anglo-Russian negotiations clear up.

COMMITTEE OF 16 NAMED TO BREAK OPIUM DEADLOCK

But U. S. Can Count on Only 3 Votes.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Jan. 24.—The league of nations international opium conference, composed of fifty odd delegations, tonight was boiled down to sixteen men. Eight of them are representatives of eight powers constituttin the first conference, dealing with smoking opium, and all solidly united, except one, China, to maintain legalized "hop joints" in the far east.

S. G. PORTER.
[(C.) Harris & Ewing]

The other is composed of eight nations, participating in the second conference, including the United States, a few of whom back the American proposals to apply the old Hague convention of 1912 and start curtailing legal smoking of opium immediately.

U. S. Can Count on Three.

Great Britain, India, France, Holland, Portugal, Siam, Japan, and China are member of the new supercommittee from the first conference, and the United States, Brazil, Cuba, Egypt, Finland, Italy, Persia, and Poland were elected from the second conference.

Of these Congressman Stephen G. Porter of the United States can count on the support of Brazil, Cuba, and Finland, but it is believed through political entanglements the others may be rallied to the other camp.

The solution adopted of handing over the deadlock to the supercommittee is what the British and other nations deriving opium revenues proposed at the end of three days, and Mr. Porter agreed, as he was apparently certain of being outvoted when it came to a ballot for adopting the proposals of the American plan.

Delays Work of Conference.

Practically the entire work of the conference will be halted while the supercommittee thrashes out the question whether the twelve year old The Hague agreement should be put into effect now, as Mr. Porter demands, or whether the plan waits until the revolution is over and order established in China.

The compromise is considered as a check to Mr. Porter's aims, but the American delegation state they seek to exhaust all means to reach a satisfactory agreement before breaking up the conference. Mr. Porter is criticized for delaying the parley three days before accepting the proposal, however.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE LEAGUE OF DISABLED VETS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Appointment of a special committee to investigate the activities of the National Disabled Soldiers' league, which has conducted pencil selling schemes in Chicago and other large cities throughout the country, was ordered by the house of representatives today by a vote of 158 to 106. The organization already has been investigated by both the postoffice department and the department of justice, but both announced there is not sufficient evidence to prosecute under existing laws.

Complaints have been made against the methods employed by the organization in Chicago and other cities by merchants who receive the bundles of pencils sent out by the organization with letters asking payment for the same. The organization has no standing with the Veterans' bureau.

Roumania Refuses League Plea to Cut Arms Budget

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Jan. 24.—Roumania today declined the invitation of the league of nations to reduce its budget for armaments for the years of 1925 and 1926. Foreign Minister Ducca said Roumania follows with keen interest the league's efforts to reduce armaments, but at the present time cannot accept the league's plan as Roumania is passing through a period dangerous to its national existence.

BAVARIAN PACT WITH VATICAN IS RATIFIED

MUNICH, Bavaria, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—The recently completed concordat between Bavaria and the vatican was formally ratified today by Premier Held and Monsignor Pacelli, the papal nuncio, at Berlin, in the presence of members of the cabinet and the leaders of the coalition parties in the Bavarian diet.

By the provisions of the pact just concluded the Catholic schools of Bavaria are accorded a preferred position in that they are brought under the direct jurisdiction of the church's authority, although the rights and interests of the Evangelical synod are not interfered with.

The concordat was strongly opposed by the socialists, democrats and communists, but their opposition in the diet was nullified because they made up the minority parties,

Oldest Sorority Meets to Honor Natal Day

A luncheon celebrating the fifty-fifth anniversary of Kappa Alpha Theta, the oldest college fraternity for women, was held yesterday at the Piccadilly club, and was attended by 150 alumnae. The sorority was founded at De Paul university in 1870. Miss Marian Jennings of Evanston, Miss Pearl Denent, Mrs. Lammadee, and Mrs. Drollinger were speakers.

P. O. CLERK ADMITS THEFT.

Manitowoc, Wis., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Roy C. Sievert, local postoffice employé, in federal District court at Green Bay today pleaded guilty to misappropriating $24 of government money on Jan. 14. He explained it was his intention to pay back the money on the next pay day.

CHILE IS CALM AFTER BLOODLESS ROUT OF RULERS

President Not Anxious to Leave Exile.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—Chile settled down to virtual calm today after yesterday's sudden coup by a group of army officers which turned the government junta out of office through a display of armed force at the palace, but without bloodshed.

ARTURO ALESSANDRI.
[(C.) U. & U. Photo]

This city's life proceeded along quite normal lines today, the only notable exception to the usual routine being the sight of small cavalry patrols put on duty to maintain order.

News from the provinces was that equal calm prevailed throughout the rest of the country.

Workers Ask Calm.

The workers' committee has issued a manifesto, asking the industrial and other workers to remain calm and give the young military officers responsible for the governmental changes an opportunity to satisfy the desires of labor by launching a democratic program.

Officials of the navy met at Valparaiso last night and decided to assist, if necessary, in the maintenance of public order. The banks opened as usual and commercial operations were normal.

Demonstrations of enthusiasm for the idea of calling President Alessandri back from his exile in Italy to resume his old office are occurring, and there is general eagerness to learn the result of the urgent message sent to him yesterday asking him again to assume the chief magistracy.

President Is Doubtful.

MILAN, Italy, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—President Arturo Alessandri of Chile today received from the Associated Press the first news of the overthrow yesterday of the Chilean military junta government. He said that he did not believe it advisable to return home now.

Persons conversant with Chilean politics are of the opinion that Alessandri's return is not yet feasible because the military party which overthrew him might again take over power which they are said to have relinquished yesterday. It is not believed that another change in the government would take place without bloodshed. Political observers recall that the military groups in Chile have been inspired by the old German army methods and traditions.

PEACEMAKERS DROP THEIR WAR AND COMPROMISE

Vote for Co-operation with League.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Mindful of the warning plea of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt that "peace among the peace makers" is the prime essential at the present time to a successful peace movement, the 900 delegates to the conference on the cause and cure of war today avoided a split over the league of nations. It was agreed to indorse coöperation with rather than entrance into the league, and the body unanimously approved, as "tending toward international security," the following political measures:

"Outlawry of war" through "enactment of an international law declaring war a crime in which the aggressor nation should be dealt with as a criminal," and the use of an international machinery through which such a law can become operative among all nations.

Want U. S. in Court.

"United States adherence to the permanent court of international justice.

"The codification of international law for the guidance of such a court according to modern standards of international ethics and with reference to modern world conditions.

"The initiation or sharing by the United States in movements looking toward reduction of armaments," maintaining "defense agencies though avoiding any policy of competitive armament" while moving toward "legal and friendly methods of settling international difficulties."

Appointment in the department of state of an undersecretary for peace, "to develop international understanding" and to "respond to constantly shifting conditions in a rapidly developing world."

The League Agreement.

On the subject of the league of nations and the Geneva protocol, the resolution agreed upon was as follows:

"The conference recognizes the immense service given by the league of nations to the ideals that are dominant in the United States. It is the only functioning world organization providing for the realization of these ideals. The conference therefore believes that whether our government enters the league or not it should as far as possible enlarge our responsibilties in league plans and coöperate in its activities.

"Inasmuch as the protocol of Geneva is the most advanced proposal ever made for the outlawry of war, the conference believes that the United States should hold itself ready to take sympathetic and coöperative action in the furtherance of the success of the protocol."

Action on Postal Pay Bill Blocked in Senate

Washington, D. C., Jan 24.—Consideration of the postal salaries bill was blocked in the senate today by the unscheduled eruption over the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a member of the Supreme court. The rate revision section will be in order Monday.

The "Rent-a-Car to Drive Yourself" idea was started by the

YELLOW DRIVE-IT-YOURSELF SYSTEM
Licensed under Hertz System

Last May, when the Yellow-Drive-it-Yourself System was started by a group of Chicago business men, it was a brand new idea.

Yet the remarkable success of this Company (and of the Companies in other cities who have followed our idea) proves that people wanted this service!

Starting with a few cars and one station, this Company now owns and rents a big fleet of gear shift and Ford cars (touring cars, coupes and sedans), and has four stations, conveniently located—one downtown, one North, one South and one West.

More than 25,000 people are now renting cars from us regularly.

And to this fleet we have just added several hundred new Hertz Sedans—especially designed and built for this service by the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co., of Chicago.

It's easy to rent one of our cars

Any man or woman who knows how to drive can step into our nearest station and drive away in one of our cars five minutes after they call. There's no red tape.

You can keep it as long as you like, or for as short a time as you like. We require no mileage or time guarantee. And you can get a car anytime—our stations never sleep.

No one can tell the car you rent isn't your own

You will be proud to drive any of our cars. They are not painted yellow—there is nothing about them to show they are not your own. And they are all kept "spic and span."

The cost is actually less than driving your own car, and you have nothing to worry about. And the cost includes everything—gasoline, oil, extra tires and more insurance than you would carry yourself.

Here's what it costs including gas, oil and insurance.

GRAIN MERGER IS CREDITED WITH HIGHER PRICES

Silver Tells U. S. Body of Great Savings.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A part of the inside story of the Grain Marketing company, the big Chicago merger, was told to President Coolidge's commission on agricultural inquiry by Gray Silver, president of the company, when he appeared Friday before the commissioners in an executive session at Washington, D. C., according to a statement released yesterday by the American Farm Bureau federation.

Nearly a third of the $370,000,000 increase marked up on the American grain farmers' books last year was credited to the activities of the Grain Marketing company. At least, Mr. Silver thinks his company should have credit for $100,000,000 a year of the increase returns to farmers.

He said the company handled an "impressive proportion of all the grain coming this season to Omaha, Kansas City, Chicago, and other terminals, and that "the company is large enough, if financially supported by the grain growers, to deal practically with the problem of the exportable grain surplus every year."

Cuts Out Middle Service.

The merger company eliminated as high as five commissions for unnecessary middle service in its effort to deliver grain direct to the British Coöperative Consumers' society, Mr. Silver told the commission. Last summer, he explained, the company bought several million bushels of rye at Duluth, shipped it to lower lake ports, and got it out of sight, which broke the physical blockage and improved the statistical situation, with the result that rye advanced from 75 cents a bushel and continued until it reached $1.30 a bushel. The American market was cleared for action when the European shortage later developed.

The merger head also told how the company jammed the cheap Montreal route with American wheat at a saving of several cents a bushel, sending wheat direct from the southwestern farms to ocean vessels at Galveston. It used 9,000,000 bushels of space on lake vessels for storage in order to releave elevator capacity which made possible the movement of the loaded vessels to Lake Erie ports before navigation closed.

Saved Hundred Million.

"There was probably a saving in this way of $100,000,000 on the whole American grain crop. The company could do the same thing every year. Its complete operation success is acknowledged by the friends and foes of coöperation. Its continuation depends purely on the willingness of the farmers to finance their own creation."

He asserts, according to the statement, that in former years traders preferred to enter a new year with a big carry over, thus favoring slashing price reductions. He is confident the remaining American exportable surplus wheat, amounting perhaps to 100,000,000 bushels, will be moved at a good price before the last of June.

JAP-RUSSO PACT AGAINST LEAGUE, LONDON BELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 24. — Attention is drawn here to a clause in the Russo-Japanese treaty providing that each of the contracting parties guarantees benevolent neutrality in the event the other is involved in war with another power. This, it is believed, is contrary to the covenant of the league of nations, which, while it allows neutrality, might construe "benevolent" neutrality as something more. It would also conflict with the Geneva protocol if that instrument ever is adopted in case Russia was declared an aggressor by the league. Japan then is bound by its league membership to engage in economic, financial, and moral pressure against the power to which Japan had promised benevolent neutrality.

POPPENHUSENS PART

MRS. PAUL A. POPPENHUSEN.

PAUL A. POPPENHUSEN.

Agree to Quit

Paul Albert Poppenhusen, former head of the Green Engineering company, was granted a divorce yesterday from Mrs. Dorothy Poppenhusen, whom he accused of deserting him. He agreed to pay her $15,000 alimony and $2,500 in fees to her lawyer, Charles E. Erbstein.

The hearing before Judge Lewis was brief and marked by good feeling. Mr. Poppenhusen testified the marriage was performed on Sept. 25, 1918, and his wife left him in May, 1922.

"That is perfectly true," the wife said upon taking the stand.

HENRY OF PLESS, AT 63, TO MARRY SENORITA OF 26

Announcement a Surprise to London.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The marriage of Prince Henry of Pless and Senorita Clotilde de Silvay, aged 26, will take place within a few days in London, it has just been announced. The prince is 63.

The prince's former wife was the beautiful Mary Theresa Cornwallis-West, the daughter of Col. William Cornwallis-West and a sister of the former Duchess of Westminster. She is now the wife of Capt. Fitzpatrick Lewis. London society is greatly surprised by the announcement.

Married in 1891.

The marriage of the prince in Saint Marguerite's church, Westminster, in December, 11891, was one of the year's events and was attended by King Edward and Queen Alexandra and practically all the members of the royal family. The bride, who was then 17, became a German princess. Three sons by the first marriage are Prince John Henry VII. of Pless, Count Alexander von Hockberg, and Count Bolko von Hochberg.

During the war her change of nationality caused the princess great difficulty. The prince served in the German army, while the princess nursed wounded in Berlin. Her former popularity was exchanged for hostility. The relations between the husband and wife became estranged and in 1923 the husband petitioned the pope seeking an annulment.

Intimate of Former Kaiser.

It was stated at that time that the prince wished to marry the Countess Diedrich, the 20 year old daughter of a wealthy Austrian Catholic family who was reputed to be the most beautiful woman in Europe. The prince is an intimate of former Kaiser William and is very wealthy, with great estates in Upper Silesia. The princess has been residing in London since 1923, being occupied in writing her memoirs.

JAPS TO SPEND $112,500,000 ON NAVY THIS YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 24.—The Japanese naval budget will total 225,000,000 yen (roughly, $112,500,000), of which a half will be used for the construction of ships concerning which no data is available as to type, size, or number. This year's total is 57,000,000 yen ($28,500,000) below the current budget. Of this amount 39,000,000 yen ($19,500,000) was saved by discharge of personnel and postponement of construction. The ordinary total of 122,000,000 yen ($61,000,000) includes the "construction of warships and arms repairs amounting to 36,000,000 yen ($18,000,000). The extraordinary total amounts to 103,000,000 yen ($51,500,000), of which 31,000,000 yen ($15,500,000) is for warship construction and 57,000,000 yen ($28,500,000) for auxiliary warships. Nine hundred thousand yen ($450,000) covers the cost of maneuvers.

WALTER F. DODD ENTERS RACE FOR ALDERMAN POST

Makes It Three Cornered Fight in 46th.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Lines were drawn yesterday for one of the hottest contests of the aldermanic campaign when Walter F. Dodd, former secretary of the Illinois legislative reference bureau, entered the Forty-sixth ward race against Ald. Oscar Nelson. The Forty-sixth is headed for a three cornered aldermanic scrap with Neil H. Burlingame, secretary of the Illinois Rifle club, as the third entry.

Mr. Dodd, who is author of the Illinois administrative code sponsored by Ex-Gov. Lowden, is understood to be satisfactory to the Brundage Republicans and the regular organization Democrats of the ward. He drafted the fifty ward law, nonpartisan aldermanic act and the present state zoning law. Nelson, nominally a Democrat, is receiving the backing of William Hale Thompson.

Battles on North Side.

Some of the most important aldermanic battles are shaping up in the Republican north side wards. In the Fiftieth the Brundage following is backing former Alderman William F. Lipps against Ald. William H. Pontow. In the Forty-fourth circuit Clerk Thomas O. Wallace and the Brundagites are backing Albert E. Loescher. Robert W. Dunn, son of former Ald. Winfield Dunn, is receiving the support of Corporation Counsel F. X. Busch.

Matthias [Paddy] Bauler, an ally of State Representative Charles H. Weber, is making a fight against Ald. Arthur Albert in the Forty-third. Bauler is a brother of former Ald. Herman J. Bauler and John H. Bauler. He is backed by the regular Democratic organization.

The Democrats in the Forty-eighth are running Martin Kallis for the seat vacated by Sanitary Trustee Frank J. Link. In this ward the Brundage and Crowe-Barrett alliance is supporting Francis L. Boutelle against the Deneen entry, former Senator Willett H. Cornwall.

Thompson Backs Burkhardt.

The Democrats are making another fight in Republican territory, the Forty-seventh ward, with Frank Burkhardt, who is backed by Thompson, entered against Ald. Klinke.

Ald. George M. Maypole of the Twenty-eighth ward is displaying a highly prized campaign document in the shape of a resolution adopted by the Maypole Baseball club, 14 year old champions of the sandlots, who are making speeches at Maypole's meetings and lending their juvenile support.

Next Friday is the deadline for filing petitions of aldermanic candidates. Most of them have been hanging back to file their petitions at the last hour.

IDENTIFY MAN WHO WOUNDED POLICE OFFICER

Emmett Kearns, 22 years old, 3746 Wallace street, a "back o' the yards" gangster and well known "copper hater," was positively identified yesterday as the man who fired five bullets into the body of Detective Sergeant Thomas Babbington as he was about to enter a taxicab in front of a saloon at 319 Root street several days ago.

Babbington, who is in a serious condition at the Chicago hospital, made the identification. When Kearns was brought to his bedside Babbington said, "You give me a pretty tough break, kid; you know my back was turned to you when you fired." Babbington told Capt. Ben Enright Kearns was standing over him reloading his revolver when he lost consciousness Kearns was taken to the Stockyards station and held incommunicado.

Kearns was arrested by Lieut. Thomas Mangen at 43d and Wallace street late Friday night. He denied having anything to do with the shooting.

SEEKS MISSING BROTHER.

Mrs. J. T. Triplett of McClelland, Ia., asked the police yesterday to search for her brother, E. T. Medlar. He was last seen in Chicago and was leaving at that time for St. Louis, Mo.

Skeeles-Biddle Reform War Worries Greedy Undertakers

Week by week our establishments are visited by people who wish to tell us of the exorbitant prices they were compelled to pay to other undertakers until we ourselves are astonished to find how widespread is the practice of profiteering among funeral directors in every part of Chicago.

At the same time thousands of people are beginning to learn that there is no need or excuse for submitting to extortion, that from one-half to one-third the prices generally charged elsewhere can be saved by retaining Skeeles-Biddle to take charge of the funeral.

We are determined that if it is within the power of one firm to elevate the standards of a profession that should stand second to none in public confidence and esteem it shall be accomplished. New methods and new principles must be established and adopted by funeral directors who do not want to be forced out of business.

The day of 400 to 500 per cent profits on burial caskets is drawing to an end. We intend to continue our exposures of this and other evils until every man and woman in Chicago has been warned.

Caskets as Low as $25

Meanwhile we ask you to remember at all times that there is a funeral service far superior to any that a "neighborhood" undertaker can render, no matter how high his prices.

It is Skeeles-Biddle service, which is being sought by people in every part of the city and suburbs. Don't be deceived by empty, high-sounding phrases, but make your own comparisons.

Above all, don't be rushed into a decision you may regret. Take a few more minutes to decide. A telephone call will bring a Skeeles-Biddle limousine to your door to fetch you to either of our two establishments without any cost or obligation, whether you decide to engage us or not. It makes no difference where you live. The distance from either of our two addresses adds nothing to the charge for vehicle service, and you get the finest limousines furnished by any undertaker in the United States.

Honey Waffles (with bacon or sausage) for only 25c
—just one of the North American's many quality breakfast items

It doesn't make any difference how much, or how little, you wish to eat for breakfast—or at any other time of the day. You can drop into the North American Restaurant and, by "serving yourself" get food which cannot be excelled in quality, at prices far below those usually charged.

Our specialty of Waffles, with bacon or sausage, for only 25 cents is just one of our many unusual food values. Delicious waffles—cooked before your eyes—with your choice of Premium bacon or Mickelberry's Old Farm sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey. Unless you are particularly hungry this one item makes a complete breakfast. If you are not waffle-hungry at breakfast time we suggest the following:

Wheat Cakes, with bacon or sausage . . 25c
Bacon and Eggs 30c
(consisting of 2 fresh "select" eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon)
Individual 2-cup pot of Coffee . . . 10c
(with plenty of 22% cream)
Fresh Toast and Butter 5c

And the food values you get here at all other times of the day—from 7 A. M. until Midnight, Sundays and Holidays included—are equally as fine as these breakfast items. For instance:

Boston Scrod [Baby COD]: a big portion, hot from the pan 40c
(Tuesdays and Fridays)
Halibut and Peas: —The portion is usually enough for two people 40c
Pork Tenderloin: 45c
Fried Premium Chicken: with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce. Dark meat 55c
White meat 65c
Roast Turkey: A big portion with stuffing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce. Dark meat . 85c
White meat 95c

Also a complete line of sixes at moderate prices.

Anyone going to put his money into a new car cannot escape these facts.

This is the day of the eight in line.

Dealers everywhere know that no manufacturer (no matter how large) can stop the popular demand for this type of car any more than they could stop Niagara Falls.

A manufacturer is either prepared to go with the current of public demand or he is not.

Why should you be penalized if he is not?

The $4000 or $5000 eights of a year or so ago started the change. But costs were prohibitive.

Then Auburn got busy.

Only a company like Auburn can do what Auburn has done.

First came long, unhurried experimenting and testing. Everything was kept a secret until the work was perfected. At the same time the mechanical construction was being created, new body styles were being studied.

All precedents were ignored. We did not set out to copy, but to originate. Everywhere we asked, especially among owners of high priced cars, "What do people want?"

We learned two significant things. People are tired of the drab sameness. They want something different and individual.

Then we designed the new Auburn 8-Eighty-Eight for the man and woman who no more want their motor car exactly like their neighbor's than they do their clothing or homes.

We learned that people want to get away from high, top-heavy bodies. They want new lines; long, low bodies; wider doors; more room; easier steering; clean instrument boards not cluttered up with what-nots; new color schemes and riding comfort that will enable them to take long trips without fatigue. The result is the most original, improved car in years.

Special engineering enables extremely low design. The Auburn 8-Eighty-Eight was shown for the first time at the New York Show. Its popularity was unprecedented. It proved we were right. It gives the public exactly what it wants—individuality and distinction in their motor cars. Artists came to our booth and made sketches. Many body and chassis engineers came also and studied our improved features of construction.

Even more significant—48 hours after the showing of the new Auburn models and the announcing of Auburn prices, several manufacturers reduced the prices of their high-priced six-cylinder cars.

Be sure to see this new Auburn 8-Eighty-Eight at the show this week—with a chassis wheel base of 129 inches—

A body as new as the latest Paris importations, extremely long and low—

Upholstery of fine mohair with dull silver fittings—

All the latest ideas of fine proven engineering—

Four-wheel brakes, with front brakes enclosed—

Ignition and light switches on steering wheel—

A new type of steering—

An emergency brake unobtrusive yet effective—

The latest in lacquer finish—

All these and more you will find in the new model Auburn 8-Eighty-Eight Sedan at the surprisingly low price of $2350.

NURMI BEATEN BUT SETS TWO WORLD'S RECORDS

GUNNAR NILSON SHOWS HEELS TO FAMOUS FINN

Handicap Lets Him Break Tape in Lead.

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Paavo Nurmi tasted defeat tonight for the first time since the arrival of the phenomenal Finnish runner in this country. The lad who has become established as the greatest runner of all time experienced the sensation of having a rival's heels flashed in his face, when, in a 2,000 yard handicap race which featured the annual indoor athletic meet of the Brooklyn college in the Thirteenth Regiment armory, Brooklyn, he missed victory by a few strides after a spectacular last minute dash.

Gunnar Nilson, Finnish-American A. C. star, who holds the Metropolitan A. A. U. senior cross country championship and five mile title, was the lad who upset expectations and administered to Nurmi the first defeat the invader has experienced here. Starting with a handicap allowance of 100 yards, along with Ilmar Prim, and August Fager, club mates, who furnished the only other rivals for Nurmi, Nilson beat off a challenge by Nurmi in the final half lap of a nine lap journey and won by a few strides in a race which excited a crowd of about 5,000 which jammed the Brooklyn drill shed to capacity.

Two More Records.

Though defeated, Nurmi attained his objective. He added two world's records to his collection. He surpassed the outdoor mark of 5:07 1-5 for the 2,000 yards, made by the great Alf Shrubb, England's famed runner of another generation, back in 1903. Nurmi sped over the boards in the unprecedented time of 5:00 4-5, in finishing second to Nilson. Nilson's time in victory from the 100 yard handicap mark was 5:00 2-5, a time which, incidentally, indicates plainly the scant margin which separated victor and vanquished as the finish line was reached.

Fager finished third, about fifteen yards back of Nurmi. Prim, passed by Nurmi within a lap and a half of the finish, withdrew from the race as the last circuit lap started. Nurmi established another record when he raced the mile and one-eighth from scratch in 4:58.

Nurmi's intermediate time for the race was: First quarter, 1:06 1-5; half, 2:10; three-quarters, 3:18 2-5; mile, 4:27 4-5; one and one-eighth, 4:58; 2,000 yards, 5:00 4-5.

Not Disappointed.

Coach Hugo Quist, director of Nurmi's American running campaign, on behalf of the great Finnish runner, expressed satisfaction with the race and its outcome. Quist said that Nurmi tired himself to "do" five minutes and ran according to schedule. The feeling prevailed notwithstanding that Nurmi delayed his bid for victory too long.

Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C., shattered two world's records in the 5,000 meter invitation when he won the event from a field of six starters in 14:29 2-5, beating the mark set by Nurmi earlier this month by 5 1-5 seconds.

His time to the three mile mark was 14:11 2-5, breaking his own record for that distance. Ritola started at scratch and gave away up to 150 yards to opponents.

Georgetown's university's crack relay team, Ed Brooks, Jack Holden, Willie Sullivan, and George Marsters, shattered the world's indoor two mile relay record in another feature event when the flying four from Washington crossed the finish line in 7:47 1-5, victor by a hollow margin over the quartet of Boston college. The Hub collegians, racing home second, also got under the old indoor record, crossing the finish line in 7:52 4-5. The old record was 7:55 1-5, made by the University of Pennsylvania relay four two years ago. Yale finished third.

Ivan Riley Beaten.

Carl Christensen, Newark A. C. hurdler, who holds the Swedish championship, skimmed over the fences to victory in the 80 yard high hurdles invitation event in :10 2-5, showing the way by the width of his chest to Ivan Riley, crack Illinois A. C. hurdler. Ferd Myer, Newark A. C. star and national champion, was third.

Loren Murchison, Newark A. C. sprint star and national indoor champion, gave a sterling exhibition of his sprinting superiority in winning a 100 meter invitation dash in :11 1-5, one-fifth of a second back of the world's record.

Harold Osborn, Illinois A. C. all around athlete who holds the Olympic decathlon and high jump championships, thrilled the crowd with a victory from scratch in the handicap running high jump. The tri-color star cleared 6 feet 4 inches, an effort which gave him victory by five inches over Gail Robinson, Newark A. C. star, and Tom Halloran, New York A. C. star and national junior champion.

Jimmy Connolly, stout hearted runner who formerly competed for Georgetown and the Boston A. A., proved himself the best of a field of eight middle distance runners. In the Brooklyn college thousand yard race Connolly electrified the crowd with a dazzling sprint through the closing half lap and snatched victory from Ray Dodge, Illinois A. C. star.

Ray Watson of the Illinois A. C. won the 600 yard Brooklyn special from a field of four by five yards. Jack Sellers of the N. Y. A. C. was second, surrendering the lead in the closing yards.

NEW EVIDENCE INVOLVES OTHERS IN BALL SCANDAL

BY PAUL GALLICO.

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—What may be the opening wedge to the solution of the Dolan and O'Connell baseball scandal which rocked the baseball world last fall when, just before the world series, O'Connell, the $75,000 Giant outfielder, approached Heine Sand, the Philadelphia shortstop, and offered him $500 "not to bear down" in a crucial game with the Giants, was discovered yesterday by a New York Daily News investigator who has been working on the Pacific coast.

It throws an entirely new light on the version of Ross Young to Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis on what took place in the Giant clubhouse prior to the bribe attempt by O'Connell. It comes from Willie Cunningham, Boston outfielder and former roommate and close friend of Young.

No Money Involved.

According to Cunningham, Young admitted to him that he had spoken to O'Connell, but only with the rest of them in a "kidding way." Cunningham's story likewise involves Frisch and Kelly in the kidding. But Young emphatically denies that any money was involved in the offer. This was said to be an idea of Dolan's.

Thus the clubhouse kidding theory that has been advanced appears to be substantiated, except that O'Connell, on the coast, does not believe he was being kidded, and says so. Certainly this opens the way for a new investigation of the scandal on the part of Commissioner Landis, since it is hardly probable that Cunningham made up the story he told the New York News investigator out of whole cloth.

Cunningham's story is directly contrary to the testimony of the Giants, made public recently by Commissioner Landis. Here is the interview from the coast:

Cunningham's Story.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—What purports to be the version of Ross Young of just what took place in the Giant clubhouse prior to the attempt of Jimmy O'Connell, suspended New York outfielder, to bribe Heine Sand, Philadelphia outfielder, to be easy in a crucial game, was given by Willie Cunningham, Boston outfielder, a San Francisco boy formerly with the Seattle club of the Coast league, Giant outfielder before he was sent to Boston, and roommate and close friend of Ross Young while on that club.

According to Cunningham, Young admitted at one time that he, Frank Frisch and George Kelly, others mentioned by O'Connell with Alvin (Cosy) Dolan in his confessions to Baseball Commissioner Landis, were aware of the fact that O'Connell was to talk with Sands, with whom he had been friendly when they played in the Pacific coast circuit, but it was to be a "kidding" request not to bear down, based on friendship, and to be passed off as a joke.

O'Connell the Goat.

After O'Connell had been "kidded" quite some bit, it was agreed that the latter should approach Sand in a half joking way, to find out how the Philadelphia player regarded the prospect of a tie for first place in the league standing, and then try to persuade him to be easy in the important contest, but there was no mention whatever of any money changing hands

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

RETIRING CHAMPIONS.

BENNIE LEONARD announces that he has quit the prize ring after a seven year tenure of the lightweight title, and that his crown is open to the best man in the division. If Bennie adheres to his determination, he will be one of few American champions who have not lingered on the job until the inevitable defeat.

Often champions have determined to retire only to yield to the lure of an attractive purse or clamor of some title aspirant. They have donned the padded mitts again to find their one time prowess faded and they have heard the count of "ten."

There have been holders who yielded their crown because they outgrew the weight. There have been a few instances where champions or claimants died while still in their prime, notably Stanley Ketchel in 1910, and Les Darcy, the unfortunate Australian, in 1917.

Actual retirements, such as Leonard's will be—if he sticks—are rare. Way back in 1893, Jack McAuliffe, lightweight champion, quit milling after having defeated all the best men in his class. In 1899, Jimmy Barry, still in this city, deserted his bantam honors. What a great little man in the ring Jimmy was! Jim Jeffries retired in 1905, evidently in good faith. Five years later, he was dragged forth unwillingly as a "white hope" against Jack Johnson at Reno and made a sorry showing.

Jack Dempsey, in our opinion, will fight at least one or two more battles, matrimony or no matrimony, because the financial reward is great and danger of defeat apparently small—unless he has gone back greatly. No champion thinks he has gone back. After that, however, Dempsey's retirement would cause no great surprise.

If Bennie Leonard proves a marked success before the footlights, it will strengthen his present intention. He gives sound reasons for his action. We'll await with interest to see whether they prevail, or whether he again listens to promoters.

It's Many Years Now.

It's many years now since I was a boy.
Those far-away days of sunshine and joy,
Of swimmin' hole, a dog, and shack on the hill,
Are now but memories, sacred and still.

A dusty old trail wound down to the lake,
Over the hill, through woodland and brake,
Past Simmons it went, twisted and turned;
How oft for its dust my bare feet have yearned.

Back of our house, I remember it yet,
Were the fishin' poles, hooks, I'll never forget,
And near in a barn, old Dobbin ate hay—
It's many years now since he passed away.

Baleful to us was the old country school,
Where sturdy hours dragged 'neath tyranny's rule,
But joyful the days when birds sang in June
And school time was over, with summer in tune.

Ah! Happy the man whose memory teems
Of boyhood's incidents, pranks and dreams,
Those swift passing days of wonder and joy—
It's many years now since I was a boy!

Not a Regular.

An interurban car one rainy night was traveling through the country about 25 miles an hour. Byron Kanaley was the only passenger and stood in front chatting with the motorman. The big headlight showed a man standing alongside the right of way signalling the car to stop.

The motorman slowed down until the headlight revealed the face of the prospective passenger, then whirled his controller around to top speed. Kanaley, surprised, remarked to the pilot that the man had not boarded the car. "To hell with him," was the reply, "he only rides when it rains." Tyrone.

ESTELLE LIKES JACK FOR MIGHT AND TENDERNESS

BY HAROLD E. SWISHER.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 24.—[United Press.]—William Harrison Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, who is soon to take unto himself a bride in the person of Estelle Taylor, petite brunette screen actress, is Miss Taylor's ideal combination of masculine might and tender solicitude.

Columns have been written about Dempsey, the fighter. Miss Taylor today discussed him from the feminine viewpoint, as seen through the eyes of the girl who will soon become his wife.

Likes "Mental Tenderness."

"Physical stature doesn't have much to do with a woman's regard for a man," she began. "Some of the smallest men, physically, I have ever known, have been the biggest in reality, while some of the largest in size were the smallest from the standpoint of real gentlemen.

"It is hard to tell just what I like best about Jack. I like his mental tenderness for one thing. I say mental because he has no physical tenderness. He can't understand illness because he is never ill. When you tell most men you have a headache, they will run and get a cold towel, but Jack isn't that way, just because he doesn't know what sickness is.

"Jack Wants a Home."

"Jack is very unselfish. Right or wrong, he is always behind me. He never says 'I told you so' when something he advised against turns out badly. Instead he just says, 'We'll fix it some way.'

"I like his kind heartedness, especially toward boys. He is building them a gymnasium downtown now and all his interest is in that project.

"Jack wants a home," Miss Taylor continued, smiling. "The prize ring is such a hard life I think every man connected with it away back in his mind craves the quietness of home life."

"My present intention is to quit pictures. I don't want to, but Jack is not in favor of my working. He thinks a wife's place is in the home.

"Well, good-by. Please don't call me a vampire, for I'm not, and don't like to be called one."

JIM BRITT SIGNS CUBS' CONTRACT

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 24.—Jimmy Britt, young pitcher, who was tried out by the Cubs last summer, today signed a contract with the Cubs for next year and expects to make the training trip to California with the team. Britt was quite a star in the semi-pro field here before trying out with the Cubs. His home is in Chester, Pa.

Hoosier Quintet Swamps Maroons for 40-11 Win

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Indiana took Chicago to a 40 to 11 cleaning before a crowd of 3,500 here tonight. Indiana started slow and did not pep up to any extent until the second session started, then the Hoosiers completely routed the Maroon.

No Maroon player was able to warm the basket in the second half, except from the foul line The invaders were powerless to penetrate the Crimson's five man defense and consequently negotiated few close-in shots. None of their players were able to poll long distance goals.

Indiana's playing in the second half was fast and furious and compelled Chicago to take time out several times after the second session was ten minutes gone. Coach Dean withdrew his regulars and sent in his reserves and they performed in good style. Lineup:

GOPHERS BEAT BADGERS

Madison, Wis., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Outplaying the Badgers from the opening whistle, Minnesota slipped over a 25 to 14 win here tonight. It was the fourth straight defeat for Wisconsin. Rasey's excellent shooting and all around play was the big feature. He caged four goals from the field and two from the free throw line. The Badgers' short pass game failed to function and as a result, Meanwell's men had a few good chances at the basket. Lineup:

ILLINI WIN AGAIN

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—With the score tied at 15 all and seven minutes to play, Illinois' fast traveling basketball team surged out in front with three baskets and two free throws for a 23 to 15 victory over Sam Berry's Iowa five here tonight. The Illini now sit snugly at the top of the Big Ten championship ladder with four victories and no defeats.

Capt. Johnny Mauer entered the battle in the closing minutes of play to sink two field goals and add two free throws, while Holly Martin dropped in the final basket for Illinois. Lineup:

PURPLE BEATEN, 21-16

Columbus, O., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—A Northwestern rally at the close of the second half fell five points short and Ohio State beat the Purple on the basketball floor here tonight, 21 to 16.

The game was one of the fastest on the local floor in years, the defensive work of both teams holding the count down. The Purple fought valiantly, but was behind all the way except for an instant when the score was deadlocked at 6 to 6 early in the fray.

Cunningham, tall Ohio center, was the big noise for the home team, outjumping Greaves at the tipoff consistently. He tallied 5 buckets and a foul for 11 points. Lineup:

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

THE TRIBUNE's ninth annual Silver Skates Derbies, which have attracted an entry of 2,558 experts, not only from Chicago, but from Canada and various sections of the United States, will be held over a six lap course on the Garfield park lagoon today starting at 10:30 o'clock, when preliminary heats in the juvenile and junior races will be hled. The regular program will open at 1 o'clock.

This year's entry is by far the largest ever received for this skating classic and those who have followed the skating sport for thirty years or more claim it is the largest entry ever received for one meet in any part of the world. The entry is representative of the skating world because races will be staged for boys and girls of various ages and none will be compelled to compete against more mature and experienced racers.

746 Kids Will Race.

The gratifying feature about the entry is that 746 boys under the age of 14 years have sent in their names for the juvenile Derby, preliminary or qualifying heats of which will be 220 yards with a quarter mile final. In staging these races it has been the policy of THE TRIBUNE to encourage amateur sports and not to promote something for those who have already attained a high degree of efficiency. These stars receive enough competition, but it is the growing lad whom THE TRIBUNE wants to help and encourage.

Once these boys become interested in skating or any other sport, the majority will continue to race in the hope that some day they will be champions, and this is just what has happened as a result of former TRIBUNE Derbies. These little shavers will be shown all consideration possible this morning and points won in their race will count in the team total the same as in the boys' senior.

In the boys' junior, open to those 14 and 15 years of age, 615 entries were received, another gratifying feature of the nominations. In the intermediate, composed of boys 16 and 17 years of age, 567 entries were received and 368 for the senior boys who are 18 years of age or over.

Girls' Entry Larger.

The girls' entry is also larger than ever before. In the junior, open to those under 16 years, 137 sent in their names while in the senior for those over 16 years, 125 have been listed. Points scored by the girls will also count in the team total. This entry shows that girls are taking an even greater interest in ice racing than ever before and the competition for first place in both races should be interesting providing none of the known skaters meet with accidents.

If weather conditions are favorable, the ice meet will be staged in gala fashion. The pavilion and stands will be decorated with bunting and American flags, while decorators engaged by THE TRIBUNE will hang American flags for fifty yards on each side of the pavilion. Newton daylight bombs releasing American flags will signify the opening of the program at 1 o'clock and at the same time John Bramball's band will play "The Star-Spangled Banner." Immediately afterward the first heat in the intermediate Derby will be sent away and from then until the final heat in the boys' senior is run there will be plenty of racing activity.

Prizes will be presented to the winners immediately after the races in the ballroom of the pavilion. The trophies will be given to the winners by Ald. Albert J. Horan of the Twenty-ninth ward, the well known west side sportsman and a great skating enthusiast. Ald. Horan gladly consented to act in this capacity when he heard of the illness of Henry Utpatel, who had given the prizes away at former TRIBUNE races.

List of Prizes Offered.

In the boys' senior Derby and the girls' senior Derby the winners will be rewarded with solid silver skates. Second place victors will receive nickel plated runners and third place performers, bronze runners. Those who finish fourth and fifth will be given TRIBUNE silver and bronze medals, respectively. Winners of the boys' intermediate, junior and juvenile and girls' junior will be given silver plated skates, while prizes for all other places will be the same as in the big races.

In order to bring about spirited racing and do away with sleigh riding, TRIBUNE gold medals will be given to the skaters who set the pace for the greatest number of laps in the boys' intermediate, boys' senior and girls' senior. These prizes will also be given out after the races.

A Tribune shield, emblematic of team championship in the ninth annual Derby, will go to the association, club, playground, park, or school whose representatives score the greatest number of points. The points will score 5, 4, 3, 2, 1 for first, second, third, fourth, and fifth places, respectively.

The track, which will measure six laps to the mile, will be laid out this morning by Western Skating association surveyors under the direction of Paul Staff. In the trial heats of the juvenile, contestants will start from a shoot at the east end of the lagoon and will be compelled to make but one turn.

Provide for Spectators.

Aside from doing everything possible for the contestants by having the racing course in excellent condition and dressing quarters arranged to take care of the small army of skaters, the West Chicago Parks commissioners have also taken spectators into consideration. Snow along the banks has been leveled off to insure firm footing, and ropes will be stretched so that all will have an equal view of the contests.

The police will be in charge of Lieut. Roger Shanahan and motorcycle cars will be used to keep the spectators at a safe distance from the racing course. Certain drives will be closed for parking purposes, but owners are warned to lock their autos if they leave them to view the races.

With everything in readiness for a great ice racing day, skaters are urged to coöperate with those in charge of the event by reading instructions appearing in another part of the sports section and living up to them as closely as possible. No delays will be tolerated and skaters who do not respond when their numbers are called will forfeit their rights to compete.

PHYSICAL TEST FOR CAGERS IN CATHOLIC MEET

Every entrant in the second annual national Catholic interscholastic basketball tournament at Loyola university, March 19-22, must pass a physical test before he will be permitted to compete, the Rev. Joseph F. Thorning announced last night. Dr. Carl Christoff has been appointed chairman of the medical board.

Last year's meet, which attracted teams from all parts of the country, will be excelled both in entries and caliber of competition, if early applications count for anything. The tournament committee will meet at the Chicago Athletic association Tuesday to arrange final details.

A trip through THE TRIBUNE plant, a visit to the stockyards and a sight seeing tour of the city are among the outings planned for the visiting athletes. There will be a banquet in honor of the winning team following the championship game.

Spaulding high of Peoria, last year's title winner, is traveling at a sprightly clip this winter and will probably be back to defend its honor. Marquette high of Milwaukee was runner up to Spaulding.

St. Ignatius Fives Trim Loyola Quints Twice

St. Ignatius heavies and lights copped games on their own floor last night and as a result the lights took the lead in the Catholic High school league basketball race, while the heavies went into a tie for the leadership in their division with Loyola. St. Ignatius heavies won a hard fought game from Loyola, 17 to 12, while the lights piled up a 21 to 10 victory over the Loyola ponies. Heavyweight lineup:

Sunday, April 12, Indianapolis.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Complete plans for the spring training trip of the White Sox announced yesterday by Secretary Grabiner disclose the fact that the south siders have gone back to old fashioned methods of getting ready for a pennant race. After going through three springs of turbulant touring with the Giants the Sox this time will do very little traveling and will compete in twenty exhibition games, all of which are against minor league teams.

There isn't much on the entire jaunt to furnish exceptional attractions for the ball players, a two days' stop in New Orleans, being the only thing that looks like something to take the players' mind off of baseball. Looks as if all the rest of the time he will have nothing to think about but his practice. Under such conditions it is conceivable that the team should come back north in fine shape to play some ball.

Most Games in Shreveport.

Most of the practice games will be played right in the Shreveport park against the Texas league club of that city. Eight contests are scheduled there, the first game being booked for March 14. There will be three Saturdays, three Sundays, and two Wednesdays of performing against the Shreveport outfit.

The jaunt to New Orleans comes in the middle of the last week in camp, the boys being booked there on a Tuesday and Wednesday to be followed with a game on Thursday at Baton Rogue against the University of Louisiana team. On the second Saturday and Sunday in camp the club will go over to Monroe, La., for two games against the St. Joseph, Mo., club which will train there.

After the Sunday game of April 5 the Sox will break camp and start northward, playing seven games enroute before hopping into Detroit to start the championship stuff against the Tigers. The first stop on the homeward route will be at Little Rock. From there they jump to Nashville for a single contest then move on to Evansville for a pair of games, into Terre Haute for one game, and then into Indianapolis for a Saturday and Sunday show to top off the trip. The gang will move into Detroit from there, having an off day on Monday and then busting the season open against Cobb's warriors on Tuesday, April 14.

Few Sleeper Jumps.

There is nothing on such a trip to cause great weariness. There shouldn't be over seven or eight sleeper jumps from the time the team begins its training until it lands in Detroit to do its stuff. It's the days and days or rather nights and nights of sleeping car life on the homeward trip that undoes so much of the good accomplished in the camp. In recent years, most of the big league players are ready for a week of the rest cure when they get home to start the season.

Actual work in the Shreveport camp will begin on the afternoon of Monday, March 2, when all the young players and all the catchers will report for duty. Manager Collins himself will be on hand to direct the early work. A week later, the veterans will report and they will have one week to practice before the first game is booked. It is quite likely, however, that only youngsters will take part in the first game or two.

Try Many Recruits.

There will be something like forty ball players in camp and among them will be quite a squad of recruits. Boss Collins intends to have a good look at the kids in action and will use them in many of the games against the Shreveport club just to see how they act under fire. It is not unlikely that the Sox will take a few bumpings because of the number of youngsters in the game but the manager will at least know something about his kids when the trip is over and be able better to decide which ones are worth keeping.

Shreveport is a splendid city for spring work. It boasts of a good modern hotel where the Sox party will be housed, it has a fine ball park with a good grass diamond and as a rule the weather in that section is as good as in any other part of the south. Outside of picture shows, there is little in the town to amuse the players. Indications are that there will be much sitting around the hotel lobby evenings and that always leads to discussions of baseball which is instructive and helpful, especially to recruits.

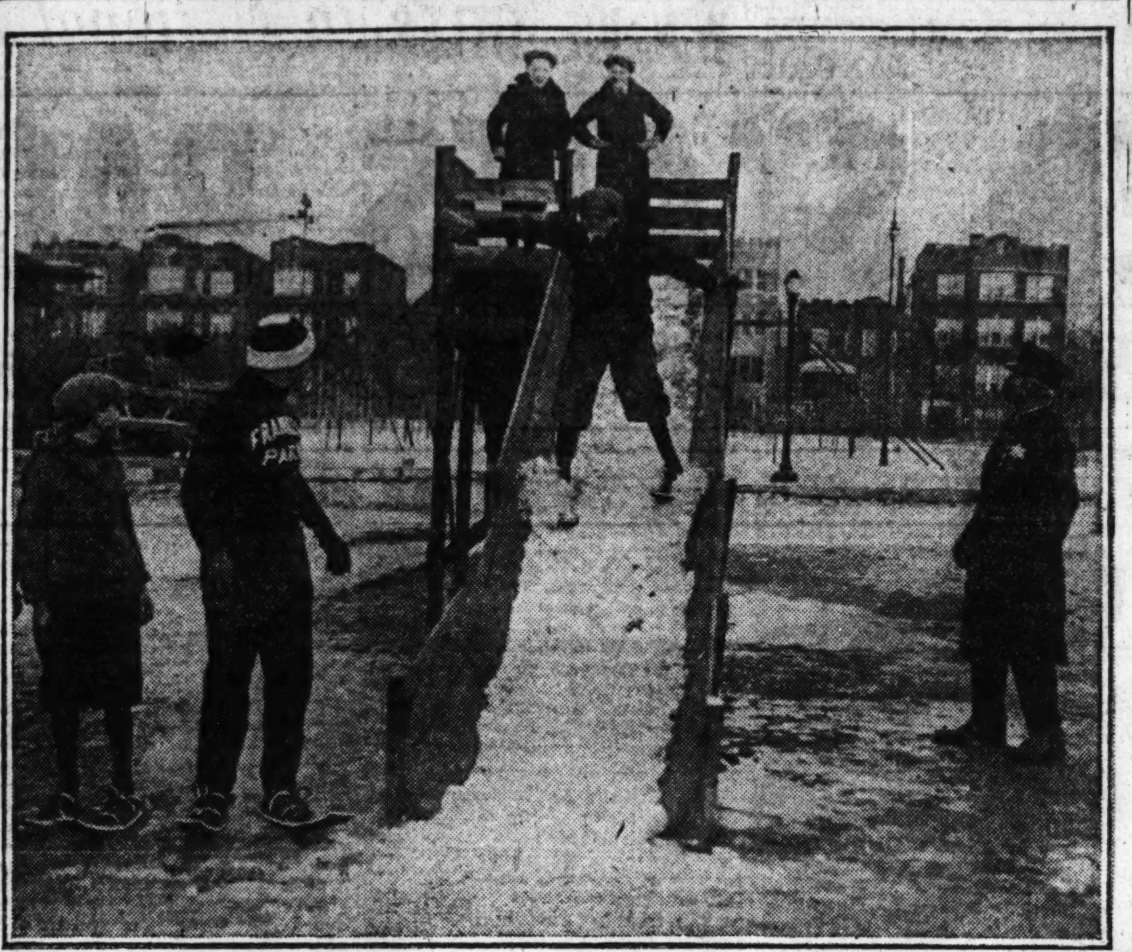
Maroons Book Gym Meets with Penn and Middies

Two intersectional meets have been scheduled by the gymnastic team of the University of Chicago, the first of these being slated for Feb. 20 when Pennsylvania's turners will visit the Midway. A six man team from the Midway will travel to Annapolis for a meet with the Navy on March 28.

FUTURE LARS HAUGENS?



Boys of Franklin park, having read of the feats of skiers, decided to try out the sport. Under the direction of Director George Smith the boys manufactured skis from barrel staves and are using them each day upon the slide in the park. The above picture shows Nathan Pinkus just coming down the slide on his barrel stave skis.

CHICAGO BOWLER'S 707 FLOPS AURORA LEADER

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Joe Bartos of the Live Stock Press five of Chicago shot into first place in the singles of the Interstate bowling tournament here tonight with 707, smashing the former record of 705, made by Hank Marino, also of Chicago, two weeks ago. Bartos shot 236, 234 and 237.

Although Marino was the only leader replaced, Chicago bowlers, who had sole possession of the alleys all day, shot well up into the money in three events. The Birk Brothers five get the biggest count in the main event, shooting 3,016. The score landed them in third place. Scores:

COAST UNIVERSITY'S ATHLETIC ROW NOW BEFORE LEGISLATURE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 24.—Severance of athletic relations with the University of Southern California by the University of California and Stanford University "is developing much bitterness and unless it is healed, it may even extend to business interests," Senator Canepa, San Francisco, said in a resolution introduced before the legislature urging an adjustment of the differences.

"For the good of all the schools of the state," he said, "I hope the the athletic relations between the three schools will be restored to a basis of cordiality and this is the reason I introduced the resolution," said Senator Canepa, explaining his action in making the situation a matter of legislative concern.

CARDINALS GIVE 5 PLAYERS FOR PITCHER MAILS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 24.—The deal by which Walter Duster Mails became a member of the St. Louis Nationals has been completed, according to Cardinal officials, who declared today that in addition to the three layers already exchanged, D'Arcy Flowers, a shortstop, and George Makin, third baseman, also would be sent to the Oakland team of the Pacific Coast league.

Joe Bratcher, an outfielder, and Pitchers Arthur Delaney and Jess Fowler already have been sent to Oakland in exchange for Mails.

Illinois Bowlers Join Intercollegiate League

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois has accepted an invitation from Yale university to join the Intercollegiate Bowling league and will hold its first telegraphic meet with Yale on Feb. 11. The league is composed of teams representing Yale, Syracuse Polytech, Navy, Depauw, Kentucky and Michigan.

FRANKLIN PARK KIDS BUSY MAKING SKIS

Franklin Park's busiest sport season is at hand and the athletes on the park's roster are going through an extensive training program under the direction of George Smith, instructor of athletics, in preparation for the many events in which the northwest side park will participate.

Director Smith added to the evidence regarding the great interest which is now being displayed toward the ski sport. He announced yesterday that a carpenter shop had been installed on the park grounds, in which a troop of boys and girls devote hours to building skis. The old method of using barrel staves has been revived by the instructor, and in addition he has added a few ideas of his own, which make the finished ski almost as good as a professional one.

Two toboggan slides have been erected for skiing, each ten feet high. The slide is approximately sixty yards long.

The Franklin Park jumpers are putting in long hours of practice every day, in addition to their carpenter work, preparing for the west parks' ice carnival, to be held at Garfield park Feb. 14. Franklin Park has won the jumpers' event for the last two years and Director Smith believes that with the renewed interest in the sport among his fifty athletes the squad will have a good chance to repeat.

SPRINGFIELD AND QUINCY TO JOIN 3 EYES MONDAY?

Quincy, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Quincy and Springfield will be formally taken into the Three Eyes Baseball league at a meeting held in Chicago Monday, making an eight club league, according to a message received today by Robert F. Gunther, president of the Quincy Fans' association.

"Gene" Wylie of the Decatur club will represent Quincy at this meeting. The franchise will not actually be let until the meeting held in Chicago on Feb. 9.

Quincy last year was in the Illinois-Missouri league, playing Sundays and holidays, and had an attendance of over 80,000.

during the club conversation of the players.

According to Cunningham, he learned that "O'Connell had always borne the brunt, more or less, of a good deal of kidding of his team mates."

Flag Race Too Close.

"We're in a pretty tight place, O'Connell," his team mates are supposed to have said, or something to that effect, "and it would be too bad to have Brooklyn or Pittsburgh slip into top place and knock us out of the share of the money. The pennant race is much too close at this time of the year to be comfortable," and the conversation of the players is alleged to have been carried along these lines.

"This is a real chance to be of real value to the club. Just about make up for the $75,000 handed over when you were bought from the Seals. You and Sand were friendly when he played with the Salt Lake club, so why not kid him along a bit, feel him out, and see if he won't be easy in the game."

Talk With Dolan.

Ross Young at this point is said to have made an emphatic denial that anything in the way of a bribe had been suggested. O'Connell has admitted having talked with Dolan after the scene in the clubhouse, and it is thought that Dolan, said to have been an interested party in the conversation, received an "inspiration" to offer the $500 without the knowledge of the others, or the three players at least.

O'Connell said that when Dolan spoke about the offer of the money to Sand he asked the coach "where is the money coming from?" and claims he received as a reply from Dolan, "Never mind; we'll take care of that."

"But, whatever the arrangements were," Young was quoted as saying, "'Dolan, we'll take care of that.' He didn't include any of us who were present when we were talking over our chances for winning the pennant again."

Kelly Doesn't Remember.

"I don't remember," that oft repeated phrase or alibi used frequently by Dolan in answering the questions put to him by Commissioner Landis during the investigation, was adopted by George Kelly when asked concerning the "kidding" of O'Connell in the clubhouse just before his confessed attempt to bribe Sand.

"O'Connell was kidded quite a bit—all the players were. You know how it is when a bunch of felows get together, but I don't remember any kidding about asking Sand to lay down on the job," Kelly declared.

And, with criminal prosecution of O'Connell and Dolan threatened by the New York authorities, Kelly was not overly anxious to talk at all concerning the case.

Sticks to His Story.

"The whole thing is full of mixups," he said. "They had me playing basketball with O'Connell and I haven't even seen him since he left New York, and I am not anxious to meet him again."

The two telephones at grocery stores in the little settlement of Boise Springs, where O'Connell has been seeking solace for several weeks, are kept busy with calls for the suspended Giant player, though he usually refuses to speak and it was only after several unsuccessful attempts to talk with him today that he decided to answer the call.

O'Connell, however, denied that arrangements for the attempt to bribe Sand were made in fun. "We were all talking in the club house just as I have explained before," he said. "Things did look a bit gloomy for the Giants. They knew Sand and myself were friendly and suggested that I talk with him."

Thought It an Order.

However, O'Connell did admit that the arrangement for the money was made by Dolan and it was from him that he expected the money would come. But he declared that the other players were aware of the offer.

"Frisch, Young, and Kelly knew I was going to offer Sand the money, all right, though it was through Dolan arrangements were made and he first mentioned the money, though it didn't strike me that any one was kidding," Jimmy said.

"I took it for granted it was an order coming from him from higher up."

Asked if it was coming from McGraw, O'Connell said, "I don't know, but I am not going to say what I think."

O'Connell expressed his willingness to return to New York and aid in the investigation any time he is requested to do so.

JOHNSON MAY PASS UP BASEBALL TO GO ON VAUDEVILLE STAGE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 24.—[United Press.]—Walter Johnson, pitching star of the Washington world's champions, announced today that he may give up baseball for theatrical work. Johnson has received an offer of $3,000 a week for twelve weeks' vaudeville engagement from Tom Moore, Washington amusement promoter.

"I realize I will not be able to report to the Senators if I accept," said Big Barney. "However, the engagement would give me as much money in twelve weeks as I can earn in baseball for a long time to come. I have about decided to accept six weeks, and I am considering the remainder of the contract very seriously."

Johnson is said to have received $12,000 for last season's work with the senators.

ILLINI MATMEN DOWN MAROONS BY 27 TO 2

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Illinois swamped Chicago by winning six out of seven bouts in their wrestling meet before 3,000 persons here this afternoon, rolling up a score of 27 to 2. The meet developed four close bouts and was a thriller from start to finish. The Illini clamped five falls on their opponents and action characterized every struggle.

Chicago drew first blood when Capt. Ball downed Shaw, but from that point to the finish everything went to Illinois. Capt. Kenney and Luthringer rode their men for falls, and Mathis earned a decision with more than ten minutes' time advantage. Geis, Schultz, and Brown toppled their men for falls in jig time, requiring less than ten minutes among the first three of them to finish their bouts.

Both teams showed most strength in the lightweights where each was fortified with veterans. The Kenney-Graham and Luthringer-Freidburg struggles provided the most excitement, the men taking turns at holding the advantage. Kenney finally won with a head scissors. Summaries:

115 pound class—Ball [C.] beat Shaw [I.]. Time advantage, 9:27.
125 pound class—Capt. Kenney [I.] threw Graham [C.]. Time, 7:48.
135 pound class—Luthringer [I.] threw Freidberg [C.]. Time, 8:43.
145 pound class—Mathis [I.] beat Shimberg [C.]. Time advantage, 10:09.
158 pound class—Geis [I.] threw Wain [C.]. Time, 3:53.
175 pound class—A. F. Schultz [I.] threw Wolff [C.]. Time, 2:57.
Heavyweight class—Brown [I.] threw Davis [C.]. Time, 2:33.

CULVER TANKERS SINK ENGLEWOOD IN MEET, 40-28

Culver, Ind., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy tankers won their first indoor swimming meet of the winter by defeating Englewood High school of Chicago, 40 to 28 today. It was the closest competition which the students have encountered for three years. Sinclair's plunge of seventy-five feet for Englewood and Walkers equaling the local record of :20 for the forty yard free style were features.

PLUNGE—Won by Sinclair [E.]; Ostrom [C.], second; Mandel [E.], third. Distance, 75 feet.
40 YARD SWIM—Won by Walker [E.]; Weissler [C.], second; Cooper [C.], third. Time, :20.

100 YARD SWIM—Won by Hill [C.]; Walker [E.], second; Young [C.], third. Time, 1:01 2-5.
100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Tauber [E.]; Just [C.], second; Grais [E.], third. Time, 1:25 4-5.
160 YARDS RELAY—Won by Culver [Romfh, Geissler, Hill, Cooper]. Time, 1:24 2-5.

JIM PUGH MAY HEAD BUSINESS MEN'S TURF BODY

BY FRENCH LANE.

James A. Pugh, widely known as a yachtsman and owner of champion speed boats a few years ago, is to enter the thoroughbred racing game and may soon be selected president of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association it became known yesterday.

The post has been tendered him, Charles T. Essig, resident manager of the Hawthorne track, which is controlled by the business men's turf body, announced last night. He has until Feb. 1 to accept or reject the offer, according to Essig.

Pugh and a part of Chicago sportsmen made a tour of inspection of the Hawthorne property last week. Out of that visit is said to have come an agreement to the effect that if Pugh accepts the racing association presidency, steps will be taken at once toward the building of a new racetrack in the Chicago district that will replace Hawthorne as the home of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association.

Ready for 1926.

No attempt will be made to have the track completed before 1926 or possibly a year later, it was announced. But when it is ready for racing it will be the scene of the richest race decided in America, according to plans said to have been outlined at one of last week's conferences at which a number of prominent business men were in attendance.

Sheldon A. Clarke, a former associate of Mr. Pugh in the motorboat racing game, and a vice president of the Sinclair Oil company, was present at one of the conferences, and was urged to interest Harry F. Sinclair in the Chicago racing situation. Sinclair, who owns the formidable Rancocas racing stable, is a member of the New York state racing commission and whether he will extend his turf activities to Chicago other than to race his horses here in the rich stake events is a question. Clarke has agreed to make known Sinclair's attitude, it is said, by the time Pugh makes up his mind to accept or reject the association presidency.

Murphy General Manager.

Since the Business Men's Racing association was organized Joseph A. Murphy, the turf official, has served as president and general manager. He will continue as general manager and presiding steward if Mr. Pugh becomes president, according to plans that have been outlined, and will be in charge of the fifty eight day meeting that is to open at Hawthorne on July 2. The local association holds options on a number of available locations for the proposed new track, the officials claim.

Murphy announced from New Orleans yesterday that the list of stake and purse events for the coming Chicago season is about complete and that the meeting will call for a total purse distribution of $490,000. He also announced that Aug. 22 had been picked as the date for the running of the Chicago Special which is an all age event carrying $20,000 in added money. The original schedule had this race carded for Aug. 29, but it was believed that date was too near Labor day, when another important stake is down for decision.

One Change in Staff of Southern Umpires

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 24.—The staff of Southern Association umpires for the 1925 season will be the same as last year, with one exception—the return of Bill Guthrie to take the place of William McGowan, who will go to the American league. Others in the roster of diamond officials for the coming season, announced tonight by John D. Martin, league executive, are:

Bill Brennan, Dan Pfenninger, Hadley Williams, Harry Johnson, William Campbell, Louis Jorda, Tim Doolan, and Muncie Purse.

FOUR GYM MARKS FALL AS MAROON TRACK MEN WIN

TABLE OF POINTS

JUNIOR MEET.

University High	6	Austin	3
Lake View	8	Senn	3
Tilden	5	Crane	3
La Grange	5	Hinsdale	1
Hyde Park	1	Bloom	1

SENIOR MEET.

Hyde Park	19	Deerfield	6
Oak Park	17 1-3	Harrison	5
Lake View	13 2-3	Morton	3
Senn	11	Morgan Park	3
University High	11	La Grange	1
Evanston	10	Crane	1
Tilden	8	Lindblom	1
Schurz	6	Hinsdale	1

Tracksters of the University of Chicago took an early lead over Northwestern in a dual track meet at Bartlett gymnasium and won handily from the Purple, 50 1-6 to 30 5-6. Four Bartlett gymnasium records were broken in the meet, Alva Martin of Northwestern sending two of the standing marks into past history in the middle distance events, Justin Russell of Chicago setting a new record in the high jump, and Henry Bourke, another Maroon, establishing a new one in the two mile grind.

Russell was high point man of the meet, copping firsts in the high hurdles and high jump and tieing for third in the pole vault. He also competed, but failed to place, in the shot put.

Martin Betters 440.

In winning the quarter mile event, Martin lowered the Bartlett mark of :51 3-5 to :51 flat, defeating Bruce MacFarlen, Maroon captain and last year's Big Ten indoor champion. He clipped 2 3-5 seconds off the former mark in the half mile run, doing the distance in 1:56 4-5.

Russell, Big Ten champion, failed to equal his own record but clipped ¾ of an inch from the Bartlett mark, leaping 6 feet 2¼ inches in the high jump. Bourke's brilliant sprinting over the last lap of the two mile grind gave him an easy victory over all other entries whom he lapped to set a new mark of 9:59 3-5. The former mark has stood since 1905 when L. T. Campbell of Chicago did the distance in 10:04 4-5 in a time trial. Bourke also won the mile run.

Hyde Park Leads.

The first of a series of three Chicago city high and suburban high school meets were held at Bartlett gymnasium last night, the events being run intermittently with the varsity events between Northwestern and Chicago. Hyde Park established a good lead for the team trophy which will be awarded the team which totals the most points in the three meets by garnering 19 tallies, Oak Park running a close second with 17 1-3 markers.

In the junior class, University high and Lake View are leading as a result of last night's events, each having totaled 6 points, Tilden and La Grange coming next with 5 points each.

One of the outstanding feats on the prep program was that of Dick Williams of Hyde Park high who negotiated the mile in 4:41 3-5 and won the half mile run as well in 2:07. Summaries:

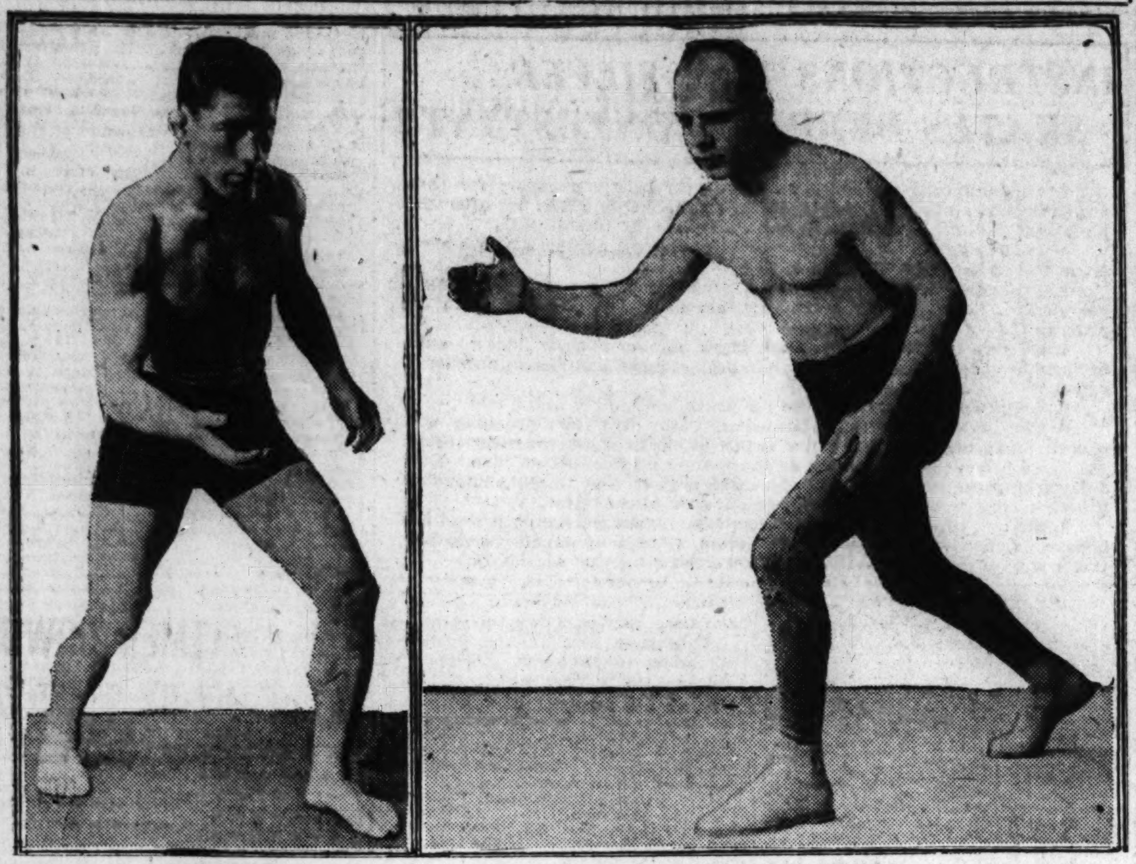
Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Winning every bout, Indiana university's crack wrestling team defeated the University of Cincinnati, 19 to 0, here tonight.

CLASH FOR MAT CROWN



JOE PARELLI. LOU TALABER.

Lou Talaber, the middleweight champion, and Joe Parelli, claimant of the world's Italian 160 pound title, will meet in the main event of the wrestling show at the Broadway armory on Tuesday night. Talaber won the world's honors from Parelli, who in turn had defeated Johnny Meyers, who held the championship for so many years. They will wrestle to a finish, best two in three falls.

MICHIGAN SWIMMERS OUTSPLASH MAROONS

University of Chicago tankers were sunk by Michigan's mermen in a Big Ten dual meet at Bartlett gymnasium last night, 43 to 25, the Wolverine natators copping five first places and allowing the Maroons three. Sampson of Michigan was high point man of the meet, taking firsts in the two distance swims, navigating the 100 in :59 1-0 and paddling the 220 in 2:38 2-5.

Harry Harkins had little trouble in winning over Wittingham of Michigan in the 220 yard breast stroke in 2:48 4-5, and Capt. Erling Dorf contributed another first to the Maroon total in the fancy diving. Atwood, a sophomore at the Midway, took first in the plunge, Granquist, also of Chicago, taking second. The time was :28 for sixty feet.

The Wolverine relay quartet, composed of Sampson, Johnson, Kerr, and Gow, defeated Merriam, Petrolowitz, Griffin, and Greenberg in 1:21 1-10 for the 160 yards. Summaries.

160 yard relay—Won by Michigan [Sampson, Johnson, Kerr, and Gow]. Time, 1:21 1-10.

Fancy diving—Won by Dorf, Chicago; Starrett, Michigan, second; Popenguth, Michigan, third.

40 yard swim—Won by Gow, Michigan; Kerr, Michigan, second; Noyes, Chicago, third. Time, :19 1-10.

ATLANTIC CITY PREPS CAPTURE SWIM TOURNEY

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 24.—Piling up a total of 27 points of the 88 scored, Atlantic City High school captured the twenty-second annual national interscholastic swimming championships, held here today. Three national interscholastic records were broken. Fourteen schools were represented.

Mercersburg academy for the first time in five years was forced to concede defeat, placing second with 20 points. In the 220 yards relay, Mercersburg nosed out the Atlantic City quartet by inches, winning in 1:42 5-10 and clipping two minutes and one-fifth second from the mark established by Mercersburg in 1923.

Frank Barnitz of Manual Training High school, Brooklyn, clipped one and six-tenths seconds from the old record for the 100 yards breast stroke, covering the distance in 1:13 4-10. Lennox of Oak Park high, Chicago set the old figure in last year's meet.

Scheerer, Atlantic City school, accounted for the other record breaking performance, winning the 100 yards back stroke in 1:08 6-10. This bettered the mark of 1:11 2-5 made by Glancy, Mercersburg, last year.

New York Skaters Win in Lake Placid Tourney

Kaplan Leaves New York for Bouts in California

New York, Jan. 24.—Louis [Kid] Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., recognized in this state as the world's featherweight boxing champion, started west today for a series of three matches in California. The new champion was accompanied by Denis McMahon, Joe Beasley and Scotty Montieth, his managers, in addition to Jackie Snyder, a featherweight; Joe Ryder, bantamweight; Jimmy Hutchison, lightweight, and Tracey Ferguson, middleweight.

Pirate Owner to Spend $750,000 on New Stand

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24.—A new grandstand, providing 12,000 additional seats at Forbes field, home of the Pittsburgh National league baseball club, will be erected immediately at a cost of $750,000, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, announced tonight. The doubledeck structural steel stand to be erected in right and right-center field, will bring the seating capacity of the park to 40,000.

WILD BULL ROARS AT PARIS COP, SPENDS HOUR BEHIND BARS

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Luis Angel Firpo ran afoul of the French police today and spent an hour in the police station, all because the Argentine fighter's new car bore no license number in the rear.

Firpo objected to a policeman's jumping on his running board, failed to understand a request to show his identification papers, and roared menacingly in Spanish while the policeman was conducting him to the police station.

Later, through an interpreter, Firpo explained that he was under the impression that he was being put under arrest at the request of Canon Chase of New York, whom the fighter thought was still keeping up the pursuit of him that began in America when an effort was made to have him deported.

The official in charge at the police station, when the circumstances were explained to him, decided to make no charge against Firpo upon the latter's promise to have a license plate attached immediately.

COAST PROMOTER HERE, TALKS OF TITLE GO PLANS

Jack Root, well known to old time followers of the boxing game, who is constructing a boxing arena in Los Angeles, arrived in Chicago yesterday from New York City, where he closed for appearances on the coast of Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, and Mike McTigue, the world's light heavyweight titleholder.

Tom Andrews, the Milwaukee promoter, was also in Chicago to confer with Root regarding future plans. Tom will be matchmaker for Jack's club and will leave for the coast in a few days to arrange the opening card for the latter part of May. Tom asserted the best talent in the world will be brought to California and many championship contests decided.

Root will not leave for the coast for a few days, as he wants to see some old friends in Chicago and nearby cities before going to California, where he has made a lot of money in the moving picture game.

BRITISH, FRENCH TO SEEK CROWN BENNIE GAVE UP

New York, Jan. 24.—[By the Associated Press.] — The British boxing board of control and the International Boxing union of France notified the New York state athletic commission today that each would name one boxer to enter the commission's tournament to select a successor to Bennie Leonard, retired lightweight champion.

Receipt of the cables was announced by Dan H. Skilling, secretary of the commission, today. The one from England was signed by Norman Clark, secretary of the British boxing board of control, while the French cable was signed The I. D. U.

Each body said it would hold elimination tests and select the best lightweight in the country to wear its colors.

This action makes the tournament a surety and gives it an international angle which will make it worldwide in its scope.

Three Games in Church Basket League Tomorrow

Three Church A. A. basketball league games will be played in the south section tomorrow night, the Nazarene quintet meeting the Grace U. B. squad as the initial tussle, with the Lorimer Memorial Baptist team battling the Woodlawn Park Presbyterian as a feature game. The other encounter will be between the Parkside M. E. and the Woodlawn Baptist fives. The games will be played at the Y. M. C. A. college gymnasium.

TALABER, PARELLI TO SELECT MAT REFEREE

The "seven nations" championship wrestling program ot be staged by the 202d coast artillery at Broadway armory Tuesday night was completed yesterday with the exception of selection of a referee to judge the windup clash in which Lou Talaber, middleweight king, will defend his crown against Joe Parelli, former title holder.

That question will be decided upon tomorrow when Talaber and Parelli will meet with Col. Charles J. Kraft, comander, and Capt. B. Peshmalyan, athletic officer for the artillerymen. If they are unable to reach an agreement, the question will be laid before the city athletic commission.

The eight middleweight grapplers who clash on the bill are of seven different nationalities. Talaber, champion, is a German. Parelli, who will attempt to regain his crown, is an Italian. Johnny Meyers, former champion, is a Pole. He clashes with "Rough House John" Kilonis, a Greek, in the semi-windup.

Bobby Bylund of Minneapolis and Vic Seaholm of Chicago, who meet in the second bout on the program, are the only pair of the same nationality. Both are Swedes, and the winner will claim the Swedish title.

In the opening bout, Jack Sacks, north side Jewish boy, who held the amateur title for four years, clashes with Tony Hajdick, youthful Bohemian. Both of these youngsters—they are only 22—are speed artists, and both are aspirants for the world's championship.

LEURS, MONDT SIGN

Articles were signed and forfeits posted yesterday binding the heavy weight wrestling match between Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Joe "Toots" Mondt, the western cowboy, at the Coliseum on Feb. 3.

Unlike other matches, Billy Sandow, manager of Lewis, has not dictated terms. He has agreed to take an equal share of the purse, and will permit Promoters Krone and Cutler to name the referee.

The former champion's manager now realizes he is not in a position to demand so many points of Lewis' opponents, and he is willing to take on all challengers to show the mat public Ed is entitled to the world's heavyweight title.

Lewis is determined to win back his title. While he cannot meet Wayne Munn, the present champion, for at least seven weeks because of Wayne's theatrical contracts, Ed intends to dispose of all logical contenders, so that Munn cannot refuse to meet him when the footlights engagements are over.

Like Lewis, the western cowboy is a college product. Mondt attended the Colorado Agricultural college, while Lewis went to the University of Kentucky. After finishing his college career, Toots acted as director of athletics until he took to the plains and did his first wrestling with Indians. His recent match at the Coliseum with Allen Eustance shows he is a grappler of extraordinary ability and a worthy opponent for Lewis.

AUSTIN, SCHURZ WIN ICE TITLES; 5 RECORDS FALL

SENIOR.		JUNIOR.
Austin	22	Schurz	22
Schurz	17	Austin	19
Senn	7	Lane	4
Englewood	4	Tilden	4
Tilden	2	Crane	3
Harrison	1	Parker	1

While Austin seniors and Schurz juniors were winning championships in their respective classes in the third annual public high school ice skating meet at Lincoln park yesterday morning five records were eclipsed, two new marks coming in the juniors' events and three in the seniors' races.

Although twelve schools were represented in each class, it was a duel, with Schurz and Austin fighting for top honors in each class. Austin seniors repeated their triumph of last year in piling up 22 points, the same number Schurz acquired in carrying off the junior meet. Austin's juniors were runners-up and Schurz trailed Austin by a few points in the senior events.

Anderson Clips Record.

Anderson of Schurz hung up the first record breaking performance of the day in leading the field to the wire in the 220 yards junior race in :22 4-5, bettering the former time of :25. Another Schurz racer, Berg, set the other junior record in the 880 yards event, making a time of 1:35 4-5. The old time was 1:46 1-5.

McDonough of Austin, his school's relay team and Yarle of Schurz bettered former senior records. The former took the 440 yard race and clipped 3 1-5 seconds off the old mark of :45, while Yerle negotiated the mile in 3:29 4-5, which lowered the old time of 3:33 1-5.

Break Relay Record Twice.

In the relay, the Austin squad of Tyman, Ackerman, Grossman and Thiel, going a dizzy pace, set a new time of 2:53 1-5 for the mile to beat out Schurz, which also bettered the old record in winning its heat. The event was divided into two heats due to the large entry for the race.

SENIOR EVENTS.

440 yards—Won by McDonough, Austin; Felt, Austin, second; Mohr, Austin, third; Goullet, Englewood, fourth. Time, :41 4-5.

880 yards—Won by Thiel, Schurz; Solomon, Englewood, second; Winters, Austin, third; Urban, Harrison, fourth. Time, 1:31 2-5.

George Lott Climbs to No. 12 in National Tennis Ranking

While William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, who has caused more or less of a stir in the tennis world with his various threats to retire, still holds sway as No. 1 on the official national ranking list of the United States Lawn Tennis association, which has just been issued, a number of young players are well up among the leaders. The advancement of the youngsters on the ranking list this season is more in evidence than ever before.

The young players, however, do not monopolize the ranking. Several veterans of the court are listed among the first thirty-five players of the country. The ranking of thirty-five players, also is an inovation, for in years past the lists contained the names of only twenty-five knights of the court.

Vinny Second.

Following Tilden on the ranking list in the men's singles, is Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y. William M. Johnston of San Francisco is ranked at number three, while Howard O. Kinsey, San Francisco, Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia and Watson M. Washburn of New York follow in order.

George M. Lott, the Chicago youngster who made such a fine showing in the various tournaments held throughout the country and in Canada during the last season, is listed number 12 in the men's singles list. Lott made perhaps the best showing of any of the newer crop of racket weilders and played in many tourneys. Lucien E. Williams, the former eastern intercollegiate champion, also a Chicagoan, is ranked at number 14 position.

Kinseys Lead Doubles.

In the men's doubles, Robert and Howard Kinsey, the brothers from San Francisco, are ranked as the best team in the country. They won the national championship after one of the greatest exhibitions of tennis ever seen in tournament play, defeating first the teams of William M. Johnston and then Francis T. Hunter and Vincent Richards.

The Johnston-Griffin team is ranked second, while Hunter and Richards stand in third position. George Lott and Axel B. Gravem occupy seventh place, while William T. Tilden, who played through the season with his young protégé, Alexander L. Wiener of Philadelphia, are ranked eighth.

Helen Wills Cleans Up.

All honors in the women's singles go to Miss Helen Wills, the young star of Berkeley, Cal. Miss Wills won the women's national championship and the Olympic championship. Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, Cal., who staged a comeback in the tennis world during the season and also made a showing in the national golf competition, is ranked No. 2, while Mrs. Molla Mallory who bowed to Miss Wills in two tournaments is rated in third position.

In the rankings for the western section as made by the national ranking committee, John Hennessey of Indianapolis is ranked in first position in the men's singles with George Lott at No. 2. In the doubles, Lott and Axel Gravem are the first team while the women's singles honor post is held by Miss Marion Leighton of Chicago. Miss Kinsel and Miss Mican of Chicago hold the first position post of honor in the women's doubles.

Following is the national and western ranking as announced by the U. S. Lawn Tennis association ranking committee:

RICKARD DENIES MOVE TO SIGN TOM AND CHAMP

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Tex Rickard today emphatically denied that he was negotiating for a match between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons for the heavyweight championship of the world here next May.

A Chicago dispatch said that "Frank Flournoy, matchmaker at Madison Square garden is expected to arrive in Chicago Saturday morning, presumably intent on closing negotiations between Jack Dempsey, the world's heavyweight champion, and Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, the contest to take place in New York next May."

Flournoy on Vacation.

Rickard was shown the dispatch and promptly declared it to be without foundation in fact. He said that when Flournoy went to Chicago early this week on a vacation he had no authority to make any proposals to Gibbons for a match. He said that Flournoy was at present in Memphis and would return to New York late next week.

Rickard admitted, as he has admitted before, that he desires to make a match between Dempsey and Gibbons but he said that he has no plans for the bout. He said he does not know just where he could stage such a contest.

Kane Hides Out.

If Eddie Kane, manager of Tom Gibbons and Frank Flournoy who came west supposedly as Rickard's representative, held a conference yesterday no one knew anything about it. Kane pulled the usual sneak and could not be located at his office or usual haunts. Rickard's statement from New York, however, does away with any importance of a Kane-Flournoy meeting.

DUNDEE BLAMES SICK RELATIVE FOR TRIP HOME

New York, Jan. 24.—Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion, announced today on his return from Europe aboard the Paris that his hasty trip back to the United States was due to illness of a relative here and not to a desire to avoid fulfilling a contract to meet Fred Bretonnel, French boxer, in Paris Jan. 27.

Under questioning, Dundee admitted he also was influenced in returning by a desire to enter the front rank of contenders for the world's lightweight title recently vacated by Benny Leonard.

Dundee was accompanied by his manager, Jimmy Johnston. Neither displayed much interest in the action of French authorities, who have disqualified them for breaking the contract with Bretonnel and asked American boxing rulers to take similar steps.

Suspended in U. S.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—William Shaw, secretary of the National association boxing commission, today announced that Johnny Dundee had been suspended indefinitely in the United States at the request of the International Boxing federation of France, England and Italy. Dundee will be given a hearing, however, if he asks it.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

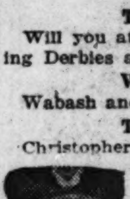
The Question.

Will you attend THE TRIBUNE skating Derbies at Garfield park?

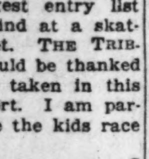
Where Asked.

Wabash and Randolph.

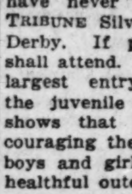
The Answers.



Christopher Fennessy, 6020 South Halsted street, receiving clerk—I have never seen a TRIBUNE skate Derby. The coming one I shall attend, to see the largest entry list of its kind at a skating meet. THE TRIBUNE should be thanked for the interest it has taken in this wholesome outdoor sport. I am particularly anxious to see the kids race in the juvenile Derby.

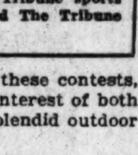


A. C. Lyons, theater operator—I have never missed a TRIBUNE Silver Skates Derby. If possible I shall attend. With the largest entry list in the juvenile event, it shows that it is encouraging the growing boys and girls in this healthful outdoor sport. It gives one pleasure to see the interest which is being shown by the youngsters.

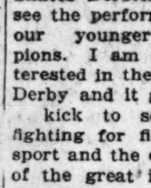


Marie Herron, 3107 Flournoy street, singer—If I am at leisure I certainly shall attend THE TRIBUNE Derbies. I know a boy entered in the senior event and am particularly interested in the outcome of that race. THE TRIBUNE should be thanked for holding these contests, thereby furthering the interest of both young and old in this splendid outdoor exercise.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted by the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question, which originated in The Tribune sports department, $5 is awarded The Tribune ice fund.



Jack Flack, 3510 Broadway, fire guard—I will attend THE TRIBUNE Silver Skates Derbies just to see the performance of our younger champions. I am more interested in the juvenile Derby and it gives me kick to see them fighting for first place. It is great sport and the entry list gives evidence of the great interest being taken in the sport by the younger generation.



Miss Gladine Rummel, 5801 South May street, bookkeeper—Indeed I shall attend THE TRIBUNE skating Derbies at Garfield park, for there is nothing more thrilling than a race on ice skates. I would rather ice skate than participate in any other outdoor sport I know of, for it surely is a most enjoyable and healthful exercise and yet a recreation. I remember, too, that the hardest thing about skating is the ice.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SILVER SKATES DERBIES CONTESTANTS

1. Contestants in juvenile and junior derbies must report for their numbers before 10 o'clock this morning. None will be given out after this hour, and the first heat of the juvenile will start at 10:30 o'clock.

2. Contestants in other races must secure their numbers before noon. None will be given out afterward.

3. Contestants must be sure of their numbers before applying to number clerks. Look up your numbers either in today's TRIBUNE or in the program.

4. Be sure to have number clerk mark number of your heat on number and be sure to answer when your heat number and racing number is called.

5. Only two calls will be given for heats, semi-finals, and finals.

6. The first heat of the intermediate derby will start promptly at 1 o'clock, and other trials will follow as fast as clerks of course arrange them.

7. Be prompt and above all be courteous to police and officials. They are working for your interests, and make sure to bear in mind implicitly the above instructions, which will be followed to the letter.

8. Skaters who sent in entries after Jan. 18, the closing date, need not appear, as their entries have been rejected. Plenty of warning regarding the closing of entries appeared in THE TRIBUNE for the last month.

15 Acre Southern California Estate Must Be Sold Immediately At Special Low Price

A magnificent country estate in a beautiful and progressive community. The cost of this property was over $110,000, and the owner wants immediate action and will sell for the exceptionally low price of $75,000—half cash.

Located on high ground in frostless belt; estate attractively landscaped; 2½ acres in oranges, grapefruit, loquats, tangerines, fejoia, grapes, etc. ¾ acre in English walnuts. Beautiful 15 room Colonial mansion with adequate servants' quarters and every modern convenience. Wistaria covered pergolas, electrically lighted. Delightful palm and rose gardens, rare trees and shrubbery, lawns, garage for four large motors, tool and implement houses and many other improvements. Property also includes an attractive 7 room modern bungalow. Close to fine schools churches, golf club and other clubs. Ideal scenic drives via fine boulevards in all directions. Excellent transportation facilities. Climatic conditions unusually desirable the year round. I believe I am offering the biggest value in a property of this character in all Southern California. Arthur E. Hull, Owner. 705 National City Bank Building, Los Angeles, California.

WILL

Another 'Bull' Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

LOOKING at this Bull's picture here just reminds me of the Cattle Business of which I am still in, in a small way.

Stock on the Exchange in Wall Street was never higher, Stock on a Ranch was never lower.

If a Cattleman sold a Steer and they would let him weigh all the mortgages that was on the Steer with him, he would weigh 50 pounds heavier.

One Tenderloin Steak at a hotel brings more than a Steer.

A quart of milk brings more than the Cow.

A Texas Long Horn brings $20 and one pair of Horn-rimmed glasses $25.

A calf sells for $10 and its brains sell for $20.

The hide of a Cow brings $1 and one pair of shoes $18.

Two sacks of 'Bull' Durham is worth more than the Bull.

The only way to be in the Cattle business, is just with a Picture of one.

Will Rogers

P. S. There will be another piece in this paper next Sunday. Look for it.

MORE OF EVERYTHING for a lot less money. That's the net of this 'Bull' Durham proposition. More flavor, more enjoyment and a lot more money left in the bankroll at the end of a week's smoking.

TWO BAGS for 15 cents
100 cigarettes for 15 cents

QUALIFYING TEST MAY BE ASKED OF FOREIGN GOLFERS

BY JOE DAVIS.

While no definite ruling has been made by the United States Golf association on foreign contestants competing in the United States open championships, it is understood on good authority that such contestatns will have to compete in the qualifying test this year.

In the event last year this issue was not raised, as there were no foreign entrants. Should George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, who are touring this country, decide to remain over for our open championship, they will have to qualify in one of the sectional tournaments. As these will have to be played in May, by which time the southern tournaments will be over, it is quite likely the two Britishers will qualify in the eastern section.

Britons with Florida Club.

Mitchell and Duncan have signed up for a Florida club next winter, and one or both of them may line up with a northern club for the summer and remain here permanently.

American players who compete in Great Britain have to take part in the elimination tests, and so it is an even break, except that the Americans going abroad who do not qualify still have a chance to get some coin in the famous Glen Eagles tournament or the London Daily Mail event.

May Play Here.

As there is only one tournament of note carded for Chicago this year, it is quite likely the qualifying round for the national open will be staged here.

In the first round of the Illinois Juniors tournament Carroll Stuart defeated John Welsh, 12 and 10; Francis Clary defeated Ray Koopman, 1 up; Albert Wells defeated Arthur Ripper, 2 up; Robert Stuart defeated Pat Ennis, 2 and 1; Sam Gilbert Jr. defeated V. Marklund, and Walter Kurz defeated Fred Raedel Jr., 7 and 5: In group A, open to players of 18 to 21 years, G. Fairbairn defeated J. Behan, 5 and 4, and Walter Hayden defeated J. Born, 5 and 4.

Chick Evans and Capt. Carter defeated Walter Crowe and Joe Tivnan, 1 up in 27 holes at the Chester Horton's indoor school yesterday. C. B. Lloyd exhibited slow motion pictures of some of America's leading players.

Entries for the big open tournament at Hot Springs, Ark., will close Jan. 28 and should be sent to T. K. Martin, chairman of the tournament committee.

Chick Evans will compete in all the major tournaments this year. He will endeavor to regain the western amateur championship at Detroit, which he lost at Hinsdale.

Mrs. T. J. McGeoy of the Calumet Country club gave a private tournament at the Chicago Beach hotel course. The winners were Mrs. T. H. Scrutchin, 36; Mrs. R. R. Porterfield, 37; Mrs. J. Gowan Stobo, 37; Mrs. R. B. Donnelley won the prize for the three blind holes.

The Jackson Park Recreation club and the Tavern golf teams will meet tomorrow night at the Tavern course.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Douglas of the Barrington Hills Country club are in Florida.

The second round of matches in the Hub round robin tournament will be played tomorrow. At 12 o'clock Crowdus and Yorgan will play Evans and MacDonald, and Dawson and Brady meet Carter and Ayton. At 12:45 o'clock Crowe and Wright will meet Evans and MacDonald, and Carter and Ayton play Crowdus and Yorgan. At 1 o'clock Dawson and Heaney will meet Sweet and Meehan, and later J. Dawson and Heaney will meet Dawson and Heaney.

N. D. FANS WANT NEW GYMNASIUM

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 24.—A movement for a new gymnasium at Notre Dame, which will have a basketball court accommodating 5,000 persons, was begun by students and citizens of South Bend here today. The limited facilities for basketball in South Bend and at Notre Dame are being used by Coach Rockne as an argument for a new gym. At present the students are divided into sections, limiting only 1,000 to a game.

"First" Florida Rain Stops Winter League Golf Match

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—Miami's first rainy day of the golf season caused the postponement of the Florida Winter Golf league match here today. Billy Mehlhorn of Chicago and Tommy Armour, Miami team, were to meet Johnny Farrell and Bobbie Cruickshank, Tampa. They will play tomorrow instead at the Miami Country club. The match at Hollywood, when Farrell and Cruickshank play a return with Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel of Washington has been postponed from tomorrow to Wednesday.

Minneapolis Man Wins Finals of Curling Play

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 24.—A. H. Reedal of Minneapolis won the finals of the Minneapolis seed event in the thirty-second annual bonspiel of the Northwestern Curling association here today, defeating E. D. Calvert of Rainy River, Ont., 11 to 10. George Labatt of Minneapolis took first in the finals of the St. Paul Jobbers' event, beating Elmer Whyte, Duluth, 11 to 10.

Canadian Golfer Victor in St. Augustine Meet

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 24.—Stanley Thompson, Canadian golfer, today won the St. Augustine championship here by defeating Van Culver of this city and of Port Jervis in the final round of 36 holes. Thompson won by 6 and 5.

Fair Indoor Golf School Gets Away to Fine Start

The Fair indoor golf school which opened just after the holidays is going strong. The instructors are Willie Hunter of Onwentsia, Jim Hunter, Dewey Weber, and Alex Ayton.

Triangular College Relay to Feature N. Y. A. C. Meet

Six Cueists Enter Tourney for World's Balkline Crown

BY JOE DAVIS.

Roger Conti, champion of Europe, having declined to compete, the international balkline championship which will start Feb. 23 at the Congress hotel, will be limited to six entries.

Nominations closed yesterday with Champion Willie Hoppe of New York, Jake Schaefer of San Francisco, Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Cal., Edouard Horemans of Belgium, Erich Hagenlacher of Germany, and Kamatare Suzuki of Japan as starters. Of this sextet the last two have not been seen in tournament play here, although Hagenlacher appeared in exhibition games. He has done enough in the United States to rank high, and is good enough to upset any player in the tournament if he gets going.

Suzuki Junior Champ.

Suzuki will be the first Japanese entrant since Koji Yamada appeared in 1919. Yamada is running a room at Tokio. Suzuki, who holds the Japanese championship, is 30 years of age, and a pupil of Yamada. Suzuki came to this country with a testimonial from Yamada as to his ability, and, going to New York, won his place in the tournament entry list by defeating Tadeo Sugunama for the junior balkline championship recently.

Willie Hoppe is temporarily out of the game, having slipped on ice in New York and cut his arm. Jake Schaefer has been in Chicago for three weeks and is practicing at the Brunswick-Balke room and playing several local exhibition games. Welker Cochran is practicing at his room in Hollywood and Edouard Horemans is on tour, but will be here shortly.

Greenleaf Here Tomorrow.

Champion Ralph Greenleaf will be here tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday for six games in the National Pocket league against Erwin Rudolph at Mussey's Madison street room. It will be Greenleaf's first visit here this season, and capacity houses are expected. In a recent series at Philadelphia Greenleaf won five of six games from Benny Allen of Kansas City.

Allen Hall of Mussey's room will go on tour this week in the National Three Cushion league, starting tomorrow against Jackson at Buffalo. He then goes to Boston, New York, and Philadelphia. Greenwood of Pittsburgh, who also goes on tour, will be here Friday for two games with Augie Kieckhefer at the Kieckhefer Recreation room. Art Thurnblad of Milwaukee will play Kieckhefer here on Wednesday. Folowing is the standing:

	W.	L.	H.R.	B.G.
Copulos, Detroit	29	9	10	40
Canefax, New York	28	10	13	36
Denton, Kansas City	27	13	11	36

Harmon, New York	13	35	56	7

A. G. Swanlund defeated Stanley Kandul, the local veteran, 50 to 34, in the playoff of their tie for the north side three cushion championship at Forrest's room, 4541 Broadway. It was Swanlund's third successive win of the title and makes him eligible for the semi-finals of the Illinois state championship, which will start Tuesday night at the Radio room, 18 South Clark street. The other entries are Albert Weiss, Irvin Nemecek, L. C. Hine, W. Jesperson, R. Andrews, and Ben H. Klein, all district champions.

Jake Schaefer will meet Dave McAndless in an exhibition match tomorrow night at the Madison-Kedzie Recreation room. On Tuesday they will play at Schueneman's, Division street and Ashland avenue, and on Wednesday at Schueneman's, Irving Park boulevard near Milwaukee avenue.

H. LINDEN WINS LINCOLN PARK HANDICAP SHOOT

Shooting under the Milwaukee point system H. Linden yesterday won the regular Saturday handicap shoot of the Lincoln park traps, turning in a card of 45, plus the five target handicap, giving him the trophy in that event. H. M. Rowley checked in with a 44 in the doubles event, beating out W. G. Warren for the first position by two targets. Grover Alexander placed third with a 40 card. High scores in the singles shoot:

F. R. Carter, 48; W. G. Warren, 48; G. Alexander, 47; C. Burmeister, 47; H. B. Henry, 47; C. Ross, 46; H. M. Rowley, 46; O. H. Hassel, 46; J. A. Groves, 45; L. E. Lowery, 45.

EX-PREP CAGER PRO STAR WITH BRUINS' FOE

Kelly, former Passaic, N. Y., high school star, who plays here Thursday night at the Broadway armory with the New York Nationals against the Chicago Bruin five, has developed into an outstanding pro basketball player.

According to Manager Edward Doyle of the Nationals, Kelly is accounting for a majority of the team's baskets. Recently at Cory, Pa., Kelly made nine of the New Yorker's ten field goals, the score ending in a victory, 27 to 23.

The New York Nationals, regarded as one of the country's five top notch pro fives, has been making annual tours for eighteen years. They were eastern state champions from 1906 to 1917, made the coast to coast jaunt in 1912 and the trip to the Panama exposition at Frisco in 1915.

TRAP SHOOTING AS PRACTICE FOR HUNTERS.

With the bird seasons closed and nearly every other kind of hunting prohibited until autumn this is a good time for the shotgun fan who wants to improve his skill to take up trap shooting. Many gunners find this sport excellent fun and practice entirely aside from any desire to shine as a star with a 12 gauge. However, the hunter who goes to the traps as a means of increasing his skill which will later better his average on birds in the field will probably want to deviate from the hard and fast rules under which trap shooting is usually done.

For example, if a fellow is anxious to acquire a certain ease in handling a shotgun he'd better not place it to his shoulder before he calls "pull," which is the universal practice among trap shooters who go out for high averages. This unnatural position isn't used in the field. At least, anyone trying this stunt as he walked up behind a pointing dog to flush a covey of quail would likely hear from the other members of the shooting party in no uncertain terms. So at the traps, it is far better for the student in field shooting to hold his weapon just as he would if he were expecting a quail or grouse to flush. This practice will teach a fellow how to bring his gun to his shoulder in the easiest and quickest manner—the thing he wants to learn for field shooting.

A field shot is apt to say all kinds of harsh things about the pose that is assumed by a trap shooter as he stands like a statue with his gun tucked against his cheek. This is O. K. for the gunner who is busting clay pigeons for the fun of it or with the idea of running up a good average. But this style is hardly recommended for the hunter who goes to the traps to improve his field shooting. That statuesque pose is useless in any kind of field shooting and, for that matter, in any kind of wing shooting except clay birds.

BULLDOGS CLAIM PRO GRID CROWN AT ANNUAL MEET

Cleveland, O., Jan. 24.—Official designation of the 1924 champion of the National Football league will be made at tomorrow's session of the annual meeting of the organization which began today.

The pennant is claimed by the Cleveland Bulldogs and the Chicago Bears. The decision will depend on how the postseason game between these clubs, won by the Bears, is regarded. Before the game was played the Cleveland team declared it to be an exhibition contest and claimed the championship on the basis of the highest percentage in regular league games.

Three new cities were represented at the meeting—Pottsville, Pa.; Cincinnati, and Detroit. Other cities were Cleveland, Rochester, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Chicago, Columbus, Akron, Racine, Wis.; Hammond, Ind.; Kenosha, Wis.; Buffalo, Louisville, Ky.; Green Bay, Wis.; Milwaukee, Wis.; and Larue, O.

SIMPSON AND WILLIAMS WIN

Montreal, Jan. 24.—J. C. Simpson and R. C. O. Williams, London, England, defeated S. G. Mortimer and C. C. Pell in the finals of the doubles in the dominion racquet championships tournament played here this afternoon.

In the semi-finals of the singles match C. C. Pell, New York, defeated R. C. O. Williams of London, and J. C. Simpson of London defeated S. G. Mortimer of New York. The finals of the singles will be played Sunday.

FOUR GAMES ON SOCCER PROGRAM THIS AFTERNOON

Four games make up the soccer program for today since the postponement yesterday of the Pullman-Sparta contest. The Bricklayers meet Olympia at 35th street and Wentworth avenue and the Canadian club travels to Gillespie, Ill., in National cup competition engagements.

Two national amateur cup tilts will bring together Swedish-Americans and Ulster United at 74th and Aberdeen streets and the German club and Indiana Harbors at the latter place. All games start at 2 o'clock.

CONTRACT HALTS COACH MURRAY, WASHINGTON U.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 24.—Negotiations for Frank Murray, coach at Marquette university, Milwaukee, to become head football coach at Washington university here next fall, were temporarily at a standstill today.

Athletic Director Edmunds of the local school indicated the principal reason a contract had not been signed at a conference with Murray yesterday, as expected, was that Murray had been unable to communicate with his superiors regarding release from his present contract.

Definite acceptance or rejection of the Washington university offer is expected from him within a few days.

BASEBALL LEAGUE TO MEET.

The Chicago and Cook County Baseball league will hold its first meeting tomorrow night at the new headquarters, 112 North La Salle street, to nominate officers for the current year. All managers of city and out of town teams are urged to be present.

2 MORE ITALIAN RIDERS SIGN FOR 6 DAY BIKE RACE

Paddy Harmon received a cable yesterday from Clarence Carman, his representative in Europe, saying he had signed up two Italian riders for the six day bicycle race in Chicago. The riders are Arturo Ferrario and Ardido Rizzeto, and it will be their first appearance in America. They are rated as rattling good six day riders, and during the last winter they have been riding on the indoor saucer at Milano, Italy.

With the addition of Ferrario and Rizzeto to the field of riders Manager Harmon now has four Italian stars. Maurice Brocco, looked upon as one of the greatest six day riders in the game and Gaetano Beloni, who won the New York race with Alf Goullet a couple of years ago, are the others.

Other riders signed for the Chicago grind which starts on Feb. 7, are Fenn, Taylor, Horan, McNamara, Deruyter, Madden, Schnieder, Declerck, Buysee, Walsh, Degraeves, Kaiser, Hanley, and Goosens.

SCOTS WIN AT RUGBY.

EDINBURG, Scotland, Jan. 24.—Scotland defeated France in an international rugby match today by 25 points to 4.

DODGE BROTHERS
COACH

Dodge Brothers Coach measures up in every detail to the high standards of its builders.

Low, graceful and sturdy, it looks and performs the part of a true aristocrat.

The interior is roomy, comfortable and inviting.

The lacquer finish is exceedingly attractive in Dodge Brothers blue with body stripe of cartouche yellow.

The chassis is the same on which Dodge Brothers have concentrated all their experience and resources for a decade. Comfortable riding qualities and dependable performance are therefore obvious attributes.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

PLAN 8 STORY CO-OP ON DAVIS AND HINMAN AVE.

Evanston to Have De Luxe Apartments.

BY AL CHASE.

Evanston is to have what is claimed will be the finest coöperative apartment building in the middle west—an eight story structure at the northwest corner of Hinman and Davis and just east of the North Shore hotel, to cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000.

It'll be called "The John Evans," in honor of the founder of Evanston, and will be erected by Victor C. Carlson, who built the Orrington hotel, library, Plaza, and other university suburb buildings.

The site of the "John Evans" has historic associations, as it was on this corner that the first building of Northwestern university was erected several decades ago.

Will Have Six Elevators.

The new coöp will be U-shaped, with the garden court, containing a pool and a fountain, opening on Hinman avenue. There'll be six separate entrances on this court, each in a distinctive style of architecture and each with a passenger elevator.

These six lifts will go down to the subbasement, where garage space for 100 cars will be rented to tenants. The rental from this and from the eleven shops on the Davis street side of the building, it is claimed, will defray the operating costs of the building.

Will Have Ballroom.

Architect J. S. Scanlan has designed a structure to have 437 rooms arranged for four, five, six, and seven room apartments. There'll be a 50x22 ballroom and a children's playroom on the ground floor.

Not only will each of the six lobbies have a big fireplace, but there'll be perambulator garage space opening off of each. Every apartment will have wood burning fireplaces.

According to O. E. Tronnes, who will be in charge of the selling, the "John Evans" will be sold on the 100 per cent-coöp basis. Work is to start as soon as possible with the completion date set for May 1, 1926.

Niles Center Bond and Mortgage Co. Formed

The Niles Center Bond and Mortgage company has just been organized to loan money for the erection of homes for 2,000 people in Chicago's newest suburb, Niles Center.

According to an announcement, the company expects to turn its capital of $500,000 over four times during the year and make first and second mortgages totaling $2,000,000. This will mean about $4,000,000 in new construction.

The directors are Peter J. Angsten, Charles H. Bostrom, George E. Brannan, Edward A. Dato, John E. Brown, Arthur C. Dunas, William J. Galitz, Edward Hagelin, and George F. Nixon. Attorney Brennan is president. The temporary offices are in the Roanoke building. Offices are to be opened later in Niles Center.

Chicago Attorney Buys Farms in McHenry County

Benedict J. Short, Chicago attorney, has bought two farms in McHenry county; one adjoins Todd's seminary for boys in Woodstock, and one of 200 acres lies between Woodstock and Crystal lake. He will subdivide the Woodstock farm and farm the 200 acre place. Mr. Short bought the farms from D. F. Quinlan of Woodstock, head of the D. F. Quinlan Land company.

Oak Street Residence to Be Made Into Studios

Martin Hardiman has bought the three story residence at 47 East Oak, 18x100, from Huldah Morrison for a reported $24,500, and intends remodeling into a studio building, according to Earle A. Shilton who handled the deal.

STUDEBAKER GETS SITES.

The Studebaker Sales company has acquired two sites for additional sales and service stations. The L-shaped property at the southeast corner of Washington and Kilpatrick has been leased from Rosen & Fischel for ten years at a term rental reported to be $150,000. The property at 7605 South Halsted has been leased from J. Salvelsen. Both are being remodeled. The company now has seven establishments.

BUY ACRES FOR CEMETERY.

The Mount Emblem Cemetery association has purchased from Emil H. Ahrbecker, George H. Krueger, and Herman J. Adis the eighty acres at the southeast corner of Madison and Wolf road for an indicated $100,000. These three bought the property from Albert H. Buchols for $72,000, according to the county records.

WEST LAKE STREET DEAL.

J. Franklin Meyer has bought the one story building, 100x180, at 4222 West Lake, from John P. Lynch, for a reported $50,000 and will use it for his business, exhibit supplies. B. A. Radtke of E. N. Duerlein & Co. was broker.

PLAN GARAGE ON DORCHESTER.

David H. Patterson and Edwin E. Hartrick have bought the vacant at 6324-26 Dorchester for a reported $24,000 and intend erecting a garage. A. G. Mahony & Co. and Holton, Sealye & Co. were brokers.

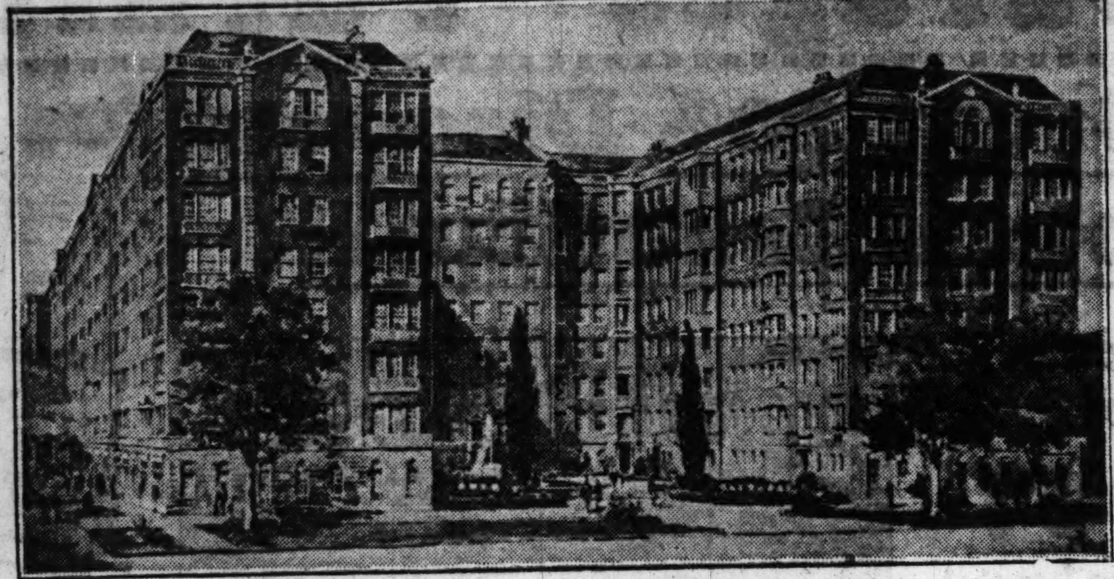
WOOLWORTH ON MILWAUKEE AVENUE.

Contracts have been awarded for the construction of a store building, 81x150, at 4773 Milwaukee avenue, for the Woolworth company. According to I. S. Stern, architect, the total investment will be $75,000.

Brokers' Notes

Joseph Battersby has discontinued business as a broker in the Michigan avenue automobile district and has been appointed manager by Louis Eckstein, president of Buck & Rayner, of the group of loop buildings they own.

Evanston's Newest Co-op, Davis and Hinman



This is the "John Evans" coöperative apartment to be built at the northwest corner of Hinman and Davis, in Evanston, by Victor C. Carlson of the Victor C. Carlson company. It will be of face brick on all four elevations, with Bedford stone trim. It was designed by Architect J. S. Scanlan in the Georgian type of architecture. The site, which fronts 200 on Hinman and 198 on Davis, is under long term lease by Mr. Carlson from Northwestern university. The lease is to be canceled and the fee purchased. The North Shore hotel is just across the alley on Davis street, to the west.

REALTY BOARD'S "Y" COURSES TO START TUESDAY

Also Plan a Course in Tax Accounting.

The second semester of the courses in real estate education given by the Chicago Real Estate board, in conjunction with the Y. M. C. A. school of commerce, it was announced last night, will begin on Tuesday evening, Feb. 3.

FRANK J. O'BRIEN.
[Toloff Photo.]

These courses will include real estate practice law, conveyancing, selling, finance, property management, appraisals and land economics.

"In order to make the course in real estate selling as practical as possible," said Pierce W. Jones, executive secretary of the realty board, "the courses will be conducted by Frank J. O'Brien, vice president of McKey & Poague, in charge of sales, and John A. Kappelman, of McCallum & Kappelman of Evanston.

"Both Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Kappelman are realtors of wide experience and engaged in handling salesmen and will bring to the class a practical training of great value to their students.

"There's been such a demand in advance for instruction in real estate finance that two classes have been arranged, both to be conducted by Arthur E. Curtis.

Plans New Course.

"The instructor in appraisals and valuations will be Joseph B. Hall of Gordon Strong & Co. He will be assisted at various times by Preston M. Nolan, Frederick M. Babcock, Earle Shultz, Newton B. Lauren, and Edward R. Litsinger."

The Chicago Real Estate board also is arranging a course of instruction in income tax accounting for those in the realty business. H. Archibald Harris of Archibald Harris & Co., income tax counselors to the board, will be instructor. The meetings will be on next Thursday and Friday from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. each day.

Subdivision News

The Talman & Thiele Realty association reports having just acquired a tract of land bounded by Oakton, Kirk, Kildare, and Keeler and will subdivide at once. Cement sidewalks are to be built. This is the sixth Niles Center subdivision put on by this firm.

F. C. Enderlin Jr. has bought six and one-half acres on the east side of Kostner avenue, extending 347 feet south and 132 feet north of Jarvis street, Niles Center, for a reported $6,500 an acre and is subdividing it. Charles N. Miller was seller.

LOOP SHOE SHOP LEASE.

The Kotz Shoe Stores, operating four women's footwear shops in Chicago, have leased 52 West Washington from J. M. McCarthy for eight years at a total term rental of $85,000, according to the Lakeside Realty company.

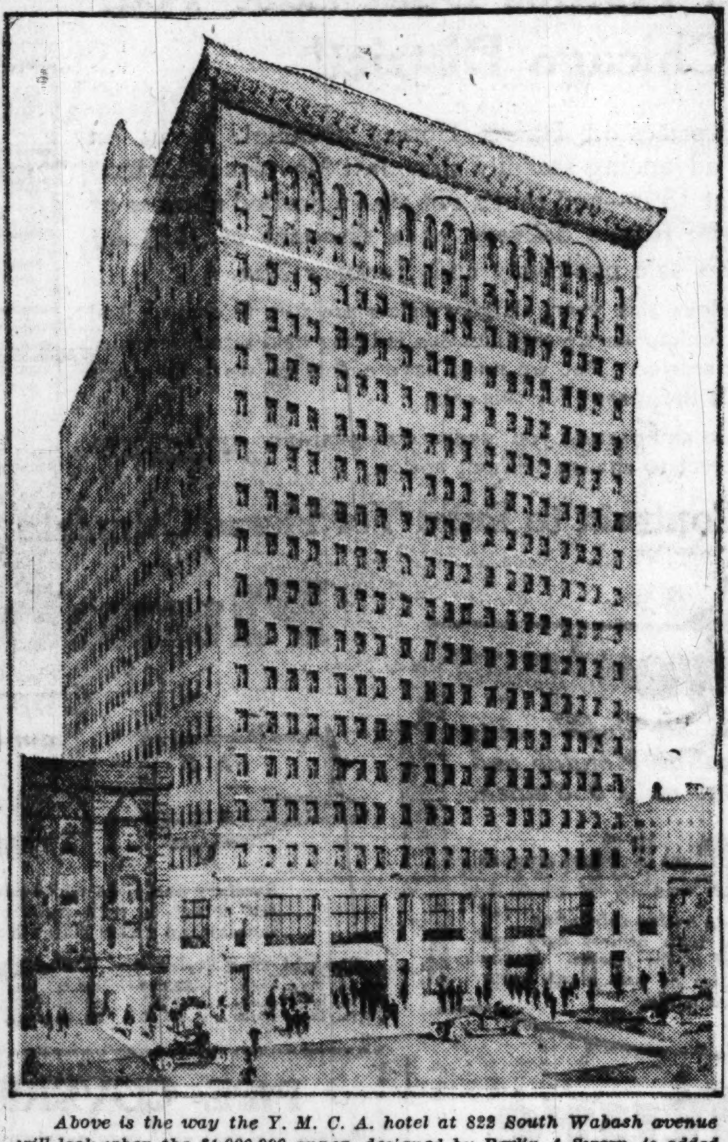
2,650 Room Hotel and Nary a Bellhop

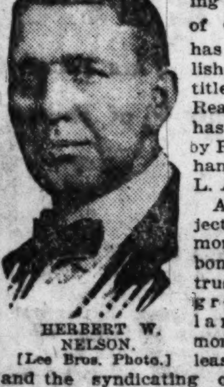


Above is the way the Y. M. C. A. hotel at 822 South Wabash avenue will look when the $1,000,000 annex, designed by Berlin & Swern, is added just south of the present building. The 1,450 more rooms will make the total 2,650, which will give it the title of "world's largest," at least till the Stevens is built. Bids will be taken in the spring and the work rushed to completion.

The annex was found necessary, as the hotel often has been 104 per cent full, according to R. Floyd Clinch. The lobbies, cafeteria, etc., will be enlarged. There isn't a bell hop in the hotel; everything is self-service.

NELSON RECOMMENDS NEW BOOK ON REAL ESTATE FINANCING

The fifth volume in the realty library issued by the Stanley McMichael Publishing organization of Cleveland, O., has just been published. It is entitled "Financing Real Estate," and has been written by Robert F. Bingham and Elmore L. Andrews.



HERBERT W. NELSON.

Among the subjects outlined are mortgage lending, bond issues, land trust certificates, ground rents, land contracts, mortgage loans on leasehold estates and the syndicating of real estate transactions. The book is divided into six general divisions; dealing with the basis of financing real estate; the influence of form of ownership on real estate finance; sources of finance; forms of real estate credit; typical financing operations and the effect of public policy on financing.

Herbert W. Nelson, chairman of the joint commission on real estate education, representing the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the united Y. M. C. A. schools, the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, etc., says: "The commission has carefully considered the book and considers it a valuable contribution to literature in the real estate field. It unanimously recommends it for use in courses in real estate finance and as collateral reading."

The book retails at $4 and can be purchased from the publishers in Cleveland.

Building Permits

There were building permits issued yesterday for a total of $453,000. Those for $10,000 and more were:

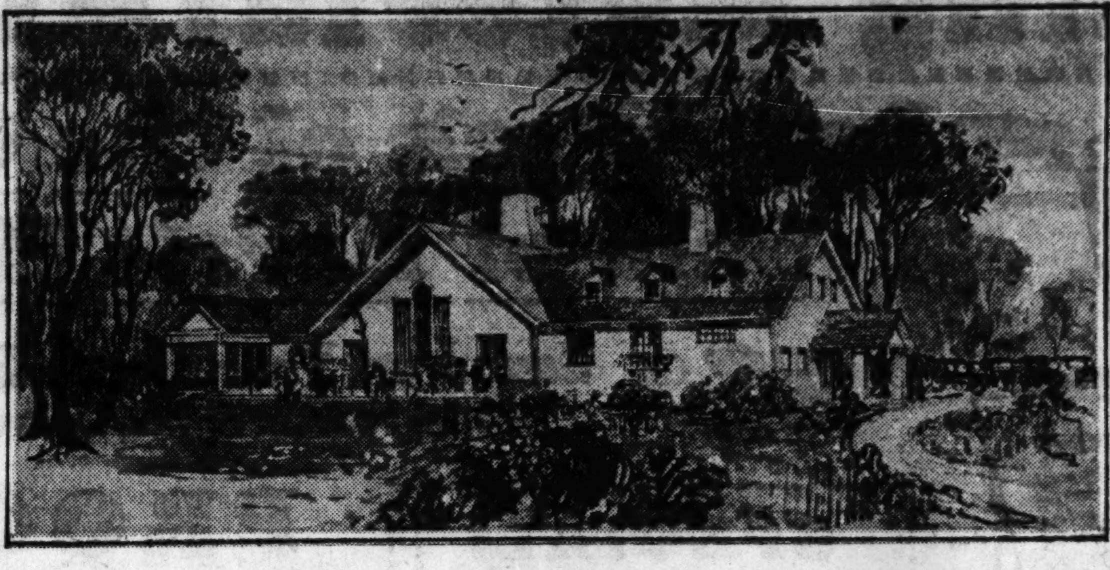
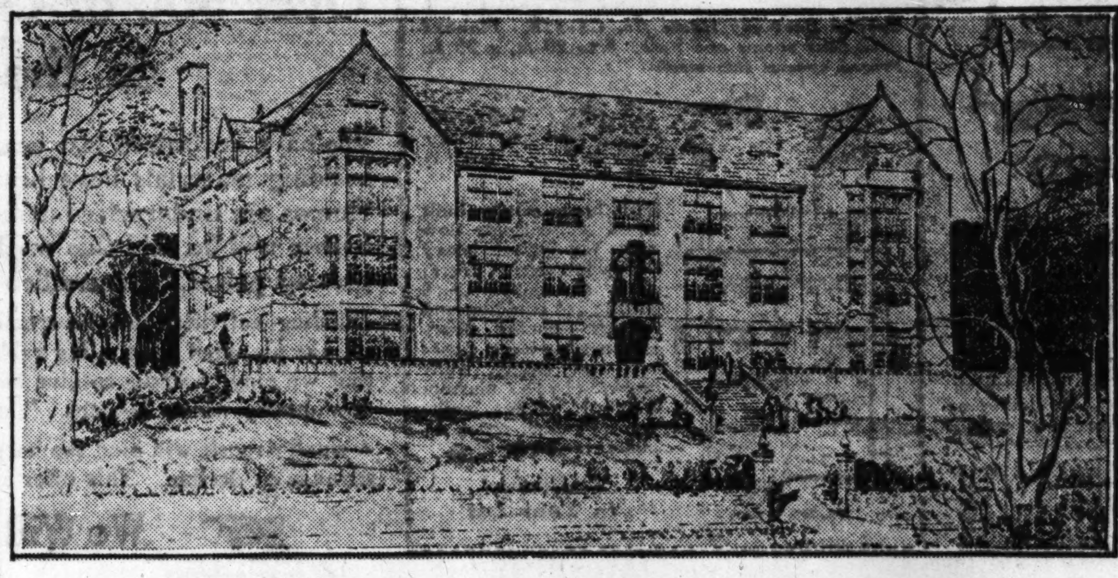
St. Charles Country Club



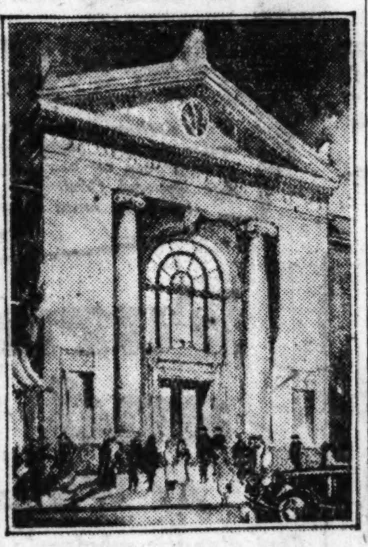
George G. Elmslie of Chicago designed the above new home of the St. Charles Country club, in which Mr. and Mrs. Lester Norris are interested. The main floor will be given up to a large open terrace, screened porch, living room with open rafter construction, dining room and kitchen, women's reception room, retiring room, and lockers. The second floor will contain eight guest rooms and a balcony overlooking the living room. The general locker room and showers for men will be in a high basement, with light lunch accommodations. The clubhouse commands a view towards the south and through open vistas in the trees towards the Fox river and the country beyond.

St. Mary's Academy, at St. Charles



Barry & Gliatto designed the above Mount St. Mary's academy for the Sisters of St. Dominic, to be erected in St. Charles on a twenty acre tract overlooking the Fox river. The new building will cost $200,000 and will be fireproof, of brick and stone, with sixteen classrooms, a dormitory floor for 100 girls, and a cafeteria for 300. It also will have a 300 seat chapel and an auditorium and gymnasium with a capacity of 600. A passage will connect the present school building with the new structure. The auditorium will be ready for commencement exercises June 1 and the entire building will be complete by Sept. 1.

Roseland Natl. Bank



Above is the Roseland National bank, to be erected at 10833 South Michigan avenue from plans by Frederick Stanton. This will be the first national bank in that part of Chicago. The building will be of Bedford stone and marble and will be in the Greek Ionic style of architecture. Work started during the last week and it is expected the new bank will open for business before May 1.

T. Schmid is president. The directors are Mr. Schmid, Isaac E. Berkson, Robert E. Levy, George E. Q. Johnson, Cornelius Teninga, William Schulze, Gilbert W. Graper, Victor C. Carlson, Frederick W. Turner, D. J. Tamminga, Abram Van Etten, and John Prystalski. The bank obtained its charter Dec. 8, 1924. Details of the purchase of the site were given in this department on Tuesday, Jan. 20.

M'JUNKIN BUILDING LEASE.

Ralph Souhami, importer of rugs, has leased the 26x60 store at 4532 Broadway, in the McJunkin building, through McJunkin & Sayre, and will open a branch there about Feb. 1.

HEAVY BUYING IN LAKE COUNTY STARTS RUMORS

More Insull traction developments in suburban territory are hinted at as a result of heavy buying by parties said to represent the Insull interests in and around Libertyville.

Although no definite statements can be obtained it is suggested that something important is contemplated along Milwaukee avenue south from Libertyville to at least Half Day. Whether this hint means a new line to connect with the contemplated extension north of the Niles Center branch or whether it means a new entrance into Chicago along Milwaukee avenue, can not be learned.

Anyway, sales are being negotiated at from $400 to $750 an acre. Edward J. Doyle, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company, bought eighty acres from H. W. Jamison half a mile west of the Libertyville-Area road for a reported $37,000.

George Jamison has sold eighty acres adjoining to the same interests and J. H. Frudy and S. C. Shaddle have sold 100 acres and 120 acres respectively.

A Chicago man, whose name is withheld, bought the 313 acre farm of H. C. Meyer, half a mile west of Area, for $93,900 and also 115 acres from William Dunn for $34,500.

Clifford W. Thompson of Woodstock, bought forty acres in Libertyville township from Michael Wolff for $20,500 and C. G. Graham bought forty acres, known as the A. MacArthur farm, for $20,000.

Plans 60 Flat Building on North Waller Avenue

The Kenlock Real Estate Improvement company bought the 152x134 vacant, south of and adjoining 461 North Waller, from J. J. Ellsworth, for a reported $20,000, and contemplates erecting a sixty flat building at once. Biggs Brothers were brokers.

'YOUNGER SET' OF REALTORS PLANS OWN ASSOCIATION

Lou Harrington Is Slated for President.

Plans are under way by which the "younger set" [apologies to the society editor] of the Chicago Real Estate board is to have an organization of its own. The less elderly of the city's realtors are now organizing the Chicago Real Estate association, and Lou Harrington is to be the first president, so it is reported.

LOU HARRINGTON.

G. F. Ackley of Ackley Brothers, said to have been the originator of the idea of such an organization, is slated for first vice president. Earl G. Gubbins will be second vice president. James Q. Dunn will be named for secretary and treasurer by the nominating committee, which will make its report tomorrow evening when the initial meeting of the organization and election of officers will be held at the Chicago Real Estate board rooms.

No Age Limit.

The principal aim of the organization will be to improve the qualifications of its members for the real estate profession. A requirement of membership will be the completion of at least two courses of study in real estate from a school whose credit is recognized by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Although the new body is planned to make a definite appeal to the younger realtors, there'll be no age limit. All active members will be required to have had at least a year's experience in the real estate business. The association will be sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate board.

Three Classes of Members.

The tentative constitution, which has been drawn up and which is expected to be adopted at tomorrow's meeting, provides for associate and honorary members in addition to active. Associate members will be those who have finished the proscribed realty courses, but are not actively engaged in the real estate business.

Honorary membership will be limited to twenty-five and will be conferred only by the executive committee by unanimous vote. Honorary members will pay no dues. The active membership fee will be $5 annually. Associate members will pay $3. Only active members will be allowed to vote or hold office.

Regular meetings will be held on the second Monday of each month.

Plan $150,000 Building at North Avenue and Tripp

David Shetnitz has had plans drawn by B. Leo Steif & Co. for a $150,000 three story building at the northwest corner of West North avenue and Tripp street on a 108x125 site. The site is reported to have cost $47,500. The building will be of yellow pressed brick, with terra cotta trim.

Here is a graphic picture of the state's biggest job of the century. While the automotive industry in its twenty-five years of life has supplied 17,000,000 vehicles to Uncle Sam, Illinois in about seven years has created this vast network of paved roads for its million automobiles.

It is now possible to drive from the southernmost tip of the state to the Wisconsin line an dto cross Illinois over five separate trunk lines on continuous concrete. State authorities hope to build nearly 1,500 miles of new roads this year.

Whole Country Is Given Credit for Automobile Trade

Three A. Head Believes in Co-operation.

PLACING the development of coöperation between automobile manufacturer, dealer, and owner above all other assets of motordom as the industry celebrates its silver jubilee throughout the country, the American Automobile association predicts a new type of success for motordom in a bulletin just issued from its national headquarters in Washington.

Coöperation has been the keynote of motoring's amazing growth in America, the bulletin points out, and it is the automotive assets which assures the country of a definite solution to the many problems which are temporarily clouding the horizon.

According to Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., the automotive business stands first in coöperation between producer, retailer and consumer. This, he says, is the result of successful organization efforts on the part of the three human factors in the industry.

"What the manufacturers, the dealers, and the car owners could not do individually in the way of coöperation they have done, and are doing, through organization," Mr. Henry declares. "This is the day of organization, and nothing proves it more than the three leading automotive organizations that are helping the whole of motoring get together.

"Through the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, automobile manufacturers have been enabled, not only to coöperate with each other in the solution of industrial problems affecting motordom, but to coöperate with their dealers and their consumers. The National Automobile Dealers' association untangles the problems that would otherwise result in increased costs, poor service and 'orphaned' cars. The American Automobile association completes the picture by helping the motorist use and enjoy his car.

"There organizations, sifting out the most practical ideas and suggestions from their large memberships, are able to offer to each other the most concrete form of assistance. Thus we find the N. A. C. C. coöperating in an effort to solve the accident problem, the N. A. D. A. coöperating in an effort to stabilize the retail trade to the advantage of all, and the A. A. A. uniting its affiliated motor clubs into a coast to coast touring service unparalleled in the history of transportation.

"It should be obvious to the motorist that the success of such coöperation rests largely upon association strength. The stronger these associations are the quicker our motoring problems will be solved. The day has passed when the individual car owner can expect to see progress through individual conference with individual members of the industry or the trade.

"In addition to all the direct benefits which a car owner receives in the way of touring information, legal advice, emergency road service, licensing, etc., when he joins his local automobile club he automatically obtains the coöperation of those who make and sell the cars he buys. It is organization that makes this coöperation possible. It is the big motor asset of the day, and the most effective thing any car owner can do during 1925 is to seek to enlist the help of other car owners in making it still greater."

The immediate benefit received by the motorist from national organizations is realized when it is known that the manufacturers' association, with its cross licensing agreements and coöperative measures which guarantee more car value as time goes on, works with a national dealers' association which is constantly improving sales and service, and both in turn work with the one national owners' association which improves motoring conditions, renders map, touring, and emergency road service, and watches the legislative interests of the individual owner.

HAND SIGNAL IS THE SAFEST

The hand signal, like any other handmade device, is better in the long run than that made by mechanical means. The hand signal for the automobile driver, is the most dependable. The hand cannot fail. If the use of the hand for signaling stops and turns and starts becomes a habit with the driver, he may never worry about the failure of his electric tail light or his electric horn.

FARMERS' WEEK IN OHIO

Farmers' week at the Ohio State university will be held at Columbus this year from Feb. 2 to 6.

Soft Tire Called Mileage Suicide by Rubber Experts

TIRES are built to carry certain loads and definite amounts of air, which should be adhered to strictly, if the best running service is to be received. And while there may be some variation in the air pressure in a tire due to changing of atmospheric conditions, it is not great enough to cause tire trouble.

Possibly a 10 per cent increase in the temperature of the air would cause an increased pressure of one pound on the inside of the casing, which would have no bad effect on the tire even though the maximum air pressure, say of fifty pounds to the square inch, were being exerted on the inside of the tire.

There is no question about pressure as such, but there is a difference of opinion about when a tire bruises most easily, and this has direct connection with air pressure. Some contend that an overinflated tire bruises more easily than one which is underinflated, but experience teaches, as shown by Miller tire service records, that the underinflated tire suffers more from bruise than the overinflated, and that the inside ply of fabric is first to break when the shock is of exceptional intensity.

The New Flowers of 1925 Listed in

Vaughan's Gardening Illustrated
The Gateway to Better Gardens

OLD fashioned flowers are taking on new splendors. The new generation would astonish our grandmothers. Each year advancement is made, in size, in color, or in the form of an old favorite, and the gardener who ignores these improvements is shutting so much beauty out of her garden, and her life. Vaughan's Seed Store is a source of world supply in flower seeds. Florists and professional gardeners everywhere insist on Vaughan's seeds. GARDENING ILLUSTRATED for 1925 contains 44 pages devoted to flower seeds, 32 of them in full color, with more than 90 colored plates of flowers.

SOME OF THE NOVELTIES OF 1925.

Tom Thumb Ageratums, Little Blue Star and Little White Star, make dwarf border plants covered with blossoms. Each is, per packet, 15 cents.

Maximum Giant Flowered Snapdragons, bear individual flowers 2 to 2½ inches wide, set thickly on the stalk. Copper King, Purple King, Wallflower colors (brownish orange) and Delicate Shades (pastels) are new color selections. Each is, per packet, 15 cents; the four for 50 cents.

Chinese Forget-Me-Not grows 18 inches high and flowers in a true forget-me-not blue. It is a hardy perennial which blossoms the first year from seed. A packet is 25 cents.

Alameda Pink Hollyhocks include a range of light pink semi-double flowers with crinkly petals, which are exquisite in combination with blue, or against a green background. A packet is 25 cents.

California Giant Zinnias are a new race, produced by crossing the dahlia flowered and colossal types. Varieties Lemon Queen, Orange King, Orange Queen, Rose Queen and Purity (white) are offered this year. Each is, per packet, 15 cents.

Please Order at Once. Catalog Free.

If any of these are wanted, we suggest that orders be sent at once, as the supply is limited. With each order we will send Vaughan's Gardening Illustrated for 1925, or the catalog will be mailed free on request, or may be had at The Garden Store.

Dualistic Farmers Are Needed for a Dualistic Revenue

Eastern States Find Combination Beef and Dairy Herds Profitable.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with dual purpose cows. Letters will be welcome from farmers, particularly those who have had a chance to compare revenues that come from herds producing milk alone, or beef alone, with the income from a dual purpose herd that produces both milk and beef.

DUALISTIC farmers are needed in this country if a twofold revenue is to come from dairymen and beef cattle breeders' combining forces for the production of milk and beef from the same herd. Craving to produce uniformity has led men into the special field of dairying or beef cattle breeding and feeding; they are either dairymen or fat cattle men, seldom both. So the big question, in establishing the combination beef and dairy breeds, like the Milking Shorthorn or Red Polled, is to find dual purpose farmers.

Work at Cross Purposes.

Beef and dairy cattle types are entirely different. Getting an animal that is of superior merit from both the beef and dairy production standpoint is considered impossible by students in animal breeding. The beef cattle man has his own ideas about breeding, and in handling dual purpose animals he usually leans toward the development of the beef tendency in the offspring, while the dairyman leans toward the dairy type. As a result, there has always been a wide variation in the type of dual purpose animals.

Despite this, the dual purpose cows are often good milkers and produce a satisfactory calf for beef. That combination quality has made the breed popular with farmers who keep a few cows to furnish milk for the family, and produce a calf that can be profitably turned into beef. Strictly dairy breeds, particularly heavy producers, are more popular near large cities, where there is a market for fluid milk. Farmers and ranchers who produce and feed large herds of cattle usually prefer the strictly beef type animal.

Advocate Diversified Farming.

Dual purpose animals offer the farmer a chance to develop a concentrated form of diversified farming that is being so strongly advocated throughout the United States. There seems to be a place for the dual purpose cow away from the large cities, in the cheese and condensed milk zone. It is claimed if the milk is separated and the cream sold, the cream check of a Shorthorn will compare favorably with some of the strictly dairy herds. This would not hold true generally in the sections where whole milk is sold.

The world's butterfat record is now held by a dual purpose cow. According to the St. Paul Daily Reporter, Melba 15th of Darbalara, a dual purpose animal, owned by the Scottish Australian Investment company, New South Wales, Australia, produced in 365 days 32,522 pounds of milk containing 1,614 pounds of butterfat. The report claims that this is the highest record of any cow on butterfat. The record breaker's body weight increased from 1,680 pounds to 2,128 pounds during the test. That is more than five times as much butterfat as is produced by the average cow in this country.

Pendulum Swings Back.

Since farmers have begun to realize more and more that the old law of supply and demand is still working, that prices cannot be fixed by high powered officials in Washington or any other place, and that what they get for their milk and beef will probably continue to fluctuate with the other ups and downs in agriculture, there may be more who will become interested in the development of herds that will return a dual revenue.

Many farmers in the eastern states are finding the dual purpose cow profitable, and it is likely this breed will be more widely distributed as rural America becomes more densely populated.

Prof. H. L. Garrigus, head of the animal husbandry department, Connecticut Agricultural college, says in a recent issue of the Milking Shorthorn Journal that dual purpose cattle are recovering from the neglect and opposition they have received during recent years. In New England there are contented and prosperous communities where dual purpose cattle have been bred for generations, and farmers there ask for no agricultural commissions to help them.

Cites Milking Shorthorns.

"I do not know whether they are better farmers because of the dual purpose cattle, or because they were better farmers they had dual purpose cattle," he said. "However, I think we may fairly say of American farmers in general that if they had paid more attention all these years to breeding better dual purpose cattle, they would be quite a bit farther along."

Prof. Garrigus finds that in the eastern part of the country, dual purpose cattle are adapted to the farmers' need, and he believes there will be more in the future. New Englanders want easy feeding, quick maturing cattle that give a profit in the daily milk yield, and they are finding that both milk and beef can be combined in one animal.

"Year by year more Milking Shorthorn breeders are demonstrating that dual purpose cattle can be bred; and dual purpose cattle are, therefore, constantly receiving a wider distribution," he added.

New England Does It.

In New England there has been developed the dual purpose farmer along with the dual purpose cow. He is developing his production so he can be assured of an income.

It is Prof. Garrigus' opinion that dairy cows usually carry too little beef, and beef cows too little milk. "There are good animals in all breeds, whether dual purpose, dairy or beef," he says, "but I venture to say there are few excellent dairy cows of any special dairy breed that would not be better for a cross with a Milking Shorthorn bull, and there are few cows of any special beef breed that would not be better for a cross with a Milking Shorthorn bull."

Attract More Notice.

There is evidence that the dual purpose breeds are attracting the attention of more and more farmers. At the last International Live Stock exposition there was nearly a third increase over the previous show in Milking Shorthorn entries.

Farmers in England have always favored the dual purpose cow, and the breed is on the increase there. With the constant change in land values and population in this country the breed may be expected to become more common on the general farms of the midwest and other sections where the strictly dairy and beef breeds have dominated.

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

Down around Danville, Ill., in Vermilion county, farmers have a good way of distriubting their best varieties over the neighborhood. They list the soy beans they have for sale in the Booster, a small publication circulated among the farmers by the county farm bureau. A recent survey of the soy bean seed showed that Vermilion county has approximately 4,000 bushels for seeding purposes, and that 95 per cent of the beans are of the Manchu variety, and the other 5 per cent are O. K., Hollybrook, and other varieties. In selling soy bean seed to their neighbors they get from $2 to $3 a bushel, depending upon the variety and quality.

N. E. Olson of the Kansas State Agricultural college ventures the statement that by keeping private records or by membership in a cow testing association over a period of six or seven years, it is possible to increase the production of a herd of cows from 40 to 50 per cent. He bases his statement on the results of nine herds tested continuously since 1911 in Freebourn county, Minn., which showed an increase of 40 per cent in milk and butterfat.

FARMERS' WEEK AT AMES.

The Iowa State college will hold its farm and home week this winter from Feb. 2 to 7. Nearly 4,000 farmers have attended farmers' week at Ames in a single year.

Chicago Has Fourth Co-op Vegetable Market

The fourth coöperative fruit and vegetable retail market was opened yesterday at the Clark street farmers' market on Clark street and Ridge avenue by L. A. Boyd, manager of the Grower-Consumer direct sales service fostered by the city's high cost committee.

A full line of fruits and vegetables in season, coming chiefly from the orchards and gardens just across the lake in Michigan, were displayed on the opening day. A carload of United States No. 1 potatoes was included in the first shipments.

The grower-consumer market at the Clark street farmers' market place on the north side corresponds to the one established a few weeks ago in the residential district on the south side at Lake Park avenue and 56th street. Mr. Boyd said yesterday that the Michigan farmers' market, which was run successfully last fall on the Municipal Pier, will be opened again in the spring, as soon as the first berries and vegetables of the season are available.

Illinois Florists Meet.

During the first week in February Illinois florists will hold their annual get-together meeting and will be hosts to the Illinois State Florists' association's annual spring meeting to be held at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana, according to an announcement made today by H. B. Dorner, chief of floriculture at the college.

The program will start on Feb. 2, dealing with problems of the wholesaler and retailer.

The Illinois State Horticultural society will hold its annual banquet at Urbana on Feb. 3.

FEAR FOR WHEAT.

Wheat fields in Illinois have been covered with ice during the last few weeks, but it is the opinion of specialists that the crop has not been damaged, because the ground was not frozen beneath the icy covering. Farmers, however, fear some of the wheat plants have been smothered.

WOOD PRESERVERS' CONCLAVE.

American Wood Preservers' association members will hold their twenty-first annual meeting Feb. 3, 4, and 5 at the Congress hotel, according to the announcement of E. J. Stocking, president, and P. R. Hicks, secretary.

The Show's Biggest Surprise!

At the Chicago Show as at the New York Show, the greatest surprise of all proves to be the ELCAR Eight-in-Line—the outstanding value in its field. To thousands is here afforded visible evidence of this eight's equality with others costing from hundreds to thousands of dollars in excess of its own remarkable price. And yet another surprise is added for Chicago Show visitors—the first appearance anywhere of the new ELCAR Eight-in-Line 4-door Sedan—a closed 5-passenger car at close to open-car cost! Your Show visit will not be complete until you see this car.

The limited number of hogs offered on the week-end session was hardly sufficient to test values, which advanced unevenly.

The supply of 15,000, included 6,000 fresh arrivals and 9,000 over from previous day, which does not count 2,000 purchased by shippers Friday and sent out yesterday.

Bulk of offerings changed hands quickly at 10@20c higher prices, with outsiders absorbing a big share of the supply. The day's top due to quality of heavy butchers advanced only 5c@$11.05, while average cost moved up 15c @$10.60, being within 5c of highest day since last October. Prevailing quotations on medium and weighty hogs are largely 35@50c above a week ago, with light and pigs up 75c@$1.25.

With the exception of holiday periods, last week's hog receipts at 235,800 stand smallest since week ending Nov. 8, being 86,200 below arrivals previous week, 48,000 smaller than a year ago, and 7,600 above the five year average. Estimated average weight of hogs at 229 lbs, is heaviest in over two months, 2 lbs heavier than previous week, the same as a year ago, and only 2 lbs under the five year average. General average price of hogs at $10.35 stands 10c below previous week, $3.25 higher than a year ago, and 60c above the five year average.

Beef Steers Decline.

Influenced by draggy dressed meat markets, values of live beef steers slumped sharply last week, closing 50@75c under a week ago and $1.00@1.50 below the high point less than two weeks ago. Quality was lacking, which helped materially in lowering the average price, which stands at $8.85, within 15c of the bottom in 1924 and $1.55 under the high weekly average last year. Barring holiday periods, last week's cattle receipts at 60,800 stand smallest since week ending October 4 of last year, and compare with 89,794 for week ending Dec. 13. Following an advance of 25@50c in calves, prices broke sharply, with late business 25@50c under a week ago. Butcher stock ruled steady to unevenly lower, with better grades off most.

Lamb Market Uneven.

Trading in lambs last week was more erratic than usual. Prices broke fully 75c in two days following a bulge of 25@50c early in the week, but reacted 25@50c again on the close, bringing prevailing quotations within 25c of late previous week. Closing top rested at $18.60, against $19.25 Tuesday. Barring holiday periods, sheep receipts last week at 73,000 stand third smallest in six months and below normal for this season of the year. The healthy condition of the market is encouraging producers to hold lambs until they are well finished, which accounts for the scarcity of feeding stock. Few bands of Colorado lambs have been marketed thus far this season. Average sheep price at $9.20 last week, stands highest since April, 1924, while lamb average at $18.30 stands highest since May, 1920.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 68,000 hogs, and 22,000 sheep, against 22,710 cattle, 63,560 hogs, and 23,059 sheep a week ago, and 12,387 cattle, 80,832 hogs, and 21,648 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 53,000 cattle, 260,000 hogs, and 75,000 sheep, against 52,304 cattle, 288,773 hogs, and 72,003 sheep a year ago.

MAY WHEAT CLOSE, $1.95 5-8; OTHER GRAINS UP

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Reinstating of lines of long wheat sold out the previous day combined with a renewal of general speculative buying advanced prices sharply after a small break early, and the close was the highest finish so far with net gains of ½@1½c, May being $1.95¾@1.95⅝, July $1.70¾@1.70⅝, and September $1.57@1.56⅞.

All deliveries of wheat and rye sold at a new high on the crop the last week, and while there was immense profit taking on the bulge the finish was about the best prices with net gains of 5¼@7½c on wheat and 15⅛@16¼c on rye, as compared with the previous week. Coarse grains, however, were easier with corn off ⅝@2c and oats 1@1¼c for the week. Lard declined 5@40c, while ribs were 22½c higher and bellies 47½@62½c higher.

News Counts for Little.

Bullish sentiment predominated in wheat. A little belated liquidation and stop loss selling caused a fractional decline early, but as soon as aggressive buying appeared there was a noticeable lack of offerings and May advanced to $1.95⅝ or within ⅛c of the best figure on the crop. Winnipeg May was up to $2.02⅞, and closed there, gaining 2¾c for the day, and July in that market was $2.00. Liverpool finished ⅛d lower, and Buenos Aires unchanged to ½c lower. Bearish news had no effect, and the refusal of foreigners to follow the advance with buying orders for cash wheat was ignored. Export sales for the day were estimated at 200,000 bu.

Cash wheat sold at a new high on the crop at St. Louis, Kansas City and Minneapolis with $2.19 paid for No. 2 red at St. Louis, while $2.10 was secured here. The May-July difference widened out to around 25c with the high price of the deferred deliveries attracting attention and some short selling as well as profit taking.

Corn Shows Heavy Undertone.

Undertone in corn market was distinctly heavy, although the close was unchanged to ⅛c higher, the strength coming entirely from sympathy with wheat. May finished at $1.33@1.32⅞, July at $11.34¼@1.34⅛, and September at $1.34¼. A break of 1@2c in the basis on low grades in the sample market with No. 6 grades down to 24c under May increased bearish sentiment, and had it not been for the strength in wheat and the buying in small lots by houses with country connections the finish might have been sharply lower on futures. Eastern demand continues slow.

Oats were rather dull and affected largely by the action of corn, closing unchanged to ⅜c higher. Canadian government final report showed a crop of 412,000,000 bu in all provinces, compared with 564,000,000 bu last year.

Rye was fairly active and sharply higher with all deliveries at a new high on the crop, gaining 2¼@3c for the day, with May at $1.76⅝@1.76½ at the last. Export demand was slow. Cash rye at Rotterdam sold at equal to Chicago May price.

Dull Day in Provisions.

Provisions held within narrow limits with trade scattered. Lard closed unchanged to 2½c lower, with ribs 2½c lower, and bellies unchanged. Deliveries on January contracts were 100,000 lbs lard and 50,000 lbs ribs. Prices follow:

COTTON MARKETS

Cotton prices declined early but advanced fairly and closed at intermediate figures, with Chicago 5@12 points higher, New York up 9@11 points, and New Orleans 7@13 points higher.

Profit taking for the week-end was a feature late in the day, but the volume of trading was not heavy. Sentiment was bearish in the main, but in some quarters it is believed that the bearish crop report has been discounted by the decline. Trade conditions are rather optimistic. Prices in leading markets follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat at the seaboard was slow, foreigners showing hesitation in following the advance. Italy and Germany took a little durum, and Italy a little hard winter and Manitobas, the days aggregate being estimated at 200,000 bu. Around 100,000 bu rye were claimed to have been sold.

Chicago handlers sold 10,000 bu wheat, 35,000 bu corn, 43,000 bu oats, and 10,000 bu barley to the domestic trade with 100,000 bu rye sold to go to store.

Demand for cash wheat was fairly good with the basis here firm at 10@15c over May for No. 2 and 2c under to 2c over May for No. 2 hard. Receipts, 16 cars. Outside markets were 1c higher to 1c lower. Minneapolis reported the cash basis unchanged with shipping sales of 106,000 bu. Mills there reported good sales.

Low grades of cash corn were 1@2c lower as compared with futures with No. 5 grades 18@20½c, and No. 6 grades, 20@24c under the future, closing at the bottom. No. 4 grades were 13@17½c under May. Receipts 223 cars. Outside markets were weak and 1@4c lower with St. Louis leading the decline.

Offerings of cash oats were only fair and the basis was easier at 2@3c under May for No. 2 white and 4¾@5c under for No. 3 white. Receipts, 57 cars.

RAW SILK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—SILK — Raw unchanged.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

May wheat is getting tighter as prices move up and the disposition is to favor higher levels. Sentiment in July and September is mixed. Most of the professionals are bearish and farmers who have sold against their propective crop in the main have losses owing to the advance in prices. There is an inclination on the part of professionals to sell new crop futures on bulges, while every break brings buying orders for May.

Sentiment in corn is largely bearish because of the slow cash demand and increasing discounts for the low grades. No. 6 corn sold at 22½@24c under May, No. 5 around 21c, No. 4 at 15@16c, while No. 3 was 10@14c under the May. Mixed corn sold on a lower basis than heretofore. Some of the receivers are advocating holding corn back until the grading will be improved and the sale of May or July delivery rather than of cash corn, owing to the heavy discounts for the low grades.

There were heavy sales of wheat futures by houses who are said to get their business from the east, also buying by the same class of commission houses who have been conspicuous on all breaks. Some of the houses who were the largest buyers early were sellers on the advance.

Houses with Omaha connections were large buyers of corn and oats at the last, and helped to strengthen markets. A few days ago they were credited with being heavy sellers.

There are indications of a moderate decrease in the visible supply of wheat and a good reduction in stocks at Kansas City and Chicago, while Minneapolis stocks increased.

Primary receipts of wheat since July 1, 1924, aggregate 416,788,000 bu, compared with 262,253,000 bu last season. Oat receipts since Aug. 1 aggregate 181,463,000 bu, against 137,556,000 bu last year. Chicago has received 54,138,000 bu, compared with 40,821,000 bu last year. Corn receipts since Nov. 1 aggregate 75,382,000 bu, compared with 86,467,000 bu last year.

E. F. Rosenbaum of the Grain Marketing company says that May rye in Chicago is the highest in the world. There is no demand at all for it at Lake Erie ports, and it sold yesterday at Chicago May price f. o. b. New York, say 11c under May c. i. f. Lake Erie ports, or 14c under c. i. f. Chicago. In other words, there is no relation between the price of May rye in Chicago and any other spot market. "We have it on the highest authority that actual Russian wheat purchases in London," says Mr. Rosenbaum, "have been 373,000 bu of spot, 746,766 bu on passage, and 1,493,332 bu from Canada, all No. 1 Manitoba wheat. The estimate maximum requirements are a little over 9,000,000 bu of wheat and rye, of which 2,800,000 bu of flour have already been bought, therefore they will require 3,700,000 bu more.

Bearish reports on corn are coming from Kansas City. The corn received there is mostly going into store, as there is very little demand from feeders or industries.

A Board of Trade membership sold at $8,825 net to the buyer.

PRIMARIES LARGER

Primary receipts of grains last week were the heaviest in nearly two months, aggregating 21,846,000 bu, an increase of 1,200,000 bu over the previous week and 5,100,000 bu as compared with last year, but were 610,000 bu short of the five year average. The largest gains were in wheat and oats for the week, also as compared with a year ago. Details follow:

Chicago City-Connecting Has Assets for Dividends

The annual report of the Chicago City and Connecting Railways collateral trust, which holds the stocks of the south side street car lines, was made public yesterday. It was of particular interest in view of the expected dividend of $1 a share on the 250,000 preferred certificates.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1924, shows that the trust holds excess current assets of $816,991. This amount is applicable to the preferred stock and equivalent to $3.26 a share. Of such assets, $597,697 is cash, or double the amount required to pay the $1 dividend. Current assets total $1,082,540 and current liabilities $265,549, compared, respectively, with $1,055,121 and $266,888 at the close of 1923. The outstanding sinking fund bonds have been reduced to $20,826,000, as against an original issue of $22,000,000.

Income received by the trust last year in dividends, interest, etc., amounted to $1,219,525, the report shows, compared with $1,252,260 in 1923. After bond interest of $1,041,300, an appropriation of $105,000 for bond redemption and payment of general expenses and taxes, the surplus for 1924 was $28,757, compared with $44,043 in the preceding year.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—COPPER—Price-shading by second hands and custom smelters unsettled the market, which became steadier toward the end of the week, owing to rallies in London. TIN—Temporarily affected by the sharp slump in lead, but final prices showed slight net gains. LEAD—Cut ½c. ZINC—Declined early in the week as the result of a less active demand, but toward the close displayed a steadier tone. ANTIMONY—Easier.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Quiet, $9.75. ZINC—Slab, quiet, $7.65.

PARIS.—French foreign trade statistics, issued today by the ministry of commerce, shows that France, in 1924, had a favorable balance of 1,321,000,000f, compared with an unfavorable balance of 2,256,000,000f for 1923. Exports last year totaled 41,454,000,000f and imports 40,132,000,000f. Exports increased 11,000,000f over 1923 and imports showed an increase of about 8,000,000,000f.

WASHINGTON.—The cost of apparel worn by the average family increased 97.7 per cent in New York City from December, 1914, to December, 1924, according to the United States department of labor, while in Chicago the increase was only 67.8 per cent. The average cost of living for all commodities increased 76.5 per cent in New York and 75.3 per cent in Chicago.

NEW YORK.—It was learned today that the Essex Cotton Mills, Inc., a new concern, which was incorporated in Delaware this week for $38,000,000, is controlled by practically the same interests which owned the American Cotton Fabric corporation, which went into voluntary dissolution following the sale of its mills at New Bedford and Fall River to the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, and the Fisk Rubber company. Other mills of the American corporation at Passaic, N. J., and Newburyport, Mass., will be taken over by the Essex mills.

Charles M. Schwab Predicts Good Year in Steel Trade

New York, Jan. 24.—The steel outlook never was better and all steel companies should show improved earnings this year over 1924, Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, said today on his departure for Europe. Prices, he asserted, should increase at least $10.00 a ton because of the cost of raw materials, as present levels are $10.00 a ton lower than a year ago.

"The general business outlook could not be better. America is growing all the time and there is no occasion for alarm."

CORPORATION EARNINGS

CHICAGO NIPPLE MANUFACTURING.

Net profit in 1924 was $53,173 after taxes, depreciation, and other charges, or the equivalent of 86c a share earned on $3,075,000 of capital stock compared with a net of $237,246, or $3.05 a share, on a $3,000,000 capitalization in the previous year. After dividends there was a deficit of $26,321 last year, as compared with a surplus of $147,246 the year before.

A Man—and $25,000

A client, highly successful in automobile accessory manufacturing, wishes a man to invest in the business and take active part in its management.

The company has been in business twelve years. For eight years it has been incorporated and operating its own modern plant; its earnings have been consistently good; its reputation in the automotive industry high.

The products are highly profitable, with a demand every year increasing. The man should have $25,000 or more to invest. This money will be used solely in expansion of the business and the introduction of new products, the demand for which already has been shown.

The company is incorporated for $200,000.

We will gladly put you directly in touch with the principal.

HOOVER'S AGENT AIDS ADVERTISER TO SELL ABROAD

BY SCRUTATOR.

How to advertise for foreign? The writer put that question to F. L. Roberts, manager of the local office of Mr. Hoover's business getters. Here's what he has to say, and any business man interested can write him for further details.

"Unfortunately for the American exporter who desires to advertise in foreign publications, there are abroad, generally speaking, no publications comparable to certain periodicals published in this country. Instead we find in each country a differnt situation with respect to the number, type, character, influence, and advertising effectiveness of newspapers, magazines, trade journals, and the like.

"From among these a selection must be made, and to do this wisely more information is needed than is ordinarily directly available. Furthermore, the same job must be done separately and independently for each national market entered. Local dealers can and should be consulted, but dealers are not invariably good judges of proper media, even in their own localities. Moreover, they are not always unprejudiced, and may have many different reasons for their recommendations, valid perhaps to themselves but not necessarily in the best interests of their principals.

"Some time ago a comprehensive questionnaire on advertising methods and media, prepared by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, was sent through the state department to United States consuls throughout the world. The mass of data which the bureau received, obtained by the consuls largely as the result of conferences with well known authorities and advertisers in their districts, has been carefully studied, with the object of making it conveniently available to manufacturers, merchants, advertising agencies, and others interested in foreign publicity.

"The reports on particular newspapers, magazines, and trade journals were tabulated on cards, through the kindness of the Association of Advertising Agencies of America, who also added similar information regarding other publications not included in the consular list. Duplicate files of these cards may be consulted in the Chicago office of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, room 830, 76 West Monroe street.

"These cards cover approximately 2,500 different publications, principally those which, in the opinion of the various consuls, are suitable for American advertising of one kind or another. While, undoubtedly, some worth while publications have been overlooked and some that are really not worth while included, it is probable that the file represents a reasonably good selection from the many many thousands of newspapers and periodicals which are published in every part of the globe.

"The cards contain such data as size of the sheet, number of columns, length and width of column, frequency of issue, claimed circulation, published rates for advertising space, use of electros or mats, screen of half tones usable, and indication of the class of readers reached. They are classified by newspapers, magazines, and trade journals, and are filed by countries and cities of publication."

WANTS INDUSTRY AND MAN POWER DRAFTED IN WAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—[Special.]—A resolution declaring it to be the sentiment of the senate that the material and industrial resources as well as man power shall be drafted in war time in order to prevent profiteering was introduced in the senate today by Senator King [Dem., Utah]. The resolution was referred to judiciary committee. Its text follows:

"Whereas, in all wars illegitimate private profits are derived from dealings with the government, which become the main cause of high prices in various lines of industrial activity, and afford an incentive for private interests to promote war; and

"Whereas, in time of war there should be no private profits and the resources of all should be mobilized on equal and just terms for the prosecution of war; therefore, be it

Resolved, that the senate approves the principle of the proposition that, in the event of war, it shall be the policy of the government to draft not only its man power, but its material and industrial resources, in order to prevent profiteering and the amassing of private fortunes out of the prosecution of war."

FINANCIAL NOTES

J. Charles Maddison, senior vice president, secretary, and treasurer of Montgomery Ward & Co., has resigned and will retire from business. Mr. Maddison is one of the veterans of the big mail order house, having started his business life there thirty-two years ago as a shipping clerk. His health has not been good.

It is understood that the International Harvester company has organized a special engineering staff for the development of the motor coach and its application to individual transportation problems. In this connection it is emphasized that the company has unexcelled manufacturing facilities for quantity and quality motor coach production and a line comprehensive enough to meet almost every transportation requirement.

A slight increase in the number of commercial failures in the United States last week was reported by R. G. Dun & Co., the total of 536 being seven more than in the preceding week and seventy-eight in excess of the corresponding week of 1924. About 313 had liabilities exceeding $5,000 in each case. Canada had seventy failures for the week, one fewer than the week before.

The Midwest Refining company has advanced its prices 25 cents a barrel on all grades of Wyoming and Montana crude oil except Mule Creek, Lost Soldier, and Sunburst. Lost Soldier was advanced 10 cents a barrel and Sunburst 15 cents.

RAILROAD NOTES

F. K. Sturgis and W. H. Truesdale, trustees of estate of Frank Work, old time railroad magnate, have addressed a letter to holders of preferred and common stocks of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha Railroad company, advising them that they are in favor of the offer of Chicago and Northwestern railway for acquisition of the former through the exchange of three shares of Northwestern common for two shares of Omaha preferred and five shares of Northwestern common for seven shares of Omaha common.

Electrification of one of the main lines of the Lackawanna may be undertaken this spring, it became known when it was announced that the road had purchased sixty passenger cars which hve been built with the intention of converting them into electric units. The cars were bought from the Pullman company at a cost of $1,500,000. The area which it is believed will be electrified is between Hoboken and Dover, N. J. Cost of the project is estimated at $20,000,000.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in local unlisted securities continued on a broad scale last week, with the price trend generally upward.

Kellogg Company showed a further gain of some 7 points, with high sales at 58, and a close of 57 bid, offered at 60. Considerable trading took place in McCord Manufacturing common and preferred, the former improving from 5 to sales at 6¼, while the latter sold up from 32 to closing transactions at 42. The bid price of American Seating common continued to improve, and while bids of 92 were noted, little stock changed hands. La Salle Extension University was neglected at 17 bid, offered at 19. By-Products Coke advanced some 4 points to high sales at 61, but later reacted to 59. Interstate Iron and Steel was somewhat easier, losing 2 points in selling at 87, but closed at this price bid, with stock offered at 90. Acme Steel Goods continued in demand at 103. Beatrice Creamery sold from 60½ to 62½ and closed at 62 bid, offered at 63¼. Bids of 72 for Chicago Mill and Lumber common failed to attract sellers. Butler Brothers was unchanged at 35⅝ to 35¾.

Transactions in the preferred stocks were rather limited. Fairbanks-Morse was wanted at 106, an advance of about 2 points. Insurance Exchange Building preferred was quoted 108 bid, 111 asked. Albert Pick preferred changed hands between 92½ and 94. National Tea preferred was quoted ex dividend 102 bid, 104 asked. Ryan Car, which was recently offered at 100, was in demand at 102, with stock offered at 105. Oscar Mayer first and second preferred were both quoted 97 bid, 101 asked.

A slightly easier tendency was noted in the motor issues, Paige-Detroit declining fractionally to 18 bid, 18¼ asked. Rickenbacher was offered at 4. Ford of Canada sold at 505.

Public utilities were irregular, and while many issues recovered sharply, these gains were offset by declines in the rest of the list. After selling up 5 points to 78⅝, American Gas and Electric common closed strong at 77½ bid, 78 asked. American Power and Light ranged between 61¼ and 63⅝, with closing transactions at 61½, showing little change for the week. American Super Power "B" sold up a full point to high and last sales at 35¼. American Light and Traction common was strong in the late trading, moving up 6 points to 146 and closing 144¾. Sales in Commonwealth Power Corporation common ranged between 119 and 125, later stock was wanted at 120, with offerings at 122¾. The preferred declined a point to 79¾, later rallying to 80½. The warants were traded in at 43. Lehigh Power securities were somewhat reactionary, losing 3 points in selling at 109, but closed in better demand at 110 to 110½. National Power and Light continued downward, with sales at 208, but firmed up to 210 at the close. Sierra Pacific was fractionally better at 19¾. Tennessee Electric Power sold off from 54¾ to 52½, closing with a net loss of about a half point at 54. The preferred moved up over a point to 74¼, but later relinquished this gain in closing at 73¼. Western Power continued reactionary, with high and last sales around 36. The preferred was unchanged at 86½ bid, 87 asked.

Exceptional interest continued in local bank stocks during the week, and closing prices revealed numerous gains, ranging from 3 to 15 points. Investment buying of the highest character was more in evidence than has been the case for several years. Continental and Commercial National was active, with sales ranging from 318 to 325, and at the close stock was wanted at the latter price, with odd lot offerings at 328. Illinois Merchants' Trust continued its remarkable advance, with sales as high as 485, an improvement of some 15 points. Limited transactions in Northern Trust were made at 380, up some 3 points. The bid price for Union Trust improved about 5 points to 420 without attracting sellers. The bid price on State Bank of Chicago was up some 5 points to 565, with no reported sales. National Bank of the Republic changed hands between 185 and 188. Central Trust Company of Illinois sold at 235. On a light volume of trade First National scored a further upturn of some 7 points at 474 bid, offered at 478. The noticeable feature was the extremely light offerings.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

NEW YORK, CHICAGO & ST. LOUIS.

December net operating income was $962,344, an increase of $491,097 over December, 1923, and net income after all charges was $622,946, an increase of $445,526 over December, 1923. For the twelve months ended Dec. 31 last gross operating revenue was $53,992,435, against $57,477,379 gross for 1923. Net railway operating income was $9,589,635 in 1924, an increase of $390,781 over 1923, and net income was $5,869,246, equal after preferred dividends and first mortgage sinking fund requirements to $13.90 a share on the outstanding common stock, as compared with net of $6,331,341, equal after preferred dividends to $15.86 a share on the common in 1923.

THE ST. LOUIS-SOUTHWESTERN.

Net income for 1924 was about $2,283,246, after all charges, according to Daniel Upthegrove, president of the road. This was equal to $7.87 a share on the common stock, compared with $14.71 a share earned in 1923. Mr. Upthegrove said that despite a decrease of $3,353,533 in gross revenue for 1924, the road's transportation ratio, with December estimated, was 29.66 per cent, against 30.4 in 1923.

STOCK MARKET HAS AN ECLIPSE; PRICES SEESAW

New York, Jan. 24.—Mixed price movements took place in today's stock market, reflecting the readjustment of speculative accounts over the week end. The session lasted only seventy-five minutes, the opening being delayed forty-five minutes in order to permit members and employés of the exchange to view the total eclipse of the sun.

Instead of a pentup violence of trading in the shortened half holiday market, nothing of any significance occurred. Total transactions were the smallest of any Saturday since Nov. 1; they comprised barely half the number of shares which have been dealt in on recent Saturdays. Prices were pretty nearly motionless; changes were, as a rule, limited to trifling fractions.

Oils and Rails Advance.

Further accumulation of the oil shares reflected the extension of gasoline and crude oil prices. Pacific Oil was the most active feature, closing a point higher at 60¼. Barnsdall B, shell Transport, and Atlantic Refining also closed a point or more higher, while most of the others improved fractionally.

Low priced rails also displayed a strong tone. "Katy" preferred touching the highest price since the reorganization of the road at 81½, and then easing to 81¼, for a net gain of 1⅜ on the day. Chicago and Alton preferred moved up 1⅝ to 16½. Kansas City Southern also was bought at steadily advancing prices, closing 1¼ points higher at 38⅝.

Market Leaders Are Steady.

United States Steel fluctuated within a range of ⅜ of a point, closing unchanged at 128¼. American Can, Baldwin, and Studebaker showed nominal weakness.

Further weakness cropped out in the American Woolen issues in reflection of the growing anxiety over the preferred dividend. The common stock was hammered down to 52⅝ and then rallied to 54⅛, off ⅝, and the preferred closed 2½ points lower, at 91½.

Motors also were inclined to sell off when pressure was applied. Nash closed more than a point lower at 246⅝ and Chandler dropped a point and then recovered most of its loss. Other outstanding heavy spots were American Agricultural Chemical preferred, Brooklyn Edison, Burns Brothers B, Du Pont, Famous Players, General Electric, Hartman Corporation, Savage Arms, Western Union, Woolworth, and Worthington Pump, all off from 1 to 2 points.

Sterling Exchange Firm.

Sterling went slightly above Friday's closing, and nearly reached again the week's high point of $4.80½, but it closed unchanged for the day.

Two weeks ago the New York banks reduced their reserve at the federal bank by $21,000,000, and a deficit ensued. A week ago they ran up the reserve $88,000,000, and created a surplus of $70,000,000. Last week they cut the reserve deposit $26,500,000, but still left a surplus of $41,600,000.

This is all somewhat bewildering. It must be read, however, in the light of the reserve bank's own statement, showing a surplus over the required percentage of reserves to notes and deposits which has never been reached at this time of year since 1922. The actual existing reservoir of potential credit is of a character which will hardly admit of anything but easy money yet a while.

Fidelity Investment Association.

On Sunday, Jan. 11, we published an article on the decision of the Appellate court, Third district, in which the court held that the special income contracts of the Fidelity Investment association of Wheeling, W. Va., sold in Illinois, were void, and in which the order of the secretary of state prohibiting the sale of such contract in this state was sustained.

Since that article appeared we have received a great many letters from holders of these contracts asking if this decision gives them the right to a return of their money. The question especially is raised as to the rights of those who purchased contracts prior to March 6, 1924, the date of the secretary of state's restraining order.

The decision of the court plainly affords every person who has purchased one of these contracts, before or since that date, an opportunity to obtain the return of his money.

In reply to our letter to the secretary of state requesting the opinion of the securities department in this matter, Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson replied that the members of the securities department have believd for a long time, and that the decision of the Appellate court confirms that opinion, that all sales of these contracts made at any time in Illinois were made contrary to the corporation and banking laws of the state and that, therefore, every investor has the right to rescind and demand a return of the money paid.

If the association does not willingly return the money on request the proper form of action would be a bill in equity against the association and its representatives, tendering back the contract and demanding return payment.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Satisfactory orders for cotton blankets and light weight flannels for the fall season were being received today. Some lines have been sold ahead to September. Domestics moved in moderate sized lots with prices steady. Gray goods were quiet. Raw silk advanced a little in the local markets and free sales were reported on the bourse at Yokohama. Traders here were resisting advances. Burlaps were firmer and more future delivery buying was reported. An advance of five per cent was announced on a line of fine dress goods for the spring.

WALL STREET NOTES

Resumption of the vigorous trading in the petroleum group featured the curb market yesterday. New high figures, since the recovery began with the advances in crude and gasoline prices, were attained in numerous issues. South Pennsylvania moved up 5 points to 194½ and similar gains were distributed throughout the list. Industrial shares were firm at the previous day's closing quotations.

Bond prices held close to the week's highest levels. Trading in corporation bonds was featured by a spurt of 2 points in "Katy" adjustment 5s to 84, a record high price, based on the road's favorable earnings and dividend prospects. Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Wilson & Co. 7½s, Virginia-Carolina 7s and 7½s, and Duluth South Shore 5s. Copper company bonds worked lower.

Interest payments on the Chinese Hukuang railway loan, which have been deferred since Dec. 15 last pending the receipt of funds from China, will be made tomorrow. The British, French, and American issue of the bonds will share in the distribution, but no funds were received for the payment of the German coupons. Chinese railway bonds strengthened during the week in anticipation of the interest payment.

Wall street statisticians calculated that net earnings of General Motors corporation for 1924, which are estimated in the neighborhood of $45,000,000, are sufficient to place the common stock on a $6.00 dividend basis although officials say the subject has not been discussed formally.

Chicago stocks were moderately active and strong yesterday. Chief interest was in Chicago City and Connecting Railways preferred, which rallied to 8½ under short covering and closed at 8, a net gain of 1 point on the day. The directors will consider a dividend payment of $1.00 a share tomorrow. Evans also was in demand and advanced 1⅝ on optimistic reports concerning operations for 1925. Pines Winterfront and Erla made fractional gains, Stewart-Warner was firm, and Wrigley and Union Carbide were about steady.

Fine NEW BONDS
NORTH SIDE ISSUE

6½

THERE'S nothing we offer that appeals quite so strongly to our customers as bonds like these secured by a well built, attractive apartment building in a rapidly growing North Side section.

Apartment buildings that substantial people like to live in, situated where it is pleasant and convenient, always make the bond issues that folks want most to buy.

You can see why this is. Everybody knows that a building like this—the James Court—is a dependable money-maker.

It has fast express transportation on the "L," through route and crosstown cars and the Sheridan Road busses—all nearby. Lake Michigan is within an easy walk. The fine North Side stores, shops and movie theatres are handy.

These attractions mean satisfied tenants and plenty of rental money coming in regularly to pay the interest on the bonds and to pay off the serial bonds, too, when due. As a matter of fact, the rental income of the James Court will be nearly four times the greatest bond interest on this issue.

These Bonds Pay You Generously—6½%

In spite of the general decline of interest rates these bonds pay 6½%—more than twice ordinary savings interest—the most liberal yield the present market affords with such complete safety as we exact for the protection of the investments of our customers.

If an old experienced investor, we know these bonds will attract your money. If you have never bought a bond before, come to our office and let us explain how much you gain by investing in bonds like these. Or if more convenient, mail this coupon.

We ask Bankers, Chambers of Commerce, Rotary, and other civic-spirited organizations to help us get in touch with the right men to handle this new motor transportation business locally. It is the kind of transportation which helps develop cities and towns—and their surrounding territory.

WANTED: A man of character

To be local owner-manager in a new motor transportation business

With Yellow Cab Co-operation

Openings now available for men meeting qualifications named below. In most towns and cities of 2,500 and up—and in certain metropolitan districts

The HERTZ DRIVURSELF SYSTEM*

What it is. The kind of men we seek

THIS is an invitation from the men who founded, developed and operate the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co., and its subsidiaries throughout the world.

It is published in the hope of attracting a certain character of man in every American city of 2,500 population and up, including many of the great metropolitan centers—the kind of man Yellow Cab management would be willing to co-operate with as a local owner-manager.

It offers absolute local ownership, as part of a national system, in an entirely new type of motor transportation: Drivurself (Drive-it-yourself)—that is sweeping the world as the great modern-day advancement in rental transportation.

The men chosen will have, as their chief attributes: integrity, imagination and ambition. They will be spoken of as men of honor by those of their neighbors and associates with whom we communicate.

They need not be experienced in motor transportation. That element we will supply. Operation will be under direct license and guidance of the Hertz Drivurself System, fully copyrighted and under patent applications now pending.

Applications are especially invited from men who seek ownership of their own business on conservative, sound lines; from men in or out of the automobile rental or taxicab business; and most especially from fathers who wish to start their sons on the road to permanent commercial independence.

Most older lines of business are overcrowded. That is why we mention the coming generation. This is a new business—and outstanding successes in any field most often go to the first men in that field.

Now this is not only a new business, but one thoroughly tried, tested and proved successful. How few are! It is a Yellow Cab tradition to prove a new project before offering it to others. Attracted by its earning possibilities, when it was first brought to our notice—and by the ease of earning as compared with other motor transportation—we studied and observed it closely for three years.

For the past year we have actively tested it in practical operation. Today it has a future one thousand per cent brighter than the taxicab business had, when we started in it, 14 years ago.

Now let us tell you what this business is—and how we happened to go into it. In our opinion as experts, it multiplies all former possibilities in the transportation field. In numerous instances it has shown earnings which we, even with our broad experience in this line, discounted as incredible—until audited earnings proved the facts.

The two young Chicagoans who turned an idea into $5,000 to $7,000 a month—NET

Six months ago, The Yellow Cab Company of Chicago paid $125,000 for a fifth interest in a business started scarcely a year before by two young men in Chicago.

That business was Yellow Cab's introduction to the drive-it-yourself field. Run loosely, with small capital, and with no automotive experience, it was earning $5,000 to $7,000 monthly, average. Some of the peak months went up to $12,000, net!

Today, that young business and its founders are associated with the Yellow Cab Company of Chicago—is being spread into many of the country's larger cities, backed morally by the international facilities of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company.

To it we have applied the operating principles of the businesses which are part of a group controlled by the same interests—and which include the great Chicago, New York and St. Louis Motor Coach systems, Yellow Cab Company of Chicago, and the world-wide "Yellow" taxicab systems.

DRIVURSELF
What it means

Drivurself (Drive-it-yourself) means a motor rental system which enables anyone who can drive a car to rent one and run it himself, paying so much on a mileage and service basis—for whatever distance he covers.

Statistics show that, in America today, one woman in every three, and two men in every three, know how to drive a car.

Now under this system any person who can run a car can enjoy one—at remarkably small cost.

The car is not a taxicab nor does it—in color, design or any detail of appearance—resemble one. It is a car specially engineered and constructed for this kind of duty. In lines, in finish and fittings it is comparable to any fine, privately owned closed car on the market today. But it has the great stamina of a commercial car, in operation and performance.

The renter, under this system, can get a car when he wants one, run it as little or much as he wants, turn it in, pay only for the actual miles covered . . . and forget it. No investment, no upkeep.

That covers just the "pleasure" part of the business—a small part.

More important—is the car owner, strangely enough, according to our experience, a big user of this system.

During the off season, thousands of cars are "laid up." Daily, scores are in for repairs. Many men don't use their own cars to business, leaving them at home for the family to use. Where they do use them, wives and children naturally gravitate to this system.

In a single month, in the Chicago system, about 33⅓% of the business was with actual car-owners.

> To establish validity of this advertisement, please note:

> This advertisement—the giant of all "want ads"—is published by the men who founded the Yellow Cab Mfg. Company, developed it and who operate it today together with its vast subsidiaries throughout the world.

Commercial the biggest

Still more important is the commercial field . . . salesmen, collectors, store representatives.

To meet their requirements, we have developed a national credential system. Arrangements have already been completed, through the Hotel Credit Letter Company, to provide more than 50,000 traveling men with identification credentials.

By this plan, each salesman will be supplied with a card. Into whatever city he goes there is a car waiting for his use. He simply goes to the Hertz Drivurself System, presents his card, and immediately has rapid transportation available.

For the local operator, under this system, every safeguard has been provided and perfected. The problem of judging unknown applicants for service has been solved. The risk of putting a valuable car into the hands of an unknown person has been met—and overcome.

Necessarily, we touch on these subjects briefly—merely to give an idea of what this business is.

Note, though, that our tests show where a town supports one taxicab company it can profitably support several Hertz Drivurself System stations!

That, better than any other way, describes the situation. And the taxicab business has always been given a top place for profits!

Do you wonder, then, that we view this as a multiplication of previously possible profits in motor transportation? It is the modern version of the old-time "livery stable," where anybody could go and hire his "rig."

Enduring, because it is fair

Now we've given mostly a picture of our side of the business—that which relates to earnings.

They are big, that's true. But, above all things, they are fair.

The user profits by enjoying fine transportation at inconsequential cost.

The owner profits because the only time his cars are in use they are earning.

That is not true of any chauffeur-driven car. The driver's pay must be charged. Mileage is consumed calling for people, in covering distance "picking up" fares. 33% of operating expense goes for drivers' hire—an item that is entirely dispensed with in the Hertz Drivurself System.

In this system, the renter pays only for what he gets in actual service. The owner gets paid for every mile his car runs.

Thus, based on sound principles of equity, economy and practicability, this new rental method marks the most important advancement in modern motor transportation.

World's transportation experts predict that it will double and triple motor car use. And we agree. Under it, anybody and everybody—regardless of conditions, car ownership or not—becomes a motorist. No man or woman who can drive a car need be without one.

Complete information gladly furnished

If you think this is a good business, feel that you would like to join with us in your city, we urge you to write us.

We think so much of it that, for the first time, the name of John Hertz—head of all the "Yellow" systems—is used on a system. Men who know John Hertz know what this means.

Back of it, we have put the world's outstanding transportation brains; the men who built the Yellow Cab System, who nursed it through its infancy and managed it in its greatness of maturity.

The fundamental principles of low-rate cab operation, developed exclusively by the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co., have brought success and financial independence to every person and firm accepting and following our methods and counsel. Earnings of the Yellow Cab Company of Chicago, operating more than 2,700 vehicles, have been exceeding $2,000,000 a year.

These definite success principles, used in directing the greatest taxicab system in the world, and the great metropolitan bus lines, are behind the Hertz Drivurself System.

Are you the man?

The opening is available to any man with the qualifications named at the beginning of this ad, and with a reasonable amount of working capital—or the ability and connections to interest local groups of men in joining with him in this business. It must be looked upon, and should be a local operation, because outside interests would meet with opposition.

The entire investment goes into actual operating equipment. There is no premium for the rights to the Hertz Drivurself System itself. There is no stock for sale, neither do we invest in any outside business.

The principal requirement is the standing of the man. The amount of actual capital invested is more or less unimportant—as little as $5,000 being sufficient in many instances.

This is offered on a basis of active co-operation, which includes a plan whereby the vehicles can be purchased on a small initial payment and paid for from earnings. The Hertz "Drivurself" System is a subsidiary of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co., under the same management; hence its financial resources are very great.

Write in strictest confidence, giving enough information about yourself to merit either an interview or the placing of our plan before you through correspondence. Use the coupon for your convenience. The Hertz Drivurself System, Inc., Chicago, Illinois. Subsidiary of The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Co.

READ THIS:

The tremendous advantages of affiliation with a national motor transportation system, of organized responsibility and standardized service, have been proved by more than 1,300 Yellow Cab operators throughout this country and abroad. There are other advantages:

1. The Hertz Drivurself System trademark insignia, by which travelers will identify local stations with the national system... the key to good service.
2. A nation-wide credit and credential system, which will be operated in every city where Drivurself stations are established.
3. The specially engineered and constructed Hertz Drivurself car—with the outward appearance of a fine privately owned closed car, but with the stamina and safety of a proved commercial car. Does not in any way resemble, either in appearance or color, a taxicab.
4. Participation for the renter in public liability protection up to $5,000 and $10,000 limits, and property damage protection up to $1,000 limit, for nominal charge.
5. A carefully tested and perfected system that takes the risk out of renting cars to persons not known.
6. For the first time, a definite predetermined trade-in value on your used cars—guaranteed by a responsible manufacturer—makes possible accurate budgeting for depreciation.
7. National Advertising—on behalf of Hertz Drivurself System operators—which will start immediately the system is in effect nationally.
8. No experience in this business needed. We supply expert operating engineers at nominal charge.

EPIC MOTOR SHOW MARKS SILVER JUBILEE

SOLONS PONDER LAWS TO MAKE HIGHWAYS SAFE

Caution First Need, Says Emmerson.

BY LOUIS L. EMMERSON.
[Illinois Secretary of State.]

The fact that 1,132,641 motor vehicle licenses were issued in Illinois last year and the reasonable certainty that many thousand more than this enormous total will be issued this year points to the necessity for additional safety provisions for the operation of automobiles on the public highways.

LOUIS L. EMMERSON.
[Victor Georg Photo]

With practically one car on the streets or highways for every six persons in the state, it is evident that great care must be exercised by drivers, or pedestrians must develop a higher degree of nimbleness.

Obviously the burden of safety rests upon the operator of the motor vehicle.

Many Safety Bills Offered.

How best to impress this fact upon motor vehicle drivers is a subject which has caused much worry in recent years. Many new regulations, I understand, are to be proposed to the present general assembly. The members of the legislature will be called upon to pass upon their reasonableness and probable efficiency.

A conference on motor vehicle traffic held in Connecticut last April under the joint auspices of the state of Connecticut and Yale university, reached the conclusion that in attacking the problem of automobile accident prevention three general classes of people must be considered.

1. The criminally irresponsible, reck-

PARK BOARD RUNS SCHOOL TO CURB AUTO ACCIDENTS

Plan Cuts Death Rate on West Side.

BY DR. JOHN D. ROBERTSON.
[President West Chicago Park Board.]

Every man's responsibility for the welfare of his community—that is the lesson the west Chicago park commissioners have undertaken to drive home to the man behind the wheel. Education is a vital force. Without knowledge of the many ordinances governing motor vehicle traffic, the individual driver becomes a menace to the general public.

Some thirty years ago, when I was employed as a train dispatcher on the Burlington road, I was called upon to act upon the board of examiners for engineers. This examination was rigid, both physically and mentally. The men who passed were fit in every way to run a high powered locomotive and to be entrusted with the lives of the people who rode on their trains.

These trains were protected in every way all along the line against all sorts of emergencies. The trains had special tracks to run on, specified starting and stopping points—the engineer had but to exercise ordinary skill and care in the operation of his engine.

No Tests for Auto Drivers.

How different is the case of the man behind the wheel in any one of the thousands of automobiles one passes in the course of a day's sojourn through the crowded streets of a large city!

No tracks to run on—every motorist impatient of a moment's delay when forced to stop—few of them giving the pedestrian more than an inch to spare when passing him at high speed—many of the drivers inefficient from one cause or another, and few of them adequately conversant with the many ordinances which have been passed by the state and city governing motor vehicle traffic.

In an effort to bring home to the motorist a realization of their obligation to the public and to secure their coöperation to the end that fewer deaths and accidents would occur, the west Chicago park commissioners, in June, 1924, appointed fifty prominent citizens of the west side, later augmented to 100, to coöperate with them in a study of the traffic problems. This organization is known as the west Chicago park safety commission.

The safety commission worked out a system whereby three members, to-

WACKER SEES END OF CITY'S TRAFFIC WOES

Says Chicago Plan Solves Problem.

BY CHARLES H. WACKER.
[Chairman Chicago Plan Commission.]

Every large city in the country is struggling with the problem of the traffic congestion which has resulted from the widespread use of automobiles and the rapid growth in the number of cars.

Chicago, of all these cities, is probably nearer a real solution than most of the others. This is because Chicago started solving its street congestion problem fifteen years ago when the plan of Chicago was formulated, and has been steadily at work ever since.

But if our city is to succeed in this effort the legal, financial, and physical restrictions which now hamper its growth and development must be removed. Chicago must be put in a position to improve its commercial conditions in a broad and comprehensive way, so that our city may maintain its commercial leadership; and, at the same time, the health and happiness of our people must be safeguarded and enhanced by means of zoning and housing improvements, relief from congestion, and adequate recreational facilities.

Chicago Must Look Ahead.

It is a besetting fault of many of our citizens, in considering plans for the city's future, not to take due account of future necessities, but to favor inadequate measures, sufficient only for the immediate present. This fault must be overcome.

When improvements have been planned adequate for future needs, we must not allow them to be modified. And we must further insist that our comprehensive and thorough plans be carried out without delay, while the cost remains reasonable. Otherwise we shall find many absolutely necessary improvements impossible to achieve because changing conditions have so increased their cost, and we shall be made to suffer irretrievable loss.

Now and then some one, concerned over the tremendous growth in the number of vehicles to be seen upon our streets, jumps to the conclusion that some new and drastic idea must be evolved to facilitate traffic, failing to appreciate that fifteen years ago, when the Plan of Chicago was created, the automobile industry had already been established for ten years. And in spite of the fact that the automobile output has increased at a faster rate than was probably anticipated in 1910, there is not one single factor to be reckoned

SALON AT DRAKE SETS A RECORD FOR EXHIBITS

Three Foreign Makes at De Luxe Show.

Chicago's tenth annual automobile salon opened yesterday afternoon at the Drake. It will continue for one week, the hours being 2 to 11:30 p. m. each day, including Sunday.

This season there is a record list of exhibitors and the displays of custom built coachwork are particularly noteworthy. With exhibits from England, Belgium, and Italy as well as the United States, the salon continues to hold its international character.

List of Exhibitors.

The higher priced cars shown by manufacturers or importers are Cunningham, Isotta-Fraschini, Minerva, and Rolls-Royce. Custom coach builders exhibiting include Cadillac, Lincoln, Locomobile, Packard, and Wills Sainte Claire. Custom bodymakers with special exhibits are Brunn, Fisher, Fleetwood, Graff, Holbrook, Hume, Jones, Judkins, Le Baron, and Willoughby. There will also be a tire exhibit by the Vogue Rubber company.

More than ever before this season's salon is serving to introduce new designs in custom coachwork. In this respect it is a real arbiter of fashions in the realm of the motor car de luxe. Many marked changes are disclosed this year. The severely plain interior which has prevailed for several years has given place to a diversified style of upholstery, with artistic decorative treatment predominating. The use of inlaid wooden panels has greatly increased.

Colors More Brilliant.

In exterior finish most corrossiers have adhered to the traditional paint and varnish, which best provides the deep luster which has long been characteristic of salon jobs. There will be a few in oil finishes and one group in pyroxylin enamel. The color effects are more brilliant, especially in striping wheels and trim.

In mechanical features the salon is of unusual interest. Several types of four wheel brakes, including the hydraulic, special methods of spring suspension, one in combination with an anti-rolling device, super-chargers, and new details of engineering are disclosed.

There are a number of interesting developments and innovations in both chassis and custom bodies.

GIANT INDUSTRY CELEBRATES PERFECTION OF AUTOMOBILE

Fans Jam Coliseum in Public Opening.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Twenty-five years of Yankee achievement passed in proud review in the Coliseum last night with Chicago and the middle west bowying acknowledgment.

It was the quarter century birthday of the automobile. Everybody was invited and, from the looks of the mêlée in and about the great exposition building, everybody came.

From 7 p. m., when show doors swung open to the thousands who had flooded Wabash avenue for hours, impatient for a glimpse of the industry's greatest exhibition effort, until the band sounded retreat with "Home, Sweet Home" at 11, motordom packed the mammoth building to the suffocation point.

Motor Fans Celebrate.

It was a gala crowd that refused to be annoyed about rush hour traffic. It took its jostlings and "pushin' around" with good nature, exhibited an insatiable thirst for knowledge on every phase of improvement in the 1925 car, and showed the infant prodigy, which began life back in 1900 in a $50 machine shop and has now moved into a ten billion dollar business on the avenue, that the American public is always ready to pay royal tribute to success.

Aside from the glittering show cars, many of which come from pioneer plants, where "horseless carriages" were turned out for the first Chicago show, fans found more than their money's worth in the remarkable decorative scheme and extravagant setting the industry has arranged for its big birthday party. The scheme centers in a classic Silver Jubilee tower, which dominates the show, reaching to the Coliseum roof and flashing multicolored floods of light over the silver, green, and buff panels and hangings that form the jewel box background for the cars. Through the electric blaze of the 360 flood lights in the tower, the history of transportation is depicted on its sculptured sides. Its base is dedicated to the industrial triumphs over a quarter century of engineering development, while its top carries twenty-five columns showing the march of industry and the history of the automobile. A hidden chamber in the tower holds an orchestra that broadcasts its music to all parts of the building.

Keep Tower Watch.

A watch will be kept in the top portion of the tower throughout the exposition, and it is here that industrial authorities will deliver show addresses.

The Coliseum ceiling required 360,000 feet of decorative material—silver silk cloth, panneling, and borders—and the

TABLOID GUIDE AND INDEX TO SILVER JUBILEE AUTO SHOW

PLACE—Coliseum, 1513 South Wabash avenue.

TIME—10 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. every day, reopening tomorrow, to and including Saturday, Jan. 31.

ADMISSION—75 cents, including war tax.

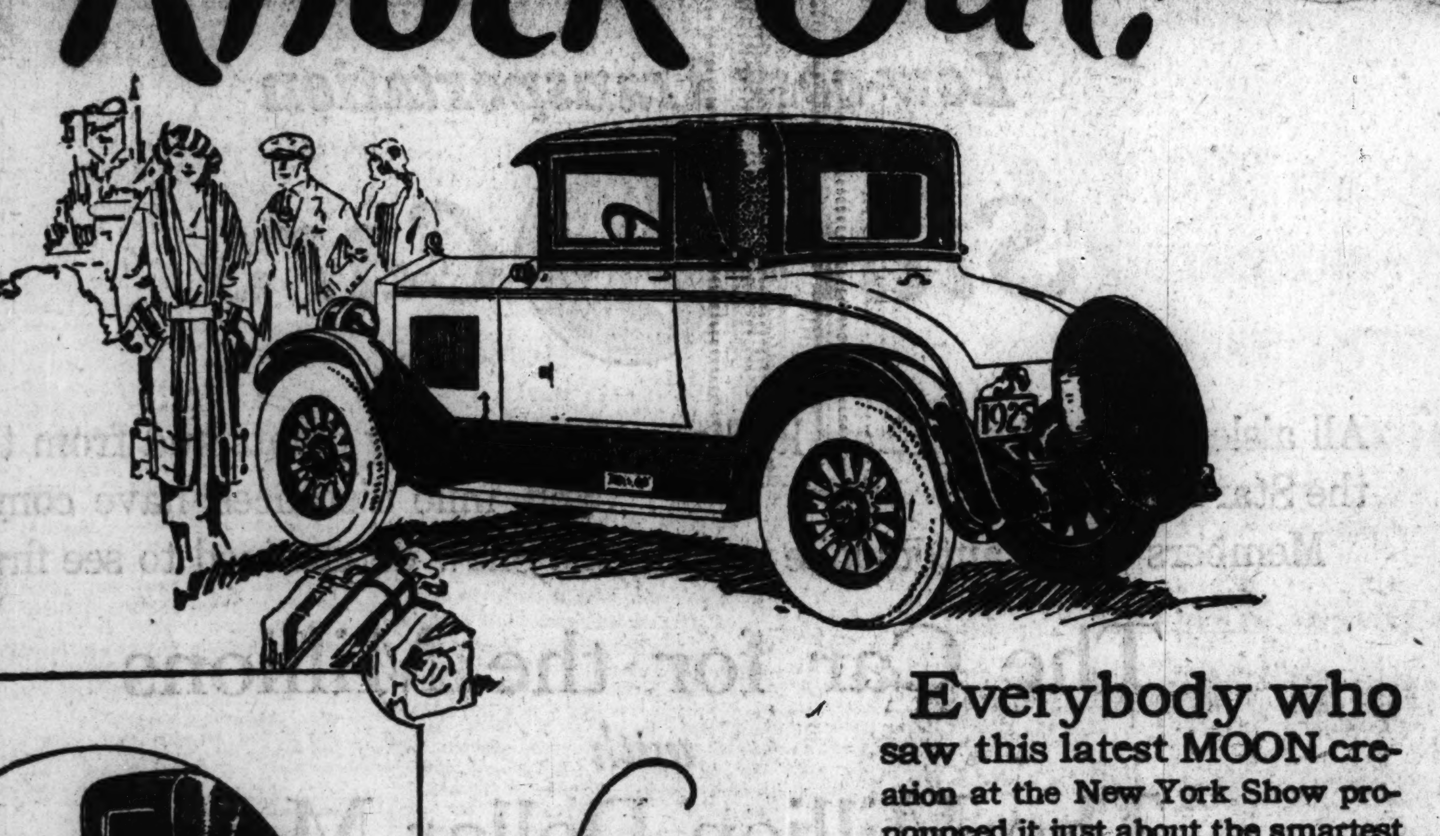
CARS ON EXHIBITION—200, representing 54 manufacturers of passenger cars and 5 makers of taxicabs.

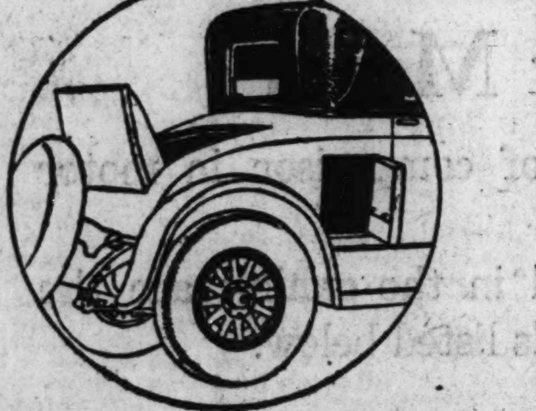
ACCESSORY AND PARTS EXHIBITORS—250.

ENGINE EQUIPMENT—Four, six and eight cylinders. The only car not operated by a gasoline motor is the Stanley steamer.

The annual Automobile Salon, featuring exclusive makes of foreign and domestic cars and custom coach work, is open from 2 to 11:30 p. m. in the Drake hotel.

The Silver Jubilee show, like other national exhibits since 1900, is under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, Samuel A Miles, show manager.





A Knock Out! The New Moon Cabriolet Roadster

Everybody who saw this latest MOON creation at the New York Show pronounced it just about the smartest thing on wheels. To the chic that is France and the sturdy stability of British line in its custom made body—American ingenuity has added several brand-new patented exclusive improvements that make it one of the greatest utility cars ever offered.

It is not only a wonderfully practical car for the outdoor man or woman, but can be equally well utilized by the business or professional man.

When you get a close-up of this remarkable car—when you see its handsome leather top—its silvered radiator—its deeply cushioned rich upholstery; when you inspect its equipment—its rich duo-tone Duco finish—you feel sure that this must be a high-priced car.

But you are going to get the surprise of your life when you learn its modest price—you are going to wonder how such an exceptional car can be made for so little.

You will find five other MOON models at the show—all typically distinctive—all offering quality values at the lowest prices in automobile history.

In the rear deck of the Cabriolet Roadster, the lid opens up to a very comfortable, two passenger seat, fully upholstered in modish Spanish leather. There is also generous storage space in this compartment.

The rear window is of special patented design. It can be raised or lowered at will for easy communication between passengers—a sociable feature that is highly appreciated.

At the rear of the car on the right is a compartment for carrying golf clubs, guns, fishing tackle or other luggage. (Patents applied for.)

floor of the building is completely covered with the finest of gray linoleum.

It is in the 1925 display of motor cars, however, that public interest centers. The critical first nighters found that there are no very radical changes either in engineering or in body building to be found this year. Internal combustion motors have been developed to as near perfection as mechanical laws allow, and the big makers have not offered the usual sensation this season.

Long Life for Cars.

Refinements and improvements in the comfort and utility end of motor cars make up the big offering for the coming year, and they are sufficient to hold the attention of the initiated throughout the week. In a word, the 1925 offerings spell "stabilization" in automobiles, and the attainment of that long desired goal which promises long life, rather than temporary existence for the average car.

Among the popular priced six cylinder cars both balloon tires and four wheel brakes are fairly common, some twenty-seven makes having balloons and thirty-six having brakes on all four wheels. Another element of newness, almost if not quite as attention compelling as these other two features, is the introduction of several more makes of cars with eight cylinder engines in which all the cylinders are in a line, as distinguished from those in which cylinders are arranged V fashion in two blocks of four each.

The appearance of these motors, aside from any mechanical advantage which they may have, represents a distinct advance in the art of engine building, in that they emphasize the compactness that modern design has achieved. There would scarcely have been room under an engine hood a few years ago for eight cylinders in a line. Today such motors occupy little if any more room than a "six."

No More Vibration.

It is in the little things, though, that engineers have striven hardest. Motor vibration, for example, has been practically eliminated. Some of the modern four cylinder motors run as silently and as sweetly as did the sixes of a short time ago. New methods of balancing reciprocating parts, pistons and connecting rods, the elimination of surplus material and the reduction of necessary metal to the minimum consistent with required strength and wear have brought very noticeable improvements in smoothness of operation. In one case the adaptation to a moderate priced four cylinder car of a special balancing medium heretofore used only in high priced cars has worked wonders.

Lubrication has come in for a great deal of attention, and rightly, too, for it is upon the condition of a car at the end of a couple of years' service that its value in the used car market depends. Its trade-in value is dependent upon how little the dealer accepting it has to spend on it to put it in first class condition for resale. Better lubrication means less wear. Hence the adoption of systems that supply lubricant under pressure to all moving parts has become almost universal and several manufacturers have carried such development to even greater lengths.

Incidentally, the factory equipment of both open and closed models with a variety of accessories which hitherto have been considered "extras" is another of the ways in which makers have increased the comfort, safety and convenence of their products. There is scarcely any excuse now for a purchaser buying anything but gasoline and oil when he takes delivery of his new car—and even that is supplied by quite a few dealers.

Two makes of four cylinder cars in the low priced class come regularly equipped with front bumpers, and among six cylinder cars more than a dozen have bumpers both front and rear installed at the factory and included in the price of the car.

Heaters are another item now being supplied by a great many makers. More than half the makers of six cylinder sedans so equip their products, and they are included without extra charge with half a dozen makes of fours. Other accessories now supplied as standard equipment include clocks on thirty-seven makes of sixes. There are motometers on more than half of all models produced, snubbers or shock absorbers on forty makes, mirrors on over fifty makes and rear signals on thirty-seven.

Huge Accessory Display.

It is a matter of record that during several of the early national shows the variety of extra equipment offered for use on a single make of low priced car aggregated in cost considerably more than was asked for the car itself. Not only that, but many of the offerings were necessary to its proper functioning and safety of operation.

At the show this year there are nearly 250 accessory exhibitors and their displays are not likely to be overlooked by visitors.

Nearly everything displayed in the accessory division has an appeal for the car owner, and there are many things especially appealing to the individual. Camping equipment, for instance, will be found here and there, and the motor camper grows in number from year to year. Exhibits of this type are closely studied by motorists—those who feel the lure of the open as well as those who have had experience in outdoor life through the medium of the motor car.

PARK BOARD RUNS SCHOOL TO CURB AUTO ACCIDENTS

Plan Cuts Death Rate on West Side.

gether with the secretary of the commission and an officer of the police department, hold a hearing board, before which violators of the minor motor rules and regulations of the west parks are cited to appear.

This safety commission levies no fines. A motorist formerly arrested, sent to court, and possibly fined for violation of any one of the many traffic ordinances, is now given a citation to appear before the west Chicago park safety commission, where he, along with other violators for the preceding week, is instructed in the various ordinances governing motor vehicle traffic and pledged to coöperate in the future in their observance.

During the six months this safety commission has been in existence 2,813 violators have been cited to appear before it, of which number ninety-seven failed to attend and had to be handled through the police department. These drivers are made to realize that a record of their violations is kept by the safety commission, and they are careful not to be brought in a second time, as is evidenced by the fact that up to Jan. 1, 1925, there were only sixteen second offenders.

Records of the west park police department show fewer arrests for speeding since the adoption of my recommendation to the board, on May 13, 1924, that captain of police be instructed to have the west park motorcycle men patrol the boulevards to a greater degree than in the past, with the idea of preventing speeding, rather than lying in wait to catch the speeder.

Campaign Cuts Death Record.

The outstanding result of the educational campaign of the west Chicago park safety commission, and the active work of the police department in preventing speeding, has been a decrease in the death and accident rate on the west side. In three months previous to the inauguration of the safety commission there were nine deaths on the boulevards of the west park system, or three each month; in the six months following there were six deaths, or at the rate of one death per month.

A competency test law which will provide for the mental and physical examination of individuals applying for state license to drive a motor vehicle, is under consideration by the members of the safety commission. A number of graduates of the Thursday morning hearing board have expressed their belief that such a law would be desirable and are coöperating with the safety commission in this connection.

In the state of Massachusetts, where they have such a law, fifty-two people were killed in the entire state in a period of three and one-half months, whereas in Cook county, 192 people were killed during the same period. In Boston, during a similar period, two people were killed by automobiles; in Chicago there were 181 people killed.

They did not have to go out and try to educate the little children there, 4 and 5 years old, and they did not have to arrest 500 or a thousand men a day, although their streets are admittedly narrow and crooked, and sidewalks so narrow that people are compelled to use the streets for sidewalks. In population Massachusetts has a few more people than we have in Cook county; in number of cars they have more, in area of square miles they are about the same, so it is a fair example to take, and yet they only killed fifty-two in the entire state.

SWEDEN TESTS CHARCOAL AS A GAS SUBSTITUTE

Swedish engineers are working hard to solve the problem of using charcoal gas as a fuel for automobiles, motors, and railway locomotives, according to Horten, Norway, advices to the American Chemical society.

"They consider the question of great importance, since charcoal is cheap in that country," says the report. "It is estimated there would be a saving of 50 per cent in the fuel expenses of railways as compared with steam engines.

"The experiments are based upon a German patent using a small producer with washing apparatus and other accessories mounted on the motor car. These gas motors will be installed and given a practical trial in a series of locomotives on some of the Swedish government railways. A large truck manufacturing company intends to start similar experiments on its cars."

WACKER SEES END OF CITY'S TRAFFIC WOES

Says the Chicago Plan Solves Problem.

with today which did not exist fifteen years ago.

The result is that the Plan of Chicago is today and will continue to be the one and only real and permanent solution of the street problem, particularly since it treats that problem from four different angles.

Remedy for Loop Congestion.

The basic remedy for loop congestion is provided in the Plan of Chicago by the construction of a quadrangle of wide thoroughfares encircling the intensively developed congested central business district. The quadrangle is supplemented by the provision of additional streets connecting the loop with the various other sections of the city.

The third measure of traffic relief is the provision of a system of principal arteries, commonly designated major streets, of adequate width to serve their purpose properly, and extending continuously from one end of the city to the other. The fourth measure is the "through traffic" system which the Chicago Plan commission is now studying.

Within the next sixty to ninety days the commission hopes to be able to present to the city council committee on efficiency, economy, and rehabilitation—Ald. Charles Scribner Eaton, chairman—a complete plan for a comprehensive, city-wide "through traffic" street system. The establishment of such a system by the city authorities will, it is believed, go a long way toward distributing vehicular traffic more generally throughout the city, thereby relieving the present congestion upon our main routes of travel.

Linking City and Country.

In developing the through traffic and the major street plans the Chicago Plan commission is working in close harmony with the city officials and with the county, state, and governmental officials as well, to the end that the city thoroughfares and the exterior highways outside Chicago, with which the city streets connect, may be coördinated to the fullest extent. Such linking up of city and country thoroughfares would obviously be of almost inestimable advantage to vehicular traffic both within and without Chicago.

Beyond this, as an outgrowth of the activities of the City club of Chicago, the Chicago Regional Planning association has come into being. Its program provides for coördinating the present and future plans for public and private improvements in the counties, cities, and towns within the Chicago region. Studies are to be made of the highway, railway, waterway, and airway transportation problems in the region outside Chicago, as well as studies of zoning, drainage, sanitation, and recreational facilities.

It is the sincere hope of the Chicago Plan commission that all the agencies whose interests in some measure dovetail together may pool their efforts and adopt a plan which will meet with the support of all the authorities within the metropolitan district of Chicago. With a regional plan which has won the approval of all the bodies now engaged in studying the matter, there should be little difficulty in getting the several authorities officially to adopt it and carry it out.

Loop Tangle Costs Millions.

The development of the quadrangle of wide streets around the loop will cut almost in half the present loop congestion, which has now reached the point where it causes an economic loss estimated at $60,000,000 a year. Michigan avenue, the eastern boundary of the quadrangle, is finished; Roosevelt road, the southern boundary, and Canal street, the western boundary, are under construction and nearing completion, while work upon South Water street, the northern boundary of the quadrangle, started a month or so ago and is going rapidly forward.

This quadrangle will provide a bypass for through bound vehicles, enabling them to keep entirely clear of the loop. It will eventually segregate commercial traffic from other vehicles by providing a series of four low level streets for the exclusive and uninterrupted use of commercial traffic.

Whatever subway plan the city adopts should contemplate the removal, to the greatest degree practicable, of the elevated and surface lines in the central business district. We should realize, however, that the removal alone of the elevated columns from the present roadway will not greatly facilitate traffic unless the removal of the columns is accompanied by a widening of the roadways sufficient to provide for an additional lane of traffic in each direction.

Widening of La Salle Street.

Ordinances for the opening and widening of La Salle street between the loop and the north side have been approved by the city council, and other features of this part of the traffic relief program of the Chicago Plan commission are under way or have been completed. A good start, also, has been made upon several of the streets embraced in the major street system. Western and Ashland avenues are being widened to make them a minimum of 100 feet wide between northern and southern city limits; and ordinances for the opening of Robey street are being prepared by the board of local improvements. All told, twenty-eight streets in Chicago are being widened by the city.

Two outer lake front boulevards are to be constructed by the Lincoln and south park boards as part of the well known lake front development, which was proposed in the plan of Chicago and which is now under construction. These boulevards will prove of immense value in passing through bound traffic quickly for long distances.

Thus as the automobile industry celebrates its silver jubilee it finds Chicago at the head of the list of cities which are endeavoring to solve the problem of traffic congestion resulting from the wonderful development of this great industry. Chicago's aim is to solve its traffic tangles in a way so thoroughgoing that it will prove adequate not only for today but for many years to come, if not forever.

NEW YEAR PLEDGE OF SAFETY WINS PRIZE FOR BOY

Although many kids in southern California made good resolutions for the new year, John Lewis of the eighth grade in the John Muir school, Whittier, is credited with voicing the best sentiment for children.

His contribution is given the place of honor on the January poster distributed among the schools of his section by the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Thousands of children submitted resolutions. The one winning the honor is as follows:

It is resolved hereby
That both you and I
Will keep the safety rule,
At home and at school.

Bookmobile of Oregon Brings Library to Door

DODGE BROTHERS
TAXICAB

WITH New York Taxicab rates at the low level of 15c for the first quarter mile and 5c for each quarter thereafter, Dodge Brothers Taxicabs are being sold there at the rate of over 100 cabs per month. Convincing evidence!

This taxicab meets all competition in service, comfort and appearance—yet, the per mile operating cost makes it possible to make a fair profit where other cabs cannot at such rates.

Millspaugh and Irish, America's largest independent builders of taxicab bodies, have built a remarkable body for this cab. Dodge Brothers chassis, with its proven sturdiness and reliability, assures unequalled service.

Compare the price of this taxicab with that of any other cab of similar quality. There is an extended payment plan also that will interest you.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MOTOR

PER-HIGHWAYS ANNED TO MEET EDS OF AUTOS

troit to Set Pace for Road Builders.

BY EDWARD N. HINES.
airman Board of County Road Commissioners, Wayne County, Mich.]

Almost a score of years ago, when automobile was in its infancy, when cks were an almost unknown quan-
y, and when motor travel was just inning to feel the growth it was des-ed to experience, Wayne county, chigan, created a board of county d commissioners for the purpose of proving the country's roads. At t time there was not a single mile improved road nor an adequately ved village street in the county.
This newly created commission, of ich I was a member, made a survey the county and laid out a systematic, ntinuing plan of road improvement ering a period of years toward ich to work as funds became avail-le.

Birthplace of Concrete Road.

This survey contemplated the improvement of approximately 350 miles the 1,370 miles of public roads lying tside the cities and villages. Since 6 this program has been rigidly ad-red to, and the entire 350 miles orig-
ally planned have been improved,
h some additional mileage necessied through the unparalleled growth motor travel within the county.
This county, the birthplace of the tor vehicle, has also been the birth-ce of the concrete road. The county s been the pioneer in the develop-nt of both. Use of the automobile w by leaps and bounds in Wayne unty. We wanted and needed a d which would be open to travel e year through, which would fit the ds of this new medium of travel, d which would require a minimum ount of expense for upkeep and conuction.
No such road then existed. We had n that concrete sidewalks withod hard usage on crossings where e concrete sidewalk was subjected to vy impact from the passing vehi-s because it was raised above the el of the road. Such materials uld make good road surfacing maial, we reasoned. We paved a mile f road with concrete, then another, d we are still building miles of conte road.

Wayne County Still Pioneering.

Concrete roads have grown and are wing at an astonishing pace oughout the country, until today re is not a state but has some mile-e of this type of road. But Wayne nty is still a pioneer. We are still iving to keep our road mileage in ce with the growth of the automo-
e. Today there are more than 17,- 0,000 automobiles in the hands of ners. There are today the equivant of 31,000 miles of concrete roads this country. In Wayne county we ve 443 miles of road of all widths, greater majority of which is in ss of twenty feet wide. We have mplished much, it is true, but our d building program is yet far from pleted.
During the last nine years automo-e ownership in Wayne county has reased fourteen times. Noting this owth several years ago, pavement ecifications were changed from a nimum width of twenty feet to an imate minimum width of forty feet, d previously constructed roads of a ser width than eighteen feet are beg widened.

Bridges Also Improved.

We also increased the capacity of r bridges to a twenty-four ton load d increased their clear right of way a minimum of twenty-seven feet, ing largely a T-beam and slab type f bridge, with precast concrete handil.
But road building and road widening re dependent upon rights of way for e success of the program. Realiz-g this many years ago, the county mmissioners began the acquisition f additional widths of land along the ncipal roads. One hundred foot hts of way have been acquired along me of the radial roads such as Wood-rd avenue, Michigan and Grand ver roads.
In conjunction with the rapid trant commission, all the territory within fifteen mile radius of the city hall ll in Detroit has been mapped with spect to the widths of the rights of y of all half mile, mile, radial, and her important roads. Every half le road is now being planned for a nimum of eighty-six feet, every mile d to a full 120 feet, and every third le is to have a center eighty-four ot strip for future rapid transit ds, making a total roadway of 204 t on these roads. Radial roads such Woodward avenue also will be 204
t in width.
These roads, which have been termed uper-highways," will be formed of o forty-four foot strips of concrete both sides of the center eighty-four ot rapid transit right of way.
The highway commissioners, in conction with the rapid transit comssioners, arrived at this 204 foot dway through taking an ordinary y street of 120 feet and adding to the eighty-four feet needed for the nsit system.

High and Low Speed Lanes.

At the edge of the city, where the pid transit lines emerge to the sur-ce, this 120 foot roadway is split o the two parallel roadways, with dewalk alongside. This forms the uper-highway" referred to. In order facilitate traffic and to speed it up, se roadways will be divided into h speed and slow speed pathways.
At the half mile roads the highways d the transit lines will be elevated pass over the intersection and the w speed roadway will descend to the ion-line road. Thus the motorist who sires to turn must pass from the h speed to the slow speed path and s under the high speed roadway.
These roadways have been so ar-nged with park lanes that tree plant-g will beautify the roads and add to e desirability of the road as a resintial and business street. In New k, where traffic control has attained
s highest development, 600 vehicles hour per traffic lane are passed g the street. Through the adop-of the super-highway, it is con-vatively estimated, Detroit will be to pass 4,000 vehicles an hour per c lane along these principal ars of travel.

AUTO HAS MADE U. S. RICH, SAYS TRADE VETEREAN

Helps Its Owner Earn More and Save More.

BY J. I. FARLEY.
[President Auburn Automobile Company.]

So rapid has been the progress and so speedy the development of the automobile industry that seldom is the opportunity offered for retrospection, so engrossed are the numerous individuals with thoughts and plans for the futrue.

It is only on such occasions as this show, which celebrates the silver anniversary of the industry, that the full significance of what has been accomplished is impressed upon us, particularly when the company in question is one of the pioneers of the industry.

Go back twenty-five years and you will see an industry laughed at, mocked even by financial interests; banks looked upon it askance, refusing to advance money to assist it in establishing itself. Here is the same industry today, grown into a position of admitted stability, steadily, surely, and soundly, without a setback.

Yesterday and Today.

Consider the product of this industry today; compare it with the product twenty-five years ago. Not so long ago big prices were paid for cars which could render only a meager portion of the performance of today's cars. Closed bodies were unknown, and even windshields and tops cost extra. For less money today the buyer may obtain a veritable palace on wheels.

Ten years ago the first enclosed cars were considered fit only for city driving. Yet today the coach and sedan have usurped the place held since the beginning of the industry by the phaeton types. It is not too bold to predict that another year will see 75 per cent of the total production consisting of enclosed cars. The popularity of our own closed models readily bears me out in this prediction.

It is my firm conviction that the motor car has made America rich. It is exactly suited to the hurrying, dashing, aggressive American temperament and goes hand in hand with the initiative which has given our country rank among the foremost nations on earth.

Car Helps Owner Earn More.

Nothing has ever put money into circulation to compare with the motor car and its allied industries. Aided by the automobile, which saves the time and widens the scope of operations of the individual, the American people today are earning more money than ever before and are therefore able to spend large amounts for motor cars and other comforts and necessities. At the same time, bankers tell us that there is more money being deposited in the banks and life insurance authorities state that never has so much insurance been purchased as in recent years.

Another factor has been the development of highways. Were it not for the motor car we would not today possess a network of nearly 4,000,000 miles of improved roads which have enabled Americans to become acquainted with their own country and have brought Florida and California into nearly the same proximity with the residents of the middle west as their county seat held for them just a quarter of a century ago.

CONTROL TUBES.

When dismantling the steering gear it is important to take out all the control tubes and to remove all rust that has accumulated between them.

THE AUTO OF 1902, AS THE FIRST TRADE PAPER PICTURED IT

In the Feb. 12, 1902, issue of "The Horseless Age," which was the original name of Automotive Industries, the present trade magazine and, incidentally, the first automobile trade publication there appeared a description of the Oldsmobile from which the following extracts were taken:

"The runabout must be termed a 'medium weight,' since it belongs to that class of automobile to which carriages of 800 to 1,100 pounds belong. The body of the vehicle has the lines of a runabout and a curved dash. The wheels are of the suspension type and shod with 28x2½ single tube tires. All the machinery, tanks, the battery, etc., are in the rear part of the body, the engine being to the left of the center line of the carriage.

"A centrally located steering lever is provided to guide the machine, and all control levers operated by hand are on the right side of the seat and the operator, who grasps the steering lever with his left hand, the change speed lever with his right, and actuates the brake pedal with his right foot. On the extreme right side just back of the dash a small pedal is provided which controls the mixture and is used as a speed accelerator. A similar pedal near the heelboard relieves compression when starting.

"The engine is of the single cylinder variety, with a bore of 4½ inches and a stroke of 6 inches, and runs at a normal speed of about 600 revolutions per minute—power is transmitted from the shaft to the rear axle by means of a roller chain. The speed of the car on a good road is said to be at a rate of twenty miles per hour at a maximum."

HERE'S THE MOTOR POPULATION OF EACH STATE OF U. S.

The apparent loss in the District of Columbia is accounted for by the fact that until this year there was no reciprocity with Maryland and it was necessary for many thousands of Washingtonians to take out licenses in Maryland also. This explanation also accounts for the failure of Maryland to gain, because a large number of persons who live in that state work in Washington, and vice versa.*

1925 TO REWARD HARD WORKERS OF MOTOR TRADE

Prosperity Here, but It Must Be Won.

BY GEORGE W. DAVIS.
[President Davis Motor Car Company.]

The year 1925 will be a good and profitable year for the manufacturers and distributors who are working.

I am not throwing cold water on the optimism that prevails, because I know from observation that basic conditions will be much improved in 1925, but in the past the industry has been too prone to ride with the tide of prosperity and then become discouraged when less favorable conditions arose.

My theory is to look to every year as though hard conditions of selling would be encountered. The man who follows this policy is always fighting, and his fighting leads him to exceptional results in the best years and to satisfactory results in the more difficult years.

Hard Work Always Essential.

The outlook for 1925 is most encouraging. Underlying conditions of money, agriculture and foreign situations point to a soundness we have not seen for many years.

It may be that this condition will continue for a number of years. That is something none of us can foretell. But we must not let our enthusiasm temper our judgment, whether we be manufacturer or distributor. We must keep our manufacturing and selling organizations fired with a spirit of hard work and intensive selling.

The automobile industry faces the greatest opportunity in its history. Perhaps no other industry doing such a great volume of business stands as close to its ultimate customers. This very fact has made possible the great confidence shown by the purchase of millions of cars each year.

Industry on Sound Basis.

The automobile industry as a whole is in the most stable and sound condition known. The leading progressive manufacturers, both large and small, have accumulated resources which practically insure their permanence and thus insure the soundness of the investment in one of their cars.

We are looking for a fine year in 1925, but we are not going to work any the less hard.

League Fights Law to Bar Deaf from Driving Cars

Because the deaf are threatened in various states with laws and ordinances which will prevent their driving automobiles, the National Association of the Deaf is launching a nation-wide campaign against the enactment of legislation or the further promulgation of such rules.

INFLATE TIRES BY DEGREES AND SAVE ALL 'ROUND

Tire inflation ought to be done in installments rather than all at once. Most drivers will admit that the usual procedure is to let the matter slide until the tires look low and then run them way up to 55 for cords and 70 for fabrics, or perhaps higher. This makes an abrupt change in the car's riding qualities; rattles and squeaks suddenly appear, and everyone is annoyed. It is also bad for tires that have been weakened by underinflation to be suddenly strained by overinflation. It is far better to "educate" the passengers and the tires to higher pressures by making several trips to the tire pump instead of one, thereby increasing the pressures by degrees.

ARIZONA VETOES "WEEK-END" ROAD

Handicapped by the active opposition of commercial bodies in northern and southern Arizona, the plan for spending $3,500,000 of state money on a direct paved highway between Phoenix and the Colorado river at Blythe was killed in the general election.

The road was called the "Week-End Highway," this with assumption that Arizonans would skim over to Los Angeles in their spare hours.

Its proponents, on the contrary, insisted that a paved highway would serve to bring to Arizona from California thousands of winter tourists who would be of substantial benefit to the resorts of this state.

LOW GEARING OF REAR AXLE USED TO FAKE POWER

Did you know that the power of an engine is often faked by means of gearing it low at the rear axle? In shopping for a car always ask what the reduction ratio is. If the reduction is very low a comparatively light engine will pull considerable weight uphill on "high" because the car is really not in high gear. If the engine is of large dimensions and geared very low it will perform beautifully on hills and will not usually give more than sixty miles per hour speed. If the engine is of small dimensions and geared low it will perform well enough on hills for a time and will be economical on gas, but it will wear out quickly and will not develop speed.

POLICE CHIEF LABORS TO MAKE STREETS SAFE

Collins Talks of the City's Traffic Problem.

BY MORGAN A. COLLINS.
[Superintendent of Police, Chicago.]

Owing to the enormous increase in the use of motor vehicles, the Chicago police department has a difficult traffic situation to handle. The elimination of left hand turns in the congested business district, the establishment of loading zones for street car passengers, and the designation of certain thoroughfares as through streets have helped to some extent.

We have endeavored to move traffic as speedily as possible with due regard for the safety of both the motorist and the pedestrian. The rigid enforcement of the state motor vehicle law, allowing a maximum speed of twenty miles an hour within the city limits, has prevented many accidents and reduced considerably the number of fatalities.

Many Accidents at Crossings.

I have advocated the passage of a city ordinance prohibiting a greater speed than ten miles an hour for vehicles crossing street intersections other than boulevards, through streets or streets on which car lines are operated, which thoroughfares are already provided for in the city and park ordinances.

Many accidents and fatalities have occurred on account of fast driving or turning at intersections. There are many arteries of traffic other than boulevards, through streets and car lines where the motorist will endanger himself and others by not slowing down to ten miles an hour when crossing them.

Trouble Over Parking.

Other violations of the law that we have had to deal with aside from speeding and reckless driving are principally the parking of machines on public streets and alleys, driving and parking on the left hand side of the street, the careless use of bright light or spotlights and lack of caution when driving in the vicinity of schools and children's playgrounds.

If the person driving an automobile would provide for his own safety by a careful observance of the law, he would aid his fellow citizen, assist the police department, and prevent the appalling loss of life and property due to motor vehicle accidents.

WHY RISK YOUR LIFE TO SAVE SEVEN SECONDS?

Driving your car, you see a train coming. It's a passenger train, but you are sure you can beat it across the tracks. So you take the chance. Likely as not you cross safely and are quite a distance away when the train thunders past.

But—

Thousands are killed each year at railroad grade crossings, afoot or in autos. Every one of them was sure he could beat the approaching train, except in cases where they were careless and didn't observe the train coming.

Now—

The average fast train passes the grade crossing in seven seconds. Are you really so rushed for time that you can afford to take a chance on your life to save seven seconds?

Think it over.

BIRTH OF COACH HAS BROUGHT ERA OF CLOSED CARS

May Pass Open Models in 1925 Sales.

BY J. R. HISTED.

[General Manager Hudson Motor Co. of Ill.]

What is a coach? Now that the coach has become a large factor in motordom, the question is raised as to exactly what is meant by the term. The Society of Automotive Engineers defines it thus:

> "Coach — An enclosed single-compartment body, similar in general appearance to the sedan, with two close-coupled cross-seats for four passengers. There is a luggage compartment or space for a trunk at the back of the body. There is no glass in the rear quarters. The conventional type has two doors only, the forward seats being divided and the right-hand seat tipping forward to give access to the rear cross-seat. Some models have two doors on the right-hand side, there being two fixed cross-seats."

Idea Behind the Coach.

It is three years since the word coach came into use. At the 1922 New York show, the first coaches were displayed by the Hudson company on a Essex chassis.

The fundamental idea behind the coach was to make the motor car distinctly a utility instead of a plaything. It has always been obvious that the closed car is the better all-weather vehicle—better all around, in fact, for the man who can own only one car. But up to the coach era open and closed cars were divided into two widely separated classes. Open cars were low in price, closed ones high. This was because the industry learned early how to apply the economies of automatic machinery and progressive assembly to chassis and to open car bodies—but not to closed ones. Closed cars involved much hand labor and were high in price.

Closed Cars Held as Luxury.

The buyer knew that for the money in his pocket he could get a closed car on a certain grade of chassis, or an open car on a much finer chassis. So nine times out of ten he bought the open car.

Manufacturers understood this. Prospects told them about it. But there were difficult manufacturing problems. Besides the tradition was that closed cars should be luxuries—sedans, limousines, berlines, landaus. But the day came for a change of thinking.

At our plant study of the subject led us to the conclusion that a simplified closed car could be produced at an open car price. It would have to be a car which would lend itself to volume production. It need not be compromised in strength, staunchness nor any other practical quality. But it had to be simplified, standardized, and given the advantages of twentieth century manufacturing methods. The buyer could then have both his fine chassis and closed car comforts—and pay only what he always had for an open car.

That program has been substantially realized.

Closed cars are selling today at or below open car prices because they are now made by the same efficient, simplified system of manufacture which has been applied to motors, axles, frames, and open bodies for many years. And 1925 will be the first year in which more than one-half of all cars made will be enclosed.

SOME HIGH SPOTS IN AUTO INDUSTRY'S RECORD FOR 1924

Charles Clifton, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, cites the following high spots in the motor industry's record for 1924 as indicating beyond a doubt that 1925 will be a good business year:

1924 was the second best year in the history of the automobile industry.

Production was on a sound, conservative basis.

Exports exceeded any preceding year.

South American republics arranged a road congress for the coming May to plan for marked progress in motor transportation.

Stocks left on hand are light and output will be on the basis of market demand.

Automobile credit sales are on a sound basis, with losses only .18 of 1 per cent.

Two hundred and seven railroads are now using motor vehicle equipment.

One hundred and sixty-eight electric companies are now operating 2,500 busses.

SOLONS PONDER LAWS TO MAKE HIGHWAYS SAFE

Caution Is First Need, Says Emmerson.

less and heedless, relatively small in number, but exceedingly dangerous.

2. Those earnestly striving to be careful.

3. The great majority, constituting those who are ignorant or indifferent.

Constant Caution Is First Need.

The ignorant or the indifferent are not going to be influenced very much by new statutes unless they are made to realize the necessity for safety. No arbitrary laws and no amount of public regulation and supervision will remove the element of danger or overcome human failure in operation of high-powered vehicles. Constant alertness and caution are necessary, and these can best be secured by bringing home to every one the dangers incident to present highway traffic.

For the criminally reckless, of course, the criminal law alone will suffice.

One of the principal functions of the office of secretary of state recently has been the dissemination of information calculated to breed greater caution among drivers. More must be done along this line.

Above all, provision should be made for accurate statistics on accidents, which would be available for research work on the part of those engaged in preventing fatalities.

Auto's Growth Unlimited.

The saturation point of automobile distribution, about which we have heard so much for several years, seems still to be far in the distance. There were issued during 1924 159,154 more licenses than during 1923. Up to the first of January we had already issued 121,353 1925 licenses.

The total collections of the automobile department last year were $11,546,206, an increase of $1,892,411 over the collections for 1923.

BLAMES CITIES, NOT AUTOS, FOR TRAFFIC JAMS

BY W. L. VELIE.

[President Velie Motors Corporation.]

Who is to blame for present traffic conditions in large cities? Should the blame for the congestion of the high ways be shouldered on the motorists who congest them—or is the municipality itself perhaps at fault?

If the municipally owned street rail way did not provide sufficient cars to carry the crowds of office workers and shoppers to and from the city's business section, who would be to blame? Would it be the people's fault because several thousand of them wanted to use the street cars all at the same time, or would it be the fault of the railway's management in not providing adequate facilities to meet the public need?

Congestion of the streets in the business sections of cities by motor cars is a parallel situation. Adequate transportation facilities, whether provided by street cars or by privately owned vehicles traveling the highways, are necessary to the public welfare as well as to the prosperity of business.

The City's Duty.

The duty of meeting this situation, as it exists, devolves upon the municipality. If the public prefers to travel in motor cars rather than in street cars the municipality is by no means released from its obligation to provide for the public's safety.

The public has adopted the automobile because it appeals to them as the most convenient and comfortable means of transportation, and it is obviously the duty of municipalities to provide facilities so that the motorist may use the streets with the same degree of safety as the pedestrian.

One of the greatest forward steps that could be taken by any municipality would be to make provision for the parking of cars in the business section of the city, so that they would not interfere with the free use of the streets by other motorists.

Problem Can Be Solved.

This problem is by no means a difficult one. In the downtown sections of most large cities there are city parks or public squares. By excavating underneath them and building ramps from the adjoining streets, this city property could be converted into a subterranean parking space for the use of those having occasion to visit the business section for shopping or for the transaction of other business. While it is hardly probable that the returns from the rental of parking space would defray entirely the cost of such a project, it would at least be self sustaining.

A city owned garage, centrally located, also suggests itself as a possible solution of the problem. With a building several stories high, provided with ramps connecting the parking floors, the congestion of the streets due to the parking of cars would be greatly reduced.

MAKER SEES '25 AS BIG YEAR OF REPLACEMENTS

BY J. V. WHITBECK.

[President Cleveland Automobile Company.]

There is nothing in the business horizon at present which should in any way hinder the progress of the automobile industry during 1925.

The opinion is shared by others in the industry who have made a particular study of the general business situation and how it would affect the sale of motor cars.

Sees Big Replacement Market.

There are many in the industry at present who agree that 1925 sales will be stimulated to a large extent by increased replacement orders. It must not be overlooked that because of the conservative attitude of the buying public during 1924, many individuals, particularly those in rural districts, decided to drive their old cars for another year. The result is that many will be in the market this year for a new car and for this reason replacement sales should be greater than would ordinarily be true.

Buying should be particularly keen in the field of closed cars, owing to the large number of new closed models which have been introduced at prices which make a small differential between the cost of open and closed types. It is therefore only logical to assume that because of the many advantages of the closed car, this type will be chosen by many who in the past have been obliged to pick an open car.

Business Boom Should Aid Trade.

Business in general is moving along with a feeling of confidence. Nowhere and there burdensome inventories. Merchants are rapidly sensing the urge to go ahead by replenishing their stocks. Another encouraging aspe that money is available at low Europe as a whole gives every cation of considering America as big source of supply for her tre dous needs.

Trade reports show that employm is on the upward trend and that wa are steadier. This betterment in c ditions generally will influence auto bile sales to a marked extent, but 1925 automobile buyer is more apt consider car value more closely th he ever has before.

The marked tendency of manu turers to introduce innovations new car models at low prices bears this statement. Never has the mobile buyer had an opportunity to cure more dollar for dollar value motor cars than he will have in 19

The manufacturer who has product backed by the right price, ri service, and the proper sales aggr siveness, will mark the profit side the ledger at the end of 1925.

The Finest Essex Ever Built

The easiest driving and riding Essex ever built.

The finest Essex in materials and workmanship ever built.

The smoothest, most reliable Essex ever built.

A car you will take pride in owning.

It is better looking and better arranged.

It gives freedom from tinkering and frequent repair costs.

Its price—$895—is the lowest at which Essex has ever sold. You cannot get comparable performance and reliability in any other car within hundreds of dollars of its price.

Its Greatest Values Cannot Be Copied

The Chassis Is Patented

No one ever excuses or apologizes for Essex appearance or performance.

It is the car for everyone.

You see it before the entrances of exclusive clubs and at the doorways of the finest homes. You also see it in the hard daily service of business and family.

You will enjoy driving it for the smooth vibrationless performance of its quiet motor. It is so easy to steer and so comfortable to ride in that even over long journeys and rough roads it gives a satisfaction that heavy, costly cars do not provide.

Essex requires little attention to keep it in top condition. It retains its new-like qualities in the quiet, responsive, squeak-and-rattle-free character of its performance.

Surely you cannot be satisfied with anything less than Essex offers. Its cost is but little more than cars of the lowest price.

Two of every three Essex cars are bought by those whose former cars were chosen principally because of their low cost.

No wonder Essex sales lead all in its class.

As its Coach Body has changed the whole trend to closed cars So Essex Chassis likewise forecasts the mechanical design of the future

Essex provides stability without unnecessary weight. It has economy without sacrifice of performance.

It is low priced without disappointment in looks or reliability.

It is more than up-to-date in design. It is in advance of any car with which its price can be compared.

It is built on the Super-Six principle, by Hudson workmen in the Hudson shops.

In quality Hudson and Essex are alike. The patents which make the Super-Six the most enduring, smoothest motor and give it all advantages sought in eight cylinders, prevent any from copying its chassis as has been so generally done in copying the Coach.

TO OUR DEALERS

A VERY significant development has been going on in General Motors:

Five years ago General Motors was a collection of car, truck, parts and accessory companies—strong organizations, each with a fine history and a national reputation, but distinctly separate in development and policies.

By an evolution which is impressive, and of ultimate great importance to you, they are being moulded into an institution.

We have discovered that the strength of a family can be greater than the strength of its individual members; that big companies, without sacrificing any of their individual character, can render a united service which is better in many ways than they could possibly render apart.

For instance, research is vital if an industry is to progress. As a family, General Motors can maintain the largest automotive research laboratory in the world.

Exports are vital. By coordination, we sold over-seas last year $50,000,000 of General Motors products.

Sound financing of sales is vital. The General Motors Acceptance Corporation serves all members of the family; it has enabled more than 650,000 individuals to pay for General Motors products out of income.

In the purchasing of materials, in manufacturing economies, in sales development, in financial strength, in a hundred different ways, the resources of all the members of the family are proving an asset to each one.

The dealer is a member of the family—every day we recognize that fact more clearly.

Unless he prospers our factories are only empty piles of brick and steel; our plans are only paper. Every policy must be influenced by these questions:

Will it make a General Motors franchise more valuable? Will it result in a better competitive product? Will it add to the dealer's standing in his community? Will it make for permanence in the sales organization?

I want you to know how intensively we are thinking along these lines.

We have recently announced our policy on production—that production schedules will be determined by what our dealers can profitably absorb.

And we have two major ambitions—to make every General Motors product represent the best value in its class; and to conduct our dealings on such a basis that you and we together are building more solidly for the future.

4 LANE STREETS URGED TO SPEED CITIES' TRAFFIC

Two for Slow and Two for Fast Autos.

BY WALTER P. CHRYSLER.

[President Chrysler Motor Corporation.]

The time has passed when the burden of responsibility for existing street and highway traffic conditions can be shouldered upon police departments and commissions.

Synchronized traffic control, one way streets, parking regulations and innumerable traffic rules have all helped to relieve traffic congestion in our great cities. But the time has come when our American municipalities must comprehend that the motor car, truck and bus are the principal means of transportation in America, and that our cities must be adapted accordingly.

More Autos Than Phones.

There are many cities which have more registered motor cars than listed telephones. There are cities where there is a registered motor car for every family. That doesn't necessarily mean that every family has a car, however. Half the population of the United States could be loaded into the motor cars of America, while less than 3,000,000 men, women and children could be transported in all of the railroad day coaches and sleeping cars in the country.

American cities must keep abreast of the times. Keeping abreast of the times means creating city planning commissions made up of men with a knowledge of traffic conditions, their problems and solutions, and men with imagination.

No longer are great, wide sidewalks needed. Instead, wide streets capable of handling four lines of traffic are much in demand. Four lines should be taken care of—two for slower moving vehicles and two for the faster moving ones.

Roads Must Be Wider.

Highways must be wider. Such a 206 foot highway as is being built from Detroit to Pontiac, and such a 200 foot highway as is being built from New York to Jamaica, Long Island, are the highways that must come.

Elevated trains are rapidly becoming obsolete in our great cities. Such transportation should be confined to subways. The experience of London and Paris proves the soundness of this conclusion.

Motor busses are bound to supplant surface car lines in most cities. The street car track in the middle of the street is a relic. If street cars are to be used at all, tracks should be laid close to the sidewalks so that pedestrians will not be required to pass through streams of motor cars to get aboard the street cars.

Cities must establish great, wide through streets capable of handling four and six lines of traffic. Many American cities have come to realize this and are establishing such streets. Philadelphia is a noted example.

A National Problem.

This whole problem is a national one—not one which concerns only the manufacturer of motor cars. To be sure, the manufacturer is interested in selling more cars. And he knows that anything that helps to make it easier to drive a car is helpful to his business. But the problem of street and highway traffic is a national one. And it is to the interest of the city, country and state life that the problem be solved as much as possible and as quickly as possible.

The motor car has become the accepted means of transportation in America. Our cities must be adapted accordingly. Some day we will hear of municipal garages many stories high. Cars now left parked on downtown streets will be parked in them and more room afforded for moving vehicles.

The police of America have done a splendid work in solving traffic problems and in giving traffic relief, but the time is already here when city planning commissions should assume the bulk of the burden in working out better traffic plans.

Trade Maps All Designate 1925 as Year of Steady Prosperity

BY C. W. NASH.

[President the Nash Motors Company.]

C. W. NASH.

The outlook for 1925 for the automobile industry, and particularly with reference to Nash Motors, seems very bright. Our factories have been busy all fall. In fact, we have had all we could possibly do, which is more than can be said for the same period a year ago.

With the presidential election behind us, we are facing a period of sound prosperity, providing there develops no tendency toward overinflation. If the price of raw products is not permitted to soar upward and labor is willing to work for a wage that is fair and we all go along together hand in hand I can see nothing on the horizon that would indicate anything but a successful period.

Farmers and Railroads Prosper.

The farmer today is in a better position than he has occupied for several years past. Crops, on the whole, have been entirely satisfactory, and with the opening of the European market, closed for the last several years, grain has reached a price that makes it profitable for the farmer. Railroad tonnage in all sections of the country has shown a marked increase in the last two months.

Another indication of business activity lies in a report by one of the large western railroad companies stating that from Aug. 1 to Nov. 1 it handled 48,395 cars of commercial freight in excess of any previous year. This same railroad points out that "four years of legislative peace and fair treatment under the transportation act" have been a vital factor in its ability to meet satisfactorily the record breaking freight traffic. This one railroad in the last two years has added 13,750 freight cars to its equipment, as well as 146 locomotives.

Other Proof of Prosperity.

The Union stockyards of Chicago on Dec. 15 broke all existing records in the number of hogs received from farmers in the corn belt. On that day alone 122,000 hogs arrived at the stockyards. The best previous day was in 1918, during the war period, when 97,000 hogs were delivered at the Chicago yards. In addition to the hogs there were received at the yards that same day 33,000 cattle and 22,000 sheep. All this live stock was sold for cash within twenty-four hours after the nineteen main line railroads had made delivery, the money passing on into general circulation through the farmer and the commission houses.

Bankers and merchants in the small towns that dot the country can testify that the machinery of commerce is again in action, for they are the first to feel the relief that has come to the farmers; they know how obligations of long standing have in the last few months been liquidated, and as a result of this merchants are ordering from the jobber or manufacturer, thus setting in motion the wheels of industry so that the larger centers, in turn, are coming in for their share of business activity.

Doesn't Fear Overinflation.

Where a year ago was business uncertainty, due perhaps to the pending election, there is evidence on every hand today that the pendulum of commerce has begun to swing the other way. And it will keep right on swinging in that direction as long as the possibility of overinflation is avoided. The law of supply and demand, when not taken advantage of by those overeager to make their profits all in a day, is a pretty reliable stabilizer, and because of the lesson that was learned after the "spree" which the country went through in 1920, I do not look for a repetition of that situation.

Certainly it would seem that business men in all lines of activity, as well as manufacturers and bankers themselves, are prepared to guard against overinflation, overstocking of merchandise, as well as against that fatal tendency to mark up prices to a point beyond that of an honest profit.

Labor knows, or should know, that high wages mean absolutely nothing in a period of high prices, and so if everybody will just keep their feet on the ground and enjoy in a natural way the advantages of a period of general business activity, that period is entirely likely to remain with us far longer than if unfair advantage is taken of the situation.

CAREFUL DRIVER MAKES FRIENDS OF MANY PERSONS

An automobile driver can make friends by driving carefully. He can make a friend of the traffic policeman on the corner, and one he passes every morning on his way to work, or on his way home in the evening. He can make a pedestrian in the street say, "He's a good fellow; thoughtful of others." He can make the driver of another car say, "There's a decent driver; I wish there were more like him."

STUDY MAKER'S STANDING ERE YOU BUY A CAR

Dealer Also a Factor in Auto Trade.

BY H. H. BASSETT.

[President Buick Motor Company.]

"The standing of the company plus the integrity of the dealer determines the serviceability of the product to the consumer."

Here we have a sterling truth for everybody connected with automobiles, either in the capacity of owner, dealer, or manufacturer. It is the experience of centuries of miscellaneous business boiled down into a single axiom, and it is valuable because it expresses an economic law.

Let us see what is meant by the standing of the company. One man may say that it means financial strength. Another will be of the opinion that the engineers and designers determine the character of its product, and therefore its standing. A third will say that everything else is secondary to its manufacturing facilities and experience, because manufacture is so vital to serviceability.

All Three Points Essential.

The truth is that all three are absolutely essential in developing a product of genuine merit at a reasonable cost to the user. Financial strength means a good deal more than mere prosperity. It means that the product must have received a considerable amount of recognition among users. It means purchasing power that enables the manufacturer to buy from reliable sources at advantageous prices and in sufficient quantities to insure uniformity in the raw materials. It means capacity for expansion in buildings and equipment to take care of increased business without jeopardy to any part of the product. It means the devotion of both time and money to investigating anything that offers an opportunity for improvement in any department.

Design is the union of scientific theory, with common sense utility. That the finished product should work is not enough, because that is only part of the story. How efficiently it will work and at what cost is the real test. And this is a matter of development and experience. It is like a problem in mathematics—you cannot be sure of the answer until you can prove it.

The Problem of Manufacture.

Manufacture is a question of equipment and organization—the development of wonderful machinery and tools for the accurate and economical manufacture of the individual parts, and of manufacturing systems that eliminate lost motion.

Now as to the dealer. If the dealer is equipped only for the sale of cars, his value is questionable. But if he interprets service in the light in which service must necessarily be regarded by an honest dealer, and renders such service to his trade, he is an asset to the company he represents and to the owners who have given him their business.

LET THE ENGINE HELP.

Leave the clutch engaged while going down hill. The engine is a better safeguard than the brakes themselves.

Performance

Speed—regardless of all arguments for and against—the buyer of today demands speed.

He will use his own judgment as to when, where and how he will use it—but he does insist the maker build speed possibilities into his car.

Sixty miles per hour is the minimum requirement—and on occasion, the American owner, who thinks and acts in terms of time, wants sixty-five and more, always on call.

He has learned too, that the same reserve power—the same pulling quality—which make for extremely high speeds—also guarantee that his car will take any ordinary grade as if it were level, at thirty-five to forty-five miles per hour.

This (New Series) Rickenbacker Six is designed and built for the most critical and progressive class of buyer.

It will not only give you all the speed you desire under any conditions, but still more important, it is capable of sustained performance at very high speeds.

Step on her!—In less than 7 seconds she has passed the 25 M.P.H. point. In less than 11 seconds, 40, and in 19 seconds she is flying over the road at 50 miles per hour; and before your stop-watch records 30 seconds the speedometer registers 60.

Hold her there—an hour—two hours—all day!

The "red" in your motor-meter will hold as steadily below the safety point as your car will maintain its speed.

And there will be absolutely no variation in that, save at your own will.

Then, with her wonderful 4-wheel brakes, she will decelerate at an even faster rate.

In fact, this Rickenbacker Six responds to your every thought—seems as if she acts even before you have given the signal.

Here is a wonderfully built car—and therefore one of wonderful capabilities.

Perfect balance—marvellously accurate machining—the most advanced engineering principles.

Nothing less than the quality that is designed in and built into this Rickenbacker, can guarantee a phase of performance such as this.

Speed, more than you will ever need, for as long and as far as you will ever care to drive.

Drive this Rickenbacker Six yourself—'twill be a revelation to you.

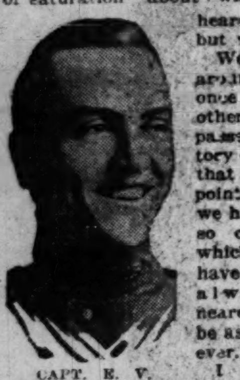
HAS ANYONE SEEN OLD MAN "POINT OF SATURATION"?

No Such Critter for the Auto, Says "Rick."

BY CAPT. E. V. RICKENBACKER

[Rickenbacker Motor Company.]

I am still searching for that "point of saturation" about which I have heard so much but never seen.



CAPT. E. V. RICKENBACKER.

We have gone around the circle once again — another year has passed into history — and still that mythical point about which we have been told so often, and which the glooms have predicted is always getting nearer, seems to be as far away as ever.

I refer, of course, to that theory which has been propounded by statistical theorists to the effect that some day, somehow, the production of certain commodities will reach a point where the volume can no longer be absorbed by customers.

Like many other superstitions, this one thrives in spite of the fact that no proof of its soundness has ever been forthcoming.

Voice of Glooms Fades.

True, we hear less of it these last two or three years, when the market is absorbing automobiles by the millions, than we did in the days when it required only a few hundred thousands to supply the annual demand; and the really gloomy prophesies originated in the days still farther back, when 10,000 cars were sufficient to supply a whole years' demand.

Now it is an interesting fact that history records no case where any kind of commodity has ever reached a "point of saturation." In some cases a certain commodity has been supplanted in the natural course of progress by invention of a better one, but even then, a need was still found for the more primitive type, and in quantities greater than ever. The bicycle is a case in point.

The thing that misleads the superficial thinker is the fact that he has seen the local or regional market flooded with some article at some time. As a matter of fact that does not prove that that article had been produced in excess of the general demand. It merely proved that at a certain place there was a surplus of a certain article for a certain brief period. At that same moment, at some other place there was an unsatisfied demand for that article.

Poor Sales Management.

The only problem involved, then, was one of transportation. More likely, the answer could be found in a faulty sales method. The sales department had miscalculated the needs of a certain territorial market, and as a result there was a momentary surplus at some points while a famine existed at others.

So far as the automobile is concerned, I maintain that inasmuch as California has proven it can afford (and now owns) one automobile for every two and a half individuals —men, women, and babies—of its population; and inasmuch as California's wealth is no greater per capita than that of many other states; that her natural wealth and possibilities are very much less than that of most, therefore, until there is an automobile for every two and a half people in the United States, we need not even look to the vast markets which are rapidly developing in other countries and on other continents.

Forty-four million motor cars will be required to fully equip the American public with adequate transportation facilities, according to the standard set by California. That is nearly three times as many as there are in existence today. And while we are trying to supply that demand, California, which to date shows no diminution in its capacity for absorbing cars, will be setting us a still higher quot at which to aim, while a few millions of those old cars now in service will need to be replaced.

Where Do They Go?

The natural question is "Where do they all go, and why are so many needed?"

I heard the same question asked ten years ago—twenty years ago. Inasmuch as there was no satisfactory answer then, I do not attempt to answer it now. I have never heard it satisfactorily answered—any more than it can be explained why some men of moderate means buy fifty-two neckties in a year.

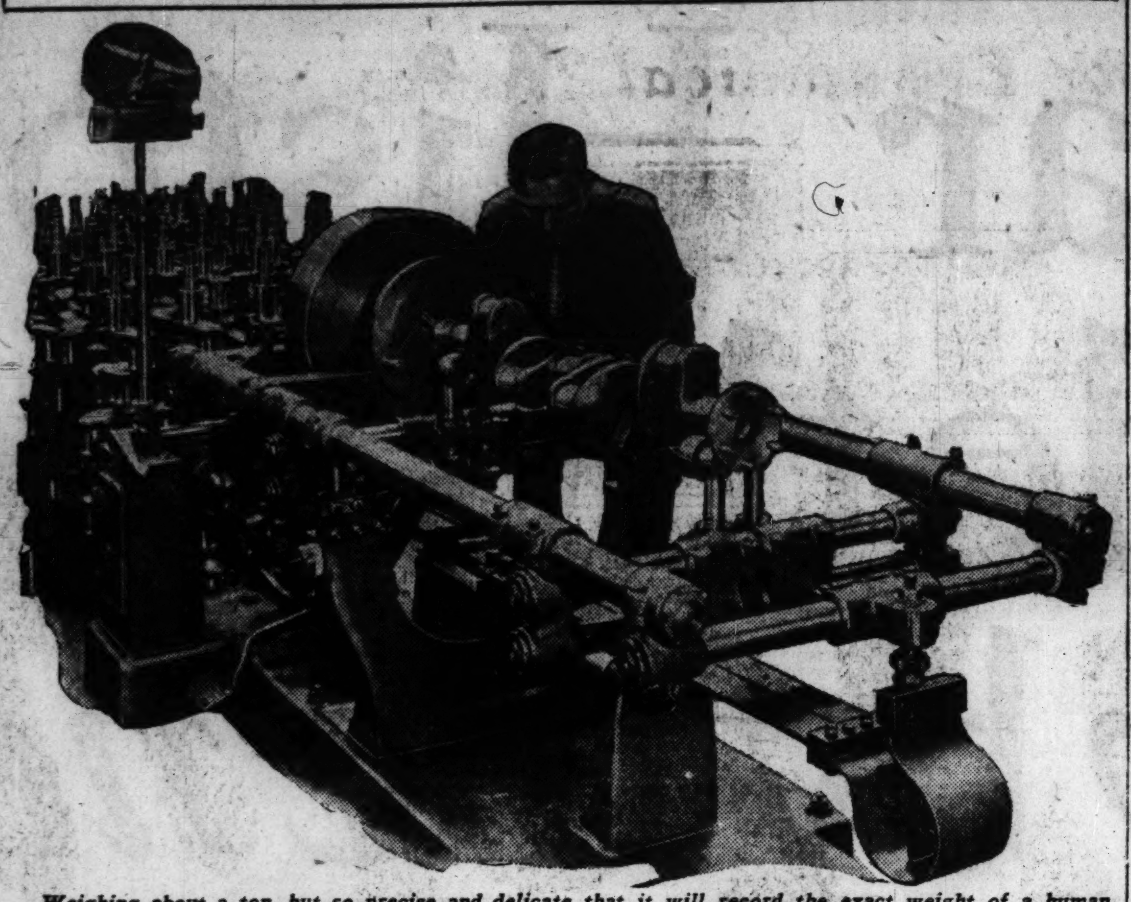
Logis and reason and all the other elements that do not enter into the transaction can explain that one necktie, or two at most, should suffice for any ordinary man. The fact, however, is that they are sold—and those who buy them must have a reason which is sufficient to themselves.

The Trade's One Worry.

For my part I long since ceased bothering about the answer to this question except that it must be met by supplying the cars.

We and all other manufacturers today are concerned, not so much with the question of who will buy the cars, but how many each of us will be able to contribute to meet next year's demand, which, from here, looks to be the biggest the industry has ever known.

WORLD'S CHAMPION BALANCER



Weighing about a ton, but so precise and delicate that it will record the exact weight of a human hair or the operator's breath, this remarkable machine typifies the strides taken by motor manufacturers since the day, twenty-five years ago, when cars were jammed together in tiny machine shops. The balancer is the invention of a university professor and has been in use by manufacturers less that two years. It is designed to balance crank shafts and makes three perfect calculations on the dial seen at the upper left before the shaft can be passed on to the motor assembly department. A Sure and Simple Cure for Screeching Brakes

Screeching brakes can be silenced by squirting a little kerosene on the brake bands. Until the kerosene dries the brakes will not be efficient; for this reason, therefore, the driver should remember to test them out a few times before using the car on the streets. A good way to dry off the kerosene by friction is to apply the brakes slightly for a short distance while driving the car in second gear.

RACING RECORDS TELL STORY OF AUTO'S PROGRESS

Engine Perfected by the Yankee Genius.

BY JAMES G. HEASLET.

[President Rollin Motors Company.]

A passion for perfection and a determination not to stop short of it has always characterized the automotive industry.

So compelling has been this determination that in only twenty-five years it has brought the automobile and the internal combustion engine to a high state of perfection not duplicated by any other mechanical device.

It was in 1878 that Dr. Otto brought out his celebrated engine at the Paris exhibition. This was the direct parent of the automobile engine of today. From 1878 to 1900—twenty-two years—think how little was done!

Speedway Record Shows Progress.

Then, about 1900, farseeing, open minded American executives became interested. Their impatience with imperfection, their fearlessness and farsightedness in experimentation have resulted in the marvelous mechanism of today. Perhaps the wonderful development of the automobile is due more than any other cause to their everlasting fresh enthusiasm.

The tremendous advance in the development of the internal combustion engine is shown by the records of the Indianapolis speedway. Piston displacement decreased 80 per cent, but power and speed increased 32 per cent at the same time—that's the trend and record of progress in automotive engineering since 1911.

In 1911 cars entered had 600 cubic inches of piston displacement and averaged 74.6 miles per hour. In 1924 piston displacement had been cut down to 122 cubic inches, but the average speed increased to 98.2 miles per hour.

More Power and Less Waste.

Piston displacement is the space swept through by the piston from the beginning to the end of the stroke. It gives the volume of gas that is drawn into the cylinder for each explosion.

Back in the old days we didn't exactly understand what was happening on the inside of a motor. We had not yet developed mechanical forms that would function with high efficiency. So we were forced to design large cylinders exploding large charges of gas to get sufficient power.

Later we learned more of the behavior of gasoline vapor. We evolved more efficient mechanisms. And we developed stronger and more durable alloys. It was possible to attain the same power at the rear wheels with less waste—so we now get along with a greatly curtailed volume of gas.

This tendency is shown most clearly and succinctly by the records of the Indianapolis speedway. This annual race is the laboratory of the industry. Here we experiment and learn the lessons that are soon after incorporated in stock cars. So the performance of racing cars in this event is paralleled only a little later by the cars you drive.

Figures Tell the Story.

Here is a table, giving piston displacements in cubic inches and speeds attained in each year, that shows clearly the tremendous progress in motor design:

Year.	Piston Displacement.	Average Speed M. P. H.
1911	600	74.60
1912	600	78.72
1913	450	75.93
1914	450	82.47
1915	300	89.84
1916	300	83.26
1919	300	88.06
1920	183	88.50
1921	183	89.62
1922	183	94.48
1923	122	90.95
1924	122	98.24

PEACE FETES TAKE BIGGER TOLL THAN WAR, THEY RECALL

Celebrating the signing of the Declaration of Independence has cost more lives than were lost in fighting the Revolutionary war, according to the safety bulletin for southern California schools published by the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Although Fourth of July celebrations are becoming less and less disastrous to life and limb, it is pointed out that there are other hazards that must be watched, such as the ever increasing number of automobiles.

Consistent vigilance and thought are urged as the best safety precautions.

California Credited with Best Motor Bus Service

California has the best motor bus service of any state in the union, according to speakers at the recent motor truck convention of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York. In California there is perhaps not a city or town of 1,500 population or over that is not served by interurban motor bus transportation. What already has happened in California is regarded as sure to come in other states of the union.

According to records of the Automobile Club of Southern California, there are several hundred towns in the state that are served entirely by motor vehicles.

CLEANING THE WINDSHIELD.

The easiest and best way to clean a windshield is to wipe it off with a wet chamois and rub dry with a clean cloth. A little kerosene in the water will help if the glass is dirty. This method of cleaning glass is to be recommended for closed cars as it does not scratch.

SAFETY COUNCIL'S WARNING STRESSES VALUE OF CHAINS

BY F. E. SPARKS.

[District Manager American Chain Co.]

When bad weather comes the motorist must add to his list of cautions the human ostrich who hides his face in his coat collar or behind an umbrella and rushes across the street in the face of traffic. He is first cousin to the driver who plunges ahead at his usual rate of speed in spite of low visibility and slippery pavements.

The safe driver must be on the lookout for both. He must keep his whole mind on the driving job, his eyes on the traffic in front of him, and his tire chains on his wheels. There is strain enough in watching what is going on in front of him, without adding worry about what his rear wheels will do in emergency.

"When rain begins to fall chains should be put on immediately," says a recent statement by the National Safety council. "The most dangerous period is just after the rain has started to fall. There is usually more or less grease on the streets, and until it has rained long enough to wash it off there is great danger of skidding.

"When tires are worn smooth the car is practically certain to skid if the brakes are applied suddenly. Chains should always be carried and put on after the first drop of rain. The motorist should follow the example of the taxicab driver in this respect.

"Proper fitting chains should be carried for both the rear wheels and for all four wheels if the car is four wheel driven. One chain is worse than no chains at all. The expense involved when a skidding car side swipes another car, a pedestrian, or a lamp post may be enough to buy chains for a whole fleet of motor cars."

PULLING ILLINOIS OUT OF MUD HAS BEEN TOUGH JOB

Good Roads Pioneer Tells of Battle.

BY WILLIAM G. EDENS.
President Illinois Highway Improvement Association.

Twenty-five years of automobile use and twenty-five years of good roads go hand in hand.

This is true not only in Illinois but all over the United States. Before the motor car became popular, the country needed roads, but without the automobile it is doubtful whether any great advance toward highway administration would have been made even at this date.

W. G. EDENS.

In 1900, when the first automobiles were used on the streets of Chicago, the country roads to nearby suburbs were seldom used for sightseeing except by owners of bicycles. There were a few macadam roads to places like Evanston, Oak Park, and Hinsdale, and to outlying cemeteries. For agricultural and commercial purposes, however, there were practically no hard roads.

Roads Often Impassable.

There was nothing but mud, which became practically impassable in the spring and fall, and during all stormy and rainy weather. The fertile agricultural districts in Will, Dupage, Kane, McHenry, and Lake counties were practically cut off from Chicago. Even the truck gardening districts on the outskirts of the city were regarded inaccessible places. Truck gardeners who brought their produce to the Randolph street market required a day to come to Chicago and a day to go home.

Downstate conditions were little better. The wonderful earth which produces the enormous crops of corn and other products of our agricultural domain makes poor roads.

Twenty-five years ago there were a few dreamers in Illinois who thought that some day the main highways might be improved, but they were marked men in their communities. They were generally regarded as the secret agents of conspiring monopolies that were trying to inveigle the commonwealth into a sea of debt from which it would never extricate itself.

First Move for Good Roads.

By 1903 some of the clear thinkers in the legislature began to see a public appreciation of the benefits of good roads, and developed the courage of their convictions.

So far as records go, Thomas Rees of Springfield, then a member of the Illinois senate, introduced the first measure, which may be said to have initiated the present good roads system of this state. In the Forty-third general assembly he introduced senate bill 505. The bill provided for the appointment of a good roads commission of three persons—a civil engineer, a highway commissioner, and a business man of high standing.

The commission was charged with the duty of investigating the various problems of road building in Illinois, involving the best and most economical native materials, road drainage, the distribution of costs for improvements, federal, state, and county aid, convict labor, etc. The commission was to serve without compensation and report to the next general assembly. The bill was passed and approved by Gov. Yates on May 15, 1903.

D. W. Smith of Springfield was made chairman of the commission. C. C. Mitchell of Chillicothe and Hugh Wallace, civil engineer of the Illinois Central railroad, were the other members. F. C. Dodds was the clerk of the commission.

When this commission undertook its work the question of improving the roads of the state gradually came up for discussion in the various counties, and a number of public meeting were held. The most opposition developed in the farming communities.

Farmers Fought Move.

In the spring of 1905 the good roads committees of the general assembly went, by invitation, to Champaign county to attend a meeting of the farmers of the four or five surrounding counties. Instead of being an open meeting to consider and discuss the question, the gathering turned into an enormous demonstration against good roads marked by a big procession.

Gov. Deneen, in his inaugural address in 1905, touched on the subject of improving highways, and gave it his indorsement. Under his administration the state good roads commission was quite active, and instituted researches which led to widespread publicity for the good roads movement. In the legislature Homer Tice and other members directed the appointment of a joint legislative investigating committee which held sessions for several months, and produced for the opening of the legislature in 1913 a voluminous report.

Gov. Dunne, in his inaugural message of 1913, advocated state and county aid in the building of main roads, and the use of convict labor in the preparation of road material. These recommendations coincided with the general recommendations of the so-called Tice commission, and brought about the first legislation which weaned Illinois away from the old township method of building roads. Under the township method, 4,800 highway commissioners in the 1,600 townships of the state constructed and managed the roads according to their own ideas, with no central directing force.

Right at this period the influence of the motor car asserted itself. What Illinois needed to pull itself out of the mud was a real public sentiment against the mud road, and in favor of the hard road. This sentiment was not crystallized until the motorists of Chicago combined and organized the Illinois Highway Improvement association.

At that time the Chicago Motor club was composed largely of the active members of the automobile trade along the Michigan avenue automobile row. These men were in close touch with the sentiment of dealers throughout the state and with the attitude of various commercial organizations, women's clubs, etc.

State Convention of 1912.

Under the administration of Charles E. Gregory, who was then president of the club, Richard J. Finnegan, chairman of the good roads committee of the Motor club, called a state convention at the Sherman house on March 12, 1912.

There had been many other state conventions on the subject of good roads, but the motor car dealers and owners who were rounded up for this convention by Henry Paulman, James Levy, F. E. Edwards, H. M. Van Sicklen, Thomas J. Hay, David Beecroft, and others forged an organization that created an irresistible force for remedial legislation.

William E. Hull of Peoria, now congressman from the Peoria district, Congressman Frank H. Funk of Bloomington, Thomas Sudduth of Springfield, and others from downstate counties were prominent in this convention.

The recommendations of Gov. Dunne and those of the Tice commission were enacted into law, and within a year or so Illinois had its first mile of road built under state direction.

Cry for Good Roads Swells.

When the people saw what permanent roads meant they demanded more and more roads. The $60,000,000 bond issue of 1918 was the natural result. This measure was framed under the direction of Gov. Lowden, who fathered the plan under which the entire principal and interest charges of the bonds were to be paid from the state automobile fees.

Under the Lowden administration the state highway department, Samuel E. Bradt, superintendent, and Clifford Older, engineer, with Frank I. Bennett, director of public works, established a high record in locating the state-wide system and constructing the first through routes.

The $100,000,000 bond issue of 1924, sponsored by Gov. Small, was another evidence of the desire of Illinois to get away as fast as possible from the worst and attain the best.

Other States Copy Illinois.

The success of Illinois in meeting its good roads problem led other states of the country to road improvements. The literature used in the Illinois campaigns has been in constant demand in nearly every state in the union, and even in foreign countries.

The first gasoline buggy that chugged its way up Michigan avenue ought to be preserved by the Chicago Historical society or in the museum of the Illinois Historical society at Springfield.

It should be decorated with a sign reading, "I Pulled Illinois Out of the Mud and Liberated 7,000,000 People from the Bondage of the Bottomless Road."

Here's the Car of Tomorrow as Trade Veteran Sees It

BY EDWARD S. JORDAN.
[President Jordan Motor Car Company.]

Picture the automobile industry as it will be twenty-five years from now.

E. S. JORDAN.

The big exhibition in New York this year was in celebration of the silver anniversary, or the twenty-fifth year of its marvelous progress.

Few engineers have the temerity to try to visualize the motor car of twenty-five years from now and its influence upon the progress of civilization.

Since the street car is chiefly an incubator for automobile prospects and the bus as a more flexible unit for group transportation will rapidly take its place, all short haul passenger transportation will be in busses, which will supplement the railroads. All short haul freight transportation will be in trucks, with the railroads carrying the long haul business.

Light Car Comes to Front.

There are nearly 18,000,000 motor cars in the United States today, but there are scarcely more than 3,000,000 in all the world beside.

The light weight, economical, high speed little car is coming rapidly. It was only necessary for us to start the movement which resulted in the construction of 45,000 miles of wonderful roads during the last few years to make this a certainty.

American built motor cars are stronger, sturdier, and better than any other cars in the world. They have to be because of the condition of the roads in many states of the Union during certain periods of the year. This means that we will dominate the markets of the world, because we not only have designed for satisfactory operation under all road conditions, but we have developed a production system which is the marvel of the world. This means large production at low cost and economy as the basis of transportation progress.

Sees a Car for Every One.

Small cars will appear in great numbers in Europe. Styles in motor cars travel with the sun from east to west. The big, bulky car, carrying a large number of people, will give way to what might be called family fleets of little cars. Father, mother, daughter, and son will drive their own because the convenience of one member of the family cannot be sacrificed for the needs of the other members.

Cities are spreading at lightning speed, shopping centers are springing up in all suburban sections of the cities of the United States. Every woman will demand her own car, and the daughters and sons will have theirs.

Ther are 25,000,000 families in the United States. Therefore, we have several million families yet to supply before we begin to approach any saturation point domestically; but we have millions of people in all the nations of the world to supply before we can talk about any real saturation point.

The Car of the Future.

Cars will be built with a shorter wheel base, lighter high speed motors with greater economy of gas, tires, and upkeep.

Imagine the possibilities in aluminum if an aluminum alloy, which has now been developed, could be produced at the price of steel. Aluminum sells for about 28 cents a pound and steel for about 3 cents. That development will come, and with it a revolution in the economies of railroad, passenger car, and truck transportation.

Little cars selling for $200 or $300 apiece, designed in good taste and equipped with inclosed bodies, will carry the millions of people throughout the world who must have individual transportation.

Three hundred motor cars were built in the year 1895. Then it was an engineer's problem merely to make them run. Ten years later 25,000 were produced, but they didn't run satisfactorily. Frequently they stopped on the road.

Sees 1925 as Biggest Year.

Then the Society of Automotive Engineers began to standardize parts and improve their efficiency. That gave the production man his chance, and ten years later, in 1915, nearly 900,000 cars were produced. The production man was having his inning. Low cost production had established the industry on a firm basis.

In 1924 about 3,500,000 cars were produced. Nineteen hundred and twenty-five will see a production of close to 4,000,000, because the purchasing power of the country is increasing every day.

Nineteen hundred and twenty-five will be the biggest year the industry has ever seen.

DOLLAR NOW BUYS MORE AUTO THAN DID 1915 DOLLAR

Only Trade That Has Old Hi Cost Beaten.

BY D. A. BURKE.

[President Peerless Motor Car Company.]

Greater value is received today in motor cars, tires and gasoline than in practically any other commodity in general use.

As a matter of fact, these three things are the only ones I can think of at the moment in which the buyer receives more for his money today than he did ten years ago.

In computing the purchasing power of the dollar of today, the National Automobile chamber of commerce has used the 1913 dollar as a working basis. With this as a standard, we find that the dollar of 1913 now buys 111 cents worth of automobiles, 123 cents worth of tires and 101 cents worth of gasoline.

Dollar's Value in Other Lines.

As a somewhat violent contrast to this, consider the advance in cost of living in general. Here we find that the 1913 dollar is worth only 61 cents. Today your dollar buys approximately 51 cents worth of clothing, 60 cents worth of shoes, 68 cents worth of food, 53 cents worth of furniture and house furnishings.

As every one knows, rents have soared in the last ten or eleven years. We find that throughout the country the dollar is worth an average of 61 cents in rent as compared to ten years ago. In building, either frame, brick or concrete, your 1913 dollar is worth less than 50 cents. In farm crops your buying power is somewhat greater, almost 75 cents, and live stock comes close to the par of ten years ago, bringing 98 cents worth.

Why Auto Dollar Buys More.

There is a definite reason why you can buy greater value in automobiles now than you could a decade ago. In spite of the great advances made in automobile design and efficiency, the manufacturing processes have been refined and improved to such an extent that the car of today is much less costly to build than that of 1913. Also, increased production has put leading car manufacturers in a position to buy materials and parts much more cheaply than was possible a few years ago.

All these things are in favor of the car buyer. He not only gets considerably more for his money than he did ten years ago, but it is safe to say that this value will continue to increase in the future.

Buyers Eye Maintenance Cost.

Purchasers of high grade cars are watching maintenance costs far more closely than ever before. This is one of the points developed by a survey recently completed among our owners.

The man who owned a high grade car used to be satisfied to pay a comparatively high price to keep his car in good running condition. He regarded high upkeep expense as incidental to the greater comfort and luxury which he enjoyed. That is not the case today. He has learned it isn't necessary. No matter how much a man pays for his car, he gets tired of continually digging into his pockets for repairs and replacements later.

MRS. HOUSEWIFE, HAS MOTOTERIA FOUND YOU YET?

A new, more sanitary and highly economical method of food distribution, which promises to completely revolutionize the entire grocery industry and to change the shopping habits of America's twenty-five million housewives, is spreading throughout the nation.

Mototeria is the name which has been applied to this latest development in the grocery field—a name which will soon be a byword in every American household.

Imagine a nationwide system of food distribution which brings, daily, to the very doors of twenty-five millions of busy housewives, complete grocery and vegetable stores, meat markets and drug stores, so that the women, instead of being forced to dress and walk many blocks to the store, will merely step out to the curb in front of their homes and do all of their food purchasing in the complete stores which arrive each day with the precision of a railroad train.

Mototeria—read it and mark it well, because one of these fine mornings it is going to roll up in front of your home, and from thence forward it will become a factor in your daily life.

Mototeria is the invention, invention is the proper word, because it is protected with no less than fourteen patents, of L. B. Watson, president of the Mototeria company of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Watson has been a practical grocer, also a motor truck merchandiser.

The Mototeria bodies are mounted on specially designed chassis manufactured by the Republic Motor Truck company, Inc., Alma, Mich.

POOR GAS GIVES MOTOR INDUSTRY A DEAL OF WORRY

But Ways Are Found to Solve the Problem.

BY CLYDE S. PELTON.

[President Carburetor Company.]

The problem of proper fueling is commanding much serious attention from automotive engineers.

There are many reasons. First and foremost is the matter of operating economy, which car owners have the right to expect. Then there are the many details of a car's performance which can be materially improved by proper carburetion followed by efficient distribution of fuel to the cylinders.

The average motorist realizes, of course, that the gasoline we are getting today is far from being the gasoline of ten years ago, or even five years ago. But only a few realize or understand the difference and just what it means.

"Wet Mixture" from Gas Today.

Most people have the impression that all the fuel goes into the engine in the form of a dry gas mixed with air. Ten years ago this was true. Today it is not, even when the engine is hot. Present day fuel contains much kerosene. It cannot be completely vaporized in any practical way, regardless of claims to the contrary, but gives us a "wet mixture" that is considerably more difficult to handle than dry gas.

This is not the fault of the refiners. It is utterly impossible for them to provide enough of the old high test gasoline to go around today, or even to supply a small fraction of the demand.

Evils of Uneven Distribution.

No matter how perfectly a carburetor may function, it is impossible to get good carburetion or good combustion if the fuel ratios are entirely distorted before they reach the cylinders—if one cylinder gets 40 per cent more fuel than another cylinder. This may seem like an extreme difference, but it is not at all unusual. Such a difference can even exist without the motorist knowing he is getting uneven distribution.

The results of uneven distribution are many. Among them are excessive carbon, crankcase dilution, fouled plugs, piston wear, cylinder wear, carbon monoxide gas and wasted fuel.

The only way to fuel economy lies through a perfected system of carburetion combined with a method of manifolding designed especially to handle the heavy gasoline of 1925.

TRUCK INDUSTRY IS READY FOR DIVORCE FROM AUTO TRADE

More commercial motor vehicles will be manufactured and sold in 1925 than during any previous year in the history of the industry according to Otto Stoll, vice president and general manager of the General Motors Truck company. In fact it is likely that this year will work a new epoch, one that definitely and for all time will separate the commercial vehicle industry from that of the privately owned and operated passenger car, he believes.

"In virtually every line of service utilizing motor transport, either for freight or passenger, the missionary work has been done," Mr. Stoll says. "The value of motor trucks has been proven to all.

"A large field is that of passenger transportation by motor buses. During the last year street railway concerns adopted buses as feeders to their systems, while hundreds of new bus lines have been established. This is only the beginning. During the coming year it is likely that thousands of comparatively small buses, with seating capacity of not more than twenty, will be installed on interurban routes and will act as feeders to larger urban buses.

"The industry is better than ever before to meet the situation. From an engineering standpoint, commercial vehicles are far better than heretofore. The steady increase in the lines of service to which they have been put in recent years has given engineers wide and valuable experiences. These experiences have resulted in greatly improved products.

"In the bus field great advancements have been made. No longer are recognized buses just a makeshift arrangement of a body placed on a truck chassis—they are a specially designed vehicle to meet predetermined requirements. This factor will do much to increase the use of buses in passenger transportation.

"From the manufacturing and sales angles, commercial vehicle companies have passed through all the rigors of readjustment, with the result that the sound and leading concerns of the country have their factories and selling organizations working on solid and economical foundations.

THINKS 8 YEARS TOO MUCH TO ASK OF A CAR TODAY

He'd Reckon Its Life in Miles, Not Years.

BY CLARENCE E. ELDRIDGE.

[Manager Chicago Branch, Reo Motor Co.]

What is the average life of an automobile?

More specifically, has the average life of automobiles increased in recent years, and, if so, about how much?

Recent analysts of the automobile industry, in attempting to estimate the number of automobiles that will have to be built annually for replacement purposes, have put the average life of today's automobile at seven and a half to eight years. At the imminent risk of being called an iconoclast—or something equally terrible—I must dissent. The estimate is altogether too liberal. Five years would be much nearer the correct figure.

The Analysts' Idea.

The reasoning of the analysts—who include one banker, who is usually well informed on matters pertaining to the automobile industry, and one equally well informed newspaper commentator—follows:

Ten years ago the average life of an automobile was probably three and a half to four years; automobiles are being constantly improved so as to give more service; they are probably twice as good now as they were ten years ago; therefore the average life of the automobiles being built today is probably seven and one-half or eight years.

The argument is sound, except that one vital fact has been overlooked. It probably is true that the average automobile today is better than it was ten years ago—although at that it is at least debatable as to how much longer manufacturers can worship the price god without cutting into the quality somewhere.

It may even be true that automobiles are twice as good as they were ten years ago—and still the conclusion would be unwarranted.

Would Measure Life in Miles.

The factor that so far has been completely ignored is that the life of automobiles can be measured only in one way—in miles. To say that today's automobile is built to give twice as many miles of service as the automobiles of ten years ago isn't at all equivalent to saying that they are built to give twice as many years of service.

Driving conditions have changed in the last ten years—and most radically. Ten years ago all cars were open cars. That meant that winter driving had not become popular. Hard roads throughout the country were unknown—unthought of, almost. That meant that the driving radius was limited. The average automobile in those days was probably driven no more than 4,000 to 4,500 miles per year—and even that distance was driven at much lower average speeds than are common today.

Today the average mileage per year is probably at least 10,000 miles, and 15,000 to 20,000 is not at all uncommon. And the long stretches of smooth, hard road make possible sustained speeds of from thirty-five to fifty miles per hour.

Consequently the automobile that ten years ago would have been subjected to possibly 20,000 miles of driving—at moderate speeds—in its lifetime of five years, is now asked to give that distance, at higher speeds and under much greater strain, in two years. Consequently, even if the cars today are two and one-half times as good as they were ten years ago—which I very much doubt—their life, measured in years, is probably no greater than the life of the 1914 car.

I think, therefore, that it is unfair to the buying public—and, therefore, ultimately unfair to the automobile industry itself—to create an impression that automobiles will stand up under eight years of the hard driving and the tremendous mileage that is asked of present day cars.

Three Auto Body Firms United in Big Merger

The recent consolidation of the C. R. Wilson Body company, the Towson Body company, and the J. C. Widman Body company, all of Detroit, into the Murray Body corporation is one of the largest deals of recent years. Prominently identified with the organization of the new company are J. W. and R. Murray, Carl Higbie, and James O'Rourke.

Motor Cars of a Different School

The development of the New Case Ten-Year Car has been accomplished with mathematical certainty by adding greater reliability, better performance and economy, and further comfort to a car already proven fine—and subtracting those elements that cause minor troubles and hasten depreciation.

In the production of this new car, guesswork has been eliminated. Case Engineers know the "Endurance Factor" of every part. They measure durability with the same certainty as engineers measure dimensions. Every improvement in design and manufacture is based on this fundamental knowledge.

This scientific, orderly method of refinement and improvement, used by Case for many years, has developed each part to a high degree of perfection. By properly co-ordinating these parts of known endurance, a Ten-Year Car has been produced.

The performance of this new car will be a delightful revelation even to those accustomed to the finest cars. It will appeal to those who see the fallacy of buying a motor car every two or three years and demand ten years of superior performance, unfailing reliability and enduring style.

The chassis embodies important improvements not found in any other car. By charmingly simple lines its good appearance has been made permanent. Whether you will be driving one of these cars in its tenth year or not (and someone will), you can be sure of its continuous, quiet and economical operation.

GARDNER

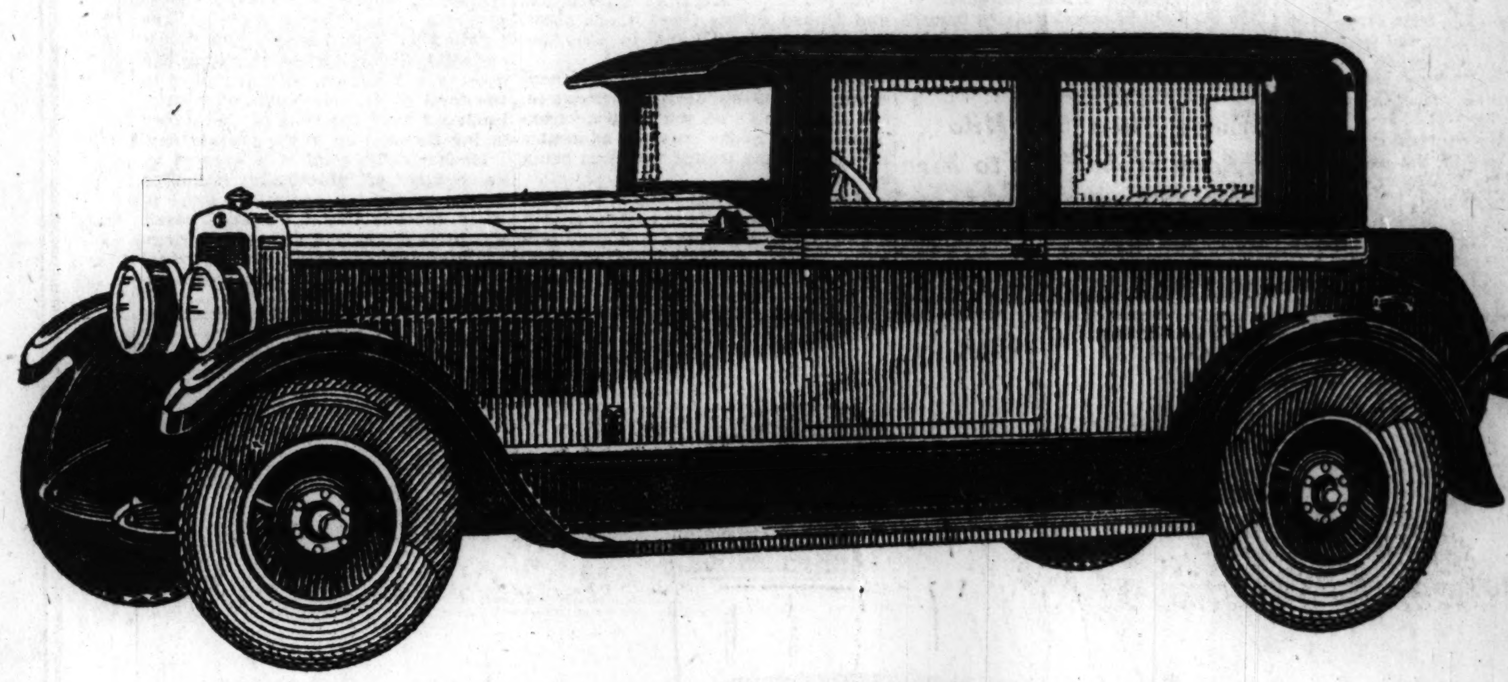
A New Six! A New Eight-in-line!

Here's the unusual in motor car design and value. Advanced European-style bodies—miles ahead in beauty. New lines—new features—new comforts—new conveniences and typical Gardner performance in these fine Sixes and Eights.

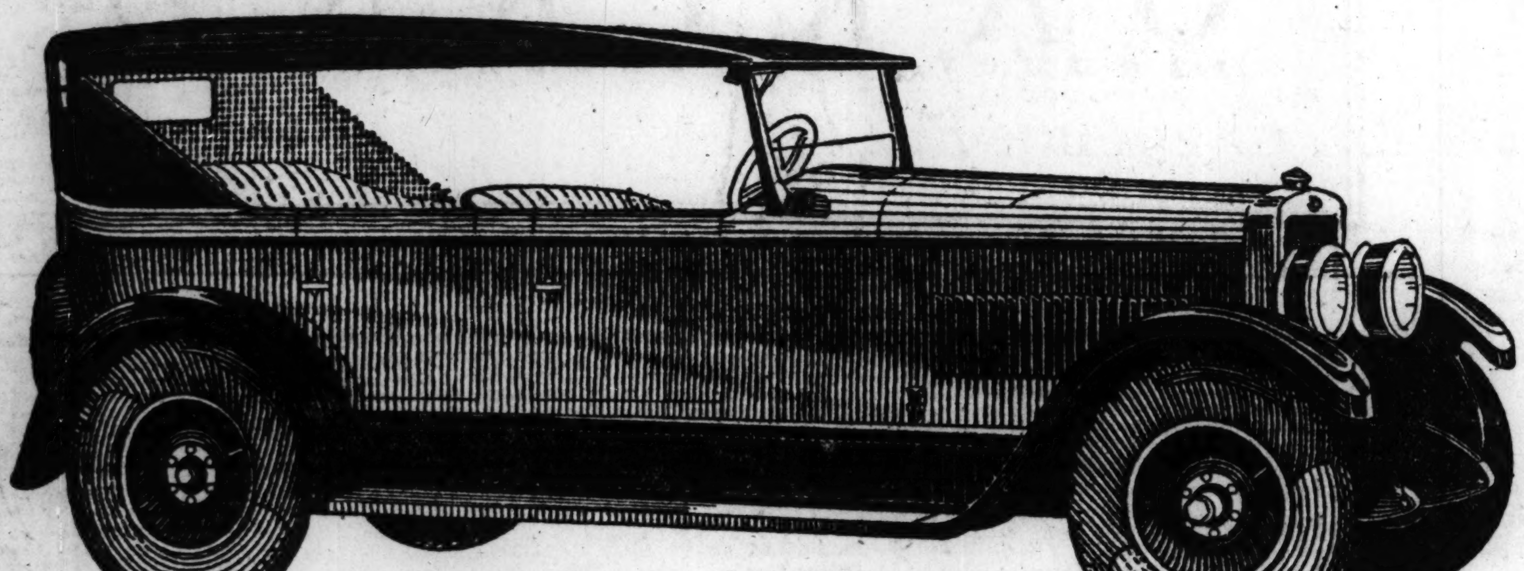
Eight in line

Closed Car at Same Price as Open

$1995



Beauty and simplicity are its keynotes in bodies and chassis. Long, low-swung chassis—125-inch wheelbase. Roomy body done in rich two-tone combinations of Duco—75-horsepower engine—full-size balloon tires—snubbers front and rear—5 disteel wheels—enclosed 4-wheel brakes. The Brougham has full plate glass windows—rich velour upholstery—satin-finish hardware—automatic lifts on four windows—automatic windshield wiper—unit instrument panel, indirectly lighted—every quality feature you could wish for and no price penalty for closed car comfort and protection—both open and closed models $1995.



the new Six

Worthy Companion of the Eight

$1395

A big, powerful, sturdy Six with all the advanced beauty and comfort features characteristic of the new Gardner Eight-in-line. Wheelbase, 117 inches. Fascinating European-style body sweeping back from gleaming nickeled radiator. Broad, double-crown fenders curving gracefully over big, full-size balloon tires. Enclosed brakes on all four wheels. Natural wood wheels, 58-inch rear springs. Duco body finish—rich two-tone combinations. A car complete in every sense. An astonishing value. Three body types, Touring, Brougham, 4-door Sedan furnished on each chassis.

You will find a complete Gardner line—the new Eight, the new Six and the Four—on display in Section 9 at the Show.

GARDNER PERFORMANCE AND DURABILITY HAVE NEVER BEEN QUESTIONED

AUTO RATED AS 5TH NECESSITY OF LIFE TODAY

And Once It Was Just a Sideshow Freak!

BY H. J. ROSENBERG.
[President Chicago-Flint Company.]

The automobile industry is celebrating its twenty-fifth birthday. And the world is celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary which marks the greatest progress in the way of transportation since the beginning of time.

Transportation today is the fifth essential of life and the first essential of progress. Food is first, raiment second, shelter third, heat is fourth, and transportation is fifth.

The automobile has changed the complexion of the civilized world. Our entire method of living has been transformed. The automobile today is recognized as one of the chief essentials.

What Auto Has Done.

What has the automobile done? It has increased land values, because farmers have been brought closer to the markets and farming has been made more profitable and pleasant.

The physician today would be helpless without his motor. The automobile saves him his time in reaching patients.

The personal efficiency of all business men has been increased. The salesman covers more territory in less time.

We all appreciate that automobiling is a healthful recreation for all.

Brings Era of Good Roads.

The automobile has been directly responsible for the better road movement in this country. Hundreds of thousands of miles of better roads have been built since the inception of the motor car.

The automobile enables rural communities to enjoy all the advantages of the city and city folk to enjoy all the pleasures of the country.

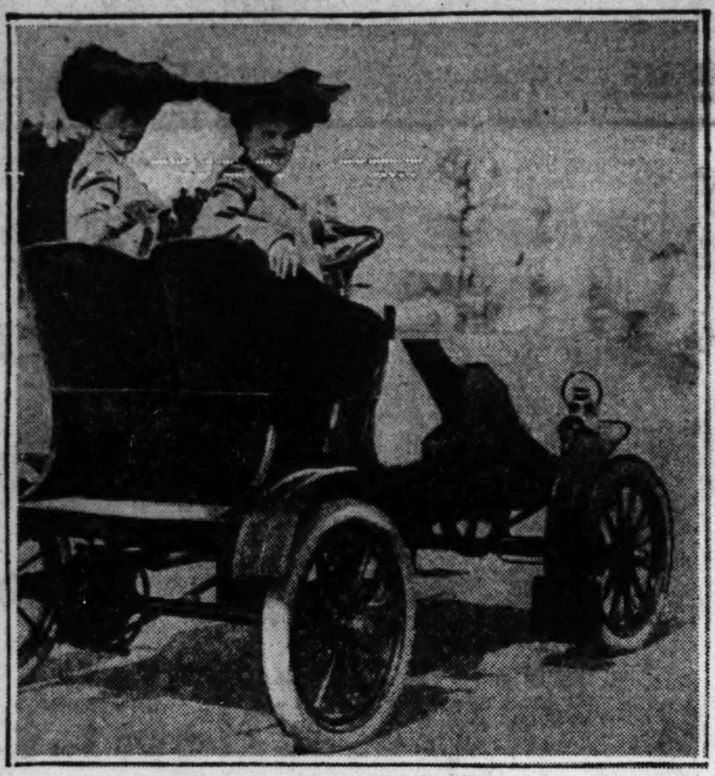
In the light of the present development it is interesting to recall the hardships of the automobile pioneers. In 1896 Barnum & Bailey looked upon the automobile as a freak and a toy. It was an attraction in one of their sideshows. They charged 10 cents admission to see a crude self-propelled vehicle travel around a circular track.

Barred by Boston.

Boston would not allow the first motor car to use the streets at all until 9 o'clock at night. A New Yorker was arrested for trying to drive one of the new contraptions in Central park.

In the light of present racing records it is interesting to note that the fact that the first race was won by a car going five and one-half miles an hour.

BOULEVARD VAMPS OF '04



It's not so difficult to remember 'way back when this sort of thing made gossip for the villagers and only the bravest of the fair had the temerity to trust themselves to the new horseless "contraptions." This picture was snapped in 1904 and featured in eastern papers.

France Plans 500 Mile Road from Paris to Nice

Plans for the construction of a special automobile road from Paris to Nice are being considered in France. The intention is to build the road as straight as possible. It will be about 500 miles long.

Birmingham Prepares for Big Auto Conventions

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 24.—Considerable interest is being manifested throughout the country in the thirteenth annual convention of the United States Good Roads association, the ninth annual convention of the Bankhead National Highway association, and United States Good Roads show, all of which will meet in Houston, Tex., April 21 to 25.

The tentative program of these events are being carefully prepared, and acceptances on the program from prominent good roads advocates throughout the United States is being received.

Already three United States senators, four congressman, four governors, ten highway commissioners, and engineers have accepted places on the program. It is expected that more than a dozen governors will be in attendance.

REFINEMENT OF CAR NOT LIMITED TO RICH BODIES

Word Also Describes Its Mechanical Progress.

BY EUGENE SILVER.
[Chicago Cole Distributor.]

If it is correctly used and understood there is no one word which more thoroughly explains progress in the building of motor cars of the highest grade than that one word, refinement.

The word has been used loosely at times, to create a general atmosphere of elegance, but actually it has two specific meanings, both of which definitely specify what the industry is attempting when it applies itself to the task of creating a car in which, both in chassis and body, the highest standard of quality is the goal.

Vibration Problem Solved.

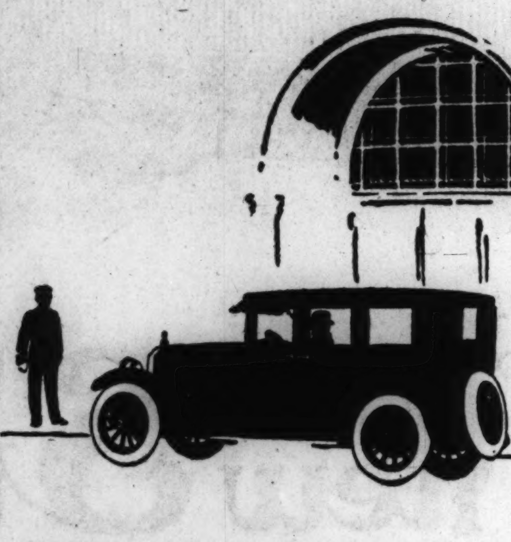
The first meaning of the word refinement is the act of freeing from impurities, dross, or extraneous matter. Elimination of vibration, lessening of wear, increase of engine efficiency—in fact, all of the improvement in the chassis of the car to make it the nearest possible approach to the ideal, are matters of refinement in this first and primary meaning of the word.

Elimination of engine vibration at all speeds is an end toward which the industry has worked for many years. It adds to riding comfort and conduces to longer car life.

Palaces on Wheels.

There is a derived meaning of refinement, which is the act of making polished or elegant, and in this sense refinement applies particularly to the progress that is being made in the building of fine bodies. Our finest closed bodies are virtual traveling palaces in comparison with anything in the form of an individual conveyance produced from the time of the luxury loving Romans up to the present day.

Mechanically, comfort is assured by an engine of practically unlimited power, smooth in operation and of great dependability. On the chassis weight is properly distributed, springs are correctly designed, and the wheel base is determined to give the maximum of riding comfort.



ONLY PACKARD CAN BUILD A PACKARD

QUALITY CARS AT LOWER PRICES

It is interesting to note that the remarkable price revisions recently announced on all enclosed models of the Packard Six were made in the midst of one of the most prosperous years the Packard Motor Car Company has ever enjoyed.

The Revised Prices, at Detroit

Five Passenger Sedan	($790 reduction)	$2585
Seven Passenger Sedan	($840 reduction)	2785
Five Passenger Sedan Limousine	($640 reduction)	2785
Seven Passenger Sedan Limousine	($790 reduction)	2885
Four Passenger Coupe	($690 reduction)	2585
Five Passenger Coupe	($765 reduction)	2685

Many will ask how such unusual price reductions can be made without to the slightest extent sacrificing anything in the car—beauty of line, perfection of finish or quality in either chassis or body.

Fisher Body Improvements Have Revolutionized Buying

Buick Chandler Chrysler Oakland
Cadillac Chevrolet Cleveland Oldsmobile

The question, "Is this a Body by Fisher?" has lately taken on an added significance in the buyer's mind because of notable Fisher improvements.

In every price division, Fisher has added measurably to the initial value of the purchaser's dollar, and to the re-sale value of his car.

Only Fisher's immense facilities could have produced the extraordinary line of coach bodies now to be found on the country's leading cars.

So profound has been the effect of the new Coach Bodies by Fisher that a far reaching re-adjustment of values has resulted.

Think of a public appreciation of the Fisher achievement so enthusiastic that more than half a million closed car bodies will be required in 1925!

You Will Find These Revolutionary Improvements In All New Fisher Bodies

1. The Fisher Vision-Ventilation windshield—a new, exclusive type (patents applied for) one piece. No thumb screws, metal quadrants, braces nor handles. The Fisher V-V windshield gives complete and clear vision, and consequently is a notable improvement in safety. Operates as easily as any window in the car. Distinguished for its improvement in appearance.

2. An invisible, positive acting, scientific ventilator. This exclusive Fisher feature makes the old cowl and roof ventilators positively obsolete. It operates instantly; puts fresh air in remotest corners; gives little or much air; reduces drafts; practically invisible.

3. New features and standards. Body is combined wood and metal construction. New Fisher engineering methods and factory practices provide adequate strength with necessary flexibility successfully to meet the trying conditions of motor car service.

4. Interchangeability of parts. Fisher bodies are standardized. Doors, cushions, glass, hinges, windshields, etc., are interchangeable. This is one of the most appreciated advantages offered to owners of Fisher bodied cars. Service parts are cataloged.

5. New degree of luxury in all price divisions. Even in the lowest priced Fisher equipped cars, note the high quality of upholstery, and the extraordinary room, depth and comfort of cushions. All new Fisher bodies equipped with hardware of our own design and manufacture, including window regulators, scuff plates, adjustable door bumpers, door handles and lighting equipment. No nicety is omitted.

6. Leaders in beauty of line and finish. Fisher's enormous business justifies and our organization includes a staff of leading artists, designers and engineers. As a result all Fisher Bodies are beautifully proportioned and artistically finished. In style qualities, Fisher sets the pace for the entire motor car industry.

ROAD BUILDERS LAG BEHIND IN RACE WITH AUTO

Billion a Year Is Needed for Twenty Years.

BY BLAINE S. SMITH.

[President Portland Cement Association.]

Few silver jubilees have celebrated such significant progress as that made by the motor car industry in twenty-five years.

BLAINE S. SMITH.

Transportation has always been of prime importance to the human race. Some of the most marvelous advances that history records have been due mainly to transportation development. One can paint a picture of progress in this country solely by visualizing the period of the Indian travaux, the ox cart, the stage coach, the canal, the railway, and the motor car.

The greater the flexibility of transportation the greater its efficiency. And no other modern form of transport is more dependent upon the roadbed than is the motor vehicle.

Born Into Roadless World.

A peculiar thing about the tremendous development of the automobile industry is the fact that the motor car was born into a roadless world. Railways had their roadbeds developed coincident with their rolling stock. The automobile came to us with ability to go anywhere, but no way of getting there, for roads which had admirably served the needs of horse drawn, steel tired traffic were rapidly raveled and torn to pieces by the swiftly moving, high powered, rubber tired motor car and truck.

The automobile therefore had to carry a double load from the start. It had to be a missionary. It had to establish itself as a necessity, because for a number of years it served as a plaything for the rich and was the bane of every horse owner's existence in encouraging runaways.

In order to prove itself a necessity the motor car had to create a desire for good roads, for without them it was practically worthless. It was a rocky road in more ways than one that motor cars had to travel, but its early missionary work in stressing the need for good highways quickly bore fruit, with the result that the business of automobile building sowed the seeds that created the busines of highway building that in so few years has grown to such great proportions.

Road Builders Lag in Race.

But the honors of the race thus far belong to the motor car, for automobile production has far outstripped highway building, even though giant strides have been made toward providing even, dustles, rigid roadways for the twentieth century vehicle supreme.

To picture the pace of automobile production and modern highway building, one group of figures is sufficient. In 1917 the total production of automobiles and motor trucks placed the automotive industry in the billion dollar class. It was not until 1923 that highway building joined the group of billion dollar industries. But in 1923 the motor car industry passed into the two billion dollar class.

Perhaps the gap between motor car production and permanent highway building has remained wide because it took time to determine what type of highway construction would meet the needs of the motor car, and would at the same time justify adoption because of probable long life and ultimate economy.

It is a long step from the road boss of a quarter century ago, with his team of township mules and laboring crew composed of farmer taxpayers working out their poll tax a day or two at a time on the township highways.

There's Cheer in Detour Signs.

Today any aggrvation caused by countless detour signs is far less than the good cheer which they hold forth to the motorist. For every detour sign means that if you will stop your car a while, get out and walk past the temporary barriers and follow the piles of sand and stone along the right of way, you will come to a scene of activity in which narrow gauge locomotives and dump cars on miniature tracks, motor trucks, pipe lines, perhaps miles of them, and concrete mixers are contributing to the preparation of concrete.

Careful inspection will reveal that the material which this machinery is compounding and placing upon a carefully prepared subgrade is being mixed and handled almost with the exactness and care that a druggist would use in filling a doctor's prescription.

It is no accident that, of all types of so-called permanent highway pavement, concrete is in the lead. That preference will continue to grow, because any motorist will drive on concrete in preference to other roads when he has an opportunity to make a choice.

SERVICE CALLS OFFER HINT FOR WINTER DRIVING

BY JOHN A. NICHOLS.

[Sales Manager, Dodge Bros.]

Service station records everywhere always disclose a startling increase in the number of relief calls as soon as severe weather comes.

"Freezing up" is the motorist's prize nuisance.

From which it would seem that automobile buyers would ask twice about the starting system of the car they have in mind before assuming the rôle of ownership. And that manufacturers generally should insist upon more intensive development of electrical starting equipment.

Records of the emergency road service department of the Detroit Automobile club disclose some interesting information on the subject of motor troubles—information that bears close scrutiny by manufacturers, dealers, and car owners alike. This club, with 39,000 members, is the third largest in the country and its records are so kept that one can tell at a glance what the chief source of trouble is in almost any car built.

The following table affords an interesting comparison of how these troubles vary in winter and summer:

	Sept., 1923.	Jan., 1924.
Tire trouble	68	64
Out of fuel	34	80
Stuck in mud	5	0
Carburetor	8	80
Tow in	46	250
Can't start	162	675
Battery and ignition	53	73
Miscellaneous	38	20
Totals	414	1,242

It will be observed that the number of tows and failures to start predominate by a wide margin in January.

It is thus clearly apparent that the wise motor car buyer should consider efficiency of carburetor, starter, and generator before making his choice of any all year automobile.

WHEN TO RELEASE CLUTCH.

When driving on wet streets the clutch should never be released except at the last moment to prevent the engine from stalling. Always apply brakes gradually.

40 FOOT ROADS URGED AS REAL TAX ECONOMY

Sponsor of Idea Praises Illinois Program.

BY F. B. SEARS.

[President Elcar Motor Company.]

America's main highways should be standardized as to width—forty feet from edge to edge. The national, state and county governments should work in harmony on that program as the most economical and most satisfactory from every viewpoint. That type of road, while naturally costing more, will last much longer and thereby bring real dividends to the taxpayers in lengthened years of service and fewer repair costs.

The early concrete roads were scarcely fifteen feet wide. In some sections a strip of gravel on each side permitted one car to pass another with a moderate degree of safety. Frequently there was just a sprinkling of gravel, and these "aprons" became unsafe.

Then roads were widened to twenty feet and up to thirty. A forty foot width would assure two lanes of travel in either direction and is therefore most desirable from any standpoint.

Praise for Illinois.

Illinois is to be complimented on her concrete road achievements and her healthy plans for the future. In 1924 Illinois completed nearly twice as great a mileage as any of her sister states.

When 1924 began Illinois had the equivalent of 2,991 miles of concrete pavement eighteen feet wide and was surpassed then only by California, with 3,288 miles. New York was then trailing with 2,241 miles, and Pennsylvania followed with 2,083 miles. But California had built only 1,563,929 square yards in 1924 up to Nov. 1, as compared wtih 10,617,073 square yards in Illinois.

Illinois has been the leader in concrete road construction for the last three years. In 1924 it built more than a sixth of all the concrete highways constructed in the nation; in 1923 it built more than a fifth of the nation's total, and in 1922 it laid considerably more than an eighth of the aggregate yardage of the country.

In 1923 the yardage in Illinois was 11,005,959, and the year before 6,603,025. For the United States as a whole the figures for three years are 57,444,970 in 1924, 54,888,224 in 1923, and 46,994,118 in 1922.

Comparison by Figures.

Illinois' superiority in road construction is shown in the following tabulation, as compared with other states in which there has been extensive concrete road construction

	1924. Sq. yds.	1923. Sq. yds.
Illinois	10,617,073	11,005,959
Indiana	4,053,596	2,890,724
Michigan	5,669,370	3,365,633
Iowa	1,028,310	1,008,529
Wisconsin	549,976	4,567,117
Pennsylvania	5,814,514	3,853,018
New York	5,309,568	4,191,067
Ohio	2,255,829	2,586,706
California	1,563,929	1,737,107

In 1922 the nearest competitor to Illinois in road building was Pennsylvania, with 4,879,937 square yards. Wisconsin came next with 3,484,144; New York followed with 3,476,922, and California trailed with 3,156,617.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER.

Fine sandpaper, not emery cloth, should be used to clean the generator commutator. Hold a little piece of sandpaper against the revolving commutator with a small stick with a flat end until its surface becomes bright. Emery cloth or paper should never be used, as the filings will do injury to the generator.

STURDY BUILD MAKES U. S. CAR WORLD'S BEST

And It Matches Finest Made in Europe.

BY J. D. MOONEY.

[President General Motors Export Company, Vice President General Motors Corp.]

As we consider the volume of American automobile exports for the year just closed—a volume greater even than in the years 1919 and 1920, when the world was literally denuded of manufactured products by the war—we must admit that the lion's share of credit for the achievement should be given the American car itself.

The initiative and aggressiveness of the American manufacturer are responsible up to a certain point, and the introduction of up to date American selling methods has also helped considerably to broaden and intensify the foreign market.

In the final analysis, however, it is the American automobile itself—rugged, reliable, powerful, and low-priced—which has built up its own great and steadily expanding business overseas. Once introduced in a foreign country, the automobile manufactured in the U. S. A. has never failed to create a host of friends for itself, entirely aside from any systematic plans adopted to advertise the product and organize its sale.

Why Yankee Cars Are Great.

Two things at the very start diverted the art of American motor car designers from that of the European engineers. The first was the fact that the American car, instead of remaining for long a rich man's luxury and means of sport, leaped into instant popularity with the entire American public. The second was the fact that American road conditions in the early days of the industry were almost universally poor, demanding a high-powered and extremely rugged vehicle, if successful operation were to be accomplished..

It is of great importance to the American exporter that such leading markets overseas as Australia, South Africa, and the Argentine are now in the same early stages of road development, facing the same operating problems as the United States faced between 1900 and 1910. These were the years when the American automobile received its individual stamp and the strongly marked characteristics that today distinguish it from the European built car.

Today the American automobile has a beauty of line, a refinement of finish, and a completeness of equipment that put it on a par with the best built European products. Scratch the paint, however—or, to be strictly up to date, we should say remove the finish—and you will find the same powerful, ruggedly built, and essentially reliable automobile that its makers developed to meet the arduous operating conditions which the old timers among us remember so well.

Specifically, one of the most important contributing factors to the success of the American car overseas is the size and power of the engine. The car manufactured in the United States invariably outperforms its competitors under arduous road conditions or on steep hills. The gumbo mud of our middle west and south and the sharp grades of our eastern and western mountain ranges are duplicated in a number of the larger automotive markets abroad. And here the power and pulling ability of the American automobile stands it in good stead.

The small, low-powered cars built for the smooth highways of England and the continent are, on the contrary, of little value in such territories, while the larger cars of more power are so costly as to be out of reach of all but a very few.

America Profits by Exports.

It has often been said that America sells cars abroad because she has a large home market. Analyzed, this statement means that the tremendous scale on which cars are built and sold in the United States makes possible an extremely low cost per unit, of which the foreign buyer receives the benefit.

Five out of every six cars in use in the world today are running in the United States. That is one reason why the American manufacturer undersells European competition by a wide margin.

CHEAPER TO KEEP CAR IN SHAPE

Don't attempt to save money by being niggardly in your expenditures for legitimate upkeep, equipment, or overhauling. Better your money go for these than that it be given to doctors, lawyers, and perhaps undertakers because of your saving propensities.

Saves Lives---Reduces Insurance —Costs—

THE National Safety Fender, for pleasure car, auto bus or truck, is designed to open quickly, drop a protecting wing and safety scoop—preventing the pedestrian from being killed or seriously injured by getting beneath the front wheels. It opens automatically upon contact, or may be operated from the driver's seat. Approved and endorsed by municipal, public utility and insurance officials. Aroused keen interest at the National Safety Conference at Washington, D. C.

Distributors Wanted

Public sentiment demands the greatest possible safety for the pedestrian. We want responsible men of proven ability, with enterprise and capital to finance their sales—men who can sell—and who will appreciate and take full advantage of the advertising which will start next month. We want sure-fire producers.

ROLLIN

Excessively and Expressively Smart is the Latest Rollin

Twelve months ago this car, new in name, but in which were incorporated the best of American and European engineering refinements, was first announced to the American public

A new design by Rollin White is always an event—and usually a contribution.

A year ago, right in the face of an apparently over-burdened market, Rollin White introduced his latest conception—the Rollin.

Following European practice of using small cylinders, coupled with a new idea of his in manifolding and carburetion, Rollin White gave to America, for the first time, a moderate priced car developing greatly increased horsepower with greatly reduced gasoline consumption.

Success was instantaneous. Day and night the Rollin Show exhibit was jammed. Orders poured in from all over the country by mail, telegraph and telephone.

One short year finds thousands of these new cars giving complete satisfaction as evidenced by countless voluntary letters of unstinted praise. Thus does America express its appreciation.

Now Rollin White introduces his latest series of smart, voguish body designs.

Artistically fashioned after the last word in prevailing style tendencies, this new series has already captured the discriminating and fastidious buyer.

For the first time, you may have charming body styles of the custom-built type at a moderate price.

Richly contrasting two-tone color combinations are the keynote of these latest models. Luxurious and nobby Coupes, Sedans, Broughams and Phaetons give you a wide choice.

Your attention is particularly directed to the new Brougham. Extra wide doors give extra room—and extra entrance access—to an extraordinarily comfortable and luxurious rear seat.

Rollin White, who brought to this country the most advanced type of European engineering in moderate priced cars, now brings to appreciative America the last word in swagger, jaunty, custom style creations which sell at a most moderate price.

Select your new Rollin now for early delivery.

George Washington and the Series 80

UPON George Washington's estate was a mill in which the wheat from his farm land was ground into flour of fine quality. The flour was placed in sacks upon which the name "George Washington" was stamped. And wherever this flour was offered for sale, housewives accepted it without question—without inspection. They knew that George Washington's good name would never be placed on anything but the finest flour—that each sack would contain full measure and honest weight.

Last August a new car was announced by The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company—a more moderate-sized and more moderate-priced companion to the large Pierce-Arrow.

And just as the good housewives of long ago accepted George Washington's flour without doubt or question, so men have accepted this newest Pierce-Arrow product—the Series 80.

They know that The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company would not allow its good name to be placed upon any car that did not fully meet the long-established standards of the company.

That is why several hundred men placed orders for the Series 80 before the first cars were made—without even seeing the car or knowing its price.

That is why many others ordered the Series 80 immediately following the first public announcement—after seeing only a picture of the car and reading its description and price.

That is why—though only six months old—the Series 80 is today serving several thousand owners.

At the Automobile Show you may see this latest Pierce-Arrow car—the Series 80.

Both closed and open models—the finest product of Pierce-Arrow coach workers—are being shown in new and distinctive color combinations.

But to fully appreciate what Pierce-Arrow building offers you in this more moderate-priced car—what it means in comfort and in road performance—only a trip through city streets and over country highways will suffice.

This trip may easily be arranged, either at the Automobile Show or through our salesrooms. We will gladly place a car at your disposal for the purpose.

EVER THINK HOW MANY FIND WORK ON AUTO BODIES?

Labor of Many Crafts Goes Into Them.

BY WILLIAM A. FISHER.
[President Fisher Body Corporation.]

When one considers that an automobile body might well be thought a piece of fine furniture, it is simple to realize how strongly and stanchly it must be built to travel 50,000 to 100,000 miles, or even twice that distance, without being shaken to pieces.

Remember that it will be out in the rain, the snow, and the constantly changing temperatures. It will have a blistering hot sun beating down on it as it stands on a city pavement. And it will also be covered with mud, dirt, and dust.

Its upholstery and its broadcloth, mohair, or leather will also come into direct contact with many of these same conditions. Every one of these varying temperatures and weather conditions do all in their power to destroy the fineness and newness that each automobile owner wishes to have remain with his car.

Builders Meet Severest Tests.

An automobile body is expected to withstand all these destructive forces without becoming warped, and to retain its smooth finish and color for a considerable period.

Can you imagine a piano, for example, undergoing such treatment and remaining usable for years?

Our own tremendous business would indicate the builder of motor car bodies has been able to meet the seemingly impossible demands put upon him.

Fisher was organized in 1908. Its operations began on what was then a tremendous scale almost immediately thereafter, when an order for 150 bodies was received from one firm—the largest single order ever placed up to that time. Four years later we built 105,000 bodies. For the last three years our closed body output has exceeded our open. The total 1924 output exceeded by more than three times that for 1922.

Business Employs Many Crafts.

Other results of this unvarying idea that the closed car would ultimately become the basic motor car design have been that we have never failed on a contract, and we have never had a sales department, although our business has averaged a growth of more than 100 per cent every year. We have been for years the world's largest body manufacturers.

The scope of our operations and those of our subsidiary companies today is so vast that men working at more than 100 different trades are included. In various processes of building motor car bodies are to be found such a widely scattered list of artisans and craftsmen as jewelry die cutters, plate glass workers, fine hardware artisans, wood, steel, and aluminum workers, painters of the greatest skill, and a host of other specialized craftsmen.

Our jewelry plant alone is so extensive that it could, within a few weeks, be equipped to produce the highest quality jewelry of all known kinds.

Glass Plants and Timber Lands.

Among our other subsidiaries are four plate glass plants with a capacity in excess of 2,000,000 square feet of polished plate glass per month. Their production of glass for windshields and windows is equivalent to the windows in the homes of a city of 150,000 people. For the making of window regulators, locks, hinges, door handles, dome lights, and similar articles, our hardware plants occupy more than another million square feet of floor space, and produce almost 500,000,000 hardware units a year.

We own our timber lands, located in Louisiana, Tennessee, and Arkansas. These give us the same control over our own supply of lumber as we enjoy over practically every other commodity necessary to our business. This lumber must at all times include tens of millions of feet of hardwood timber.

GIVE CAR A CHANCE TO WARM ITS VITALS IN COLD WEATHER

If a man were to wake his horse out of a sound sleep on a cold, wintry morning, stick an icy bit in its mouth, and immediately begin giving it the boot without any warming up period, he would stand liable to arrest for cruelty to animals. Yet an automobile owner, uneducated to motor car care, will go out to a chilly garage and larrup the liver out of his poor, cold, defenseless automobile with choke and accelerator.

A motor car has mechanical parts closely fitting together. Between them an oil film must constantly exist to diminish metal to metal wear. Just a minute or two of slow warming up in starting a cold car will give pep to its step for the run.

An owner does not need to baby a car, but he does have to treat it right. Men and automobiles are alike in that neither is endowed with protecting fur or feathers. As winter approaches nature takes care of everything except men and motor cars. When you dig out your red flannels and heavy overcoat, remember that your car is just as cold.

CLOSED CAR BOOM CHANGES AUTO BUYING SEASON

Big Business Now in the Winter Months.

BY WILLIAM N. THOMPSON.
[President Stutz Motor Car Company.]

Buyers of cars change just as much as automobiles. This is true not only in high class cars, but in buyers of cars of every class.

For instance, eight years ago, in 1916, only 2 per cent of the buyers bought closed cars; five years ago only 10 per cent, two or three years ago the percentage climbed to 25 per cent. In 1925 we expect over half of the cars sold in all classes to be closed cars.

Buying Season Changes Also.

This change to closed cars is only one instance of the many changes in motor car buying. Even the buying seasons themselves have changed. Today we find more people buy during January and February than ever before. This was formerly considered a "dead" buying season.

The conscientious manufacturer is kept working over time anticipating these ever changing demands on the part of the buyer. We have noticed the trend toward what we call permanent car owners—people who buy cars not only for one season's use, but for years of service, and then repurchase another car of the same make.

Enter the Permanent Owner.

This rapidly growing tendency has enabled us to build up a big family of permanent owners and we are adding to the number every day. The development of this idea has brought a great change in service and every other point of taking care of the owners.

We believe that the future development of the high class car is going to depend upon the number of these permanent owners which can be built up and maintained.

While general automobile production this year may not reach the high record of 1923, we believe there will be more high class cars sold than in any other year in history.

Trade's Jubilee Year Also Jubilee Year for Willys

By a peculiar coincidence, the silver anniversary of the motor car industry also marks the twenty-fifth milestone of the career of John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, in the automobile world. Just a quarter of a century ago Mr. Willys, then an ambitious bicycle dealer and salesman, headed his own company in Elmira, N. Y., with a total volume of business amounting to more than half a million dollars a year. He made up his mind he could make little further progress in his business as it was then constituted, and entered the automobile business.

Folks have learned to expect the Comfort of Home in Closed Cars

EVERYBODY, today, knows a closed car can be as warm and cheery as the living room at home. For 14 years the Perfection Heater has been teaching them that.

Just naturally, they expect to find a Perfection Heater in the car they consider buying—not only in costly cars, but in those of moderate price as well.

In their minds Perfection stands for quality and highly satisfactory performance. To them, any other heater—no matter how closely it resembles Perfection—is merely an imitation—a substitute.

Car manufacturers realize this. That's why you find the Perfection Heater standard equipment on closed models of most well known makes of cars.

Perfection is the original automobile heater—built and guaranteed as to quality and performance by the oldest and largest organization of its kind in the world.

A MEDIUM FOR AUTOMOTIVE SALES

196 national advertisers have stamped their endorsement of Liberty. 97 leading advertising agencies placed advertising during 1924.

In those communities where automotive buying is most active, Liberty's circulation closely parallels population, income tax returns, and retail sales. A representative group of automotive advertisers will use Liberty during 1925 to build sales for them in these communities.

Liberty's circulation has surged steadily upward, but not as a result of price cutting, clubbing offers, premiums or other circulation crutches.

Week after week nearly 800,000 Libertys appear on the newsstands of this country and as many people step up and buy them. That fact shouts "Merit! Demand! Advertising Effectiveness!"

May, 1924, exceeded 500,000 net paid
September, 1924, exceeded 600,000 net paid
November, 1924, exceeded 700,000 net paid
Last week's issue nearly 800,000 net paid

Advertisers now appearing in Liberty receive this excess net paid on a basis of the 700,000 or the 600,000 or the 500,000 rate—depending on which rate adjustment they anticipated! New rates are inevitable!

CLUB HERE USES RADIO TO CURB AUTO ACCIDENTS

Boys' Patrol Also Is a Chicago M. C. Idea.

BY CHARLES M. HAYES.

[President Chicago Motor Club.]

Entering into its nineteenth year of service to the motoring public, the Chicago Motor club can glance over its pages and feel justifiably proud of the record inscribed thereon.

The club has grown up with the great automobile industry and has had its share in making the automobile popular and in making motoring easier, safer, and more comfortable.

What Club Did in 1924.

The proposed construction of a garage in Grant park, the widening of Kimball avenue, the building of the McCormick road, and the widening of La Salle street are a few of the civic projects in which the club has interested itself during the last year.

In the prevention of accidents the club has been a big force. Thousands of signs have been erected at dangerous corners, crossings, turns, and hills in our territory in northern Illinois and Indiana. Of the 2,785 new porcelain signs erected this year 1,336 were put up outside of Cook county.

In order to reduce the number of cases of typhoid that comes from the drinking of polluted water the club, in coöperation with Dr. Herman Bundesen, commissioner of health, has erected numerous signs at water courses warning campers not to drink anything but certified water.

Radio Talks on Accidents.

A record of all fatal accidents is kept in our accident prevention department, the cause of the accident is noted, the place where it happened is spotted on a 9x11 inch wall map which hangs in the accident prevention department, and from the statistics thus collected the club is in a position to know what causes accidents and how they can be prevented. Armed with this information, radio talks are broadcast once a week over the Westinghouse KYW station, dealing with accidents and their prevention.

But the boy of today is the motorist and adult pedestrian of tomorrow, and if a subject is to take deep roots it must be instilled into the mind in childhood, so the club has paid even more attention to the children than to the adults.

The work which had been going on among the children was brought to a climax Nov. 22, when the club called a meeting of the boys' patrols of the public and parochial schools in the First regiment armory. More than 5,000 boys attended! This was followed up by personal visits to the schools and instructions given by the men of our accident prevention department.

Spreads Boys' Patrol.

After proving the effectiveness of a boys' patrol in reducing accidents, the writer took this proposition up with the American Automobile association, with the result that the national organzation has indorsed it and has recommended that the 600 affiliated clubs get behind the boys' patrol movement. Making the boys' patrol a national movement should prove a most important factor in reducing accidents.

EUROPE'S RACING DATES FOR 1925

The European automobile Grand Prix for 1925 will be held in Belgium on July 5. Among the other races of interest are: France's Grand Prix for touring cars, Montherly autodrome, July 19; France's Grand Prix for speed cars, Montherly autodrome, July 26; Italian Grand Prix, Monza, Italy, Sept. 6; St. Sebastian Grand Prix for touring cars, Sept. 14, and for speed cars, Sept. 15.

PRE-SHOW TRADE DAYS APPROVED BY AUTO TRADE

New Plan Means More Co-operation.

Voicing unstinted praise of the pre-exhibit trade days inaugurated at the Chicago silver jubilee automobile show this year, E. M. Lubeck, general sales manager of the Apperson Automobile company, characterized the plan as one of the most constructive steps ever taken by members of the industry.

"Opportunities for contact and the study and discussion of vital trade questions afforded by this plan will develop greater coöperative effort on the part of manufacturers and a better understanding of each other's problems among manufacturers, distributors, and dealers.

"I find unanimous approval of the new plan among automobile men. It is a big step forward, one by which the benefits of a broader merchandising policy in general will be carried right along the line from factory to sales room.

"Dealer good will, and through them, public confidence, will be increased beyond all previous high levels through the cumulative value of the trade day contract.

"Our models exhibited at the silver jubilee show mark the introduction of the thirty-third year of continuous manufacture for us. Our cars have been shown at every show held in Chicago. Our company is the oldest manufacturer now exhibiting in America," Mr. Lubeck added.

USE CHAINS AND PLAY SAFE.

Winter is here. Look over your chains and see that they are in order. When snow or sleet is on the ground it is safest to use chains.

LONGER LASTING CAR NEEDED NOW, ENGINEER SAYS

BY G. B. GUNLOGSON.

[Sales Manager J. I. Case Co.]

Early in January we ran an advertisement in a great national weekly with a coupon or ballot in which the question was asked, "Will better automobiles solve this problem?" The problem, as outlined, was, "Are people buying too many automobiles?"

Sales records indicate that 75 per cent of the cars bought in 1925 will be traded, sold, or junked before the close of 1928. To the original owner this means a tremendous economic waste—a sacrifice to bad engineering and construction, high pressure selling methods, faddish lines, and too many models.

The ballot stated one need not sign his name unless he desired a copy of the booklet "The Secret of Long Life."

One engineer wrote:

"In amplification of my ballot: My greatest disappointment in present day automotive industry has been the sacrifice of really good, progressive engineering for the type of development that is necessary for the ever changing wrangle of new models, new styles, and one season construction called for by 1925 production programs.

"It has been my opinion, and still remains so, that after the tremendous rise of the industry in some twenty-five years there must come a slump to a smaller, steadier demand for better, longer lasting, and more satisfying 'tailor-made' automobiles that will have as important a place in a man's belongings as his home or its furnishings. . . . Value must be incorporated into the American industry to raise the automotive profession to a level with other public service professions."

HEREIN A VOICE SPEAKS FOR THE ACCESSORY MEN

What Electricity Has Done for the Auto.

BY C. C. MINIGER.

[President Electric Auto-Lite Company.]

Automobile builders have spent millions of dollars in exhaustive experimentation in efforts to render more satisfactory service in their products. But add to these millions additional millions expended by accessory and equipment manufacturers, who have developed their respective units to a high state of efficiency.

Go back a few years—one need not go back the entire span of twenty-five years which marks the life of the motor car industry—and how many cars do you find equipped with electric lights? How many possess electrical starting systems; how many are equipped with dependable battery and ignition systems?

Scarcely ten years ago this equipment was just coming into vogue. The real popularity of the motor car and its widespread acceptance as personal transportation dates from that time.

When Women Began to Drive.

Prior to that we had acetylene lamps. Engines had to be hand cranked to get a starting spark. Then came the effective starting and lighting systems. It is a certainty that it was not until these factors became definitely established as part of a motor car's equipment that the feminine driver looked with any favor upon doing her own driving.

In the last ten years still greater strides have been taken in the manufacture of starting and lighting systems. Where only a few years ago more wiring was used in one car than was required for a complete home, today the wiring harness of a motor car can easily be held within one hand. Where only a few years ago the circuit breaker was nearly as large as the battery, today the unit has become an inconspicuous little box.

Importance of Electric System.

Consider the roles battery and ignition units play in the operation of the car. The street cars are operated by trolleys and wires, and have to follow definite routes. The electric power is manufactured and sent out to them by wires. Every motor car has its own independent power plant; it runs free from tracks, anywhere and without trolley poles. Cranking of the engine, lighting, life-giving power to spark plugs to ignite fuel, operation of horn, etc., etc.—all these depend upon the ability and reliability of the electric system and the battery.

And the end is not yet. Further developments in electrical research forecast that these units will be perfected to an even higher degree.

It may not be too much to anticipate complete electrification of the motor car.

AUTOS OUTNUMBER FARMS IN U. S., 2 TO 1

Automobiles in the United States outnumber farms more than two to one. There are only six states with more farms than automobiles, and all these are in the south. For the entire country, automobile registration toals 15,509,840, and the total census figures show 6,448,343 farms. Texas has more farms than any other state, 436,033, and it has 651,949 automobiles.

PROPER OILING OF CHASSIS CUTS THE REPAIR BILLS

And Adds to the Resale Value of Car.

BY F. A. HITER.

[Sales Manager Bassick Mfg. Co.]

Is it simply luck that one owner of a motor car gets better service from an automobile than another? This is often the case when the two cars are the same make and model.

Cost records of one of the world's largest and best operated motor fleets recently disclosed some startling facts on this subject—facts of vital interest to every owner of a motor car.

The records showed that the largest item of expense of this fleet was repairs, which amounted to over one-third of the total cost of operation.

Importance of Lubrication.

Repair men, as well as automotive engineers everywhere tell us that, barring accidents, fully 80 per cent of all auto repairs are made necessary because of neglected or improper lubrication. It's the twenty to sixty hard-working, dust exposed chassis bearings that suffer most.

Formerly when manufacturers equipped their cars with old-fashioned oil or grease cups it was difficult—in some cases, impossible—to lubricate those vital spots adequately. Now, however, chassis lubrication is almost as easy as motor lubrication.

Methodical, thorough lubrication will save money for every motorist. Our system actually reduced operating costs of the Yellow Cab company of Chicago by one and three-quarter cents per mile. At that rate the average private owner would save from $70 to $300 a year.

Adds to Car's Resale Value.

Regular chassis lubrication is profitable for still another reason. Usually the car is properly lubricated at frequent intervals will command a higher resale value than another car of the same make and model that has not received proper lubrication. Used car appraisers are wary of cars that are full of bad chassis rattles caused by neglect of lubrication.

Most car manufacturers today recognize that their cars will have a high trade-in value, if given sufficient and regular lubrication. They advocate chassis lubrication every 500 miles. One manufacturer has gone so far as to fix a definite scale of resale values for his car, based upon length of service. These prices are guaranteed, provided the manufacturer's instructions for caring for the car are observed by the car owner.

The rapid increase in the number of stations supplying lubricating service attests its popularity. More than 10,000 such service stations were opened in this country during 1924 alone.

KEEP A-TOOTING WHEN PASSING CAR

When passing another car it is advisable to sound the horn even if the other driver appears to know that a car is about to pass by. Some motorists have a habit of swerving from one side of the road to the other, and such a driver may turn to his own side of the road just when you think he is getting out of your way. Unless you horn the chances are he will begin to swerve to the other side, or at least to the center, before you overtake him.

People Who Look Like Abraham Lincoln

The external appearance of the Chrysler and its external advantages are certain to be reproduced in other cars. Perhaps they should be. The low hung comfort of the Chrysler, the low roof, the graceful lines, the conservation of space, weight, height and length—all these are assets which every motorist is entitled to enjoy. But this of course is only the outer covering. The more vital thing is the thing which makes the Chrysler go—the thing which makes it almost as lively and virile as though it were animate. Several million dollars worth of entirely new machine tools, jigs, and dies, especially designed to produce these unique and vigorous Chrysler qualities, went into the making of the car. But even more emphatic than that—the real Chrysler motive power—were the engineering brains and experience which patiently, painstakingly, labored to create the Chrysler for four years before. An institution like the Chrysler—in organization, in manufacturing facilities, in rigidly trained craftsmanship—is hard to reproduce without the same patience, the same long period of loving labor. There is always a thrill when we encounter in moving pictures a realistic reproduction of Abraham Lincoln. But we do not expect the actor to be Abraham Lincoln—but merely to look like him.

AUTO MAKERS, DEALERS LEARN TO CO-OPERATE

Both Trade and Public Gain by Advance.

BY J. E. FIELDS.

[Sales Director Maxwell Motor Corporation.]

The year 1925 will be a good year for the automotive industry. It will not be a boom year, but it will be one of sane and sound prosperity.

At the close of 1924 the industry found itself in excellent physical shape. Retail sales and wholesale deliveries compared well during the year. Dealers were not required to take more cars than they could sell. Inventories at factories and stocks in the hands of dealers were both small.

Factories Closer to Dealers.

This should be a good year, too. Factories have learned that overproduction is unwise and that any policy which requires dealers to take more cars than they can sell is unsound. Factories are coöperating more and more with dealers in finding the most effective means of selling cars. This closer relationship between factory and dealer is making for happier dealers and the industry as a whole profits as a result.

For the first time the auto industry is turning its attention to city planning. It realizes that our cities must be adapted to motor traffic because the automobile today is the accepted means of transportation.

Hoover Enters in Problem.

The secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and other organizations are to be commended for taking up this problem in earnest. With the best brains in the country available there is no reason why something really worth while should not be accomplished.

The automotive industry can look ahead with confidence. The gross business during 1925 will compare favorably with 1924. It is certain, however, that the American public will be more discriminating than ever before in its choice of cars because traffic conditions demand more in the way of high speed for quick acceleration and pick-up, good riding qualities, ability to stop quickly, and economy of operation.

1,000,000 TOURISTS IN 1925 PREDICTED FOR CALIFORNIA

More than 1,000,000 tourists are expected to enter the borders of California by automobile during 1925, according to a summary of the situation compiled by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Basing this prediction on the normal increase in travel over the transcontinental routes, there is every indication that a new high mark for visiting motorists will be set.

What is regarded as the best forecast of heavy travel is the inquiries from the east reaching the touring bureau during 1924. These showed an increase of more than 36 per cent over 1923.

All of these were answered in detail, and some idea of the prospective tourists provided with routings to California may be had in the announcement that a large percentage of the more than 9,000,000 maps distributed during the year were sent in response to requests from the east.

It is pointed out also that general conditions throughout the country are conducive to heavy travel. The improvement in the prices of farm products, the betterment of transcontinental trails, and the extensive advertising of the state by community organitions and railroads will further stimulate travel, it is expected.

It is believed that 1925 will bring as many persons into southern California by automobile as are brought on trains.

ONLY HALF U. S. MARKET TAPPED BY AUTO TRADE

Census Shows Field for 33,000,000 Cars.

BY CHARLES D. HASTINGS.

[President Hupp Motor Car Corp.]

Vast as the automobile industry is today and great as is the number of automobiles now being operated, these cars constitute not more than half the potential market for motor cars in the United States.

Approximately 16,000,000 motor cars are now owned in this country. But competent automotive economists say there is a market for 33,000,000 motor cars in the United States.

According to the 1920 census, there were more than 40,000,000 persons gainfully employed in this country. These economists say that the saturation point of the industry is at least 80 per cent of that figure—that 33,000,000 motor cars will be owned here before the manufacture of cars for replacement purposes become practically the entire domestic business.

Vast Replacement Market.

Even when that stage is reached there will still be 5,000,000 cars manufactured per year for the replacement market in this country alone, a total production figure that the industry has not yet approached.

Our economists make it clear that not every one of these 33,000,000 persons is a prospective new car purchaser. Those that canot afford a new car are prospects for used cars, however.

At first glance, taking this figure of 80 per cent of the number of persons gainfully employed, as potential automobile owners, may seem high. But we must remember that many families already possess two, three, four and even more cars. And consideration must also be taken of the taxicabs, jitneys, busses and fleets of cars owned by municipalities, business houses, and other organizations.

25,000,000 Cars in 1930.

If we assume that other figures of these economists are correct, the total automobile registrations of the United States in 1930 will be approximately 25,000,000 cars — 9,000,000 more than there are today.

People are going to ask, "Where are these cars going? Where are they to be put? In our big cities and even on our main trunk highways there is already congestion, and that congestion is growing."

"This tremendous increase of 9,000,000 cars in the next five years means that within the immediate future cities, towns, and state highway departments must devote careful and considerable attention to the problem of how to handle 55 per cent more cars than they are caring for today. They must begin doing it now. The solution of these problems will never be cheaper than it is today, nor simpler. The public wants automobiles and has every right to demand that adequate facilities for those cars be built. All this involves careful city planning, additional road building, creating new rights of way and, above all, further realization on the part of both the automobile owner and the pedestrian of the rights of each other.

3,400,000 Cars This Year.

"These same economists, who said early last year that the 1924 production of motor cars would reach 3,200,000 units—a figure that was well within 100,000 cars of being absolutely correct—declare that the industry's 1925 output will be 3,400,000.

The biggest percentage of increase next year, they add, will be among cars selling at from $1,000 to $2,500. They find clear indications that thousands of previous purchasers of lower priced cars will buy in the medium priced field, and equally clear indications that many previous high priced car purchasers will enter the $1,000-$2,500 range for their next car or additional cars.

They base these deductions on two cardinal factors. The first is the desire of all of us, when we can afford it, for better things. The second is the realization on the part of the man who previously bought high priced cars, especially if he has two or more cars in his household, that a well built, medium sized car is more suitable for every day driving from the standpoints of sensible economy, ease of handling in traffic, and considerable superiorities in parkability.

VANITY, PLUS GLASS, TEACHES BERLIN HOW TO STEP OFF CAR

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Chewing gum slot machines, weighing devices, and show windows now act as sidewalk boudoirs for the fair sex, and soon trolleys may be equipped with mirrors, too.

It may seem a far fetched idea to involve the powdering of one's nose with the correct method of alighting from a street car, but it's being done in Berlin and accidents have been cut down to a remarkable degree, according to the Pennsylvania public service information committee.

Accident suits began to pile up on a Berlin street car company because many men and women did not know how to alight from trolleys. An erudite German student of psychology hit upon the mirror idea. Mirrors were installed at car exits in such a position that passengers had to face forward to see themselves as they prepared to leave. As a result of their vanity, they alighted correctly.

Inspect Engine Before Accepting a New Car

With new cars being delivered in various ways, over the road, by rail and road, and used for demonstration purposes as well, it is important to be sure the motor has not been overheated. Raise the hood and look at the paint on the engine. That will tell.

AMERICAN MADE AUTOS NOW RANK WITH THE FINEST

Match the Most Elegant of Foreign Cars.

BY W. E. HOSAC.

[Vice President Rolls Royce of America, Inc.]

A few days ago the papers printed a story cabled from England. It contained excerpts from an editorial published in the London Daily Chronicle under the caption, "American Wealth." In the article were the following significant sentences:

"Directors of our art collections say quite frankly that they can no longer hope to make new acquisitions against the competition of rich Americans. The great singers and actors flock to America and make in a few weeks enough money to keep them for the rest of the year. Our skilled workers are migrating there also in great numbers."

America Now Has the Best.

This is a statement certain to prove of much interest to Americans. It indicates a trend of affairs which has been apparent for some time past. Many of us have sensed that the growing demand on the part of Americans for the best would inevitably result in something of this sort. Some of us have known from our own experience that something of the kind was occurring. There was a time when Americans demanding the highest degree of excellence felt that it could only be found abroad. Now they are beginning to realize that they need look no further for it than within our own boundaries.

As an executive of an American manufacturing concern, my attention has naturally been directed to conditions in our own particular field. A quarter of a century ago, when the automobile first came into existence, it was, at its best, a European product. The first Rolls Royce, for example,—a two cylinder, 10 h. p. car,—was shown at the Paris salon in 1903. For years afterward, an English, a French or an Italian car was the last word in excellence. An American made product was no more highly esteemed by the connoisseurs than a American trained opera singer.

U. S. Demands the Best.

But times have changed. Perhaps that same "American wealth" referred to by the London editorial writer is responsible. In any event, one of the traits of American industry seems to be to turn a substantial share of any profits secured back into the business in an effort to secure still greater perfection in the product. The fact that greater perfection tends to still greater profits may or may not have a bearing on the case.

Certain it is that with our greater purchasing power has come a more exacting taste. Having the money, we are satisfied with nothing but the very best. And, having the money to produce the best here at home, our purchasers find their most exacting requirements met here.

Yankee Plant an Experiment.

For years our cars were produced exclusively at the Derby works in England. Then in 1917, with the building of Rolls Royce aviation engines in America, we found that the work could be done with as great perfection here as in England. Moreover, we find American workmen as capable of fine work as are the English workmen. In our Springfield plant, English and Americans work side by side and with equal expertness and efficiency.

If I have cited our own experience so at length, it is because it comes from personal knowledge. Undoubtedly others concerned in the automotive industry can furnish the same testimony.

Its significance to me lies in what it portends to the American industry as a whole. It seems to me to indicate a healthy condition, to promise increased appreciation of the American made car, and greater realization than ever that in the domestic product is to be found the highest possible exemplification of good taste.

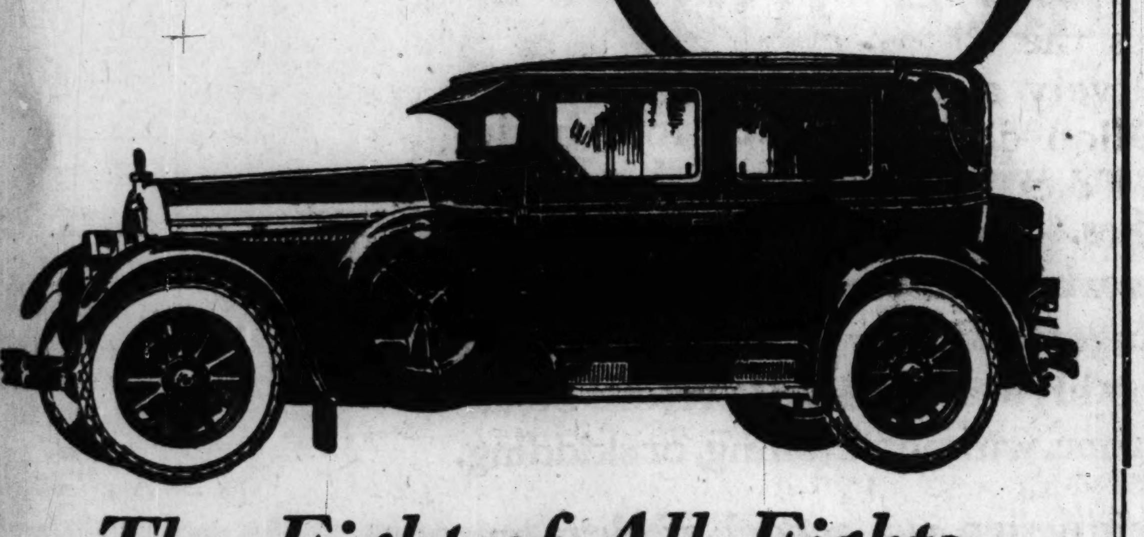
AUTOS WILL CROSS DEATH VALLEY ON PORTABLE HIGHWAY

A portable highway is being built to order in California for use across the shifting sands of Death valley. For years highways of various materials have been tried across the desert, but without success. When the heat of the desert sun did not crack the surface, the shifting sands would cover the road bed over night. This new "portable highway" is to be five miles in length and constructed of redwood blocks and timbers. After the pieces have been fashioned they will be taken to the desert and fastened together with bolts. The timbers are to be laid flat upon the sand.

How to Test for Slack in Rear Drive of Car

Testing for slack or backlash in the rear drive of the car is only a matter of jacking up each rear wheel, placing the car in gear and turning the wheels as far as they will go. At the thread of the tires each wheel out to move through an arc of about an inch. If it moves through a greater arc either the universals are worn or the pinion gear needs to be meshed closer. The wheels may also be loose on the axles. Each wheel is jacked up independently, with the opposite one on the ground, so as to eliminate consideration of the differential.

New KISSEL CUSTOM BUILT 8



The Eight of All Eights

Kissel now presents for the first time an Eight.

It is the Eight of all Eights—an out-and-out revelation, a startling sensation, a triumphant achievement in the development of the Eight type of motor. It is an Eight only as Kissel, and Kissel alone, could build.

You have never in all your motoring career encountered anything like the soft pliancy, nimble acceleration, flashing speed and masterful power of this great Eight. In it are incorporated all of the Latest Advance Engineered Kissel features, including high pressure oiling system, light weight reciprocating parts, new type of aluminum oil basin and thermostatic control. Its bore and stroke is 3 3/16 x 4½—larger than that of most Eights.

Being a Kissel, you will naturally expect much in body beauty. You will not be disappointed, for of all the beautiful Kissels that have been built, this new Eight surpasses them in artistry of design and regal elegance. Kissel did not enter the Eight class until it could build the "class" of the Eights.

All models have that long, low-hung gracefulness which has always marked Kissel as the most distinctive of fine cars. All models have unusually roomy interiors, and this new Sedan has four wide 32-inch doors instead of the usual 28-inch doors of most cars. Note particularly the extra long windows which give clearer vision.

All models have these famous and exclusive Kissel features: Specially designed frame with "kick-up" in front; spring side-play adjustment which prevents all side-play in springs; hand-fitted bronze graphited bearings which eliminate rattles and squeaks; automatic chassis lubrication system under Sidney Dawson patents.

In presenting this Eight in various models and in striking color combinations, Kissel blazes a new trail and sets a new standard of style and performance for the automobile industry.

The new Kissel Eight will be shown in the following styles: New Victoria, toned a deep, rich black, with vermilion stripe on wheels and running gear. DeLuxe Brougham-Sedan in Brunswick green, with straw-colored wheels and stripes. Seven-passenger Sedan in dustproof gray, with azure blue stripe on wheels.

At Touring Car Price
New Chandler Coach
In which you get the powerful Pikes Peak Motor and famous Traffic Transmission

$1595
f. o. b. Cleveland
Body by Fisher

THE Coach Imperial is finished in smart Luxor Blue Duco. Full artillery wheels and genuine balloon tires are standard equipment. Specifications include the Fisher V&V Windshield, automatic windshield wiper controlled from the dash, motometer and bar cap, rear vision mirror.

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents.)

THIS new model solves a problem that long has puzzled the automotive industry. It provides for the first time—a closed car at touring car price which embodies not only protection and transportation—but also beauty and flashing performance.

Unmistakable Beauty

You will be struck by the instant realization that here in the Coach Imperial is an entirely new order of coach appearance—a broader, more liberal application of the principles of mass, line and color—a more careful and infinitely more successful blending of beauty factors.

Also, on stepping inside the car, you will become acutely conscious of a new kind of coach atmosphere—a positive roominess, a smartness of upholstery and provisions for relaxation and comfort that are wholly without precedent in closed cars of this type.

The doors are so wide that an average person can reach the rear seat without disturbing front seat passengers.

Unparalleled Performance

With this distinguished appearance is combined the performance that only a Chandler can provide.

Undoubtedly you have heard many a Chandler owner express himself on this subject. Yet we predict that when you drive the Coach Imperial you will have an experience even more vivid than you expected.

The Pikes Peak Motor was developed on the highest automobile climb in the world. It is one of the reasons why Chandler stands uppermost in the public mind.

It made Chandler the national performance champion and its unparalleled power, speed and snap are matters of common knowledge. But when you "give her the gas" you get standards of performance that are absolutely new!

Also you may have heard that it is possible to change speeds in the Chandler without clashing gears.

The Traffic Transmission does more than eliminate all noise when you go from low to second or high. It enables you to snap from high to second or low in absolute silence and with absolute certainty of making an instantaneous gear engagement!

Combining for the first time at touring car price, marked beauty, pronounced luxury of environment and unexampled performance, the Chandler Coach Imperial gives without question what no other coach can give. See it today!

Two New Open Models

Included in Chandler's presentation for 1925 are two new open models representing advances no less striking than the Coach Imperial.

The Sport Touring ($1595) is entirely new in general lines and detail. It is offered in Luxor blue or two-toned grey green Duco.

The new Comrade Roadster is distinguished by a rumble seat of improved design that will find immediate favor because of its easy accessibility and the ample leg room it provides. Price, $1795.

The recently announced Chummy Sedan and the Metropolitan Sedan De Luxe are continued at their present attractive prices. And their sustained popularity is unmistakable proof of their dominant value! All prices f. o. b. Cleveland.

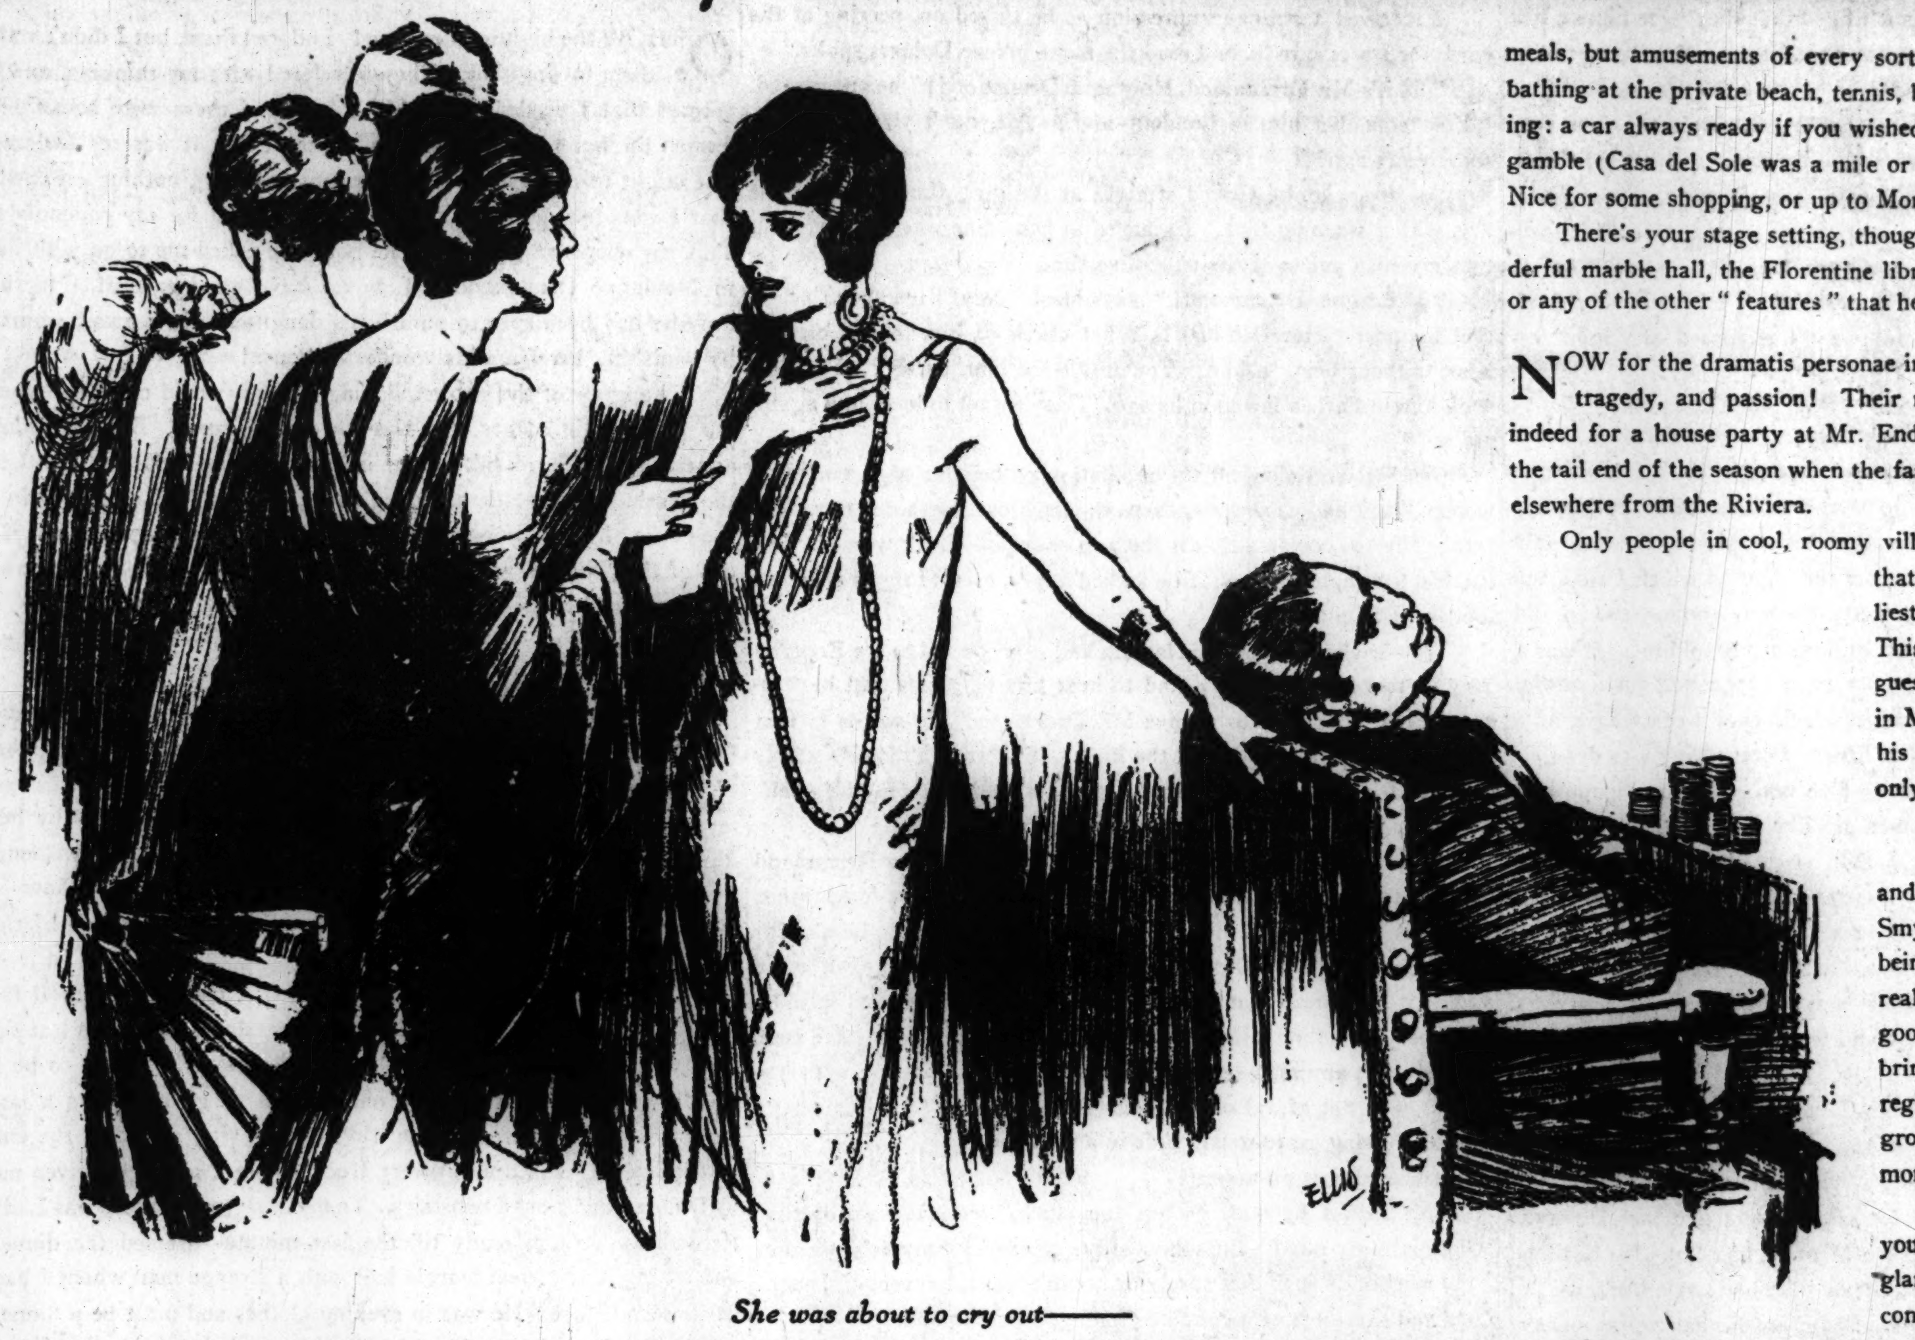
A Millioniare with a Beautiful Daughter, but a Dubious Past—a House Party at Monte Carlo—an Uninvited Guest, the Thirteenth at the Table—Death, Swift, Sure, and Silent, in the Bustle of the Gambling Hall—Two Great Loves Meet the Supreme Test



She was about to cry out———

ODD, isn't it? All round the neighborhood of Monte Carlo, up on the hillsides and down by the sea, are scattered beautiful villas owned by rich people; yet hardly any of these people give big house parties.

One of the few exceptions is, was Mr. Enderby Smythe, at his Casa del Sole—" House of the Sun"; and now I am going to tell you about the last house party he and his daughter, Dolores, gave there.

It will be a true story, in all its details except the names; and even those won't be unlike the real names, if you say them over aloud. But it's a difficult story to begin in the right place.

First, I think I will do a little stage setting by describing the villa, and some of its customs and peculiarities. Then I will introduce the characters of the drama, just as they were gathered together on a certain day which I shall never forget.

The villa? It wasn't called Casa del Sole till after Enderby Smythe bought the place from a Russian who made a fortune and then lost it at his favorite game, trente et quarante. In fact, in those old days before it was enlarged and improved beyond recognition, people nicknamed the house "La Villa Trente et Quarante." Now, the new owner, for obvious reasons, has changed the name again; but there it still stands in its lawns of emerald velvet, and its rose gardens ringed with old, old olive trees, like jade and silver temples, a perfectly proportioned white house built to resemble that wonderful villa which Pliny describes in his Letters.

Inside, it is the most modern, up to and ahead of date, dwelling on the French Riviera; a bath for each bedroom, and for two or three of the best its one little salon. Even now I can smell the fragrance of the bath crystals whose color used to match the suite, and the eau de cologne in the huge crystal bottles. I can see the bowls of fresh flowers, and fruit; the new novels, French, English, American, in those little salons; the writing paper with its exquisite miniature aquarelle of the villa, and the boxes of postage stamps renewed before they could be used up. The sort of house it is pleasant to visit in, you see! Breakfast in bed with strawberries and cream when strawberries were a franc apiece, and no end of trained servants. No guest obliged to do anything—not even to turn up at meals, but amusements of every sort for those who wanted them: bathing at the private beach, tennis, billiards, bridge, music, motoring: a car always ready if you wished to run into Monte for a little gamble (Casa del Sole was a mile or more out of Monaco), over to Nice for some shopping, or up to Mont Agel for golf.

There's your stage setting, though I haven't described the wonderful marble hall, the Florentine library, the Venetian music room, or any of the other " features " that helped to make the place famous.

NOW for the dramatis personae in that strange play of love and tragedy, and passion! Their number was small, very small indeed for a house party at Mr. Enderby Smythe's, because it was the tail end of the season when the fashionable crowd was streaming elsewhere from the Riviera.

Only people in cool, roomy villas with shaded gardens know that October and May are the loveliest months in the south of France. This house party (how little we guessed it would be the last) was in May, and, counting the host and his daughter, its members were only six.

Let me begin with the first:

Enderby Smythe, a man of 50 and of mystery—if a person named Smythe can be mysterious! But being what he was, Smythe (or the real name so much like it) was a good name to have. It seemed to bring him back from doubtful regions of the unknown to solid ground of the comfortable commonplace.

He was peculiar looking, yet you could hardly tell why, at first glance. It was only when you had contrived slyly to study the long, thin face that you knew why it seemed unreal, almost like a mask. It had no eyebrows; it was clean shaved except for tiny tufts of side whisker, like those that were thought smart for young men just before the war; almost like a slight prolongation of the hair in front of the ears; and Mr. Smythe had very little hair. What he had was dark brown, though his lashes (seen behind thick, pince-nez glasses) were pale as the large, nearsighted eyes. In addition to these peculiarities, Mr. Smythe's nose was so straight, so Greek in line, that somehow it didn't seem in keeping with the rest of the face; and four of his front teeth had been so much filled that they were almost like gold teeth. I once heard a woman say that it seemed a shame not to have them studded with diamonds!

The man had come to Monte Carlo with Dolores, then very young, had found the Villa Trente et Quarante, and settled down, making friends in the way a millionaire can easily do, especially on the Riviera. All that was known about him he told himself, apparently without reserve. He had lived for a long time in South America, had married, and made his money there. His wife was dead. Dolores was his only child, and we all supposed she must resemble her mother.

AND now for Dolores herself!

I can't write of her dispassionately, because I loved her. When the pair first arrived at Monte, I was sent for to accompany her on the piano, while she "kept up" her singing. She was only eighteen then, nearly five years before the night of which I shall tell you, but her voice had been perfectly trained—somewhere. I did wonder where, but I dared not ask, and she never told me. It was a lovely mezzo with a thrilling quality in it suggesting passion and tragedy. And Dolores' great velvet black eyes were tragic, too, though there was no sorrow in her life, and everything was done by her father to make the girl happy. I've never lived in Spain, and know little of what Spanish women are like, but I always felt that Dolores was typically Spanish; a soft, sweet nature, yielding and gentle, yet with fire at its heart. I used to say to myself, "That girl would be capable of anything, if she ever fell in love!"

Well, now she had fallen in love, for the first time, though many men had been in love with her. Heiress as she was, no man with eyes in his head or blood in his veins could want Dolores for her money alone.

The lucky one was a young Irish-Canadian, Capt. Michael (every one called him "Mike") Macnamara. He had been invalided to Cap Martin in the war, after Lady Michelham turned the big hotel there into a convalescent home for officers, and had met Dolores, who was doing her bit as a nurse in a Mentone hospital. He had felt that he was too poor to propose; but now he had come back, as I'd always told Dolores he would do. Somehow he had made money (I hope it wasn't in the way that many adventurous young Canadians have suddenly become millionaires since prohibition!), and there were signs that the interrupted love story might have a happy end. If Enderby Smythe hadn't been willing that Dolores should marry the man she loved, would he have invited Mike Macnamara to leave the Hotel de Paris and stay at Casa del Sole? No, he would not!

Mike had arrived, bag and baggage, looking even handsomer than in 1918; and Dolores was radiant. The sunshine of love had chased away the tragic shadow in her eyes.

Mr. Smythe wasn't a snob, but he liked the great, and it must have been a disappointment to him that Dolores had refused Italian dukes and Greek and Roumanian princes for a young Canadian ex-captain. A change seemed likely to come into his own life, however, and it would have been brutal to take the happiness he wanted for himself and refuse happiness to his daughter.

Which brings us to Lady Riverslake.

If I should give you her real name, you would know at once who she was—and is.

She and her husband (divorced, and the man since dead in the war) both came from noble families in England, but from noble families without money to keep up their nobility. Heaven knows how "Bunty" and Sarah Riverslake lived! But they did live, on the best of everything at the best places and among the best people. After the divorce, Sarah became a house "decorator," and made a brilliant success in Paris and London. Characteristically, she introduced herself to Enderby Smythe when he was enlarging the villa he'd bought, and asked for the "job" of decorating it She was handsome, though not in her first youth, and Mr. Smythe said yes. Perhaps this was partly for the sake of getting to know her smart friends, as he had none of his own at the time; and if so, he was rewarded. Sarah's friends cheerfully became his friends, and came to stay at his house. This was nice for every one.

Now, Sarah Riverslake was even less young, and had been overworking. She had made some bad investments, too, and business wasn't what it had been. It would mean peace and plenty for the rest of her life to marry Enderby Smythe, and it looked as if he were a willing victim, for she was the one woman guest (since I hardly count) of this May house party at Casa del Sole. My idea was that, before we parted, two engagements would be announced!

At last I've left only myself to describe, of the five who made up the party before Montague Drummond came. And I am hardly worth describing. Just a mousey little person, neither pretty nor plain, neither young nor middle aged, though I have felt old since I lost personal interest in life with the loss of my wonderful husband, a brilliant surgeon who would have been great if he had lived. I chose Monte Carlo to live in because of the sunshine, and because I hoped, with all the coming and going of rich people there, that I might make a living with my music. Monte Carlo gave me what I asked of it, and more, far more, because it gave me Dolores.

WE WERE having coffee after luncheon on the glass roofed, rose curtained terrace leading off the dining room, when Giles, the English butler, brought a card on a silver tray to Mr. Smythe.

"I told the gentleman you were lunching, sir," said Giles, "but he seemed sure you would wish to see him if I brought his card. I took him into the library, sir."

Enderby Smythe picked up the card, and held it rather close to his near sighted eyes. I happened to be looking at him. I think that the others were looking, too, because he had been in the midst of a tale of adventure. He had rather a florid complexion, and for the first time in my acquaintance with him I saw his face go sickly white.

"What's the matter, father?" Dolores exclaimed.

"Nothing," he answered, still holding the card. "Why should you suppose there was anything the matter?"

"I thought you turned pale," the girl said, blushing in her sensitive, nervous way.

"I'm not conscious of turning pale," returned her father. "Let me see, what is the name of this gentleman who is in such a hurry? I hope he isn't some hard luck story gambler. I get plenty of those."

I received a strange impression as he talked on, peering at the card, for I was sure he had read the name before Dolores spoke.

"O, it's Mr. Drummond, Montague Drummond!" he announced. "You remember him in London—and in Aix, don't you, Dolores—some years ago?"

As he spoke, he looked straight at the girl, almost, one might say, with a warning look. I glanced at her. She was ghastly, with that greenish pallor of the true olive skin.

"Montague Drummond!" exclaimed Lady Riverslake. "O, that bounder, Horrible man! What cheek of him to call on you here, without being asked. You won't see him, surely? I had to snub him in Paris a few months ago. I don't want to meet him again, please!"

Sarah Riverslake had the reputation of being a high tempered woman, but I had never before seen the lady lose that air of unruffled, rather affected coolness that is the post-war fashion for women. She had lost it completely now. She looked angry, even (I thought rather foolishly) frightened.

We—anyhow, Mike MacNamara and I—expected to see Enderby Smythe toss the card away, and to hear him tell Giles that he "regretted not being able to receive Mr. Drummond" or words to that effect. But he did nothing of the kind. He turned almost wistfully to Lady Riverslake—if one could imagine Enderby Smythe's self-confident, rather conceited personality becoming wistful!

"Awfully sorry," he said; "I don't like Montague Drummond any better than you do, Sarah. But the trouble is, I have some rather important business with him. He oughtn't to have come here uninvited: And, of course, he knows he wouldn't be invited! But as he is here, it may mean that the affair has taken an unexpected turn. I can't turn the fellow away like a stray dog from my door. He isn't the kind that any man—or any woman can treat that way with impunity. I'm not afraid of him—have no reason to be. But what's the use of being gratuitously rude to a malicious man?"

It was almost an appeal!

"Me thinks he doth protest too much," were the words that flashed into my mind. But—how silly! Enderby Smythe's position in the world was such that surely he needn't fear the revengeful snappings and snarlings of a cur like Montague Drummond.

EVEN I had heard of Montague Drummond; had read of him in the sensational newspapers a few years before. He had sued a well known peer for libel, and had won. So far as I can remember, the case was something like this:

The peer's son, a charming boy in the guards, blew his brains out in the hall of a house where Montague Drummond had a flat. There followed a hideous scandal. Drummond said he'd had no idea the boy was in serious trouble or intended to commit suicide. The young man had called, wanting to borrow a large sum of money which Drummond had refused; couldn't afford it. But the father accused Drummond of blackmailing his son, because of an affair with a girl in which the young man was blameless, though circumstantial evidence had been against him. Witnesses were called against Drummond by the peer, who swore that Drummond had tried at various times to get money out of them by attempts at blackmail and that blackmail, in fact, was his sole means of livelihood. He kept himself in society, and preyed on society, through the fears of highly placed persons whose sins or indiscretions he had found out. Even if people had done nothing, Montague Drummond was capable of making up dangerous stories out of the whole cloth. He was supposed to be "in" with a well known palmist, and a firm of private detectives.

These were the accusations: but the truth of them could not be proved, and the peer had been forced to pay heavy damages. This money, with a large bid for public approval, Drummond had given to a war hospital!

Sarah Riverslake stared blankly at the man she meant to marry. As no one was thinking of me, I was free to watch her face. One expression after another flitted over it. I could fancy her asking, "Does Enderby Smythe know the real story of what happened in Paris? Is he anxious to protect me? Or is he being prudent for his own sake?"

In either case, the gorgeous Sarah resigned herself without further argument. She shrugged her shoulders, and mumbled, "O, business! Like charity, that covers a multitude of sins."

For an instant there was silence, save for the nightingales that sang all day as well as all night in the gardens of Casa del-Sole, through the month of May.

Then, after that silence of human voices, Enderby Smythe said a surprising—to me a dreadful—thing: "Dolores, dear, will you go and keep Mr. Drummond entertained for a few minutes till I can see him?" he asked.

Some girls, feeling as I knew "in my bones" that Dolores felt, would have rebelled. They would have said, "O, why, father?" Or, "Sorry to be disobliging, Old Thing, but I draw the line at a tete-a-tete with Montague Drummond!"

Dolores said nothing at all. She got up, pale and large eyed, her lips pressed together so that her childish dimples showed. Without glancing at any of us, even when Mike Macnamara sprang to pull back her chair, the girl walked off the terrace and through an open door in the glass wall of the dining room.

Mike looked as if he could have killed Enderby Smythe! His Irish gray eyes blazed, and a war scar across his forehead showed suddenly red.

"May I go with her, Mr. Smythe?" he asked with suppressed rage. "I mean, if she'll let me?"

"Certainly, if she'll let you," replied our host in a voice meant to reach Dolores' ears, I couldn't help guessing, and to warn her what to do.

Mike took enormous strides after the girl into the dining room, where both became invisible from the terrace; but two minutes later I saw him strolling down to the sea, viciously smoking a cigaret; so that was that! He had not yet any authority over Dolores, and I was sorry for him.

"I hope it's all right," I thought, "and that the engagement will be announced tonight, at dinner, when this Drummond person has been got rid of."

I realized that Enderby Smythe had sent Dolores to the visitor because he himself wanted a chance to talk with Sarah Riverslake before going to the man. I was now the one remaining obstacle to their privacy, and that obstacle was swept away by the rising of Sarah from the table. This was my formal release. I took it, and ran down the marble steps to the fountain where the arum lilies grew.

O, HOW the nightingales sang! I adored them, but I didn't want them to sing now. They interfered with my thinking, and it seemed that I needed to think. I felt as if there were something I must do, but I didn't know what, except that it was for Dolores. She ought to understand that there was nothing, nothing on earth, that I wouldn't do, for her. If she had wished for my companionship, my chaperonage, would she not have asked me to go with her to Montague Drummond? I would have gone even if Enderby Smythe had been sure to punish his daughter's little music woman by banishing her from his wonderful house!

I hung about the garden, hoping Dolores would come out when her father relieved her with the unwelcome guest. But she didn't appear, and Mike didn't return in my direction from his stroll to the beach. I felt restless and unhappy, but finally I wandered into the house, through an open window of the music room, which opened out of the principal salon. Nobody was there, though Dolores and I had planned to look over some new music in the afternoon.

"I'll go to my room," I thought. "Very likely she'll come and call me."

To reach the stairs I had to pass the doors of the library and smoking room. Both were closed, which was unusual for any door in the Casa del Sole in the month of May.

My bedroom was separated from that of Dolores only by her boudoir, where she had a miniature piano, and where I was welcome to go whenever I liked. I would have liked now, but—somehow—I dared not even tap. There was no sound on the other side of the shut door.

There was to be a dinner of twelve that night—a farewell for some people, mostly friends of Sarah Riverslake, who were leaving for Paris or London next day, by train or motor. It was to be a rather early dinner, for every one wanted to go and have a last gamble at the Casino—the Sporting club having closed at the end of the season. I put on a pretty frock of black georgette given me by Dolores, and went downstairs. To my amazement, there was Lady Riverslake—seldom ready till the last minute—dressed for dinner and sitting in the great marble hall with a strange man whom I had never seen before. He was in evening clothes and must be a dinner guest—yet, if so, he would make the thirteenth at table!

The two were sitting close together on a carved marble seat with loose cushions of dark red velvet. They were talking earnestly, and I would have slipped away without disturbing them, but Sarah Riverslake looked up and saw me. "O, Mrs. Morris!" she exclaimed, "this is Mr. Drummond. He has come to stay at the villa for a few days. I don't believe Dolores or Mr. Smythe remember that with him we'll have thirteen tonight. It's just occurred to me. Don't you think, while there's time, we might take the liberty of phoning to Monte and asking your pretty little pupil, Mademoiselle Nitska, to hurry over and dine? Giles can put fourteen places, and all will be well."

I suggested that Dolores or her father should be consulted. Sarah vetoed this.

"Dolores is in the garden, I believe, with Captain Macnamara," she said, "and Enderby has gone up to dress, not ten minutes ago. He had things to talk over with Mr. Drummond."

It ended, as I might have known it would, in my going to the telephone room, as we named it, to call up Helene Nitska. But my thoughts were not on my errand. They were upon Montague Drummond. His face floated before my eyes as a colored sun disc floats if one has stared too long at the sun: a fattish face, with the nose and long eyelids of an Oriental, ears that stood out slightly, beautifully brushed black hair, very tanned, or naturally swarthy skin; a sensual, sullen red mouth—yet even more cynical than sullen.

The man's clothes were perfect in cut. He looked freshly bathed He must have gone back to his hotel, picked up his things, and returned to Casa del Sole to dress.

HELENE couldn't come; neither could her sister; neither could two other young women to whom, in desperation, I appealed. When I went back to the hall, Enderby Smythe was there, and guests were beginning to arrive. Just then Dolores walked in through a long French window. She was alone.

Almost involuntarily, I went to her. She looked ill. I thought she must have spent the afternoon lying down with a headache. That was the reason why she had kept so quiet, why I hadn't seen her.

"Dolores, darling, there'll be thirteen at the table," I whispered. "Do let me have something in my room to make it all right. Some people are so superstitious!"

She turned her eyes upon me suddenly, as if she hadn't seen me before.

"No—no!" she said. "I want you at the table, Ruth; I must have you. I can't stand it to be all alone."

I said no more. If she wanted me, she should have me.

I told Sarah Riverslake I could not get another guest, and ex plained that Dolores didn't wish to free me.

"Perhaps Mike won't dine," she said, in a thoughtful, yet absentminded way.

"Why shouldn't he?" I asked in surprise.

"O, well—Dolores came in from the garden alone," she answered. "I wish he would keep out of the way! It would be better."

But even as she spoke, Mike appeared, at the same window through which Dolores had entered. What was the matter with every one in this house? He looked miserable. I asked myself if he and Dolores had quarreled because she'd gone alone to that man Drummond in the library. Yet, no! Mike wasn't like that. He adored Dolores. She adored him. They understood each other. He would know she always did what her father asked.

Most of the guests seemed to know Montague Drummond, at least by name, and it was evident—they didn't try to hide it—that his presence wasn't a pleasant surprise. Every one was polite, however. There was merely a chill in the air, a sense of constraint. I don't think anybody realized that the party made thirteen. They were too preoccupied, wondering how the Drummond man happened to be dining at a house like Casa del Sole.

Dinner was on the terrace, with wax candles on the long table, moonlight pouring through the curtain of hanging roses and wistaria, and fireflies caught in the tangle of leaves and blossoms. Mr. Smythe had a string band playing softly, screened by silver olive trees, but the nightingales never stopped for the harp and violin and cello, or even for the laughter that lost its constraint as champagne flowed.

Montague Drummond sat by Dolores, and I had been placed on his other side, as if Enderby Smythe wished to make sure that his guest could not be snubbed by a neighbor. Dolores never spoke to him, unless in answer to some question, so I tried to make conversation, but, frankly, the man took no interest in me. I didn't exist for him.

Just where we were in the meal—at what course—I can't be sure; but dinner was nearing its end when Mr. Smythe stood up champagne glass in hand.

"Friends!" he arrested the talk. "There's a health I'd like you to join me in drinking. The health of my daughter coupled with that of Mr. Montague Drummond. I have the pleasure of announcing their engagement, which has taken place today."

I THOUGHT for a moment that he'd blundered; that in the annoyance of entertaining an unwelcome guest he had used the name of the man in his mind instead of the name that should have been on his lips—Michael Macnamara. Then, I knew instinctively that it was no blunder. There was some awful secret behind this Dolores had been sacrificed as daughters were sacrificed to parents in bad, old days, when youth didn't count as it counts now. I knew, too, that this wasn't a surprise for the man she loved. She had told him—out there in the garden—what was going to happen, and somehow she had made him see—made that strong vital, self-willed Irishman see—that the thing was inevitable. He loved her enough not to desert her in this hour. He was "standing by."

I could have fainted. But it was not for me to faint if Dolores did not. I caught a glance exchanged between her and Michael, as she listened to perfunctory congratulations and good wishes. It was such a look as a man and woman who loved each other might have exchanged in a Roman arena, as the lions leaped.

What happened after that, I hardly recall, until I was in my own room, getting ready for Monte Carlo. My hands trembled. Veins beat in my temples. I had not felt such intense emotion since I opened the war office telegram that told me my husband was dead

"How is this going to be lived through?" was the question in my mind as Dolores tapped, and came in.

Then I was conscious that I must have spoken the words aloud for the girl answered them.

"It's got to be lived through—for a while. Just for a little while. But not long," she said in a strange voice.

"My child, it's terrible!" I almost sobbed. "Your heart to be broken, and Michael's! O, why, why?"

"I can't tell you why," she said. "But there is a good reason Even Michael sees that. He understands. I think, though, that he hopes to save me somehow—before it's too late."

The seven dinner guests from Monte Carlo had come in their own automobiles. There were several more cars waiting when we went downstairs, and we mingled for the short drive so that members of families were parted. I maneuvered to be with Dolores, but failed. She went with Lady Riverslake, Montague Drummond, and some young adorer of Sarah's. It ended in my going alone in a small car with Mike Macnamara. For a while we didn't speak.

Then Michael asked abruptly: "Ruth Morris, what would you do if you were in my place?"

Before I'd stopped to think I blurted out, "Kill the beast."

"That's what I mean to do, of course," the Irish-Canadian answered quietly.

"O, no, you mustn't, Mike!" I cried. "I oughtn't to have said that. Things would be worse than ever if you killed him."

"They couldn't be worse. I shan't let her marry him. Yet she's bound to, if he's alive."

"I suppose he knows some horrid thing about poor Mr. Smythe's past," I sighed. "But it's can't be horrid enough to make such a sacrifice worth while."

"It is—from a daughter's point of view. Take it from me that it is."

"Do you know what the thing is?"

"Yes. Dolores told me. She has known for years—had to know."

"And knew that Drummond had this power?"

"Yes. Money was all he wanted at first. That was easy, for a man like Enderby Smythe. But Drummond saw that Smythe had got pretty well to the top socially, and could give him more than money. The fellow must have heard that Smythe and Sarah Riverslake were likely to marry, and he could kill two birds with one stone where they were concerned, having secret information to use against both. Then he heard rumors about Dolores and me, so he couldn't afford to wait. He attacked the fortress. The fortress fell."

"I believe Sarah would like to kill him!" I said. "I saw it in her eyes."

"We'd all like to kill him—including Smythe," answered Michael. "But I think it's my job. God! If I didn't do it, Dolores herself would stab him to death on her wedding night. She'd have to! She's not half Spanish for nothing—when she's driven to despair."

I remembered Dolores' words, in my room. "Just for a little while. But not long"; and the strange quiver in her voice.

Vaguely I had imagined that she prayed to die. Now, however, Michael had put another thought into my head. Alas for the love story that I had hoped to see end in happiness!

WE arrived at Monte Carlo, our little car behind all the others. We stopped, as our predecessors had, in front of the Casino steps. It seemed terrible that Dolores should be here, in this crowd, with her breaking heart. Yet perhaps it was better than to be at home—with the nightingales singing.

The whole party met in the Atrium. Montague Drummond, jovial after quantities of champagne, though not drunk, was boasting of a system with which he always won at trente et quarante. He wanted us to come and watch him play. Three or more made excuses; but he took Dolores by the arm and almost dragged her with him, whereupon Michael and I followed closely, and Lady Riverslake with Enderby Smythe led several others in the same direction.

The trente et quarante rooms at the Casino are seldom as crowded

Women as Novelists

By H. L. MENCKEN

I.

THAT women, and especially American women, do not shine more effulgently as novelists remains extremely mysterious. I have searched the literature diligently without coming upon any plausible explanation of it. Obviously, they have the talent demanded by the trade, for there have been several women novelists of the very first rank: I need name only Jane Austen, Charlotte Bronte, and George Eliot. And equally obviously, it holds out peculiar lures to them, and offers better rewards than most of the other crafts they practice. Nevertheless, very few women of the superior variety go in for it, and so there are not many women novelists of genuine dignity.

In America, I believe, we have had but one, to wit, Miss Willa Cather. Her "My Antonia" would certainly go into any list of the ten best American novels, and her "Lost Lady" would escape only by a narrow margin. But even Miss Cather seems to hold to her high place with some difficulty, for now and then she writes very badly, and even foolishly. The last half of her "One of Ours" might have been written by Robert W. Chambers or Dr. Henry van Dyke; it is so bad, indeed, that it was awarded the Pulitzer prize. True enough, male novelists of talent also have their off days, and write badly. The same Dreiser who wrote "Jennie Gerhardt" and "The Titan" also wrote the Christian Science chapters of "The 'Genius'." But the men seldom go back on their fundamental principles so badly, so completely. One never hears of a Thomas Hardy or a George Meredith suddenly beginning to write like E. Phillips Oppenheim, or a Cabell turning to patriotism and piffle.

The other lady novelists of the republic all fall far short of Miss Cather, even including Mrs. Wharton. Mrs. Wharton's celebrity, in truth, is quite as much social as literary. She is a fashionable woman, and she thus dazzles the professional literati, just as Miss Amy Lowell dazzles them. I long ago argued that if Miss Lowell's name had been Gussie Krause and she had announced her prosodical Bolshevism from Red Lion, Pa., she would have got a great deal less notice than she used to get. Mrs. Wharton's "Ethan Frome" is a fine piece of work, apparently accidental. The rest of her books are impressive chiefly to literary pastors and the more advanced sorts of high school teachers. If she were a man, she'd be a leading member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

II.

WOMEN, I believe, ought to be far more successful as novelists than they are, for the sort of thing that belongs properly in novels is precisely the sort of thing they are mainly interested in and know most about. I refer to manners. What a man believes, deeply and passionately, cannot be put into a novel, for if it is the thing instantly stiffens into a polemic and becomes unreadable. Even what he feels, in the more profound sense, is dangerous. But what he does—the externals of his conduct, his daily reactions to his world, his doings as a member of society—all that makes good material for the novelist, and some of the best novels ever written contain nothing else.

Here women novelists should have an advantage over their male colleagues, for women are more interested in manners than men are, and observe their subtler nuances more carefully, and take them, in general, more seriously. Most men, when they are capable of any thought at all, are deeply engrossed by ideas, and get into dreadful sweats over them. It is hard, indeed, to find a literate (or even an illiterate) man who isn't staggering through life under a burden of impassioned and implacable notions, most of them obviously nonsensical. Women are far too realistic to fall into that folly. They view all ideas somewhat cynically, and are willing to change their own almost as facilely as they change their surnames. They know by bitter experience that appearances are worth a great deal more than principles—that human beings are judged in this world not by what they think or feel but by what they do.

This is what the psychologists call behaviorism—and almost all good novelists are behaviorists. I point to one of the greatest this world has ever seen, Joseph Conrad, and to some of his masterpieces: "The Nigger of the Narcissus," "The Secret Agent," "Typhoon." There is surely no laboring of ideas here; it is all pure behavior; the characters might just as well have been cocci in a test tube. I point to something still greater: to Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn." It is as devoid of ideas, in the ordinary sense, as a sermon by a bishop or a college yell; yet it remains the finest novel ever written in America, and perhaps the finest ever written in English.

III.

LIFE, to women, is simply an adventure in behavior. Setting aside a forlorn and unhappy minority, they get on in the world, not by thinking this or that, but by behaving thus or so. More, it is behavior and not ideas that they encounter when they come into contact with men. When a young man is fluttered by a pretty girl he does not try to fetch her by expounding the Single Tax to her or by explaining in detail his duties as bookkeeper from A to C in a bank; he essays to achieve the business by having his clothes carefully pressed, by remembering his table manners, by displaying a large roll of bills, and maybe by pinching her cheek. And when they are married, he does not try to hold her affection and respect by offering to teach her Swedish and political economy, but by obeying her orders strictly, buying her all the clothes she wants, quarreling with the friends she dislikes, and in general, as the phrase is, making her a good husband.

If I here seem to depict women as stupid, I hasten to repudiate any such intent. Women are not stupid at all, but extraordinarily sagacious—so sagacious, in fact, that they always see through the so-called ideas of men. All I am trying to argue is that their experience of life gives them a keen professional interest in behavior, that their shrewdness enables them to observe and estimate it accurately, and that the body of knowledge that they thus amass is precisely the body of knowledge that is needed by a novelist. They are walking storehouses of raw materials. The facts that Sinclair Lewis amassed so laboriously for "Main Street," hiding behind doors, cross examining loafers at the cigar store, consulting doctors and pastors, constructing elaborate logical inferences—all these facts were already in the head of every woman in Gopher Prairie above the age of 20—and a great many more that Lewis, with his male imbecility, doesn't know or suspect even today.

IV.

YET women, and especially American women, write very few good novels, and almost none of the first rank. Why is this? I believe it is mainly because the display of their talent is still greatly hampered by convention—because it would still cause a frightful scandal if they began to tell the truth—that is, if they began to describe human existence as they actually see it. The woman novelist is torn between two purposes. On the one hand, she wants to write an accurate and honest novel, and she has all the materials for it, and, I believe, quite enough talent for it. But, on the other hand, there is always, in the back of her mind, a desire to appear charming, or, at all events, not revolting, to men, and especially to some one man, maybe a poor stick. She knows that if she told the whole truth, the poor idiot would be shocked to death, and flee her as the pestilence. So she compromises by putting in some mush—and the mush flavors the entire dish.

On the higher levels, at least, men have got over that diffidence. The public opinion of the world, made by themselves, gives them a larger freedom. Moreover, they have less to gain than women have by appearing sexually charming, and so they give less concern to the business. I close with an example in point. Several years ago an American novelist who had quarreled with his wife wrote a novel about their differences, and depicted her in it in unfavorable colors. The book caused some mild gabbling and was then forgotten. But when, a bit later, the wife announced that she, too, was engaged on a novel, and that it would deal with the same events as her husband's, and depict him realistically as she saw him—when this news came out there was a first rate sensation, and persons devoted to good works rushed to the wife and begged her to desist as a duty to God and her country. She apparently desisted; at all events, nothing more has been heard about her novel. That, in brief, is what is the matter with the lady novelists.

as those devoted entirely to roulette. The latter game is more amusing and varied, with its many different chances. Besides, the lowest unit of play at trente et quarante at Monte Carlo is a louis, while the lowest at roulette is only five francs. It is said that the management doesn't favor trente et quarante, because for a very experienced player who can memorize the cards out, it becomes almost a game of skill, rather than pure chance; therefore, the higher unit, and fewer tables. However this may be, Montague Drummond found a seat without delay, and gayly requested "all those who loved him to group round his chair while he showed what he could do." Ah, if none save those who "loved him" had obeyed, what an emptiness there would have been in his neighborhood!

But the same power which had forced the engagement upon Dolores forced her now to obey the man's orders. If she had balked, who could tell what he might have said or done?

But as she placed herself with outward obedience behind Drummond's chair, I saw a light in the girl's eyes I had never seen before. There was such a blaze of rebellious hate in them that they looked—almost wicked. Yes—she was capable of—what Michael had said. As I glanced from her pale, pure little profile to Mike Macnamara's desperate face, and from those two, a little farther on to Enderby Smythe and Sarah Riverslake, I felt an overwhelming force of hatred from four hearts concentrating on the back of Montague Drummond's sleek black head. I hated him, too. How I hated him!

He bent forward to play a few coups, then was called upon by his system to wait until the rest of a deal had passed. He threw himself back in his chair with folded arms, watching the table and his piles of different colored counters, with a lordly air of indifference. Some of us had drawn very close, I among others; and presently I noticed that the folded arms relaxed, and dropped, as if the man were going to sleep. His eyes were wide open, however, and he was still leaning back in his chair exactly as before, except that his head dropped slightly forward—more and more forward on his full neck, giving him a disagreeable, double chinned look.

"Let's go and sit down somewhere," I whispered to Dolores. "It's so hot here. The windows are open in the Salle Schmidt. We can sit by one and breathe. You look half dead."

She let me slip my arm through hers and lead her away from behind Montague Drummond's chair at the trente et quarante table. Michael came with us, but Enderby Smythe and Sarah Riverslake and her young adorer, a Paris artist, still remained waiting for Dummond's moment of decisive play to come.

PRESENTLY we, who had scarcely spoken to each other, saw them walk into the Salle Schmidt, where we sat near an open window, breathing in the scent of many flowers from the gardens. No nightingales sang then, but we could hear music from the Cafe de Paris. A gypsy band was playing "Carmen."

"We got tired, too, of waiting for Montague Drummond's wonderful game to develop," said Sarah, strolling over with Mr. Smythe.

She spoke in a more intimate tone than I was usually favored with from the great lady. She seemed to feel the need of friendliness surrounding her, and wanted it from all. She sat down on the seat beside us.

"Don't you feel like a little flutter on your favorite number, Sarah?" asked Mr. Smythe.

Thirteen was her favorite number. Tonight seemed rather an appropriate occasion for it, after that dinner party. But Sarah didn't care for a "flutter."

"Don't let me keep you from your fun, though," she said.

"Fun!" echoed Enderby Smythe. Then, as if ashamed of the self-betrayal, he walked off, and we could see him playing at one of the roulette tables. He liked the dozens. His game was to wait till one of the three dozens hadn't "come out" for six or seven spins and then "go" for it with a slow progression beginning with five hundred francs, but soon risking the maximum if he were unlucky. While he was away the young French artist, Paul Aubespine, broke into our silence.

"Extraordinary!" he said, excitedly. "Drummond has never staked again. He's still leaning back in his chair. One would say he had gone to sleep, but his eyes are open. Can he have fainted? You recall, his arms were folded? They have dropped. His face is pale. But it may be the light."

Suddenly the young man, who at this time thought of no woman save Sarah, remembered that Dolores was engaged to Drummond.

"Milles pardons, mademoiselle!" he exclaimed. "I did not mean to alarm you."

"You haven't alarmed me," Dolores assured him dully.

"You haven't alarmed any of us," Sarah added with candid contempt.

Aubespine wandered away to watch our host. Presently Enderby Smythe returned to us.

"Did you win?" Sarah asked; but before Mr Smythe could answer an inspector—a nice, elderly man, always very polite to the owner of Casa del Sole and his guests, drifted up inconspicuously.

"Monsieur," he said, "I think, is it not, that a Monsieur Drummond is visiting you?"

"Yes," replied Enderby Smythe. He did not ask how the inspector knew this fact. Officials and employes of the casino know everything. It is part of their business.

"The gentleman is—he has fainted. There has been no scene—no excitement; but very quietly a couple of our footmen have—er—aided him into one of the side rooms where he lies on a couch. The doctor who acts for us in these cases was immediately summoned and has arrived. We should be grateful if Monsieur Smythe—and perhaps monsieur his friends would come."

"I don't think I need come," said Michael.

"I wish you would, if you don't mind," pleaded Enderby Smythe. "It may be serious."

"O, do go with my father, Mike!" Dolores exclaimed.

Michael went. The three men walked off together, not too fast, showing no excitement. It is bad form to show excitement in the casino.

We looked at each other, without speaking. Dolores sat between Lady Riverslake and me. I thought she shivered.

THE men had not been gone two minutes when Aubespine appeared again. "There is something I don't know whether I ought to tell you or not," he began, his eyes questioning first Sarah's, then Dolores'.

"Tell it," said the girl.

"It's—about Drummond," he warned.

"You don't suppose Dolores is in love with him, do you, mon pauvre chau?" snapped Sarah. "It is—what you might call a 'business engagement' between her and Montague Drummond."

"Then—you all wish me to speak freely? Very well! I believe Drummond is dead."

"Dead!" I don't know whose voice gasped the word. It may even have been mine.

"I think he must have died while we were all standing there—or soon after. If he hadn't been leaning back with his chin on his neck the way it was, they would have seen before that something was wrong. I felt myself that the way he acted was queer. I went to have another look. And then what happened was this. There were people playing behind him—quite a crowd out of the theater. A man brushed against him, and he simply slumped on to his neighbor. Luckily it wasn't a woman, or she would have yelled! As it was, the man just looked round, with a start, and instantly a pair of footmen had Drummond out of his chair. You know how quickly things are done in the casino, before people have time to realize what has happened—or that anything has happened at all?

"They had the look of leading him away with their arms through his, and the murmur ran round the table—"drunk!" Play went on as if nothing had happened. I don't suppose I would have noticed much myself if I hadn't been curious already, and if I hadn't known Drummond. But his head had tipped over to one side, and his feet were dragging."

"But why should he be dead? Why not fainting—a heart attack or something?" asked Sarah.

Aubespine shrugged his shoulders. "There are things that one feels," he said. "When one feels in a certain way, one is never wrong."

"Si vous plait, monsieur et dames!" murmured the voice of the inspector, just returned. "This is a serious affair. It is extremely unpleasant to give the ladies this shock. But I fear I must ask them, and this monsieur—as he also was close to the chair of Monsieur Drummond—to accompany me. It is the police who make this demand. I have to inform you that Monsieur Drummond has been—murdered, in a strange and ingenious way."

Lights flashed before my eyes. The great hanging lamps of the Salle Schmidt seemed to be rushing towards me and again, as once before that evening, there was an interval of which I have no clear picture in my mind. Of course, however, we must have gone with the inspector, whose name was Dupont, to one of those rooms behind the mirror doors whose existence isn't even suspected by newcomers to the casino. It is behind those doors and into those rooms where bodies of the rare suicides (it is extremely bad form to kill yourself inside the casino!) are miraculously hurried, wrapped in red baize to disguise blood.

We were conducted past the indifferent crowd, whose worst care was some loss at the tables, into one of those rooms. Enderby Smythe was there. Michael Macnamara was there, and I saw three other men, apparently Frenchmen or Monaqasques, whose faces were strange to me. There was a table in the room and some chairs. Also there was a long, ugly sofa which—it occurred to me—must sometimes be put to grim uses. It was being put to a grim use now. A large silk handkerchief, common and vulgar, of a sort he would have disliked, was laid over the face, but I knew it must be Montague Drummond's body which lay stiffly stretched out on that sofa.

"Doctor Amaranthe," I heard Dupont say, as if introducing a middle aged man with a short, dark beard. "These other messieurs are members of our detective force. Monsieur Lemoine, Monsieur Rossi. Monsieur Rossi happened to be near, and practically saw the murder; though at the moment he was unaware that he witnessed a tragedy."

MONSIEUR ROSSI, a youngish man with sharp features, a trap of a mouth, and brilliant dark eyes, addressed us in English. He recognized us all as the only persons who had grouped round the dead man when he began play at a certain table. No others had been near enough to touch him. For some moments the player had leaned forward, placing his stakes. Then he had thrown himself back in his seat to watch the game before staking again. At first two or three of the party had pushed close to the chair, actually bending over the player's shoulder. Then they had moved and the remaining members had drawn near apparently to watch in the same way.

The detective admitted he saw nothing peculiar in this. He knew us well by sight. Mr. Enderby Smythe and his friends were patrons of the casino. Mr. Drummond was also known to him, though not as an acquaintance of Mr. Smythe's. Mr. Drummond occasionally spent part of a season at Monte Carlo, staying at a hotel, or at the villa of some friend. But—Rossi added—the gentleman had mentioned at his hotel when leaving in the afternoon that he was going to visit Enderby Smythe, whose daughter he was engaged to marry. This news had traveled, and Mr. Drummond had been seen to step from one of Mr. Smythe's automobiles, with the young lady in question, in front of the casino between half past nine and ten o'clock in the evening.

It was not strange that members of the house party, including his fiancee, should gather round Mr. Drummond at a table. It was only at the moment when they moved away that the detective had observed something curious in the player's appearance. He was still leaning back, but his head was bowed forward at an angle not normal. On observing that his folded arms gradually relaxed, dropping at last to his sides, Rossi walked round to the other side of the table, until he stood opposite Mr. Drummond. Other gamblers, interested in their own game, did not seem to notice the man especially, but standing opposite, the detective saw that the lower jaw had fallen, that all color had drained from his lips, that the face had become of a waxy yellow, and that there was an unseeing, glassy stare in the eyes.

The idea that he was drunk occurred to Rossi, but remembering the man's manner on arriving, he abandoned this hypothesis as improbable. While he debated, Monsieur Aubespine had approached, though not very near; and almost at the same moment a number of persons coming from the theater had pushed close to the seated players at this table. A man had inadvertently jostled Mr. Drummond, who had collapsed with his head on the shoulder of a neighbor.

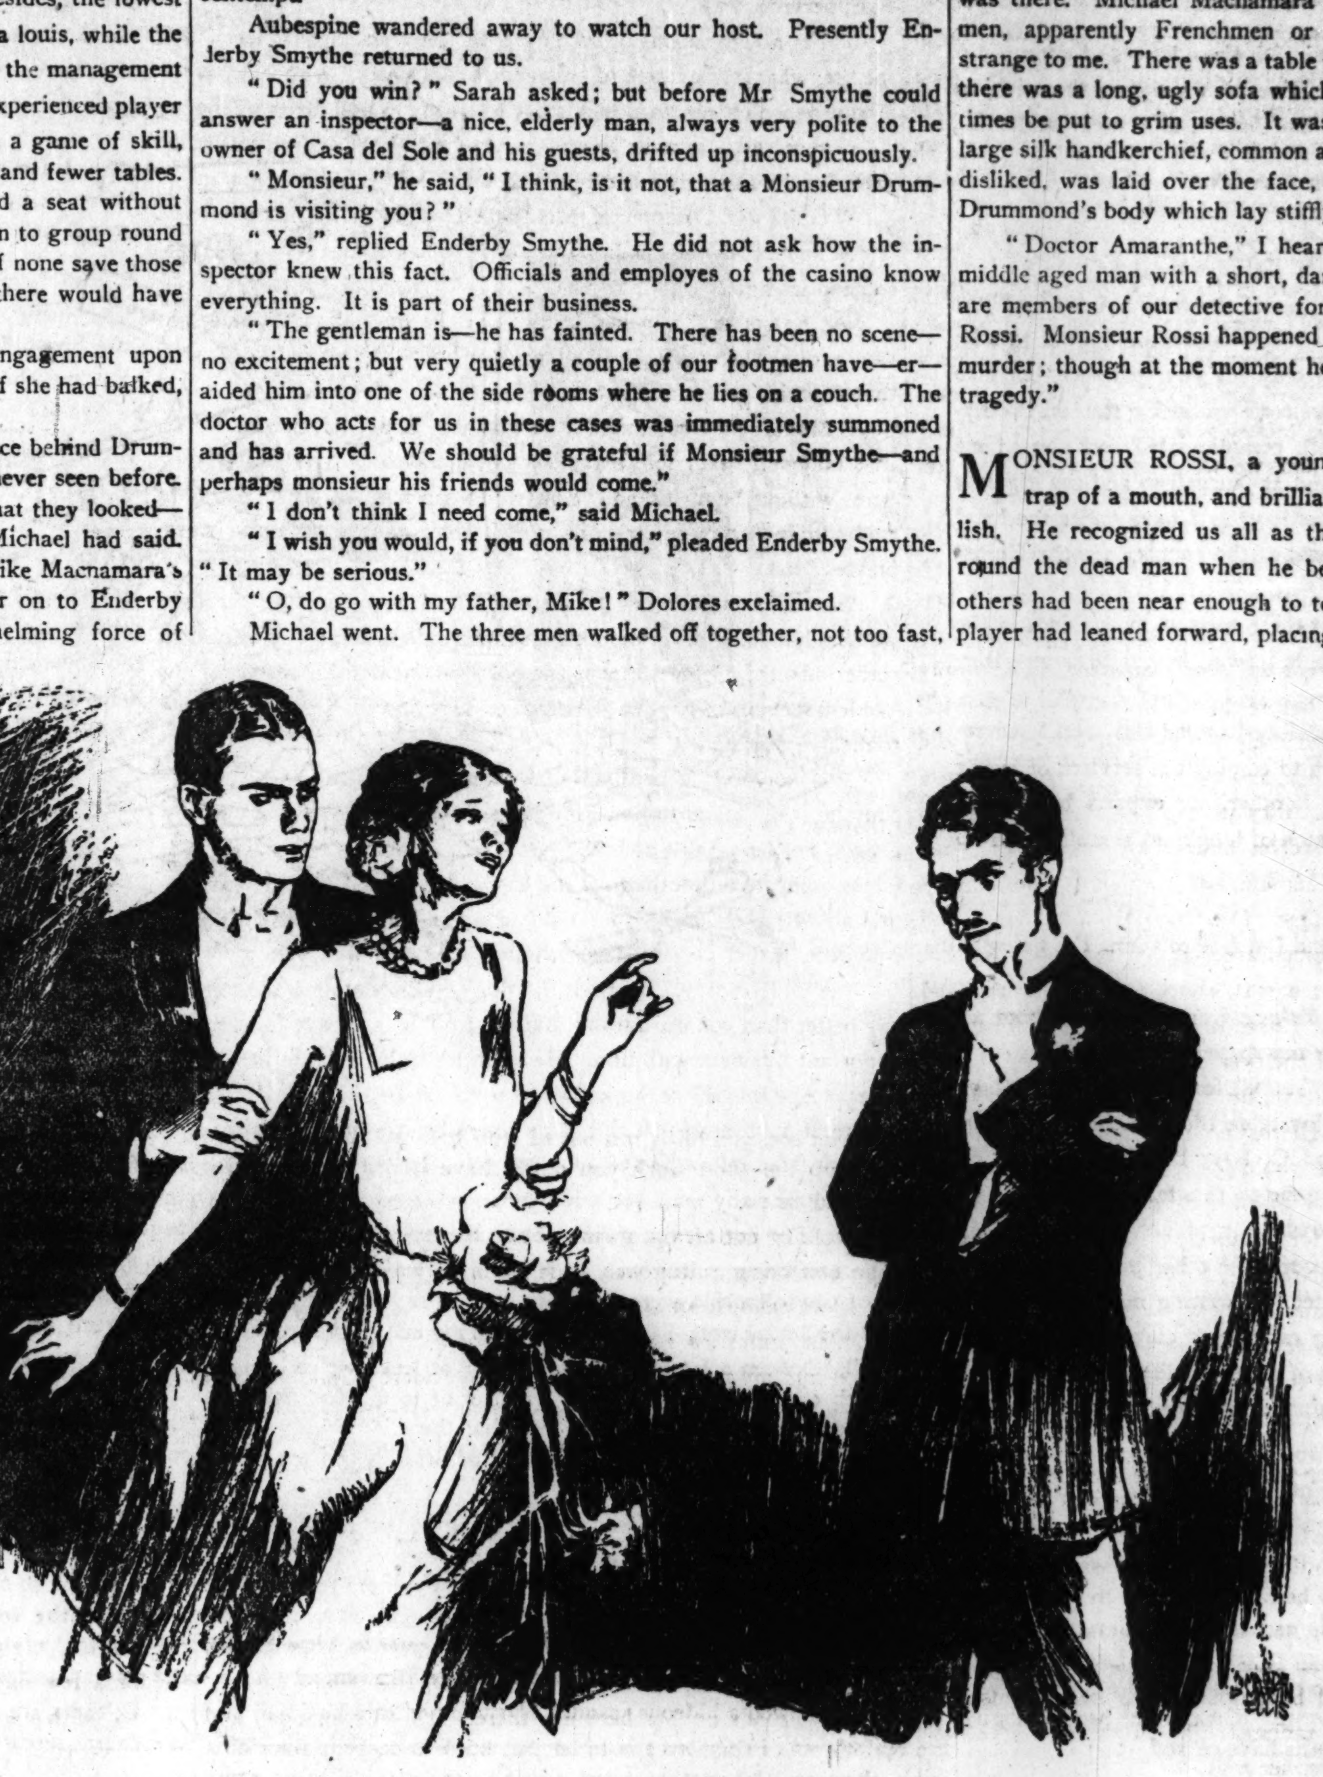
"I gave the usual signal, and he was taken away," the detective went on. "Every one believes it was a case of intoxication. There was no excitement. The thing was forgotten three minutes later. But in the space of those minutes, here in this room, while awaiting Dr. Amaranthe, I myself saw that the unfortunate gentleman had been murdered. At the base of the brain, in the medulla oblongata, a long pin had been thrust and not withdrawn. There was practically no flow of blood—scarcely a drop."

As he spoke, with one swift gesture he whisked away the vulgar silk handkerchief which had covered Montague Drummond's head and face. The body was lying on the left side, its back to us as we huddled together behind the barrier of the table. The electric lamps were bright, and all could see the head of the pin which had quenched the hot spark of that evil life.

It was a purple headed pin. Those who had stayed at Casa del Sole would know that on each dressing table there was a large pin cushion with a dozen of those long, purple headed pins stuck into it. They were meant to pin violets upon a woman's dress; and there were green, rose pink, yellow, and blue headed pins of the same length; for the different flowers of the garden which Enderby Smythe's guests might like to wear. They were quite a specialty of the villa, and came from New York, where they were supplied to florists. Not only house party guests, but any one who ever entered a bedroom there might have seen these pins, grouped according to color, on white cushions.

I HEARD Sarah Riverslake draw in a sharp breath. The eyes of Dolores and her father were focused upon each other. Michael Macnamara looked happy—or utterly defiant. Who could say which?

"I regret to tell you, Mr. Smythe," the detective went on, "that you, yourself, and your whole party are under suspicion. As I said, no others were near enough to stab Mr. Drummond with this pin, until the moment when he actually fell over on being touched, the body losing its balance. Even if we had not this pin as a clew, persons from Casa del Sole would be under suspicion, because of that nearness. But as it happens, the pin is a valuable clew. One of our vestiare attendants is known to have been a maid in your house. Before summoning you I sent for her. She told us that there are pins of this description in every bedroom. 'Violet pins,' she called them."



"Monsieur, he says this to save me. It is a lie—a glorious lie."

Cohan Quits the Job by George M. Cohan

WELL! I've had a lot of fun with these letters of mine.

For five solid months I've been shooting them in just as though the old bread and butter, and sugar and milk, depended entirely upon them.

It's been a great experience.

Yes, sir! It's been an education!

I mean for myself—not for you. O, no.

I realize that probably 95 per cent of the stuff I've torn off just about bored you folks to death, and for that reason I want to take this opportunity to thank you, not only for your patience, but also for the many hundreds of letters I've received during the last twenty-odd weeks in which you have both complimented and abused me most beautifully for my bold attempt at journalism and my gigantic nerve and bravery in standing up as long as I have under the hand grenades hurled at me from all parts of the country via the United States mail.

On the square, I never thought there were so many birds in the world that had nothing else to do but write letters to a guy they didn't know.

The only way I could have possibly handled this weekly correspondence of mine would have been to employ the services of six or seven undersecretaries and a few handwriting experts besides, to decipher and answer the comical batch of longhand assaults piled up on my desk every morning.

A thousand laughs a day.

That's what they handed me, and I'm free to admit I'm going to miss the fun of it all.

I'm going to be lonely as the dickens from now on without all those wise cracking criticisms of my newspaper articles.

Yes, sir! Things are going to be dull for me, because, if there is any one thing in the world I enjoy more than another, it's being properly roasted and panned. And O, boy; believe me, some of those letter writing lads have burned me up to a fare thee well.

But your fun is all over too, boys!

Yes, sir! You'll have to pick out some other poor lad to lambaste in the future because this letter I'm writing now, figuratively speaking, will slam the door on my newspaper career and send me out in the cold, cold world in search of other employment.

Not that I've got anything against this newspaper or the newspaper game itself. No, sir.

On the contrary, the newspaper fellows have treated me fairly and squarely and have made me feel happy and absolutely at home ever since I went to work back there five months ago.

So you see, it's not because I'm discontented or dissatisfied that I'm folding up my desk. It's merely because I've come to realize that the comical criticisms are not nearly as comical as they used to be, and so I've decided that the long distance letter writing brigade having run out of funny material, there is no real reason left for me to worry my way through weekly letters any longer, now that the hearty laughs handed out during the first few months have ceased.

YES, SIR! That's my reason for quitting this job.

The letters you fellows are writing to me now are no longer funny. There hasn't been a real laugh in the last several hundred, so you see, you birds ran out of stuff before I did, and if you had kept up the good work you might have jollied me along for another year or so.

I'm walking out on you guys—not on the newspapers.

The newspaper salary was all right in its way, but your early letters of condemnation were funny enough to repay me fifty times over for the actual work I did in holding up my end of the contest.

Well, it's been a lot of fun anyway and, at least, we've come to know each other a little better. As a matter of fact, I feel now that I know you letter writing birds so well that there is nothing left to learn about you, so I'm taking this means of driving you out of my life forever.

Now, mind you, I don't want you to imagine for a moment that my withdrawal from the letter writing field comes under the head of a victory for you fellows. No, sir! If you really wanted to worry me and drive me plumb off my nut, the thing you should have done was to have kept me on the job instead of sending me away, carefree, smiling the happiest of smiles, and whistling my own tunes.

However, that's neither here nor there. It's all over now, and the real object of this letter is to let you know that, beginning next week, there will be another actor added to the already great army of actors who are absolutely out of work, and the only difference between me and the other fellows will be that in my case it's no one's fault but my own.

I wish to thank the fellow who gave me this newspaper job in the first place, and also I wish to thank the entire staff for their thoughtfulness and kindness in not making themselves personally acquainted with me during my short but interesting connection with this syndicate.

Also I wish to thank the many thousands of readers who have never read my stuff and consequently have not bothered me with wild and excitable criticism.

I also wish to thank the many newspaper owners and editors throughout the country who have so kindly refrained from trying to induce me to remain in the game.

I fully appreciate your attitude, gentlemen, and thank you most heartily for your silent understanding of how necessary it is for me to quit.

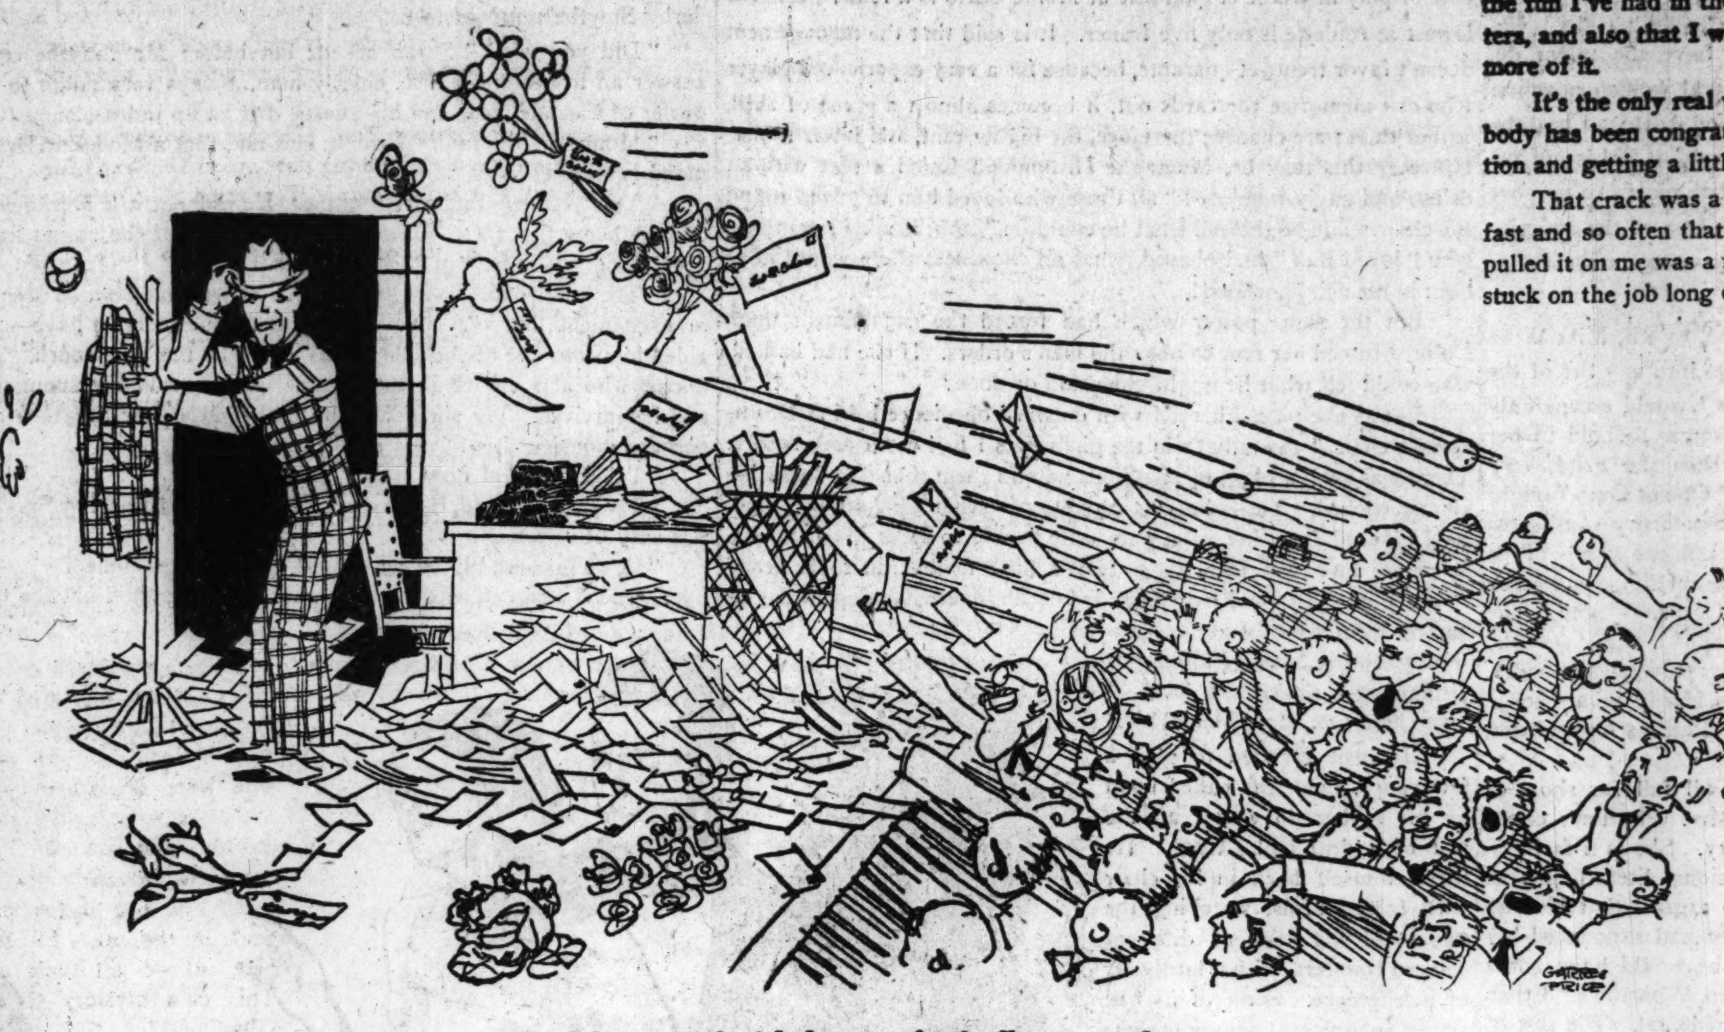
I also wish to thank the other fellows who had nerve enough to remain in the weekly letter writing game, even though they fully realized that my entrance into the field made an absolute joke out of the whole business.

O, there are so many folks I should thank, and so much I could say, that it seems about hopeless to attempt to put it all on paper.

ONE thing I'd like to have everybody in the newspaper game know before I leave them all flat, like the billposter left the Barnum circus, and that is that I wouldn't take a million dollars for the fun I've had in the last twenty-odd weeks, turning out these letters, and also that I wouldn't take a million dollars for twenty weeks more of it.

It's the only real work I've ever done in my life, and still everybody has been congratulating me on the wise idea of taking a vacation and getting a little rest for myself.

That crack was a hearty laugh for several weeks, but it came so fast and so often that I imagined after a while that every one who pulled it on me was a newspaper man and was on to the fact that if I stuck on the job long enough they'd carry me out on a shutter.



Cohan quits the job, but your fun is all over, too, boys.

Well, anyway, as I've already stated, it's been a lot of fun, and there's been no harm done one way or the other.

I've saved up all the money I've made in the newspaper game, and so I'm rich enough now to buy a newspaper of my own and get even by hiring some guy I hate to write weekly letters and watch him slowly but surely going into decay.

However, I doubt that I'll do anything of the kind because, to tell the truth, I think the vacation the boys have been stringing me about is just coming on.

Yes, sir! The manuscript paper goes in the waste basket; the flock of pencils go out the window, and yours truly goes to Lake Placid with a pair of skates and a wild desire for the open air.

So long, boys—good-by, fellows; we'll meet again sometime, some way or another.

But in the meantime, remember one thing about the finish of my newspaper career:

I walked out.

I was neither kicked out nor carried out.

I walked out.

Don't waste writing material.

The old dreams won't catch me.

Just one little story I'd like to tell you before sliding off the page altogether:

I met George Tyler, the theatrical manager, the other day and he told me he was going to produce a new play.

"The central character is an old fashioned American," he said.

"What do you mean by an old fashioned American?" I inquired.

"Why he's one of those fellows who still believes in the Declaration of Independence," answered George.

I don't know yet whether he was kidding me or the actors' union.

Be good!

N. B.—I was going to say something further but I just changed my mind.

MY NEWSPAPER CAREER GEO. M. COHAN

HOUSE OF THE SUN = = = = = By C. N. & A. M. Williamson

"That is true," said Enderby Smythe, speaking for the first time, "but if a member of my family or house party had committed this crime of which you are practically accusing one of us, would she not instantly have withdrawn the pin from the wound, and contrived to throw it out of a window—you know they are open in the Salle Schmidt where we have all been—instead of leaving it to convict her?"

"Her or him, Mr. Smythe," corrected Rossi, with cool emphasis. "A man, premeditating this murder—and my theory is that it was premeditated before your party left Casa del Sole tonight—could just as well as a woman have taken one of those long pins from the cushions which our employe had described. It could have been concealed underneath the lapel of an evening coat."

As he said this, with a swift glance like the flash of an electric torch, he swept the face of each man. Enderby Smythe and Mike Macnamara were pale, but showed no emotion. Aubespine was flushed, and angrily impatient.

"I never went into one of the bedrooms tonight," he snapped. "I never saw the pins you speak of. I didn't like Drummond. Nobody did. He was a swine. But I hardly knew the brute. Why should I kill him?"

"MONSIEUR, I am not accusing you, or any one else. All is to be found out in the future," said Rossi. "I merely had to warn Mr. Smythe and every one of his party near the dead man at the tragic moment that they are under suspicion. In Monaco, as you doubtless know, there is no such thing as a coroner's inquest. But murder is dealt with by French law. It is very strict. I much fear you must all be detained here tonight. As for the point Mr. Smythe makes about the pin being left in the wound, it counts nothing. Small as that wound is, it would have been likely to bleed, the doctor informs me, had the pin been withdrawn. A trickle of blood on a man's neck would attract more attention than the beadlike head of a pin of a purple as dark as the hair and at the junction of the hair with the neck. Besides, withdrawal would be more difficult than administering a quick stab in a well chosen spot. A hand, trembling with excitement from the deed just done, might have trembled. No, Mr. Smythe, the one course was to leave the weapon embedded."

The electric flash swept all our faces. Dolores' was expressionless and almost as white as that of a statue.

I felt I knew that those two who cared for each other would not defend themselves, lest suspicion fall on a loved one. With Aubespine alone it was different. He was an impulsive boy, and, though he loved Sarah Riverslake, she had refused him often with laughter, and he was not one to sacrifice himself with no hope of reward. Nor was he apt to be seriously suspected. Rossi and his fellow detective, who knew most things about most people frequenting the Riviera, doubtless knew Drummond's reputation. Already they would have asked themselves and each other, "Why does Enderby Smythe give his beautiful daughter to a man like Montague Drummond, smirched in reputation, hated even by those who entertain him, old enough to be her father? Why does Drummond get killed on the very night when he has boasted of his engagement? Who would have a motive for killing the wretch before he had time to take the privileges of a fiance? The girl herself would have such a motive. So would the father she sacrifices herself to save from some unknown horror. The man who loves her and wishes to marry her himself would have the motive in a high degree. (Michael Macnamara had long been talked of with Dolores.) Or, possibly, a woman wishing to marry Enderby Smythe, who would like to save him with one quick blow from a blackmailer."

IT was Aubespine and I who were apparently "out" of the affair. Of course, we had been close to Drummond, very close indeed. But no motive sprang to the eye.

"I admit," Enderby Smythe was saying, "that circumstantial evidence is strong against one and all of us. But those violet pins were often taken from their cushions by ladies who came to my house for lunch, or tea, or dinner. I have entertained largely—many people I knew slightly, brought by mutual friends to the house. You confess, Monsieur Rossi, that at first you suspected nothing when we crowded around Mr. Drummond by his own request to watch his play. You are a detective, but you are human and not infallible. During those careless moments of yours another may have joined the group—one who escaped your notice: some woman who hated Drummond. I say this must have been so. I protest against my daughter and Lady Riverslake being detained even for a few hours. Any harshness you will have cause to regret, I warn you."

"The affair is not in my hands," Rossi informed him. "Wishing to spare you, I have done what I could, hoping that the guilty person, if present, as one cannot help supposing, might wish to spare unpleasantness to others by——"

"O, let's have it over with!" broke in Macnamara. "I hated Montague Drummond, as everybody else hated him, but perhaps a little more, so I killed him. I'd have gone free if I could, for to kill a beast like that isn't a crime, but rather than—any one else should be suspected I prefer to speak out—now."

"O, Michael!" cried Dolores, with a great sob. She turned to the detective. "Monsieur, he says this to save me. It is a lie—a glorious lie. He knows that I killed Mr. Drummond, because—because he knew things about me and threatened to tell. I promised to marry him to keep him silent. But I never meant to do that if I could find some other way out. I did find one."

I saw Rossi glance at Enderby Smythe to see if now he would take the crime upon himself, or say, at least, that his daughter had done what she had done for his reputation, not her own. I held my breath, for it seemed that my heart was in my throat, and my eyes rested for a horrible few seconds on the man who kept silent. One had but to look at him then to know that he would see his daughter's lover, or even the girl herself, die for his sake in shame and disgrace rather than tell what Dolores had paid Drummond not to tell. The long face, with its peculiar, almost repulsive features, was like a locked steel safe for holding secrets—his own secrets. But suddenly, with such a strange flash of illumination as comes sometimes in a supreme moment of life or death, an X-ray of the soul showed me the inside of the safe.

Just what the secret of his past was I could not know, of course, and now I shall never know, but I saw how he had so well hidden not only the secret but his true identity. He had made himself the opposite of the type to which he was born. He had shaved his eyebrows because long ago, before the thing happened, they had been bushy. He had dyed the light hair which once had matched the pale lashes. He wore glasses that he didn't need to hide his eyes, not because he was near-sighted. The symmetrical Greek nose had been remade for him by a plastic surgeon, who had removed some characteristic curve or hump by which he might have been recognized. Even the front teeth had been changed—false ones put in, perhaps, and filled with gold. But, in spite of all, Montague Drummond had not been deceived. It was Montague Drummond's business in life not to be deceived. He, too, had been in South America.

And poor Dolores—she had known always! At last I understood the tragic shadow in her eyes. She had given all that made life dear for her father, and now she was ready to give life itself for her lover. But, thank God, that need not be.

"MONSIEUR," I said, quietly, to the detective, "I saw Montague Drummond killed."

I felt that every one in the room turned quickly towards me, but I didn't dare take my eyes from the face of the detective. Monsieur Rossi looked sharply at me. For almost a minute there wasn't a sound in the room. Finally the detective spoke to me, and there was a slight edge to his voice.

"But why didn't madam tell us that before?"

"I didn't intend to speak of it at all, monsieur. But now I must. Captain Macnamara confessed the crime because he thought that Miss Smythe might have done it in despair and he determined to spare her at any cost. In the same way, she confessed to save him. They love each other."

I stopped. I felt I could not go on. I could feel, without seeing, the white, strained faces of those about me. Monsieur Rossi grew impatient with me.

"The murderer, madam! You say you saw Montague Drummond murdered."

"Not murdered, monsieur. I said I saw how Montague Drummond was killed."

I could feel the tension about me slacken, and, turning my head, I saw that Sarah Riverslake had taken a step toward me. Her right hand clutched the front of her lovely golden chiffon dress. She had lost again her usual air of unruffled coolness. For the moment she looked frightened, then, quickly regaining her composure, she dropped her hand to her side and turned to the detective.

"It was I who killed Drummond. But, monsieur, I swear that it was an accident."

She had just enough strength and composure for that one sentence. She swayed slightly. With quick strides both Enderby Smythe and young Aubespine were at her side, and both supported her while the doctor shoved a chair forward.

The detective's attention was now focused entirely on Lady Riverslake. He was about to address her when I spoke to him.

"Monsieur," I said, speaking as quickly as I could, "I am going to tell you and all these people here just what happened out there."

Monsieur Rossi raised his hand in protest, but I hurried on, not heeding him.

"Lady Riverslake wore a purple orchid pinned to her dress when she entered the Casino tonight. While we stood watching the play behind Montague Drummond the flower drooped and wilted in the heat and closeness of the room. I saw Lady Riverslake unpin the flower and let it drop to the floor. She held the pin in her hand, which she rested on the back of Drummond's chair as her attention was again attracted to the play. A minute later Drummond threw himself back in his chair. I saw that Lady Riverslake's hand was caught between his head and the back of the chair. The crushing of her hand, so, probably postponed realization of the accident to Drummond. My husband was an army surgeon. As a girl I studied in his hospital. I knew, of course, that Drummond's head had struck that pin too swift and sure for the man to make a sound or move. I took Lady Riverslake's arm and drew her quickly to one side and a little away from the back of the chair. She looked at her hand and then looked down at me with a wild, frightened look in her eyes. She was about to cry out, but I dug my fingers into her arm and the pressure warned her to keep still. That, monsieur, is how Montague Drummond died, and I can swear, as well as Lady Riverslake, that it was an accident. I know she couldn't have done that intentionally, just as it happened. If you look, monsieur, you will find that purple orchid on the floor just behind the chair that Montague Drummond last occupied."

A formal charge was made against Lady Riverslake, but my testimony at the official inquest freed her.

I no longer live at Monte, but once a year in my cottage on the Devonshire coast Dolores and Michael Macnamara come to visit me. Though the Casa del Sole and its pleasant days are but as memories of a dream, those two dear ones are happy. So, too, am I.

NEXT SUNDAY......................................THE ROOF

Utterly mad, surely, but a delightful young Irishman; and a sorry disturbance, truly, to the pretty girl who planned a marriage of convenience. Read this Blue Ribbon short story..................by Josephine Daskam Bacon

The Amazing Crime By HENRY C. ROWLAND

THE STORY SO FAR.

JOHN OLIVANT, young war veteran and confidential agent of a rich promoter, Julius Jedburgh, is in Salt Springs on business with

MR POINDEXTER, bank president, father of SHELBY POINDEXTER. Olivant and Shelby see the bank robbed in broad daylight. Olivant attempts to stop the robbers, but one of them knocks him senseless. With Mr Poindexter before the robbery was

COL. VAN DOORN of the Royal Army Engineers. The robbers escape in a queer looking airplane with wings like a turkey buzzard's. All the witnesses seem to succumb to an odd limpness which renders them incapable of vigorous thought or action, or of active pursuit. Olivant confers with

FRANK CLAMART, once an international crook but now a shrewd sleuth. Clamart lays the bank robbery to one

HUMBOLDT, an arch criminal and withal a super-scientist. Clamart believes Humboldt has found a way to poison the air so as to render his victims helpless while he and his confederates loot at their will. Clamart thinks Humboldt is

M. DE SAXE, a mysterious Belgian, a wonder chemist. In Washington De Saxe becomes enamored of

COUNTESS LEONTINE, a beautiful adventuress, friend of Clamart in his criminal career. Olivant goes to Washington to investigate De Saxe. There he dines with

THOMAS JEFFERSON PAYNE, a coal baron, and Shelby Poindexter. Olivant recognizes a waiter as the bank robber of Salt Springs. Two men ambush Olivant and he is winged by a mysterious silent bullet, but is saved by Clamart. All go to Payne's home near his mines. Shelby and Olivant see a plane just like the bank robbers' land close by, and learn De Saxe owns that property. Payne admits to Olivant that he loves Shelby. Clamart and De Saxe instantly recognize each other as foes when De Saxe dines at the Payne home. Shelby and Olivant go to inspect De Saxe's mine, and are set upon by a horde of little men who slash Shelby's mule with a knife. Fleeing, Shelby and Olivant escape through a tunnel that leads into the De Saxe chateau. Hiding there, they find Clamart with pistol covering De Saxe, demanding De Saxe produce Shelby and Olivant unhurt. Clamart has found the slashed mule and with it the body of one of their assailants, an Anamite, killed by the animal's hoofs. De Saxe is startled at the mention of Anamites. They must be tools of Humboldt, he tells Clamart, for Humboldt is, or was, half Javanese. He shakes Clamart's belief that Humboldt and De Saxe are one and the same person. Suddenly there comes a terrifying interruption.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

An Escape from Death.

THE protracted silence became intolerable. Olivant could not have described just what he felt. So many emotions had been recently gone through with that there seemed nothing left in him that might respond in any active way to what came next. But it did flash across his mind that he had once or twice previously felt that abyssmal dread of nothing, of everything, or, to be more exact, of an utter dissolution, not physical, but of his very ego, in the dark period bordering on delirium tremens. He had not actually been stricken with this frightful nervous collapse but stood on the verge of it, and it had profited him in his avoidance of taking any such chance again.

This now was precisely what he felt. It seemed to him that not only was his whole cosmos—mental, physical, spiritual—shaking and quivering and crying out in the dread of being utterly rent, but that the walls of the chateau were shaking, too.

He fought with all the power that was in him for some sort of cohesive resistance; then it seemed to him that something was stirring and rustling in a definite way, like a beast in the jungle, behind the heavy portieres that separated the big hall from the dining room. He could see waves and undulations going through them as though they were swaying in a strong draft of air, like a slack sail as a ship rolls and makes its own breeze in the heavy swell heaving through a calm.

Olivant stared, fascinated, but with a curious sense of relief at having something definite on which to fix his tension and his thought. He was still staring at these portieres when he felt Shelby's arms tightening about him.

"Look—O, look!" she moaned.

Then there burst from her a fearful piercing shriek, one of her arms flung out pointing, rigid and straight. Olivant followed its indication with his eyes. He saw a small brown hand gripping at the portiere, and an evil little brown face, like that of an utterly vicious boy, peering at him from behind its border. But there was terror as well as malice in that face, and the eyes were blinking like a frightened monkey's.

Then came a sort of scurry in the dining room, a scurry as of rats flushed out from behind and under a piece of furniture in a disused room. It seemed to Olivant that four boy scouts were rushing towards them across the big hall. But, unlike boy scouts, there flashed from the hands of this swarming little band wavy bladed knives.

Shelby's scream was repeated. "Look, look!" she screamed. "Armageddon!"

The stone column, about which the stair wound upward, was shaking to pieces. The house was paneled in oak and mahogany even to the ceilings, and in these and the wainscoting there were fissures opening and shutting. Olivant saw this without much heeding it. His attention focused on the wizened little brown men who had grouped under the arch of the doorway, bodies crouched and heads thrust out, wavy bladed knives held with the palm turned upward and the point advanced. They seemed less struck with terror by the big stone house rocking on its foundation than waiting some signal.

AND still no sound from Clamart or from De Saxe. Olivant, mindful of his own recent benumbing of the faculties, drew on all his force of will to combat a brain that was turning giddy with that previously experienced, of whirling in a swing as children wind each other up in a rope suspending one, then let it untwist.

He found himself able to struggle up and stand with some security, shaking his head like a swimmer just risen from a dive. There came at that moment a crash, and something rolled at his feet.

It was a bronze statuette of Mercury bearing aloft his caduceus that had been set upon the newel post secured by an iron rod.

Olivant swung down and seized it, and as he did so there came a rush of crouching little figures. The statuette was two feet high, weighing about twenty pounds, and using it as a mace, scarcely conscious of its weight, Olivant sprang forward and flailed about him. In the rocking and rending and crash of falling fragments he was scarcely conscious of the havoc he wrought and how many seconds it lasted until he discovered that there were no more opposed to him.

Then, dropping his weapon, he turned, gathered up Shelby, and managed to struggle with her to the big front door and out. Some massive block of stone from the Tudor tower crashed down just behind him. But he held on blindly, straight down the drive with its bordering hedges. There came from far beneath a dull, heavy reverberation that shook the hilltop in a volcanic shudder, and the next instant the roar and crashing of the crumbling chateau.

Olivant was pitched headlong, flung with Shelby into the low hedge that bordered the lawn.

TOM sprang to his feet and stood tensely until the shuddering reverberation died away. As a miner, his first thought was naturally of the ignition of gases and their explosion deep in the earth, and in consideration of the present state of affairs the idea of sabotage flashed across his mind.

Once before he had felt a similar shock from such a cause, but nothing that approached the same violence.

Some woman had screamed in the rear of the house. Then the voice of Mrs. Payne came clearly from above.

"Tom! O, Tom!"

He sprang to the door. "Yes, mother."

"Look at the chateau. That was the Muller mine."

"Are you all right, up there?"

"Yes. The plaster has fallen in some of the rooms, but nobody is hurt. Look up there on the hill."

Tom rushed out on the veranda. The first thing that he observed was a dark fan shaped cloud, black with dull ochre tinges, spreading out over the crest of the hill. Directly under it were the ruins of the chateau partly standing and presenting an aspect that would have been familiar to veterans of the campaigns in Belgium and northeastern France. As he watched, horror stricken, appalled, the dark cloud slowly changed its funnel shape to spread out and flatten and rise.

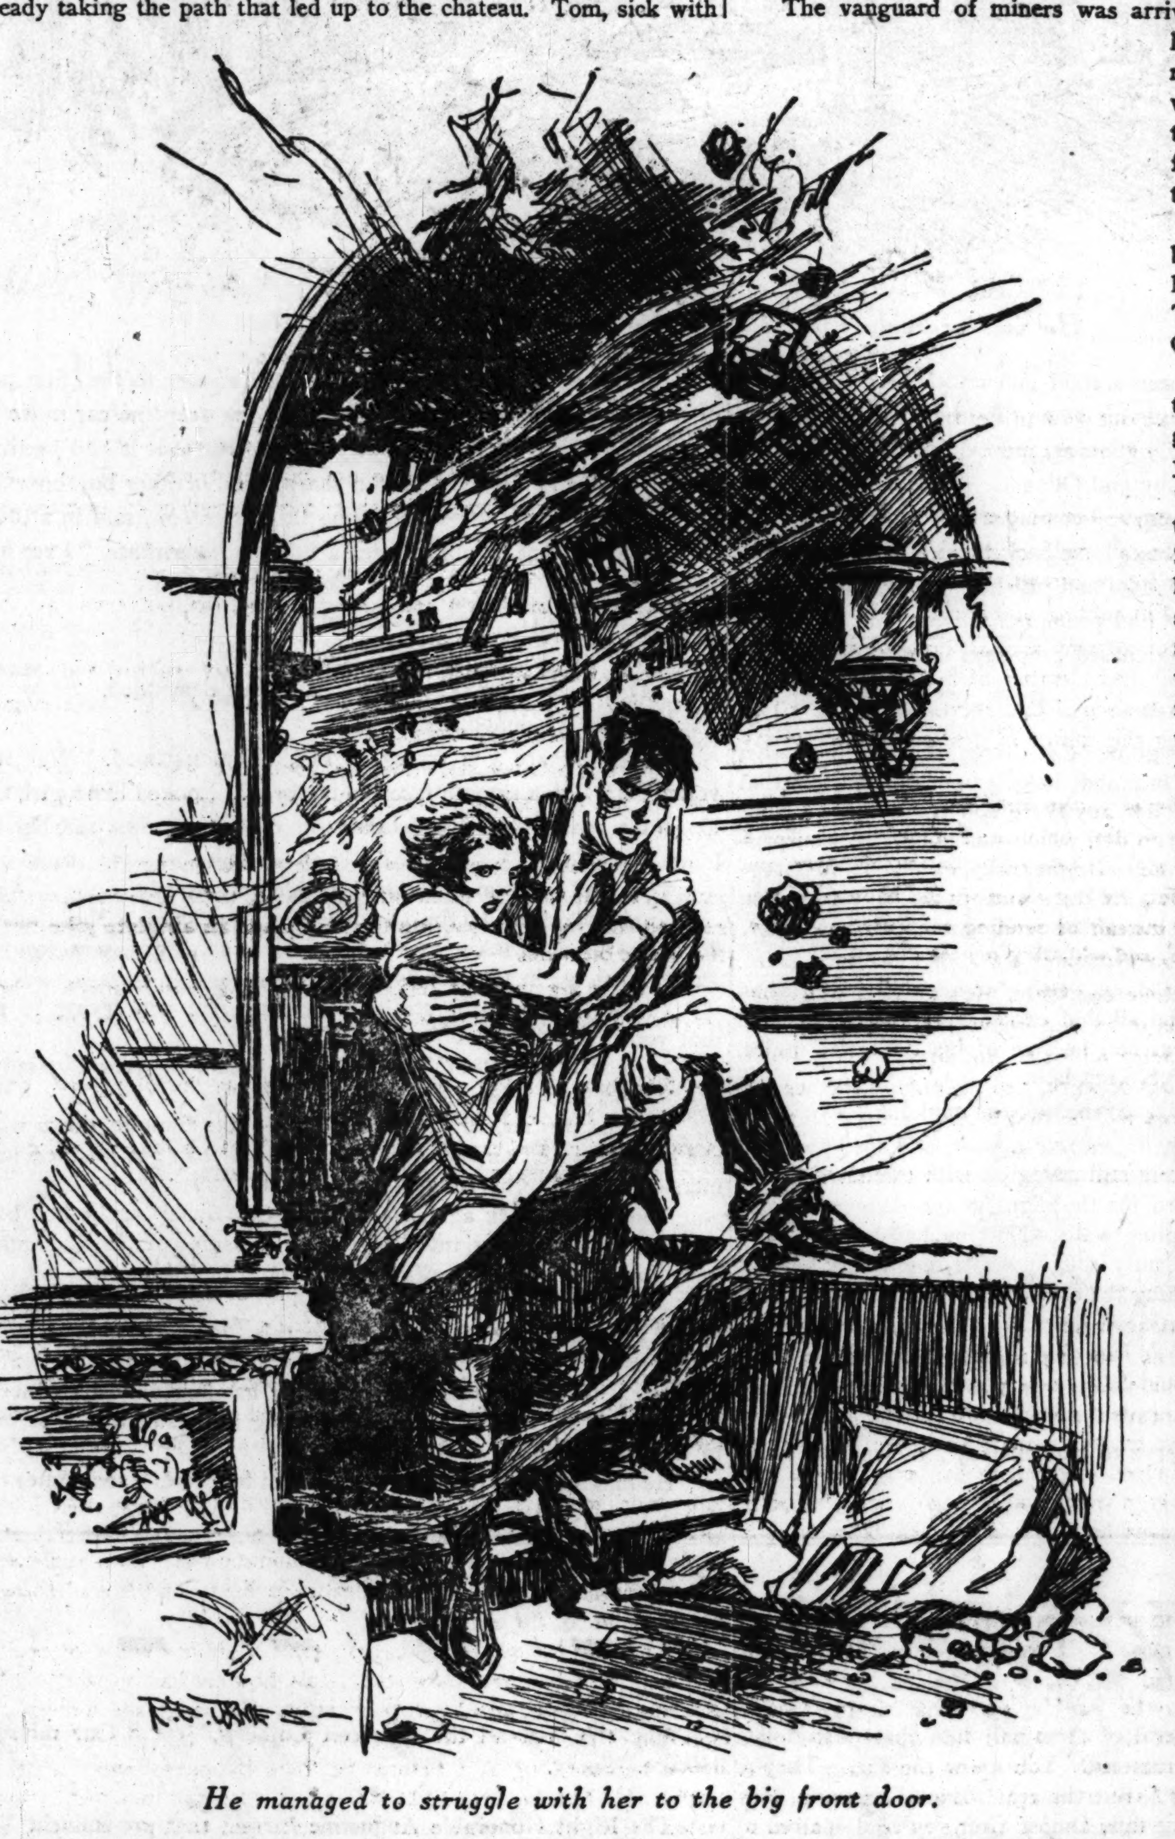
Tom's first thought was for his guests. It instantly occurred to him that Shelby and Olivant might have ridden up to view the chateau and, meeting De Saxe, have been invited to inspect his recently acquired property.

Tom's car had been brought to the door and the chauffeur was standing beside it, gazing with horror toward the scene of devastation.

Tom ran down the veranda and leaped into the driver's seat.

"Jump in," he said. "Somebody or something has blown up the old Muller mine."

He started the motor and set off. Groups of his people were already taking the path that led up to the chateau. Tom, sick with dread for what might have happened, tore down the slope that led to the fork in the road. He could not imagine how the catastrophe had occurred nor why it should have attained such fearful violence. Even supposing the mine to have been filled with inflammable gas, detonated by accident or design, he could never have believed the force of the explosion to be so violent. It seemed to him that there must have been some fault in the construction of the chateau's foundation.



He managed to struggle with her to the big front door.

Presently his chauffeur ventured a remark.

"That was a bad one, sir. Never heard the like of it. Lucky the mine wasn't being worked."

"I can't make it out at all," Tom said. "Must have been a cache of dynamite. Gas alone wouldn't do it."

"Did you notice anything before the big shock, sir?"

"No. Did you?"

"Well, it seemed to me like there was a sort of rumble as if the earth was trembling, for the matter of a minute, maybe. It gave me a queer feeling."

"I didn't get that," said Tom. "Was it steady or in jerks?"

"Sort of jerky, sir, now I come to think of it."

"Then there might have been a series of gas explosions deep down, and they set off the dynamite. I'm afraid some of my guests may have been up there."

DRIVING with all the power that was in the motor, Tom reached the hairpin curve of the fork, skidded around it, and tore up the road to the Muller mine and to what had been the chateau. Then, as he drew near the grounds of this latter, he noticed small particles of soot falling like a fine black snow. There was a curious smell in the air, acrid and sweetish, but of a sort that Tom could not determine.

Plunging between the square gate posts, from which the ornamental spheres of granite had been rolled down, Tom gave a shout of relief as he caught sight of Shelby standing by a mass of masonry while Olivant seemed to be searching for what he could discover in the ruins.

Tom braked and sprang down when Shelby turned and walked toward him. She was evidently unhurt, aside from smears and smudges on her face and on the riding costume, but none the worse for the catastrophe.

Olivant also hurried up to Tom. He was pale but composed. At a little distance, in the shade of a big pine, stood De Saxe's car.

"Thank God, you two are safe!" Tom cried. "Where are Clamart and De Saxe?"

Olivant pointed to the mass of debris. "In there, Tom, I'm afraid."

"Where were you two?"

"We were inside the chateau, but got out before it collapsed."

"You felt it coming?"

"Yes. It began to shake, then there came a deep explosion, and it crumbled. But we were well clear."

"Why didn't De Saxe and Clamart get out?"

"I don't know. They were talking in a room near the door, and when the first jar came they seemed to stop and listen. Let's get Shelby home and I'll tell you all about it."

"Yes, that's better. There's a crowd on the way up, and I'll start them to clearing away. Was there anybody else in there? Where's De Saxe's chauffeur?"

"I don't know. I'll show the men where to start work."

The vanguard of miners was arriving. Olivant indicated the locality of De Saxe and Clamart. Some of the men who were acquainted with the place went to the shop for bars and tackles. Tom turned to Olivant.

"You and Shelby start back in the car. I'll stay here till we get them out. This is a mystery to me, Olly."

"It's not entirely that to me, Tom. Something a good deal worse. I'll tell you what I know later."

Olivant put Shelby in the car and got in after her. She leaned back against him, resting her head on his shoulder. They did not speak on the way back. Olivant's emotions were the mingled one of thanks for their escape and grief for the man whom he had come almost to venerate. Yet it seemed a fitting end for Frank Clamart—to be annihilated almost to the ringing echoes of his defiance to the crafty and evil master of tremendous forces predicted by certain scientists of the day, but not yet demonstrated.

OLIVANT immediately discarded De Saxe's statement that there was a subtle Eurasian who had been formerly his pupil and had stolen the secret of his discoveries with which to serve his unscrupulous ends. This declaration Olivant believed to be no more than a pretext to gain time. How could such an individual have found time and means to wreck the chateau? It was far more probable that De Saxe had stored in the depths of the mine some sort of continuous explosive of which the property might be a gradual release of atomic energy in a series or chain of concussions.

De Saxe was a man of mystery and unknown voyagings. In the course of his travels he might have picked up these sinister little devils of Anamites and brought them in aboard his yacht as servants. No doubt he had been clever enough to see how easily they might be disguised as boy scouts, or boys desiring to imitate boy scouts, when with faces smudged they might pass readily enough for the progeny of low caste aliens. He had set them to picket his property, when it was quite possible that their furtive, savage natures had inspired them to exceed their instructions. Like setting vicious little curs to keep chickens out of one's premises when in the excitement of the chase they might lose their self-control and tear them to pieces.

It had seemed to Olivant, when, crazed with horror at what was happening, he had seized the bronze statuette and struck them down, that there were four or five, but as his brain began to clear he began to doubt that there were more than three of them.

It occurred to him then with a sort of awe that here really was a wonderful episode and of a character that touched sublimity. An arch enemy of society's protective institutions had arrived far ahead of others of his kind in solving the enigma of vast hidden natural forces. He had determined to employ them for purposes of personal domination, to establish himself as Master of the World.

And here, parallel to him, was another man of comparative ignorance, in many ways a primitive, but despite his antecedents, an honest man. This one, through native astuteness and a vast experience of the workings of the criminal, which is to say the completely selfish mind, had guessed the secret of the alchemist.

And then, despite the shocking disparity of their relative powers, he had met and challenged him. More than that, he had defied and threatened him, and in the stronghold of this puissant one had reminded him in bitter, stinging words of limitations that could not be denied. For this he had paid the price which, viewed in a wider sense, had been a triumph. Olivant did not honestly believe Clamart would have had it otherwise.

The man had lived his life, stormy for the most, with some few spots of sweet serenity. He had fought and lost and fought and won. His last words proclaimed him a man of infinite piety. The purport of them now echoed in Olivant's ears. No poor mistaken lawbreaker, thief or killer or renegade who knows himself to be no more than one of God's most miserable creatures as the man who says there is no God—except himself.

THEY reached the Paynes', and as the car drew up in front of the perron Shelby raised herself and looked at Olivant with a sad little smile.

"Poor Frank Clamart. It really breaks my heart. But, O, John, wasn't he magnificent?"

Olivant bowed his head. "Like one of the successive champions of defenseless humanity. There'll be a place in the sun for Frank Clamart. But I say, Shelby, nothing's to be said about this just yet, except that we went into the chateau and heard them talking, and then ran out again."

Shelby went up with Mrs. Payne. Olivant, going to his room to wash and change and generally refresh himself, was surprised to find how little he seemed to be shaken by the ordeal. He stepped to the window and looked up at the chateau, now a crumbling ruin that the approaching night was beginning to enshroud. Why a place like that for such a battle of Titans? But then, he reflected, any obscure hamlet may suddenly blaze out in the glare of the torch by the light of which one reads the history of war and of the world. Like Verdun or Ypres. Only there, he reflected, the signal event was announced by terrific cataclysm, the sum of a multitude of acts like that single one of Frank Clamart's, and such ravage and desolation as would seem to make what might possibly be an infinitely more important menace insignificant.

Probably not more than one or two of those present, perhaps only one, had any conception of what it was destined to do to the history of mankind. For all that anybody knows, the same thing may have happened countless times. Somebody finding the key to unlock terrific sources of ill, and before it could be inserted somebody or something else, whether a man or a microbe, sending the finder back to the melting pot.

Olivant decided then to go back up the hill. The ruins were not so great but that by this time the corpses of these two antagonists must have been recovered.

He went down to order a car to take him up the hill. But both cars had gone back, one to wait for Tom and the limousine to serve as hearse. Everybody about the place seemed to have gone up there and, glancing in that direction, Olivant saw smoke or steam rising from the ruins. He remembered then that the kitchen range had been warm, so that no doubt there may have been live coals left in it. Olivant went out then with the intention of going to the stables for a horse. As he stepped outside he saw a handsome town car turn into the grounds at the foot of the slope. The color, a deep maroon, was not that of De Saxe's car, nor was this of the type apt to be found in such a region.

It drew up at the door. The chauffeur was Japanese, or so Olivant thought, and as the car stopped he did not get down, but sat in a stiff, precise, military manner awaiting orders like the soldier driver of a military car.

Olivant then caught sight of a military looking man inside the car who, at sight of Olivant, leaned forward to the lowered window of the door. He appeared of early middle age, with a stiff, straightly cropped mustache, prominent angles of the jaw, and a pointed chin. He had taken off his hat, showing rather closely cut thick hair that grew low upon a broad, squarely shaped forehead, creased by a deep vertical line between the eyes that gave to the soldierly face a look of concentration.

THIS much Olivant got in a glance, when the visitor said in a crisp voice that had a marked Anglican accent, "Will you kindly tell me, sir, if the Muller mining property is located hereabouts?"

"It is up on that western hill, sir," Olivant answered. "The road turns off to it about two miles before reaching this place. There has just been a violent explosion, and we are afraid that the present owner, Mr. de Saxe, has been crushed in the stone house near the mouth of the pit."

The man's features were contracted by a sort of spasm of shock or dismay. "But I understood the property was closed," he said, "and who is Mr. de Saxe?"

"The man who has recently bought the property," Olivant answered.

"Really!" He gave the word the broad Oxonian accent. "My informant told me it was for sale, and I came to look it over as a possible purchaser. And you say you fear this Mr. de Saxe to have been killed?"

"It looks that way," Olivant answered. "Mr. de Saxe lunched here today with my host, Mr. Payne. We know he had returned to the house about an hour before the violent explosion that demolished it and which we are all at a loss to account for. Mr. Payne is up there now with a gang of his men, working to search the ruins."

"Terrible," muttered the other. "I am Colonel Hendrik van Doorn, late of the Royal Dutch Army Engineers, and consultant of a syndicate interested in coal mining properties. I have driven today from Western Pennsylvania where I have been looking over some others offered for sale. Does there happen to be a hotel hereabouts?"

Olivant shook his had. "I'm afraid not, Colonel van Doorn. This is merely a mining center owned by the Payne family."

"Then I shall drive back to the nearest town. But first, if you will be so kind as to direct my chauffeur, I should like to discover if your fears have been realized."

"Then if you don't mind," said Olivant, "I'll go with you myself."

He laid his hand on the latch of the door, and stepped inside. There was by this time scarcely any daylight left. No more than a clear amber afterglow. But the moon nearly full was just lifting itself above the low eastern hills.

Colonel van Doorn spoke sharply to his chauffeur in Dutch, when the car moved silently off. It occurred to Olivant then that the driver was probably not Japanese but Javanese, a Dutch subject, and perhaps the former orderly of this officer of engineers. It all seemed entirely reasonable and plausible. Coal properties were on the market, and regarded from one angle possibly it might be the time to invest in such.

And then, as the car rolled down the drive, Olivant, through that association of ideas that is more reminiscent than names or faces or mere bald facts, was suddenly enabled to place the man at his side.

It flashed across his mind that just before the robbery of his bank, Mr. Poindexter and his cashier, Mr. Wallace, had been in conference with a Dutch mining engineer and expert in oil properties, who had left then to catch a westbound train some few minutes before the holdup. Olivant remembered that this had been a Colonel van Something. Evidently this was the same man, but for some reason that he could not have explained Olivant remained silent.

There seemed no reason at all to associate this crisp military person with the calamity that had befallen Mr. Poindexter and destroyed the prospect of his participation in the Jedburgh promotion scheme. Neither was there any reason to suppose that Colonel van Doorn's arrival at this moment at the house where Mr. Poindexter was a guest could have any bearing on the present catastrophe.

Yet the fact remained that the man was there upon the spot, like some sort of bird of ill omen, or vulture or buzzard. He must have had some interest in the Jedburgh scheme, and now he had expressed an interest in the Muller or De Saxe property that the explosion, with the death of the recent purchaser, would most probably place on the market at a nominal price.

This was not precisely Olivant's reflection, but rather a vague mental combination of the personality beside him with mysterious calamity, just as if in the depression to follow a shocking episode, shortly followed by another, one were to discover the same saturnine presence that had, so far as one could see, no bearing on either but nevertheless was there upon the premises.

Olivant withdrew a little into his corner of the car.

TOM PAYNE strode into the house about an hour after dark. His mother and sister, waiting up for him, were immediately struck by the curious mystified expression of his face.

"What's the matter, Tom? Have you—recovered the remains?"

"Why, no, mother, and that's the deuce of it. Where's John Olivant?"

"I don't know. I thought he'd gone back up to join you. A car drove in here just about dark, and as I had heard Mr. Olivant go down and out I thought he must have driven off in it. What have you done? What did you find?"

"We found the badly smashed remains of three poor little devils in the rig of boy scouts. But they are mutilated beyond all recognition. All the boys hereabouts are accounted for. More than that, I can't learn of any boy scouts or boys dressed like them having been here at all."

"And nothing of Mr. de Saxe?"

"Not a sign either of him or his chauffeur, though the car was standing by under a pine. That looks as if the chauffeur had been in the house, too. But the inside is fairly clear and we've been all through, even to the cellar. Such of the walls as fell went mostly outward."

He had not told his mother of Clamart's being with De Saxe, but she now asked if Mr. Clamart had returned with him.

"Why, no, mother, Clamart's missing, too. And now here's Olivant gone ramming off some place or other. He hasn't been up there, nor have I passed him on the road. Where's Shelby?"

"Lying down. The poor child and Olivant were indiscreet and curious enough to look inside when they found a side door open, and ran out at the first shock in time to escape being crushed, thank God."

"Yes, I know. As a matter of fact, Clamart was in there, too. He was seen to drive up there with De Saxe in his car. Some of the inner walls have sagged down, though we cleared away enough to see there was no one there besides these three boys."

"What were they doing in there?"

"Can't imagine. Just poking curiously about, kidlike, I suppose. But the deuce of it is we can't get any line on them." Tom clutched his thick black hair and began to stride up and down. "Where did they come from? How did they get there? There wasn't a cat in that ruin up yonder. It's been abandoned for months, barring only the watchman and his family. They don't know anything about these boys, and where the dickens can De Saxe and Clamart and the chauffeur have got to?"

"Perhaps they were down in the mine."

"I don't think so. No way of getting down except by the ladder. I've got to disturb Shelby, I'm afraid. Was she much upset? Any nervous breakdown?"

"No. She seemed rather stunned, poor dear. Let me go see if she's asleep. If so, you musn't waken her. But it is strange about Mr. Clamart."

It was strange and more than strange, Tom thought. He felt dazed, bewildered, and horribly disquiet. What sort of devilish game was going on here, anyhow? Clamart sent for by Olivant to play watchdog. This polished highbrow De Saxe talking about terrific natural forces that might at any moment be released, then accusing Clamart of having been a thief and murderer and criminal renegade, and hot on his words his new property blown to smithereens in some way nobody could guess at, and De Saxe and Clamart in there at the time. And Shelby and Olivant. And those three little curious kids belonging to whom and coming whence, God only knew.

Why the deuce had De Saxe gone back there anyhow, and why had he taken with him the man he had just been condemning? And what devil of silly curiosity had prompted Olivant and Shelby to pry into De Saxe's newly purchased property? Poor Tom felt as if he were going off his head.

AND then he came near to going off it altogether when his mother came down with white face and shaking hands to tell him that shelby was not in her room nor anywhere about the house. None of the servants had seen her go out, which was not entirely surprising, as all but those whose duties were pressing in kitchen and garage had slipped off up the hill for a look at the ruins and to satisfy that morbid fascination of seeing mangled bodies recovered.

Tom flew around then in a manner for him most incoherent. First he telephoned variously about, getting no answers. He rushed out to scout the premises, and all that earned him was to be asked by the Negro coachman what had become of his two prize mules. Tom tugged wildly at his thick black hair.

"O, Lord," he groaned, "even the bloomin' mules."

He ran back to the door, leaped into his car, and sped away up the hill again. The search was still going on with torches and lanterns. Tom ordered it ceased for the night as too dangerous with the loosened stones and toppling walls. Nothing had been seen by anybody of those he so ardently sought. The moon was by this time well up, very clear, bathing the scene of desolation with a vivid radiance that dimmed the artificial lights.

Then suddenly, as he strode about posing futile questions, Tom discovered that De Saxe's handsome car was no longer standing where it had been parked beneath the big pine.

"Now who's had the nerve to take that car," he roared, "and when did he take it?"

At first nobody appeared to know the answer to the first part of his query, though several admitted having seen the car move off without thinking anything about it or at least that it had been removed by due authority. Then a sharp faced breaker boy hovering about, and no doubt hugely enjoying the excitement, said in a thick, curious accent that may have been a Cornish inheritance, "I zee herself go, zir."

"Whose self?" Tom demanded.

"Herself, the driver, zir."

"The driver that drove it here?" Tom demanded.

"Herself, I dunno, zir."

"O, what are you trying to say," Tom groaned. "Was it a young man with a smooth face and big eyes? Looked like a girl, in a long blue coat and a chauffeur's visor cap a few sizes too big for him?"

The boy, by no means stupid, nodded vigorously.

Tom took him by the shoulder, gently enough. None of the boys was afraid of Tom, who, on festive occasions, was wont to scatter largesse in true lordly fashion.

"Now let's get this straight, buddy. Are you trying to say that you think this chauffeur was a girl?"

"No, zir. Herself ain't no girl. She been a big grown-up lady."

"A—what? How do you know?"

"I zeed her 'air, zir. A whole lot. It cum tumblin' down when she hit her cap off on the top. And one hand had got jammed summers—looked like her fingers was scat in jowdes."

Tom leaned back against a heap of debris, feeling he had been led deeper and deeper into the slough; was mired, stuck, bogged down, and nothing short of a winch would haul him out.

AS the handsome car rolled smoothly down the gentle slope, Olivant's profound depression deepened. He wondered at it listlessly. Not many moments before he had felt almost reconciled to Clamart's splendid sacrifice, considering the result that it seemed to have achieved.

He had reasoned that since every man had to die, sometimes the best occasion for it was precisely at such a moment of sublimity. Clamart had once or twice remarked to him that life no longer meant much for him and that he merely held it in trust for just such achievement as this.

Then why, pondered Olivant apathetically, should he now find himself in the grip of such a state of despondency? Even when, with Shane Emmett imprisoned on that fearful afternoon, when for an hour or two they had counted on a swift euthanasia at any moment, he had managed to keep up his courage and his hope.

But now it seemed to him as if he had sunk into some sort of a slimy quicksand and was settling in the lethargic fashion of one already numbed by the approach of a doom felt rather than perceived. As if he had been a cow or a bullock that, in attempting to wade a slough to which there was no bottom, had found itself with no resistance underneath and, even with its animal mind, unable to forecast just what was presently to happen it, knew the danger to be mortal, the chance of extrication hopeless, and had so desisted from futile struggling. He roused himself a little to realize, without much conviction, that this morbid state of mind was on his part mere nervous reaction from the ordeal through which he had passed. His capture with Shelby, the black hole in the drift, the awe inspiring conversation overheard between Clamart and De Saxe, the Anamites, and the quaking, crumbling house. All this followed, of course, by the loss of a friend that he had come, not only passionately to admire, but to love.

So that now, riding quietly in the car of this crisp military mining expert, no doubt a man of distinction, ability, and general worth, the rush of horrid emotions seemed to have arrived after the danger contained with them had passed. He had, like the train in the story of the Liars' Club, been traveling so fast that it was not until some moments after the collision that the noise of its warning whistle caught up with it.

And yet, before they had got half way to the forking of the roads, Olivant became vaguely aware that this explanation was not enough.

The oppression that now pervaded him seemed to have its source closer at hand, as in the case of a person who, from sensing indefinitely that the air of a locality is bad, becomes all at once convinced that there is something corrupt and stinking about his bedding, or just under the floor slovenly laundry or a dead rat.

The instant Olivant was seized with this idea, he became instinctively imbued with the truth of it. There was some repellant quality in this most presentable, even distinguished, individual beside him. Olivant was conscious of a repugnance, almost an animosity, that became all at once unmistakably defined. De Saxe had aroused in him a sort of sub-acute distaste or belligerency, perhaps because he resented the arbitrary finality the scientist diffused. Olivant had been from the first hostile to him, which was natural enough, in view of his suspicions. But there had been no savor of the sudden loathing with which this soi-disant Royal Dutch engineer infused him.

It had all been very well for Clamart to claim that no such thing as sixth sense existed; that spiritism and the superstition of ignorance were synonyms. Perhaps this might be true in the case of the finished logician or concrete analyst. But here now was Olivant, who, firmly believing De Saxe to be Humboldt, had yet felt for him no more than the combativeness that one might be expected to feel for any usurper of all human rights and laws and who desires to reconstruct them according to his arbitrary findings But now in the case of a perfectly credible and polite stranger, Olivant found himself in the grip of a sudden insane desire to fling open the door of the car and to leap out.

"Nerves again," he thought. Sheer unmanly lack of the mastery of himself so far as concerned impulses of the instant, like the brainstorm of a highly strung but poorly controlled primitive. It struck him with a sense of shame that he should be the victim of such weakness. He did what so many do under similar circumstances and what actually draws to a razor edge rather than disciplines such a state of being. He reached in a jerky way for a package of cigarets that, while coatless and pottering about his room, he had shoved into his hip pocket.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.

THIS restless, neurasthenic capital has flung up a roar of applause for a new novel, "The Back of the Book," by Margaret Leech. It is Miss Leech's first novel, and it is an exceptional one: brilliant, vivid, swift, and sparkling. If it is written for sophisticated people, then here is a chance to prove how sophisticated you are. But as for us, we believe "The Back of the Book" to be a more important novel than one designed merely for the wise crackers. Perhaps that is because we have so little admiration for sophisticated people.

There is nothing about this book that smacks of a first novel: it is as mature in its theme and treatment as anything by Edith Wharton. Moreover, its theme and treatment are most unique. It is a slice of a few months from the life of Vergie Stilson, a bacheloress approaching thirty—that fateful age, so eagerly anticipated by men, so desperately dreaded by women. Now, Vergie is both beautiful and intelligent, but the right man has never come along—except at the wrong time. To be sure, an array of men dances attendance upon her, and several of them fall into that unfortunate class—men she might have married. You know the sort. They're likely to happen to anybody. But the real Prince Charming does not bob up till the end of the tale, almost after you've despaired of Vergie's ever finding the real Prince Charming. Her difficulty—if indeed it be a difficulty—has always been that she "saw through" men too clearly ever to become seriously married to one. In many ways this is a cruel book: cruel in the sense that "Babbitt" was, for it lays bare, as the saying goes, many characters, and does so in a wicked witty way. We predict great things for Margaret Leech. She is an artist of high talent. And "The Back of the Book" is a superb novel.

Isabel Paterson's "The Singing Season" is a gorgeous, glittering romance of mediaeval Spain, bravely told. There is much grace and zest to its recounting the adventures of the young brothers Alexander and Roderigo: one page, the other chaplain to Henry the Bastard, King of Spain. Yet this is more than a swashbuckling tale of adventures: it is a splendid novel, and across its pages Sigismund, the Merchant Prince of Cordova, and Isabella, his fair daughter, move with kings and cardinals, like figures of a magnificent tapestry—come to life. Mrs. Paterson has, in re-creating with such fidelity the colorful kingdom of Castile, achieved an artistic triumph. "The Singing Season" holds all the pomp and perfume and poetry of the Middle Ages. It is as jolly as "Jurgen" and more sapient than Sabatini.

Evidently we did not appreciate Horace Bridges' introduction to the new Pascal Covici edition of Erasmus' "In Praise of Folly," for Mr. Bridges writes to us: "Why—O, why—did you call my preface 'a tenor solo in praise of the Reformation'? That is most precisely and distinctly what it is not. It is in praise of Erasmus, who wanted a reformation from within, and flatly refused to take part in one that involved smashing continuity, establishing a new tyranny and opening the door to worse evils than those that needed curing. I wanted to ram this side of the case down the throats of those ill informed Protestants who think all the wrong was on the Catholic side and all the right on Luther's," etc., Our mistake, Horace. Sorry.

The Right Honorable Augustine Birrell, that pre-eminent Victorian, has written another book of pungent essays. "More Obiter Dicta" it is called, and it carries on with a high head and a stout heart the tradition of the first volume. "Obiter Dicta," published in 1884. In America the art of the essay is well nigh extinguished. True enough, there was a flare some seasons ago by Robert Cortes Holliday and Christopher Morley, but it fluttered out: Holliday ceased to write essays, and Morley began to write successful novels. There is still Mrs. Gerould; but in the main we must look to England for our essays. And of the old school Augustine Birrell ranks high.

We recall with vast pleasure our discovery of the first "Obiter Dicta"—alas! how many years ago. It was a tattered copy, purchased in a dusty old book stall in Clark street, now disappeared, and it was William Ramsay who made it known to us: William Ramsay, that most estimable Scottish book seller for whom we shall always entertain a warm admiration and respect. In the eighty-and-more years of his valuable life he has shown many persons the way to good books.

There is nothing exciting about Augustine Birrell's essays, but they contain the mellow flavor of other days brought to our own time. Mr. Birrell is a venerable bookman, a man of letters, and "More Obiter Dicta" will richly reward your reading.

Surely the most romantic figure in all poetry is Francois Villon, that gorgeous vagabond of the fifteenth century, and for the first time a worthy volume of his works has appeared. Heretofore we have had inadequate and expurgated editions, but "The Complete Poems of Francois Villon" (Boni & Liveright) contains the new and excellent John Heron Lepper translations, along with the versions of John Payne, Swinburne, Rosetti, Symons and Ezra Pond.

In his introduction, "Villon the Man and the Poet," Mr. Lepper remarks of him, "A man of strong passions and great genius; one whose poetry contains much levity and not a little pathos, a strange medley where the most vulgar buffoonery cuts capers on the stage beside the stern figures of tragedy and regret; one whose manners appear to have been none of the choicest even for that day of license; whose morals require the veil of charitable excuse; whose whole career, as we know it, formed a chain of discreditable escapades. Such was the scapegrace student of Paris university who has become one of the glories of French literature, Master Francois Villon."

Here is a gay little novel, with an occasional sentimental catch in its voice—"Semi-Attached" by Anne Parrish (Doran). Neither May Sinclair nor yet Thackeray himself has disclosed the foibles of human nature with more shrewdness than has Mrs. Parrish, and there is great fun in reading about her people. There they are, in chapter one, in Switzerland—the rich and impossible old Mrs. Bennet, her eligible son, Bim, and her poor relation, Harriet, ensconced in an hotel; while nearby at a shabby pension are Francie Gaythorn and her widowed mother, who has never ceased to grieve over the demise of her artist husband.

Life with him was unhappy: without him, unhappier still. But Francie, the charming and careless, has seen enough of marriage to convince her that she doesn't want it, and when young Bim declares for her his love, high as the Alps in quality, she tells him flatly that there is no music so unpleasant as wedding bells. However, when her mother takes an overdose of headache medicine, and Francie is left upon the cruel world, she offers to flit back to America with Bimbo and pour his breakfast coffee for three years—without benefit of clergy. They are much in love with each other, and rather than give her up, the honest Bimbo agrees; whereupon to America they wend their way, and Francie joins the ranks of the Boresome Bennets—as the only unwedded wife in the social register.

Heigho! There is a situation for the fashionable felines of Momma Bennet's sewing circle! And when the silky Silvia happens along to vamp Bimbo, what can poor little Francie, who is merely semi-attached, do? And what does she do? Ah—read the book. "Semi-Attached" spins along, a vastly amusing tale. We devoutly hope Mrs. Parrish will write more novels—and speedily. She has a gift for the light touch, the sharp thrust, the deft phrase: there is a fine edge to her writing.

SOUND REASONS FOR OPTIMISM OF AUTO TRADE

Why 1925 Will Be Big Business Year.

BY CHARLES CLIFTON.

[President National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.]

The year 1925 will be a year of good business.

CHARLES CLIFTON

Perhaps we can best illustrate this by imagining a typical small town, which we will call Greenfield.

This community has 10,000 population. Its factories are operating on a full time basis, its banks have money to lend, its retail stores have customers, the farmers in the surrounding territory are selling their products, schools are being built, the state highway connecting with the town is being resurfaced, bus and truck lines are giving it good transportation service in addition to its railroad accommodations.

Era of Common Sense.

The automobile dealers in this town are doing a good business because their stocks of new cars are light and the companies which they represent are producing in response to demands from the field.

This means that the dealer can make his trades on a sound merchandising basis. At the same time, the customer benefits. He gets a fair allowance for his old machine, which enables the dealer to stay in business. Stability of the dealer means service for the buyer.

This picture of Greenfield, I believe, is typical of conditions throughout the

MORE THAN 5,000 CARS EACH HOUR IN LINCOLN PARK

Busses Add to Heavy Stream of Traffic.

BY EUGENE R. PIKE.

[President Lincoln Park Commissioners.]

The situation which confronts the commissioners of Lincoln park in handling the increased automobile traffic is one of peculiar difficulty owing to the fact that the driveways through the park are practically the only direct routes between the loop and the residential section lying to the north.

Practically every north bound street from Michigan avenue on the east to Lake View avenue (Sedgwick street extended north) has its outlet into Lincoln park, so there is no direct north bound street available for automobilists.

Lincoln park as originally laid out was intended for pleasure driving only, and the majority of the driveways and boulevards were narrow, with numerous curves. There have been gradual additions to the boulevard system so

Four Kings of Roaring Road Killed in 1924 Racing Crashes

BY L. J. SMYTH.

The most tragic and sensational year in the history of motor racing has closed. Into the history of America's most dangerous sport is written the passing of four heroes of the roaring road and the serious injury of two others.

JIMMY MURPHY.

Accident, death and miraculous escape in the speed contests of 1924 have made up a record of queer twists of fate that seldom has been equaled.

Year's Martyrs to Speed.

The year's victims were:

Dario Resta, killed in road race in England.

Jimmy Murphy, killed at Syracuse in September.

Joe Boyer, killed at Altoona in September.

Ernie Ansterberg, killed at Charlotte in October.

The year has seen the passing of two great speedway plants and the building of two others. It has seen pilots set records that were believed beyond the limit of human endurance; the little one man 122 inch cars make speeds that was expected to pound them to pieces.

Year's Crown to Dead Man.

Into the year's record is written, for the first time in history, the awarding of the annual championship toga to a pilot who had been killed in action.

Jimmy Murphy, the most popular idol in motor racing, was killed in the 100 mile national championship event on the dirt track at Syracuse, N. Y., last September. Murphy was the speed king of 1922 and was known as the fastest and best driver on American tracks. He was an international favorite, having won the Grand Prix of France in 1921, and fourth place

SAFETY CHIEFS URGE UNIFORM DANGER SIGNS

Hope Move Will Curb Auto Accidents.

BY FRANK F. ROGERS.

[President American Association of State Highway Officials.]

The loss of life and property on public highways in 1923 was appalling. Records for 1924 are not completed, but it is already known that they exceed those of 1923. We have all kinds of road signs, but nowhere will you find this one:

Women and Children Killed,
22,600.
Men, Women and Children Injured,
678,000.
Property Damage by Accidents,
$7,000,000.
Economic Loss,
$6,000,000.

The American Association of State Highway Officials has been giving earnest consideration to this matter for several years, and each state as an

State and Randolph streets.

The Answers.

Adolph W. Dietz, 2626 North Kimball avenue, stage manager—The show this year means four wheel brakes to me. I'm going down to the Coliseum to compare all of the types of new brakes introduced this year, particularly the hydraulic type. I think better braking is the big feature of the show.

Grant L. Johnson, 4632 North Racine avenue, stage manager—The show means closed cars to me this year. I am interested in this type of car and want to look them all over. I believe the annual exhibit is the greatest merchandising scheme ever devised. It combines pleasure with automobile shopping.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to Alex M. Tough, 3800 Fullerton avenue, Chicago.

Arthur Nelson, 4739 North Bernard avenue, organ builder—I am most interested in watching the artistic development in car bodies and the advance in coach work year by year. The cars now are probably the finest examples of workmanship the country has produced.

Leo A. Stahr, 640 Arlington place, art director — The show usually means about $2,000 out of my pocket because when I go down with the crush of fans and see all of the new models for the new year, I nearly always fall for one of them and have to start trading and dickering to buy it.

HIGHWAY CHIEF EXPLAINS COOK COUNTY SCHEME

U. S. and State Will Aid in Work.

BY GEORGE A. QUINLAN.

[Superintendent Cook County Highways.]

The last year saw the expenditure of practically the last of Cook county's funds for highway improvement, and now we may well make a survey of what has been accomplished, as well as of our plans for future development to take care of the ever increasing traffic.

MAJ. G. A. QUINLAN.

To build the 347 miles of paved highways now in use has required the expenditure of approximately $10,900,000. Of this amount $8,000,000 has been provided by the county and $2,900,000 by the state of Illinois and the federal government.

These paved roads provide a paved connection with the city of Chicago to every incorporated municipality in the county, with the exception of three small villages, the total population of which is 873. There is now no point in the county more than five miles from a paved highway, and when the roads voted for in the $100,000,000 bond issue are completed there will be no point more than about three miles from a paved highway.

More Roads Into Chicago Needed.

Although the farms are well served by providing nearly paved roads, there have not been enough roads paved entering the city of Chicago. From all over the state of Illinois the roads keep converging down until the immense volume of traffic caused by the feeding

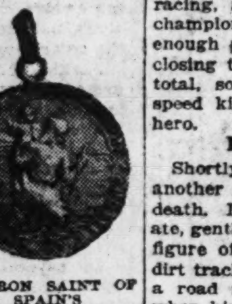
MANY ODDITIES MET IN MOTOR EXPORT TRADE

St. Christopher Tags on Cars for Spain.

BY H. S. VANCE.
[Sales Manager Studebaker Corporation.]

St. Christopher is the patron saint of all motorists in Spanish speaking countries and in many others where there is a preponderance of people of the Roman Catholic faith. The story of St. Christopher and his especial patronage of passengers runs thus.



PATRON SAINT OF SPAIN'S MOTORISTS

Christopher, a giant in stature, and of unsavory reputation, was brought to repentance by a devout hermit. Instead of signifying his acceptance of Christianty by fasts and other common methods of indicating humbleness, he vowed to give his life to serving mankind.

Nearby was a dangerous ford across a swift river. With his great strength he was wont to carry the poor folk of the countryside across the stream in safety.

Story of the Child.

Once he carried a Child.

In midstream the weight of the Child seemed almost to carry the giant under. On the far shore Christopher chided the child and said:

"I might as well have carried the whole world on my shoulder."

"You have carried the whole world," replied the Child, "and Him that made it," and vanished.

It was the Christ child.

Since then the devout have honored the patron saint of those being carried with bronze, silver and gold medallions set into the instrument boards of their automobiles, in Spain, Portugal, France, Belgium and many South American countries.

Oddities of Export Trade.

It is one of the things which must be considered in handling the automobile business of all the world.

Going into sixty-five countres where twenty-eight principal languages, not counting dialects, are spoken, the export department of a great motor car concern has many considerations to meet which are unheard of in America.

Right hand drive is mandatory in England and most other European countries; indeed, half the exported cars drive from the right side, because the law of the road abroad is different; one turns to the left instead of the right, on meeting another car. Speedometers show meters per hour, instead of miles, in places.

The export business formerly was much more complicated; the passing years have eliminated the odd requirements formerly exacted.

For instance, many cars had to be built with sixty inch tread between wheels, instead of America's fifty-six inches, because cart wheels and road ruts were that far apart. Bulb operated horns were demanded, when drivers were fearful that the electric horn wouldn't always work.

Japan Guards Against Mud.

Clincher tires were required, and, in Japan, an apron of durable material must hang outside of all whels to prevent mud from spattering upon pedestrians, who used the roadway equally with equippages of all sorts.

Wire wheels were insisted upon, for a time, on most foreign sold cars.

Now all these former requirements have been dispensed with, as batteries have been made more reliable and traffic conditions have improved.

The last of these fancies, folding tops, are disappearing since the steel body enclosable in half a minute from its open freedom, has made its appearance abroad, where it created as much of a sensation as in America.

Formerly only an open car could be sold abroad. This year we are shipping every model made, and foreign manufacturers have been forced to put on the markets sedans and coupes to meet American competition. In fact, our shipments of sedans increased this year 100 per cent over the number shipped last year.

Owner driving for even closed cars is increasing enormously abroad, a new feature in the use of the closed car on the European continent and in South America.

Buy Yank Cars Despite Tax.

The great increase in export trade is regarded as a remarkable tribute to American manufacture when the great depreciation in rates of exchange is considered. In England the depreciation is 10 per cent. In Portugal it is 90 per cent and in Brazil, 60 per cent. Yet people there in increasing numbers buy American dollars, regardless of their cost, to purchase American cars.

There is another barrier to be overcome in the foreign market; that is the taxes imposed. In round figures which closely approximate the actual tax, Italy and France have a 40 per cent ad valorem tax to add to imported car costs; Brazil's tax is 30 per cent; in Canada it is 35 per cent; Belgium, 25 per cent; Australia, 20 per cent plus $275 per body; in Palestine, 11 per cent plus a surtax; in Bolivia, 8 per cent; Equador and Holland, 5 per cent, and so on.

No tax is imposed in England, Mexico, Sierra Leone or Algiers.

Auto Literature in All Tongues.

Other nations use a "kilo" tax, or a charge for each kilogram, roughly 640 pounds, of weight of the car, which amounts to about the same figure as the other tax.

Packing the cars, partly disassembled, in boxes is one feature of the business; another is translating descriptive literature into the twenty-eight languages, as well as many dialects. Some unusual tongues are Arabian, Portugese, Chinese, Czech, Finnish, Hawaiian, Serbian, Lettish, Filipino, Siamese, Turkish, and Japanese.

AUTO ROADS AND RAIL TRACKS.

Since 1831, when railroads began to be developed, only 266,031 miles of railroad track have been built. While automobiles have only been in the course of development on a commercial basis for barely twenty years, there are today more than 430,000 miles of surfaced or improved roads.

Four Kings of Roaring Road Killed in 1924 Racing Crashes

in the European classic at Milan, Italy, in 1923.

Murphy was leading for the championship of 1924 when he was killed. In that race the little Irish favorite had set out to overtake the leader when he crashed into the fence on the turn leading out of the home stretch. The force of the collision sent a 2x4 timber through the radiator and engine block and into the dash of the car. Another timber of the same size was driven entirely through Murphy's body, killing him instantly.

Earl Cooper, veteran of American racing, stood second for the annual championship, but was unable to win enough points in the two race events closing the season to equal Murphy's total, so the posthumous award of speed king of 1924 went to the late hero.

Death of Dario Resta.

Shortly before Murphy was killed another favorite was vanquished by death. Dario Resta, university graduate, gentleman, engineer, and a beloved figure of the old racing days of the dirt track and road race, was killed in a road race just outside of London when his car crashed through a fence at a turn in the road. Resta's last race in this country was at Los Angeles in the spring of 1923, when he took part in the Beverly Hills 250 mile classic.

The third of the year's victims of racing was Joe Boyer, known as the millionaire sportsman of Detroit, veteran pilot, motor boat racer, and all round athlete. When he was not engaged in racing or other sport, Boyer was famous in Detroit as the police department's instructor of jay drivers sentenced to the "Boyer school" by the Municipal courts. Boyer was the son of the head of a nationally known industry, but the thrill of racing held him to the speedways in spite of his father's plea to become his associate in business.

Boyer died a few moments after his car turned over on the Altoona, Pa., speedway in the 250 mile championship classic on Labor day, and a career that was filled with spectacular driving was brought to a close.

Altoona Speedway a Jinx.

The Altoona speedway has staged only three events, and each has been marred by accident. At the opening on Labor day, 1923, "Howdy" Wilcox, the favorite of Indianapolis classics for many years, was killed. In the second event, last June, Jerry Wonderlick, another old-timer, was seriously injured and had a miraculous escape from death. In fact, Jerry's death was published in bulletins all over the country, but after several hours of unconsciousness he recovered and shortly afterward announced his retirement from racing. Boyer's death marked the third race at Altoona.

The fourth victim of the year was Ernie Ansterberg, pride of the Duesenberg team. Ansterberg had ridden for years as a mechanic in the days of the two-man cars, and graduated to the driver's seat when the change eliminated mechanics. Although he was rated one of the heaviest and gamest of drivers, Ansterberg had two accidents in his short driving career. At Indianapolis in May he was forced into the concrete wall by another driver and survived a crash that made almost a complete wreck of his car. Less than five months later Ansterberg set a new speed record in practice for the 250 mile event opening the new Charlotte, N. C., speedway, and within a few hours was killed when he crashed into the guard rail while attempting to lower his own record.

So the names of Murphy, Resta, Boyer, and Ansterberg were added to the long roll of honor of knights of the roaring road who have sacrificed their lives to the god of speed.

Fengler Drops Out.

Another name that has been missing from racing events since the middle of the year is that of Harlan Fengler, a sensational youngster of the closing days of the previous year. Two years as mechanic gave him the itch to drive.

EMIL AUSTERBERG

and he signed with the late George L. Wade, wealthy sportsman and racing enthusiast of Kansas City, in the summer of 1923 to drive his Wade special.

Fengler was daring to the point of recklessness and a driver who could handle his car with the best of them.

Boy's Tutor Killed at Track.

The closing race of 1923 brought the death of Wade, who was literally torn to pieces by a racing car just before the start of the Los Angeles classic, and before a crowd of more than 60,000 persons. Young Fengler, tears streaming down his face, climbed into his car and finished in fourth place in spite of the shock of the accident and the loss of his employer and friend.

When the 1924 racing season opened Fengler was a favorite to win the national championship. At Indianapolis in May the Wade special was in perfect tune and Fengler was out to capture the greatest single prize on the racing calendar, the $20,000 prize.

After the first few days of practice Fengler's friends called him aside.

"You're taking too many chances, boy," they told him. "This isn't a board track. You can't get away with the speed you're making. Ease up or you'll come to grief on these turns."

A Miraculous Escape.

Fengler smiled, but promised to be careful. The railbirds began clocking him and groaned as lap after lap showed faster speed. He came down the stretch at almost 120 miles an hour, shut off the throttle, and started into the turn with engine popping like a gun. There was a crash. The car hurtled into the air, then rolled over and over. The crowd at the pits ran towards the turn.

They had to break the steering wheel and bend it back to get Fengler out of the wreck. Not enough was left of the Wade special to identify it as a motor car. How Fengler came through alive will always be a mystery. Three weeks in the hospital mended him enough to get him on his feet again, and on classic day at Indianapolis the excitement was tinged with pathos as the grand stand crowds watched a forlorn figure of a youngster swatched in bandages limp into one of the pits and watch the greatest of all racing events, from which he had been barred by his own daring.

Since his injury Fengler has driven in only one race, that in Kansas City on July 4. His injuries were more serious than was believed, and it will take a long time for him to get over internal hurts that make it agony to drive in a race.

Two Tracks Pass Out.

The year 1924 has seen the end of two tracks. The Kansas City speedway closed after less than two years of operation, which spelled financial failure and a windup in the bankruptcy court.

The year also marked the passing of the famous Beverly Hills speedway, Los Angeles, and the building and opening of the new Culver City speedway, also at the edge of Los Angeles.

The old Beverly plant, which was the fastest track in the country, gave way to the growth of Los Angeles, and now is the site of many homes.

Next month the racing season of 1925 will open at Culver City, and during the year there will be about ten championship events throughout the country.

COUNTY'S CHIEF URGES NEED OF ARTERY ROADS

Major Highway Plan May Solve Problem.

in of many side or secondary roads is brought up to the city on only thirteen paved highways.

On Sundays and holidays, when there are many people out for pleasure, the roads are blocked for miles back from some of the intersections near the city limits. The most outstanding example of this is the congestion near Milwaukee and Lawrence avenues. Here Milwaukee avenue is carrying the combined traffic which is brought to it by five roads—namely: Higgins road, the Northwest highway, Rand road, Milwaukee avenue, and the Waukegan road. To the southwest and south, Ogden avenue and Western avenue are carrying additional burdens, due to the fact that Archer avenue and Halsted street within the city of Chicago are almost impassable.

Upon the completion of the traffic survey which was made during the summer and fall months a conference was held in Chicago of representatives of the United States bureau of public roads, the Illinois state highway department, the Chicago plan commission, and the Cook county highway department. Each jurisdiction represented presented its problems and program for the future.

Agree on Major Highway Plan.

Out of this conference grew an agreement between these parties that a major highway plan for the Chicago metropolitan area would be drawn up. This area is to extend as far as Kenosha, Wis., on the north, beyond the Fox river on the west, and to Michigan City, Ind., on the east.

After such a plan is drawn up and agreed to by the various bodies involved no one party may make any major change without calling a conference of all the various jurisdictions involved and attempting to reach a satisfactory agreement. No party is deprived of its sovereignty, because if an agreement cannot be reached it may proceed as it sees fit, the agreement simply binds each contracting party to confer with the others before proceeding with its work.

I believe this agreement is one of the most important steps forward for highway development that has been made.

The plan presented by Cook county at this conference called for the widening of approximately 100 miles of the main trunk highways which are now paved and are carrying a heavy burden of traffic and the paving of about 300 miles of unimproved highways.

Eight New Arteries into City.

A large percentage of this mileage is near the city, furnishing eight new entrances in an attempt to diffuse the traffic in the county rather than bring it in over a few crowded roads and allow it to disperse after entering the city. It also was designed to furnish additional belt lines around Chicago either through the western part of the city or west of it, to allow traffic from the north or south to avoid the Michigan avenue congestion.

In accordance with the agreement, all the proposed routes of this system have been designed to connect with and add to the efficiency of the state system and the major routes of the Chicago plan commission. It is under these conditions of agreement and cooperation that the highways of the Chicago metropolitan area will be built to serve the immense and constantly growing traffic.

HERE'S RIGHT WAY TO WASH A CAR

For drying off the water from the body of the car or chassis, use a chamois skin free from lint and absolutely clean. Wring the chamois out after rinsing in clear water, or if dirty wash it in a solution of soft water and castile soap.

Begin at the first part of the car washed, proceed to pass the chamois over the surface with just sufficient pressure to take the water with the exception of a mist, which will quickly evaporate.

To attempt to wipe the car perfectly dry in all parts will result in injury to the luster of the finish. An erosive effect on the surface can be produced under the pressure of the chamois, and this effect must be avoided at all times. No car should be left unwashed for more than twenty-four hours.—Automobile Digest.

SAFETY CHIEFS URGE UNIFORM DANGER SIGNS

Hope the Move Will Curb Auto Accidents.

individual unit has been frantically passing ordinances, erecting signs, eliminating railroad crossings, and using the generous space of the daily press to teach the public safe methods of highway transportation.

The state highway departments in conjunction with the bureau of public roads have been kept mighty busy trying to produce a road bed to take care of the 16,000,000 autos that want to use it. Some states have done well in elimination of railroad grade crossings—in fact, only a small per cent—not over 10 per cent—of the fatalities are at grade crossings.

But there are too many confusing signs, danger signals, and traffic laws, and so this organization has decided to form a joint board of state highway officials and members of the bureau of roads of the federal government, which will establish uniform direction signs and danger signals on roads of interstate character throughout the country.

Will Number Main Highways.

The secretary of agriculture, Howard M. Gore, expects in a few days to announce the membership of this board. The board will not only adopt uniform direction signs and danger signals to be approved by the states, but will also number the main highways throughout the country. The purpose of this is to simplify traveling directions for the public so that a person traveling from New York through Chicago to San Francisco may be able to do so by following a certain number all the way. Then, also, every danger signal will mean the same in every state.

It is believed these measures will add much to the safety of the traveling public, as well as to their convenience and personal comfort. You would be surprised if you knew the additional expense met by the public in the unnecessary mileage traveled, because of misdirection or no definite direction at all.

Sound Reasons for Optimism of the Automobile Industry

United States. Taking the keynote from President Coolidge, the country has entered into an era of common sense. We have settled down to a sensible manufacturing and trading basis which means fair rewards for every one, far above the difficulties of depression times and without the perils of overprosperity.

Last year was the second best year in the automobile business. That, I think, is one of the outstanding proofs of the common sense policy which the nation is pursuing.

Start Year with Active Market.

The motor vehicle manufacturing business is the third largest in the country. It could have set a new record in 1924 had it seemed wise to do so. The additional production of over 400,000 vehicles would have meant a new output record. This would have been an average of only eleven cars per dealer. But the automobile business was placing sound merchandising ahead of speculative profits. It saw that producing in response to actual market demand was more sensible than setting new high totals.

Accordingly, it comes into 1925 with the slate clean, with inventories balanced, with an active market for its products.

Due to the great size of the automobile industry, the policies which it adopts have a considerable bearing upon national prosperity. The very fact that this business starts 1925 on a stable, conservative basis is to some degree an underwriting of the general economic outlook.

3,000,000 Engaged in Industry.

This industry in its factories, in its salesrooms, and in the proportion of other industries supplying material to it, provides employment for over 3,000,000 workers.

It is the third largest shipper of manufactured products over the railroads, the total being over 750,000 carloads annually.

It uses 53 per cent of the plate glass supply, 20 per cent of aluminum, and 10 per cent of finished iron and steel.

In view of these facts, it is a matter of interest to the general public to observe that there are seven factors which are going to be helpful to improve motor transportation and create a greater demand for motor vehicles in 1925. These may be enumerated as follows:

1. Better traffic conditions.
2. Larger foreign trade.
3. Replacement market for motor vehicles.
4. Increase in surfaced highways.
6. Demand for local and touring busses.

Concerning Traffic.

To the casual observer it may seem that since traffic has become more congested every year, such a condition will continue. This has not, however, been the history of other forms of transportation.

The street and highway authorities are just entering upon the constructive phase of traffic management. We find Los Angeles building tunnels for pedestrians in the busy streets. We find the Association of State Highway Officials agreeing upon uniform marking signs. We see Indianapolis embarking on a program of eliminating bottle necks which are choking the main thoroughfares. All these are signs of a growing engineering and executive intelligence which will result in moving traffic more easily and more safely.

Whole World Needs Autos.

All the world needs more motor transportation. Every country recognizes that it is impossible to establish railway routes leading to every village. The service of the motor car, the motor truck, the motor bus, is absolutely essential to a fully developed civilization.

Europe realizes this partially, though many elements of prejudices still exist there. Australia and the Orient are actively in the market. Both South America and Mexico are taking active steps to accelerate this progress. Mexico is sending to the United States this winter a delegation to make a particular study of motor travel in America.

Following the highway conference held in this country in 1924, the South and Central American republics are staging this year a road congress in Buenos Aires, which is expected to stimulate a program of highway construction in these countries.

When such developments get under way, it is clear that the 380,000 motor vehicles exported last year—which was a new record—will seem like a small figure.

We have talked for years of the replacement market, meaning the purchase of vehicles to take the place of those which go out of use each year. This is another way of saying that the automobile has become a fixed item in the family budget. The new car tends to be purchased out of income rather than capital.

MORE THAN 5,000 CARS EACH HOUR IN LINCOLN PARK

And Busses Add to Heavy Stream of Traffic.

that, starting with three miles of drives, it is now increased to seventeen miles.

What Park Board Has Done.

To meet conditions the commissioners in the last eight years have widened the entrances to the park and eliminated as many curves as possible, and provided additional driveways, such as Beach drive extending along the lake shore from Ohio street to Webster avenue; have constructed one bridge at Fullerton parkway (extended) and have in process of construction another bridge at Diversey parkway, so that by the end of the year 1925 there will be a continuous driveway without any intersections as far north as Irving Park boulevard.

An extension has been made on Sheridan road to Irving Park boulevard; a double driveway has been placed between Belmont and Byron streets which has more than doubled the capacity of the roadway between these points. A similar driveway would have been built between Oak street and North avenue had it not been for the opposition of some of the property holders.

Want Bridge at Oak Street.

At the present time, working in accordance with the south park commissioners, the commissioners of Lincoln park are endeavoring to secure a permit from the United States government and the city of Chicago so that a bridge connecting Ohio street with the new outside drive of the south park system may be erected, thus joining the two park systems and offering additional relief for persons wishing to travel from the north to the south side without entering the loop.

So that the public may understand the enormous travel which passes over Lake Shore drive I would say that the minimum per hour from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m. is an average of 3,506 cars, and the inside drive in Lincoln park (Stockton drive) takes care of a minimum of 1,544 cars per hour, a total of 5,050 cars per hour passing through the park. Considerable of this travel is diverted west on Diversey parkway. Nevertheless a count taken at Sheridan road and Lawrence avenue shows that 1,893 cars per hour pass northbound. Since this count was taken the number of motor busses using Sheridan road and Lake Shore drive has been more than doubled, which adds to the congestion.

In order to keep the travel moving the commissioners of Lincoln park are obliged to devote a great portion of the revenue of the park to the proper policing and maintenance of the drives and boulevards. They have installed safety and control lights at different points and done everything, so far as their financial condition permits, to protect both the motorists and the public.

Efforts Have Reduced Accidents.

In spite of the constantly increasing travel our reports show that on the boulevards of the Lincoln park system in the year 1924 there were 1,420 machines damaged, while in the year 1922 there were 1,662, a reduction of 242, approximately 17 per cent. Our reports also show that persons injured in automobile accidents decreased from 546 in 1922 to 499 in 1924, approximately 10 per cent.

The commissioners of Lincoln park have under consideration further plans for relieving traffic congestion and adding to the safety of the public. These plans will be completed as fast as we have funds available for the purpose.

TIRE COMPANY NOW SELLS SETS ON THE "DOLLAR DOWN" PLAN

Announcment is made by a tire corporation that tires may be purchased with a small down payment and the balance at your convenience. In other words, you may purchase a new set of tires and "pay while you ride" on them, just as you may have purchased your car.

More satisfaction is generally derived by the car owner in putting on a set of tires at one time rather than replacing one tire at a time, as it begins to wear and weaken. With this plan it is possible to secure four new tires at aproximately the same price in cash for one, paying the balance in convenient installments.

And it also enables the purchaser to check up on the performance of the tires before they are completely paid for.

25,000,000 CARS ON U.S. HIGHWAYS IN 1935, HE SAYS

Traffic Is the Trade's Gravest Problem.

BY JOHN N. WILLYS.

[President Willys-Overland Company.]

The motor car industry for the last twenty-five years has thought and acted only in terms of future production and sales as based on the purchasing power of the nation. Today traffic conditions and not the satisfying of public demand will set the limit of motor car use.

For the motor car industry to maintain the proportionate increase of recent years the country demands more and bigger highways, and the solution of the traffic problems which now confront federal, state and city governments, and which should be the vital concern of every individual connected directly or indirectly with the motor car industry.

25,000,000 Cars in Ten Years.

Today the industry faces the Frankenstein of its own creation.

A new condition has arisen to confront modern civilization, a condition born of new habits and new facts.

From Pharaoh to Victoria the speed of travel was four miles an hour on the road and a working radius of action of twenty miles a day; today road transportation can average thirty-five miles an hour with a working radius of more than 200 miles a day.

From Rameses to McKinley transportation stood still; since McKinley's time it has borrowed wings.

It is predicted that in another ten years there will be 25,000,000 motor cars in use. Highway and traffic conditions have already outrun the plans of men and one generation has sufficed to demonstrate that the past is inadequate for the present and threatens certain strangulation of the future.

Must Build for Future.

Imagine nearly twice the number of cars on the roads today and picture, if you can, the confusion and congestion that would result unless adequate steps are taken to cut the Gordian knot that is being drawn tighter around the motor car trade.

The day is at hand when we will have to reorganize our streets and our highways—build them not as makeshift thoroughfares to accommodate the traffic of today, but plan them and construct them for future needs. Our cities were laid out years ago by our forefathers to take care of the traffic of small hamlets or villages. Our population has increased; horse and wagon, horseback and foot traffic have given way to motor transportation, yet we are required to be satisfied with the limitations of traffic conditions that were outgrown a quarter of a century ago.

New highways for commercial vehicles must be built in many thickly settled areas. In order to free the motor car from the shackles which hamper it in the delivery of its full measure of utility, roads paralleling present highways will be built and these will be like the roads of ancient Rome, or similar to the avenues of Paris, reconstructed by Napoleon, and lasting for generations, adequate for transportation a hundred years hence.

The Parking Problem.

In the larger cities the parking problem is another difficulty that requires attention until it is felt that eventually additional thoroughfares will have to be provided under or over our present streets. Underground garages for parking, such as are planned in London and New York, would seem adequate solutions of this difficulty, at least for some years to come.

Los Angeles, which has more automobiles per capita than any city in the world, and is a mecca for tourists the year round, at a recent election voted to widen its downtown traffic arteries and to extend its heavily traveled streets into through thoroughfares, and to provide for future street development along highly scientific lines.

Detroit's Super-Highway.

Detroit has hit upon a plan which it extends to the consideration of other communities—the super-highway, intended to decentralize population within a radius of thirty miles. This highway, planned not only for 1950, but for 2025 as well, is to be an exclusive right of way 204 feet wide, providing for various types of traffic, with safety zones, parking lanes, and loading platforms.

Erection of such a highway will result in the eradication of old city boundaries. Cities in their present sense will cease to exist and will become metropolitan areas, wiping out at one stroke the old distinction between urban and rural districts.

Synchronized traffic control and one-way streets have done much to simplify for the time being the traffic congestion in many of our bigger cities, but even these are only makeshift remedies that will be replaced by the bigger suggestions of far-sighted and earnest investigators and students of the traffic problems, who have already done much to relieve the existent conditions.

Cincinnati's Long Route Bus Lines Form League

Representatives of ten long distance bus lines terminating in Cincinnati met and organized the Interstate and Intercity Bus association for mutual betterment.

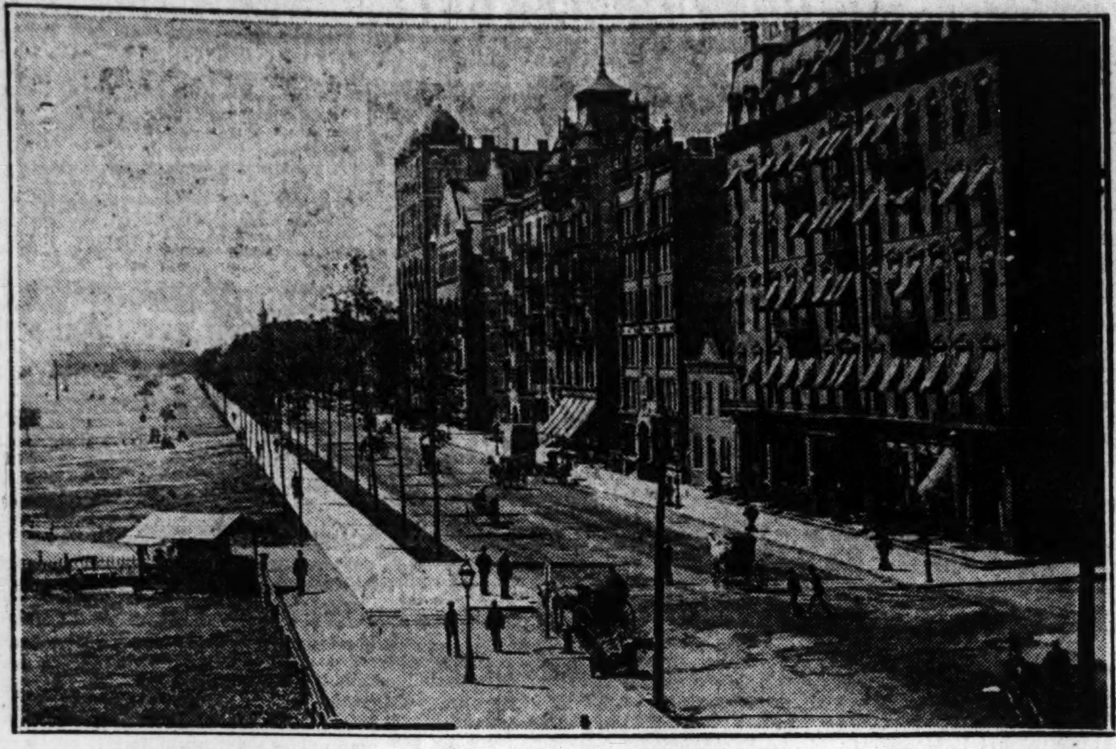
Among the bus lines represented by owners or managers were Lexington, Ky.; Columbus, O.; Aurora, Ind., and Hamilton, Loveland, Blanchester, and Milford, O.

None of the small distance bus lines was admitted to the organization, the present plans being to include only long distance lines operating into Cincinnati from points in Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio.

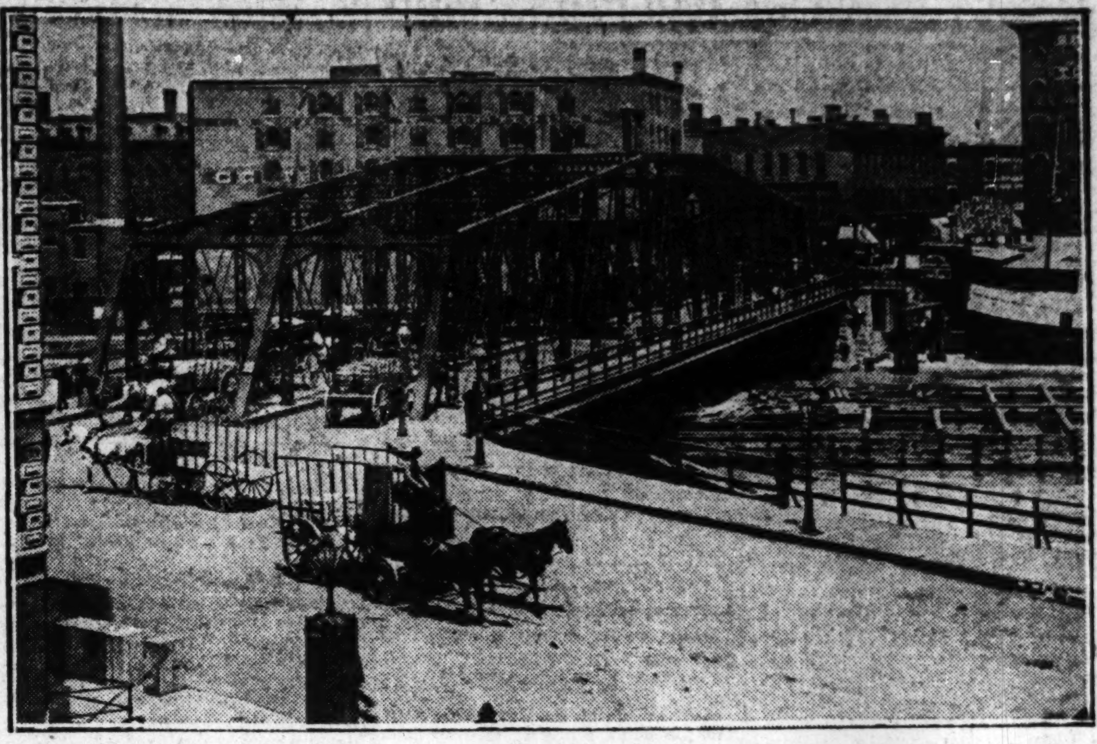
How Hose May Be Cause of Trouble in Radiator

A kink or twist in the radiator hose may possibly result in poor circulation of the water. This should be avoided. The inside fibers of the hose also tend to become loose and thus clog the system. In making replacements, good steam hose should be used, preferably of three or four-ply thickness.

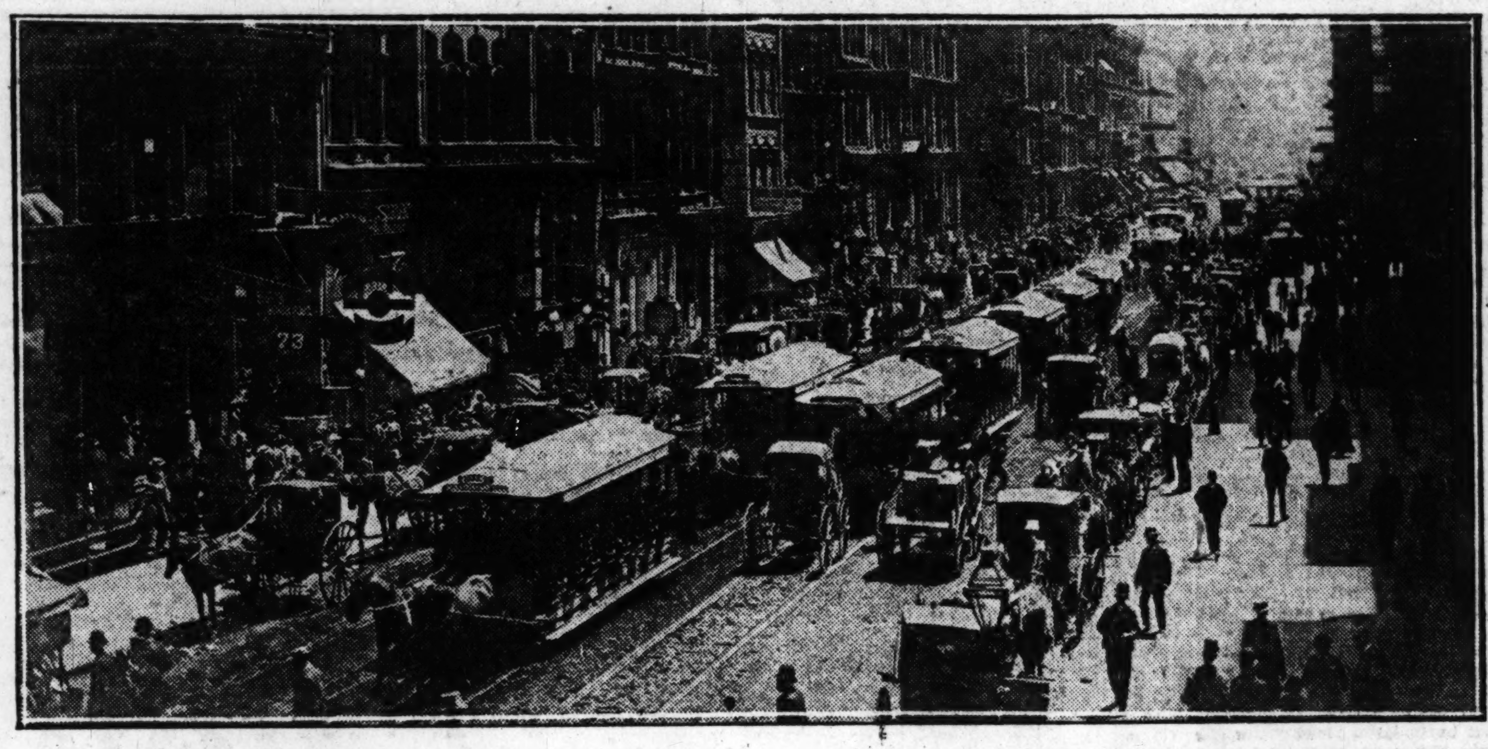
MOTORLESS CHICAGO IN DAYS BEFORE THE FAIR



With some 300,000 automobiles filling every Chicago street and boulevard to the brim and demanding twice the mileage of paved highways offered in Cook county, the idea of a motorless city is unique. Yet there are the old, familiar streets as they stood just before the twentieth century swung in—well within the memory of most of us. Above is pictured Michigan avenue looking south from Jackson boulevard and the old Leland hotel. Note the unterrified gents cutting across the intersection, the cab parked on the left side of the street in front of a fire hydrant and a banana cart, the Fine Arts building in the background, and a little strip of green that was Grant park.



Above is the old Rush street bridge, which hindered motor traffic for so many years.



Here is Clark street, looking south from Randolph, with its horse car traffic and cab congestion. Even then the loop was congested, despite the fact that "iron" hats and tight coats were in vogue.

MOTOR INDUSTRY REACHES THE ERA OF REFINEMENT

Comfort Must Go with Sturdy Service.

BY R. H. GRANT.

[Gen. Sales Mgr. Chevrolet Motor Co.]

In going into another year of motor car history, the manufacturers are bending every effort towards giving the owner what he expects, or more. The automobile has passed through two stages: The development stage and the production stage, and it is now about to enter into what might be called the refinement stage.

In higher priced motor cars, it is apparent that a greater degree of riding comfort will be the slogan for the immediate future, and the low priced cars must perforce follow.

Demands a Car Must Meet.

A motor car when delivered to the owner, should be not only ready to run, but ready to ride in, and with comfort. The chassis and body should be as well designed and as comfortable to ride in as a bigger or heavier car. The finish should be as durable, the material in the moving or wearing parts should be equal; the difference in cost should be obtained through less weight, larger facilities and greater production.

Better cars, designed to withstand road shock, means longer life, better appearance and greater second hand value—in other words a better investment.

The motor car buyer wants all of these things and is entitled to them. The necessity for the motor car being clearly and definitely established in every corner or hamlet of our country, its value and upkeep, is a problem of every household or business.

Science and the Motor Car.

When large producers of low priced motor cars are able to offer the public these advantages, it is only because they have the means of research wherewith to delve into the material field and ascertain where to find the required strength and endurance. Science helps on every hand. Several of our large universities conduct good research laboratories, but every factory of importance has its staff of metallurgists and engineers who incessantly work to obtain more strength, more elasticity, and less friction, which are the three main factors in motor car life.

The greater production in the factories has made greater quality not only a possibility but a necessity. The advance in tool design has become so rapid that practically every factory has its own records of progress. Limits of manufacturing are considerably less than they were before the war, and are still going down. The one-tenth of a thousandth of an inch measurement is becoming quite common, and instruments are being offered to register a one hundred thousandth part of an inch. This will bring still more accuracy in manufacturing.

Cutting Down the Scrap Pile.

Machines are constantly being devised to improve the surface of the machined part. Why? Because this reduces friction, and friction is wear. The inspection of factory made product is becoming more of a science and less of a routine operation every day, the machines and the tools coming in for greater attention, and the scrap pile is getting smaller—for economic reasons.

The large manufacturer does not lose track of the product when it leaves the factory. He has field forces which follow up the car after it gets into the hands of the dealer and user, and is constantly watching and advising the dealer on how to assist the customer to get the best possible result from the economy standpoint.

The adjustment of a motor car, particularly in sections of our country where the mean temperature or altitude variations are the greatest, means a great deal in the economic operation of the car, and independent tests by manufacturers in such sections often bring possibilities in adjustment, which result in saving to the owner, and longer life to the car.

6 CYLINDER CAR CALLEDBACKBONE OF MOTOR TRADE

But Dealer Also Sees Field for the Eight.

BY JOHN H. QUINLAN.

[Chicago Moon Distributor.]

It seems to me that the lessons of this year's automobile exhibitions, both the major shows and those in other centers, as well as the salesroom experience of the average motor car merchant, are exceedingly plain.

They bear out the predictions we made months ago that the year 1925 would see the motor car buying public, at least that portion of it which constitutes its most important part, namely, the buyer of the car of moderate price, resolve itself into two distinct classifications.

He Says Sixes Are Supreme.

First of all let it be said at once that the one outstanding fact is that the six cylinder car has gained and continues to maintain its supremacy as the backbone of the industry. The day of the four, except for those cars in which the lowest price range is the greatest inducement, is at an end. The six cylinder motor vehicle, with its simplicity, flexibility, freedom from trouble, and tremendous range of performance, has public acceptance and will retain it by its inherent qualities.

The six is here to stay, unless there should be some unheard of and undreamed of development of engineering which would wipe out all we have learned in the last twenty-five years and call for a fresh start. Anything of this sort is sheer foolishness.

Revival of the Eight Cylinder.

We have also seen in the last few months the renaissance of the eight, but with the V type replaced by vertical cylinders. I believe there is a distinct market for the car of this type and a permanent demand, and this constitutes the second classification of today's buyers in the moderate priced field. It meets the buying needs of those who want something a little different in design or performance from the accepted standards, and does it well, for the straight eight is perfectly sound in every way.

The man who seeks novelty and wants to be a little different will be attracted to the eight. Our company anticipated this, and the eight which it is building will be ready for the public some time in April.

We expect a ready demand for the eight from that group of buyers for whom it is designed, but we expect the six to hold its place. There is no competition in the two chassis types. Neither will replace the other. Each has its field and fills it well.

These Few Words May Help You Save on Tire Bills

Use the oldest tires on the right hand side of the car when driving extensively in the city. On a tour use the oldest tires on the left hand side. In the city tires are often damaged through striking the curb in turning corners or in parking. On the tour the tires on the left side of the car have the easier path.

Excuses Never Justify Accidents; Play Safe

An excuse is a poor relief in an automobile accident. An excuse does not mend an injured limb, bring the dead back to life, or repair property damage. An excuse does not ease the conscience of the driver of an automobile which figures in an accident, no matter how plausible the excuse may be. The public wants safety—not excuses.

PARIS WILL TEST DAMAGE DONE BY TIRE BLOWOUTS

The familiar explanation of so many motor accidents, that they were caused by the blowing out of a tire, is to be put to a scientific test in Paris. A series of experiments is to be conducted in which cars will be driven at high speeds and tire blowouts produced by various artificial means. The cars will be equipped with delicate instruments for registering the resulting shocks, if any.

'Tis Best to Toot Horn When Nearing a Hill Top

Sounding the horn upon approaching a hillcrest is splendid insurance against a head-on collision. The wise motorist is sensible enough not to be on the wrong side of the road in the act of passing another car at the crest of a steep hill, but he never knows but what the other fellow may be doing on the other side. The modern motorist has to be his brother's keeper for his own safety.

TRADE INDORSES UNDERGROUND GARAGE IN LOOP

Sees Grant Park Plan as Aid to Traffic.

BY HENRY PAULMAN.

[President Chicago Automobile Trade Assn.]

Activities of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, both during the last year and in its program for the coming twelve months, comprehend especially matters of paramount interest to the owner and driver of motor vehicles.

Parking of motor vehicles in congested districts, especially in the loop, is an important matter. The automobile is a settled mode of urban transportation, and progressive merchants and commercial houses are taking steps to provide suitable parking space convenient to their places of business.

Favors Grant Park Garage.

In several cities merchants have opened garages in connection with their stores, to house automobiles of their customers while shopping. Chicago's great need in the downtown business section is additional parking space. One project proposed which would be of immense value is that of the suggested underground garage in Grant park. The Chicago Automobile Trade association has been actively pressing Chicago's needs along these lines and will continue to do so.

An important step toward solving the traffic congestion of Chicago's business district would be the building of subways for surface and elevated cars, thereby clearing the streets for vehicular traffic.

See Illinois First.

One of the greatest factors in the upbuilding of the use of automobiles is good roads. Illinois has stepped to the front in the construction of hard roads, until today it is well in the lead of all other states.

Throughout this state there are innumerable places of more than ordinary interest to the tourist many of which are comparatively unknown. Illinois is developing a comprehensive system of state parks, among them being the Lincoln monument and homestead at Springfield, the Vandalia courthouse, Fort Massac, Fort Chartres, Old Salem park, Fort Creve Coeur, and the Matamora courthouse—all places of great historic interest.

Illinois motorists may well learn to tour their home state first, for there are many places of as great interest and beauty close at hand as can be found at considerably greater distances.

IN TWENTY YEARS AUTO HAS DUG U.S. OUT OF THE MUD Almost No Paving When the Motor Car Came.

BY THOMAS H. MAC DONALD.
[Chief United States Bureau of Public Roads]

In the history of American road building there are two crucial periods which have influenced profoundly the development of the nation. Each marks a change in the attitude of the people toward highway transportation. In respect to the highway they are revolutionary changes — the first a change from busy, throbbing life to partial desuetude, the second a renaissance. In their bearing upon the history of the country they are evolutionary in character—each representing an improvement in transportation in that there is involved a better adjustment of facilities to the needs of the people.

T. H. MAC DONALD.

Viewed historically both are abrupt changes; both are introduced by the invention of a new kind of self-propelled vehicle. The first is ushered in by the steam locomotive. Almost, it is possible to name the day on which the change occurred — Independence day, 1829. For, certainly there were in the events of that day all the potentialities which changed the course of settlement and upbuilding of this young country from a gradual, intensive growth outward from the eastern settlements—slowly, almost painfully, securing and cultivating the western possessions mile by mile—to a swift conquest of a continent—wide empire through the distance—defying agency of the railroad.

Highways Fade Into Disuse.

For on that Fourth of July, in the city of Baltimore, the cornerstore of what has since come to be one of our great railroad systems was laid by Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence.

On that day, when the country turned to the railroad, the highway lost its significance as a major factor in the economic life of the nation. It rapidly fell back into a place of comparative unimportance, and as the railroad grew, the highway sank to a lower and still lower estate. Its maintenance was neglected. At its lowest level, which was reached as the railroad approached the zenith of its development in the early nineties, it was no more than a neighborhood path.

The first stirring of new life was felt in the late eighties and the early nineties. The bicycle was responsible. Its devotees sought pleasure roads. They organized clubs of wheelmen and the century run became the evidence of cycling prowess.

States Look to Their Roads.

In response to their demand, reinforced by the early motorists, the vanguard of whose army arrived in the late nineties, first one, then another and another of the states began to make preparation for the improvement of the roads; and certain pioneer commonwealths, recognizing that the roads were destined no longer to remain the locally restricted arteries of travel they had long been, created state highway departments to administer the work of improvement on a scale commensurate with the longer range of travel.

It is significant of the stagnant state of the road building art in the nineteenth century that when these state departments set out to improve the roads for the cyclists and the motorists they could build no other kind of road than that which John L. MacAdam had devised in the early years of the century. And not many years were required to convince them that that kind of road would not do at all. The automobiles destroyed them as fast as they were built, and passengers and countryside were coated with dust in the process.

Birth of Modern Highway.

With the increasing skill and ingenuity resulting from their few years of new experience, the highway builders went to work to devise a type of road that would withstand the destructive action of the motor vehicles, and soon their efforts were rewarded in a measure by the discovery of crude methods of combining tars and asphalts with the stone roads. Popular resentment against expenditures of public funds for the accommodation of the few who in the early days were rich enough to own motor cars was overcome by the reduction in the price of the vehicles which rapidly brought them within the means of the many. As a result the road builders were permitted to improve the new discoveries in road building and go on beyond them to the development of other types.

But whether the "good roads" movement could ever have developed into the solid industry it now is, had it not been for the development of the motor truck, is open to question. Certain it is that without the freight carrying motor vehicle there would not exist the strong economic justification of road improvement that there is now. And, as nearly as it is possible to determine it, this strongest of all the arguments for road improvement first made its appearance just twenty years ago.

Real Progress Began in 1904.

In 1904 only 411 motor trucks were manufactured in the United States. In the same year the automobiles were numbered by the tens of thousands. In twenty years these impelling causes of better roads have grown to 2,000,000 and 14,000,000, respectively. In the beginning the motor car, like its predecessor, the bicycle, was a pleasure vehicle only—a doubtful pleasure, perhaps. By perfection of the design the motorist has now been freed of the numerous troubles which beset the path of his forerunners, and the automobile is finding a place for itself as an instrument of business as well as of pleasure.

The recent traffic surveys made by the bureau of public roads in a number of the states show that fully one-third of passenger car mileage is in the interest of some business pursuit, and it is impossible not to foresee that this business usage will increase in importance.

As for the motor truck, it has become a downright necessity. That both types of motor vehicle will become still more numerous, especially the motor trucks, is written large in the fundamental economic facts which justify them.

Where Motors Must Score.

The country which has been developed extensively through the agency of the railroads is now to be further developed intensively with the aid of the motor vehicle and the highway.

Between the meshes of our railroad system there is land which the railroad cannot economically serve. At the centers where the railroads meet great cities have sprung up, and their rapidly multiplying population makes transport demands on the immediately tributary area which the railroads unaided cannot answer.

The motor truck and the automobile with the improved road offer the logical solution. It is these fundamental economic conditions which inspire confidence that the improvement of roads and the manufacture of motor vehicles must continue at an undiminished rate for years to come.

The Roads of 1904.

What of road building progress in the last twenty years? A survey of highway conditions made by the office of public roads in 1904 showed that there were then in the United States only 38,622 miles of road classified as macadam or stone roads. Roads classified as gravel surfaced amounted to 108,233 miles, and there were only 6,807 miles of other types of surfaced roads. Of the total mileage of public roads then in existence, amounting to 2,151,570 miles, nearly two million miles were not improved with any kind of surfacing material.

The total cash expenditure for road construction and maintenance by all states in 1904 was approximately $59,000,000, of which only $2,500,000, or about 4 per cent, was spent by or under the supervision of the thirteen state highway departments then in existence. More than four-fifths of the total state controlled expenditure was made by four states, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New York.

Owners of motor vehicles in a number of the states paid into the public treasuries a total of slightly more than $33,000, but most of the states made no charge for the privilege of using the roads, and most of those which did failed to devote the money thus raised to road improvement ends.

Twenty Years of Innovation.

Such was the situation in 1904. The country was then just beginning the work which has occupied it continuously for the twenty years since. The improved roads of that time had been surfaced for horse drawn traffic, and because of the early ravages of the automobile it is safe to say that scarcely a single mile, with the exception of a small mileage of brick, survived the ensuing five years. It is reasonable presumption, therefore, that the now existing mileage of surfaced roads, conservatively estimated at 450,000 miles, is a product of the twenty years of effort since 1904.

As for the higher types of construction, such as concrete, brick, bituminous concrete, sheet asphalt, and bituminous macadam, not only have practically all of these roads been built in this twenty year period but the very methods by which they are now constructed are also the product of this period.

And with the change in the character of the traffic there has grown up a distinctly modern development in the financing of the cost of the highways, i. e., the users of the roads have been called upon to pay an increasing proportion of their cost.

WHAT "HORSEPOWER" MEANS AND HOW AUTO MOTORS ARE TESTED

To get at a clear idea of the term "horsepower," as it applies to power producing mechanisms, we must go back to the year 1765. At that time James Watt had perfected his steam engine to a degree that made it practical, and he was trying to build up a market for it. Like all inventors, Watt found a great deal of opposition to his efforts, and in order to stimulate sales he first found it necessary to educate the people to the value of his invention.

Watt knew that he would have to find some way of accurately contrasting the power of his steam engine against the power of horses, because the mine owners were not familiar with any other form of power. His first task, therefore, was to find out just how much power the average work horse possessed, or, in other words, just how much work a horse could do in a certain length of time.

What a Horse Can Do.

Watt conducted a long series of tests, and as a result he ascertained that the average work horse could lift a weight of 150 pounds two and one-half miles per hour for ten hours a day. To express this in other terms, he found that the average horse could do work equivalent to lifting 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute.

The term "horsepower," therefore, means the amount of power required to lift 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute. It has exactly the same meaning whether applied to a steam engine, a gasoline engine, or an electric motor.

The device most commonly used in determining actual horsepower of a motor is called the dynamometer. This word is a combination of the two words, "dynamo," and "meter." It means, as its name indicates, a measuring dynamo.

How Motor Is Tested.

In testing an automobile for actual horsepower, the gasoline motor and the electric dynamo are hitched together. The gasoline motor is then started, and its capacity for work is determined by suitable resistance and measuring instruments.

Electrical horsepower is measured in watts, one mechanical horsepower being equal to 746 watts of electric current. In other words, 746 watts is equal to 33,000 foot pounds per minute.

In the dynamometer test all factors are taken into consideration. The motor is put on a stand and connected up just as it is when in use. It is then started, and as it develops power the indicator dials show the exact amount of resistance offered. The dials show when the motor reaches the top of its power curve; that is, the speed at which the motor develops its maximum of power. If, at the top of its power curve, the dials show that enough electrical units to equal fifty horsepower are operating against it, then the actual horsepower of that motor is fifty horsepower.

AUTO SEEN AS A PRICELESS BOON TO HUMANKIND

What It Has Done to Make World Better.

BY C. H. WILLS.
[President Wills-Sainte Claire, Inc.]

The motor car has put far more money into the people's pockets than it has ever taken out. I resent the charge that motor cars have been an extravagance instead of an economizing influence. Consider for one thing, the gain in real estate values resulting unmistakably from the use of motor cars. For every dollar spent in motor cars, there has been two dollars added by motor cars to the value of real estate.

One has only to watch the development of outlying suburban property to realize that this is true. Without the motor car, what is now endless outlying city property would still be farm land—nothing more; and the economic loss thereby sustained could not be computed in a generation.

The Auto's Worth to Farmer.

And even greater than the increase in value of suburban ground is the added wealth which the motor car has put into the pockets of the farmer. It has dynamited him out of his isolation, put him in instant touch with his market, and brought him into the great current of modren living. It has taken him off the mud road and put him on the concrete. And with all this has come to him incalculable increased wealth.

Then comes an even greater benefit—the sociological contribution of the motor car. Literally and dramatically it has made us over—produced of us a different type of human being—a type that recognizes no longer the corporation line between town and country which so long divided our people. Today the farmer in his sedan on his way to the city jeweler, passes, with a friendly wave of the hand, the metropolitan bank president on his way out to the country club.

Makes U. S. a United Nation.

And not only is the automobile making of America just one big town; it is going much farther; it is making the dream of a united nation a reality.

The Lincoln highway and its greater sister arteries have welded east and west beyond the possibilities of severance, either physically or spiritually, and the Dixie highway has done what force could never do between our people of the south and our people of the north—it has made them literally and actually one. The blot of sectionalism has been cleaned off the map with gasoline, and to attempt putting a monetary value on this sublime service is unthinkable.

What does the motor car mean to America?

It means what the circulation of blood means to human life. It is science's one priceless bestowal to a race that wants to know its own better and see them oftener. It means a way of putting into practice the theory of Adams and Hancock and Jefferson.

A Priceless Boon.

Before the motor car, the idea of the unified common country of us all was merely a blue print. The motor car industry has taken that blue print, built a tangibility out of it, and made of it the world's most dynamic and powerful piece of operative machinery.

You cannot estimate the economic contribution of the motor car, but its sociological contribution is vastly more unthinkable. Save only the constitution itself and the great American spirit, this country has nothing so precious to American life and to American destiny as the motor car.

I am only glad to have played a small part in its development and to know that along with other great institutions our company is doing its part to make the motor car something still finer, more economical, and more indispensable.

EUROPE OFFERS BIG MARKET FOR SMALL TRUCKS

The European market is wide open to American motor car builders with the possible exception of France and Italy.

In the truck field high operating costs make the popular models those running from below one ton up to two tons.

American passenger car builders must liven up their finishes to compete with the brightly colored, gayly bedecked cars that are at present pleasing the European taste.

These facts are emphasized by Martin L. Pulcher, president of the Federal Motor Truck company, who is just back from a visit to the Paris and London automobile shows.

Careful study of European conditions, particularly in the truck field, where his chief interest lies, has convinced Mr. Pulcher that the demand is now for lighter vehicles. Fuel costs and horse power taxes are almost unbelievably high on the continent, and trucks larger than two tons are almost impossible to operate with any degree of economy there.

One Firm's Output Jumps 50 Per Cent in One Year

Scoring the largest gain in production in the whole automobile industry, the Hudson Motor Car company produced more than 134,000 Hudson and Essex cars in 1924, or an increase of greater than 50 per cent over 1923. This sensational gain was scored, the company's officers point out, despite a general setback in the industry, and was based jointly on the success of the Essex six cylinder car and the public demand for closed cars at moderate prices.

Hertz Car Makes Debut at Chicago's Auto Show

When the doors swung open on Chicago's silver jubilee automobile show the public viewed for the first time the new Hertz, heralded as the "mystery car" of the New York automobile show earlier in the month. The newcomer in motordom takes its name from John Hertz, America's pioneer taxicab operator and builder, whose Yellow Cab is now a standard part of America's transportation system.

GROWTH OF TINY SHOP IS ROMANCE OF AUTO TRADE

Story of Developing Motors.

Considerable interest is being shown in Chicago in the financial statement of the Continental Motors corporation, which closed its twenty-third fiscal year with earnings of more than $2,500,000 after federal taxes had been deducted.

Chicago people feel more than a passing interest in the company, because it had its inception here in 1902, when Ross W. Judson, the present head of the company, started, in a little machine shop in Clinton street, what is now the largest exclusive builder of gasoline engines in the world.

The first public display of a Continental motar was at the Chicago automobile show in January, 1903. This motor was a four cylinder four cycle engine, a decided advance over the one and two cylinder engines then in use.

How Firm Has Grown.

Demand for this type of motor immediately followed. This necessitated larger quarters, and space was taken in the Lakeside Power building in Chicago, but was soon outgrown. Early in 1906, the business was moved to Muskegon, Mich. Each succeeding year an increasing number of automobile and truck manufacturers used the motors. Each year the demand taxed the capacity of the plant.

In 1911 the demand for motors made it necessary to establish a plant in Detroit, the center of the automobile industry. A factory was erected which enabled the company to double its production. In the spring of 1912, when the Detroit plant began operation, the company had grown to be the largest gasoline motor manufacturer in the world, a reputation it has since maintained.

Company Seeks New Fields.

Since the erection of the first unit at Muskegon, the company has added to its buildings and equipment until at present it occupies a ground area of more than seventy-five acres.

It is understood the company now is planning an extensive campaign for the use of motors in farm machinery, road building machinery, concrete mixers, ditch diggers, hoisting machines, excavating machinery, and motor boats. According to its officials, the potential market is large.

The production capacity of the two present plants is approximately 500,000 motors annually. With increased business anticipated by the company in the marine, agricultural, and industrial fields, capacity utilization of present facilities is looked for.

CARS REFLECT WOMEN'S DEMAND FOR REFINEMENT

"Every motor car on the market today is fundamentally sound. The major units of every car perform their tasks with unvarying degrees of satisfaction. But it is in the minor refinements that cars differ," says E. L. Cord, vice president and general manager of the Auburn Automobile company, who is here for the national show. "Ninety-five per cent of the dissatisfaction today is due to minor grievances, such as rattles in the body, squeaks between fenders and aprons, inconvenient controls, and other trivial items.

"Our company pays special attention to these things. Since the woman has been playing such an important part in the sale of a large percentage of motor cars, the slightest detail cannot be overlooked or neglected, as her eyes are quick to detect the lack of the little things which escapes the masculine purchaser. The influence of the woman has been responsible to a large degree for the rapid improvement in closed cars."

Toy Truck Shows How Four Wheel Brakes Work

At the Bendix Brake company exhibit in the Congress hotel, serious minded automobile engineers are found intently watching the performance of a toy automobile truck equipped with four wheel brakes as it slides down a specially constructed oiled incline. The only way in which this toy truck differs from those which are sold in the toy stores is in the addition of a miniature brake on each wheel which is tightened with a small wrench.

FEW AUTO FIRMS OF PIONEER DAYS STILL IN TRADE

Some Use Old Names, but Have New Heads.

BY G. A. KISSEL.
[President Kissel Motor Car Co.]

With the opening of the national shows this year the automobile industry in America celebrates its silver anniversary. The quarter century has been marked by progress and achievements such as no other industry has ever known.

We have seen the automobile develop from a mere buggy with a one lung gasoline engine to the present multi-cylinder motor vehicle which is the last word in comfort, efficiency and reliability as well as beauty.

We have seen this evolution take place in the short space of twenty-five years, due primarily to the constant efforts of the automobile manufacturers, designers and engineers to produce a practical, economical and comfortable means of transportation that would gain the unqualified stamp of approval on the part of the general public.

A Long Stride, Truly.

It has been a long stride forward from that noisy, unreliable gasoline buggy of a quarter century ago, in which you were almost shaken apart, to the present luxurious motor car which glides over our highways and boulevards so silently and swiftly, with scarcely a trace of vibration, reeling off thousands upon thousands of miles with only an occasional stop for minor repairs or replacements.

Improvements have come thick and fast since those early days when the buyer was compelled to pay an additional sum for such necessary equipment as fenders, glass fronts (as windshields were then called), horn, lights, etc., on down to the modern car of average cost which comes fully equipped with almost everything you can think of for the comfort, convenience, and safety of the owner.

The phenomenal developments which have taken place in the short history of the industry are mainly attributable to the energy, farsightedness, and courage of its pioneers.

Today we find only a few of the pioneers still connected with the industry. Although we recognize among the automobile companies now doing business a number of names which date back to the early days, there are few of these which have not undergone a reorganization, or changed completely in management and ownership.

Although our company was not organized as such until 1906, it can well be considered one of the pioneers in that it was the natural outgrowth of a gasoline engine and implement manufacturing business started a number of years previous. Being one of the few early manufacturers of motor vehicles still in existence and doing business today, our position in the industry is rather unique, particularly in view of the fact that it is still owned and managed by its incorporators, and has never undergone a reorganization since it was started nineteen years ago.

Starting with a few thousand dollars and a small shop, the business has grown until today our plant at Hartford, Wis., covers many thousands of square feet, while the company's assets have increased to several millions, made entirely from earnings. Moreover, at no period in its growth has it been in better financial condition than at present.

HOW TO CLEAN THAT MAGNETO

While the magneto does not require much attention other than an occasional oiling, in accordance with the instructions of the maker, it is a good plan to remove the breaker box and distributor covers to clean these members. A small soft brush will be of service. This should be done at intervals, especially if the magneto is exposed to dust and grime.

WHY IT'S HARDER TO START YOUR CAR IN WINTER

Faulty Spark Plugs Are Often to Blame.

Preparations for cold weather operation of passenger cars and trucks should include attention to the spark plug equipment, according to B de Guichard, general manager of the AC Spark Plug company. Hard starting, increased carbon deposits, and similar winter ails may often be traced to a worn out or incorrectly designed plug, he states.

"Hard starting in winter is usually caused by these things: faulty plugs, low battery, or incorrect carburetor adjustments," says Mr. Guichard.

"The spark plug should help remedy these troubles. In the first place, it should assist quick starting, save battery strain, and provide the hot, strong spark that is needed to fire a cold, lean mixture.

"When the motor has been run a while, and then stopped, there should remain no film or dirt that shorts ordinary plugs and makes hard starting inevitable.

"Every driver uses his choke more in winter. This means more chance of crank case dilution. Some drivers run for hours with the choke pulled out partly and inefficient carburetion is bound to result.

"Before you decide that the carburetor has to be fixed, or before you go to the trouble of battery recharging, be sure your spark plug equipment is functioning correctly."

WHAT THE MOTORIST PAYS.

Motorists pay an average of a quarter of a cent a mile in the form of registration fees and gasoline taxes, according to the United States bureau of public roads. The computation is made on the basis of an average annual mileage of 6,000 for each motorist.

Stop wasting your motoring dollar! —buy a FRANKLIN

The Lowest-Priced Car per mile in the World

Any business man or woman knows that the cost of motoring is not what you pay for the car alone.

Add what you pay to run it. Add what you pay for repairs, lay-ups and lost time.

Then subtract what the car is worth when you are through with it.

That is the cost of your motoring.

Dividing this by the number of miles you have gone gives you the cost per mile.

On that basis Franklin motoring is outstandingly low.

And on that basis it comes to the Show with a strong appeal to those people who have been through the mill and are getting down to cases—who want their money's worth.

Face the Facts Before You Buy Instead of When You Sell

The Franklin isn't one of those cars which, at the end of four or five years, have outlived their usefulness.

Nor is it one of those cars which, though still good for use at the end of such a period, have little value left because no one who would like them second hand can afford to run them.

The Franklin is built to run ten years and more. Totals as high as 400,000 miles have been reported by Franklin owners.

It has always been famous for its quality, comfort and economy.

Therefore, it always finds a ready resale. There is always a large market for a quality used car that is economical to run. People prefer it to a new car of the same price that is short-lived, costly to operate and uncomfortable.

Face the facts of performance as well as of costs and prices before you buy, instead of when you sell. You will find many important things at the Franklin booth that will not apply to any other car.

Take This List With You To The Show and Ask—

Why Franklin's 49% power increase doesn't affect its economy—

Why it can provide this acceleration—from 5 to 25 miles per hour in 9 seconds from 10 to 40 miles per hour in 15½ seconds

from 30 to 50 miles per hour in 16½ seconds with 100% reserve power at 40 miles per hour

Why Franklin owners can do things with their cars that would be rank abuse to any other car—

Why driving the Franklin is less tiring—

Why the Franklin holds owner records for distance runs all over the country—

Why it skids less than any other car—

Why it never has any cooling troubles—hot or cold weather—

Why its braking system is the simplest, surest and most effective of all—

Why it is the only car that can travel all day, throttle wide open, low or high gear, without trouble or loss of power—

Why it can climb the worst hill, and leap away at the top without a sign of the usual engine fatigue—

Why 62% of last year's shipments were taken by those who were already Franklin owners—

Why it is easier on tires than any other car, and therefore easier on the passengers—

Why it is quiet over the road, and stays quiet—seldom needs attention or repairs—

Why it is the easiest car to take care of—

Why 75% of all the Franklins made in 22 years are still in use—

Why so many of its principles of construction are, and can be, different—

Why they give better results at a lower operating cost—

Why it is a powerful car, and yet makes it possible for you to stop wasting your motoring dollar.

It is as Easy to Have the Best As the Poorest and Most Extravagant

After you have gotten the answer to all these questions, another arises. Why be satisfied with anything less than the Franklin?

Both business sense and personal satisfaction place the Franklin at the head of the list. Even on initial price it offers $1.32 of motoring value, compared with the 1913 dollar, as against $1.11 average for the industry on the same basis.

And total motoring costs show an even greater difference between the Franklin and others.

It is just as easy to buy a Franklin as a cheaper car. Costs you less in the end and gives you greater satisfaction all the time.

Just turn in your present car as part payment on this high-powered, economical Franklin. Balance can be taken care of monthly.

It will pay in money. It will pay in the new freedom you get.

AUTO MAKERS STRIVING FOR THE SAFE CAR

Tax Their Ingenuity to Cut Down Accidents.

BY GEORGE H. HANNUM.

[President Oakland Motor Car Company.]

That the manufacturers of motor cars are squarely back of the movement to reduce accidents and fatalities due to the automobile is generally recognized. The automotive industry, through its many associations and affiliations, is helping to teach the public how to prevent accidents, and is doing all in its power to have proper and more generally uniform state laws and city ordinances enacted throughout the country.

But what is not so generally recognized is the effort which the more progressive companies are making to build an automobile that, because of its design and operation, will eliminate the probabilities of accidents.

Human Element Most Important.

I believe that the human element in driving is the most important one. Just as in learning to drive, the knowledge gained only by experience as to what the other fellow you meet on the road is going to do is really the most difficult to acquire, so are the features of a car that enable a driver to devote all his faculties all the time to the single task of watching the road, more important than the ordinary mechanical safeguards.

We are phone to overlook the many new features of motor car chassis and body design, which, while not so obviously apparent as factors of safety, nevertheless belong in this category.

Points That Make for Safety.

Generally speaking, these features which tend to make for additional safety are more flexible power plants; added efficiency in braking; improvements in body design which give drivers clearer and wider range of vision, accessible and easily manipulated controls which permit a motorist to operate his car with a minimum of effort and without interference with his steering; advancements in design which allow the lowering of the center of gravity and the consequent minimizing of the danger of overturning, and discoveries in the metallurgical field which have permitted the incorporation of additional strength without undue increase in weight.

Engineering skill has already made possible engines so flexible that the automobiles containing them can be handled in the heaviest traffic almost as easily as a child's kiddie car.

More efficient ways of stopping an automobile in time of emergency is a subject that has interested more motorists than any other during the last year or so. This, undoubtedly, has been due to the easily seen and spectacular performance in deceleration of cars equipped with four wheel brakes. This feature, which was a mooted question a year ago, now is accepted as a necessity.

Adding to Range of Vision.

It has long been a recognized fact that vision is the most active of the five senses, and recently car designers have been giving special attention to increasing the range of vision for the driver. One of the greatest contributions along this line has been the perfection of a full vision one piece windshield. The permanent top has also helped by making possible the use of larger light panels held tightly in place in the side curtains.

The ideal automobile, from the viewpoint of the general public, would be one with only two or three simple controls. Perhaps the industry will be able to realize that ideal some day. At any rate, it is working its way toward this goal as rapidly as possible. The placing of all hand controls on the steering wheel, under the fingers of the driver, has been a long step toward the greater ease and safety of operation.

Advancements in metallurgy have not reached the ultimate, and here we can expect improvements. Any new discoveries made in alloys will be reflected in chassis design. In fact, improvements in the metal industry have really made possible the sturdy, low hung, safe, yet not overweight automobile of today.

DIXIE WILL TOUR TO NEW YORK FOR SOUTHERN SHOW

At the recent national automobile show in New York, it was announced that numerous automobile clubs and organizations in southern cities are planning motor tours to the great southern exposition, a coöperative enterprise of states south of the Mason and Dixon line, to be held in New York at Grand Central palace, May 11 to 23.

An effort is being made to interest more clubs in the project, which has for its main object the idea of calling to the attention of northerners the fact that for the most part the highways leading to the many cities of Dixie are suitable for automobile touring, and that the south is by no means as inaccessible as it was a decade or two ago.

The increasing popularity of southern winter resorts and the opening of numerous first class hotels catering to northern guests has brought about a new condition entirely as regards winter vacations. Whereas roads between cities used to be impassible and vacationists thought only of going by train, nowadays a large percentage go south in their sedans and touring cars.

President Coolidge has agreed to open the southern exposition on the inaugural night of its twelve day run, and arrangements are being made to have southern societies in New York take part in the celebration.

This is the first time in history that a group of southern states has gotten together to "sell" the south to northerners. Governors are appointing three commissioners from each state, as well as a state chairman to work in coöperation with the executive committee.

Luxurious and elaborate are the plans under way in all of the states included in this gigantic undertaking. On one floor will be a cotton field in full bloom. Fruit trees, orange, lemon, and grape fruit, will literally spring from the prosaic wooden floors in Grand Central palace, some in full bloom and others laden with growing fruit.

DE LUXE TRAVEL—VINTAGE 1900

Those were good old days in a way—the days when roads and motors were young and a 100 mile jaunt was a real adventure—but even the oldest of old timers will tell you that concrete and balloon tires of 1925 suit them now right down to the ground. [Photo from Olds.]

SANER BUYING PERIOD HAS COME TO AUTO TRADE

Public Knows What It Wants Now.

BY MYRON E. FORBES.

[President Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co.]

The motor car industry enters the year 1925, the silver jubilee of the industry, offering the automobile user more value for his dollar than at any previous time in our entire history.

The dollar of ten or twelve years ago will buy only 60 cents' worth of most commodities today. The same dollar will buy considerably more than 100 cents' worth of automobile value today.

The automobile industry long since has passed through the experimental stage, but no one seems to have called attention to the fact that it has been only during the last year of two that automobile owners have completed their period of experimenting.

Sees Era of Saner Buying.

Since automobiles came into general use, the average owner has now had enough time to try out thoroughly five of six types of motor cars. It has taken this length of time to gain first hand experience which would prove to his own satisfaction which type of motor car renders the greatest satisfaction at lowest cost. The buyer can form sound conclusions after owning five or six cars.

This widespread experience has culminated in the trend toward saner buying. It has been responsible for the process of "graduating" into a higher priced class of cars that has characterized buying during the last two years.

The shrewd buyer today has found that he can enjoy a higher standard of motor car satisfaction at a lower cost per mile by investing in a car which is built to serve dependably over a long period of years. In investing in a ten year car, the buyer may not necessarily intend keeping it that long, but he knows that its resale value is considerably higher than that of a car which depreciates rapidly.

Yearly Models Pass Out.

The era of saner buying is having a stabilizing influence on the whole industry. For one thing, it marks the passing of yearly models. The public has emphatically registered protest against a practice which once a year artificially lowers the market value of the cars that owners are driving.

Saner policies of manufacturing, saner policies of selling and distributing, saner methods of financing the purchase of cars, and, on the part of the user, saner judgment in buying—all are factors which give long established manufacturers confidence in the future.

The best proof that our company shares in this confidence is the program of expansion into which we have entered. We have pledged all our energies and all our resources to serving a group of owners approximately eighteen times as large as the group that we formerly served.

Selling Force Expanded.

Associated with us in this enterprise is our expanded organization of automobile merchants throughout the United States—an organization that has nearly quadrupled in numbers during the last year.

It is our solemn belief that 1925 will be a year of prosperous and happy relationships between automobile users and automobile manufacturers.

Sometimes a Speedometer Fibs One Into Trouble

A fibbing speedometer is a source of annoyance—sometimes danger. You may think you're traveling at a speed of thirty whereas the car may be doing only twenty-six. On the other hand, it may read twenty when you are actually doing twenty-four. In the one case you fail to make good time; in the other you are likely to get hauled in for exceeding the city speed limit. If you think there is any error in the reading of your speedometer—and it is worth while to make the test, anyway—ride along beside a friend's car and compare speeds. The result may be interesting.

No Motorcycle Deaths at Atlanta in Five Years

Motorcyclists of Atlanta, Ga., are proud of the recognition given them by their local safety council. Recent records compiled show that not one fatal accident has occurred to the riders of motorcycles during a period of over five years. Secretary George Deibert warmly congratulated them on this splendid record, which has made them all eligible for membership in the Safe Drivers' club of the Atlanta safety council.

Berlin, with Widest of Streets, Bans All Parking

Even though the streets of Berlin, Germany, are wider than those of any other city in the world, the parking of cars on highways is prohibited. The city council, in trying to solve the traffic problem, says there are municipal auto garages numerous enough and large enough to accommodate all the cars in the city.

GOOD BUSINESS MEN OF MOTORDOM ARE ONES WHO PROSPER

BY GEORGE F. DANIELS.

[General Manager Locomobile Co.]

A review of the automobile industry for the year 1924 indicates that the falling off in total revenue was not due so much to general business conditions as to the failure of some producers to adapt their operations to changed conditions.

The truth of this is demonstrated by the fact that those concerns which experienced increases in volume in 1924 were officered and directed by men keen euough to sense the changes in conditions and able enough to coordinate their operations to fit these conditions.

Business Becoming Stabilized.

Although the automobile industry is one of the most important of American business interests, it is still young. During its twenty-five year life, it has experienced broad swings or cycles from great prosperity to depression and back again, but these swings continually diminish in extent as business experience and ability enable an increased control over their causes.

Nineteen twenty-five gives every promise of a prosperous year. We are riding on a rising tide in all lines of business, and manufacturers and dealers in lines of cars adapted to this year's market and whose concerns are properly organized and operated are bound to reap excellent returns.

Trend to Closed Cars.

The automobile is now our chief transportation, and financiers are fast realizing that as such it ranks equally as important as our great railway systems as an agency of progress and a developer of national growth.

The market trend towards closed cars and all year use is steadily flattening production and sales curves to the financial advantage of buyers, who today get more value per dollar in an automobile than in any other generally used commodity.

The national automobile show gives remarkable evidence of engineering and merchandising achievements in making modern automotive transportation almost universally available.

CANADA STARTS MOVEMENT FOR NATIONAL ROAD

A new and vast playground, called more beautiful by many than the most beautiful sections of the Swiss Alps, may be opened to American motorists as a result of the hazardous path-finding trip which Austin F. Bement, secretary of the Lincoln Highway association, made across Canada recently.

Bement's trip, the first ever made across the dominion in an automobile, was widely heralded in September. For sixty-three miles of the distance he drove the official car of the Lincoln Highway association over the ties of the Canadian National railroad. This was through the Fraser river canyon between Lytton and Hope, B. C., a section of the proposed transcontinental route which no automobile ever before had been able to negotiate.

Seventeen tunnels and 150 trestles some of them hundreds of feet above the roaring Fraser river, had to be negotiated. It was the most severe test for man and car through which any motorist ever passed successfully.

Bement proved that a way could be won by a motor car through the passes of the Sierras, which previously had been considered impassable to motorists. Following his record breaking trip, the Canadian northwest has awakened to the possibilities for development of the country through roads that will invite American tourists.

Almost with the arrival in Vancouver, Bement's objective, clamor for a coast-to-coast highway in Canada, rivaling the Lincoln highway in the United States, started. Bement added impetus to the movement by speeches in a number of towns and cities in the Canadian northwest in which he related the story of the Lincoln highway and told of the comparative ease with which a modern highway could be built through the mountains.

"The northwest is a score of Switzerlands in one," Mr. Bement said. "When roads are built opening the district to automobile tourists from the United States it will become one of the greatest playgrounds in the world."

$5,000,000 Bond Issue in Fight on Death Crossings

The first definite step toward elimination of the most dangerous grade crossings in Los Angeles county has been taken, and approval is up to the motorists. The beginning was when the county board of supervisors passed a resolution to place on the ballot Nov. 4 a bond issue for $5,000,000 to care for the county's share in the abolishment of these menaces to human life and limb. The railroads are expected to furnish at least half the cost, and the communities deriving the largest benefit also will be called upon to help.

COOLING SYSTEM IS PROBLEM IN MOTOR BUILDING

Radiation, as applied to internal combustion engines, is casting off the surplus heat, over and above that required to operate the engine at the right temperature to insure good results, according to F. A. Bower, assistant chief engineer Buick Motor company. Naturally, it varies with the design of the engine.

"The volume of water in the cooling system of an engine is a serious problem, because it is so intimately connected with the matter of fuel consumption," he said yesterday "As far as the motor is concerned, a gallon of gasoline represents so many heat units, and the greater the percentage of these heat units that can be converted into actual working power, the greater the efficiency—or economy—of the motor will be.

"Unfortunately, it is, impracticable to use all of the heat generated in such a motor for power, because unless some means of cooling the motor is used the heat soon becomes so great as to be destructive.

"So, in making the cylinder castings, water passages are cast around the cylinders in such a manner as to allow the excess heat to escape through the cylinder walls into the water, which in turn is cooled by the radiator on the front of the car."

TRICK BRUSH FOR WASHING AUTOS

"A long handle to which a garden hose can be attached, and a brush holder that sprays water from a nozzle, is being made for washing automobiles. The brushes are removable so that either soft or stiff bristle can be fastened to the device," says Popular Mechanics. "The great length of the holder enables the user to keep a sufficient distance from work to avoid being splashed while manipulating the brush."

DON'T WAIT TILL YOU HIT A TOWN TO TEST BRAKES

Have you ever noticed how less effectively brakes work when you have not used them for several miles? This usually happens when it is necessary to make the first quick stop in a town one is passing through on a trip. It is dangerous because such partial failure of the brakes is unexpected.

One explanation is that the brake lining becomes glazed through disuse, the constant but light rubbing of the drums against its surface serving to produce a polish.

The best plan is to use the brakes several times just before entering a town, so when really needed they will work properly.

BRAKES AND WET STREETS.

Brakes are much more likely to lock the wheels when the streets are wet; first, because of the decreased resistance to the brakes caused by lessened tire traction; second, because the brakes are more effective when the linings are damp. It is well to remember that brakes have always been inclined to be more conductive of skidding under the very conditions when skidding is most dangerous.

HUDSON
World's Greatest Buy
Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

Being the world's largest builders of six-cylinder closed cars permits Hudson to give values beyond all comparison.

Economies in manufacture and the experience gained in three years' concentration on closed cars have resulted in the best cars and the lowest prices of our history.

Despite the fact that Hudson has alone offered closed car comforts at open car price, its real appeal has been the brilliant character of its performance.

With the Famous Super-Six

Hudson has the famous Super-Six chassis. Its motor solved the problem of smooth performance. It increased motor and car life to the extent that thousands of cars have service records exceeding a hundred thousand miles.

The Super-Six was created by Hudson, is patented and belongs exclusively to Hudson. Note the prices at which Hudson closed cars are sold. Think of their values in good looks, in the way they retain their attractions and the little attention and cost required to keep them in first-class appearance and condition.

They have reduced closed car costs for thousands. They afford advantages to be found only in costlier cars, and yet their cost is but little more than cars whose sole appeal is price.

Hudson is the "World's Best Buy." Comparison shows that. Sales prove it.

TRAFFIC SAFETY WILL COME WITH PROPER STUDY

Way to Cut Accidents Is to Learn Causes.

BY H. H. FRANKLIN.

[President Franklin Automobile Company.]

Traffic safety, a problem now grown so serious as to have an adverse effect upon one of civilization's greatest blessings—the automobile—has as a solution the same program that has practically eliminated accidents in industry.

In fact, there is a close parallel between the problems of industrial safety and those of traffic safety. With the widespread introduction of machinery into manufacturing establishments twenty years ago, there came the need of protection to workmen. Yet this protection amounted to but little until the time that state governments began to classify the causes of industrial accidents. It is noteworthy that the really effective safety methods in industry include some that never would have been thought of if a scientific study of accident causes had not been made.

Speed with Safety Needed.

Similarly, I anticipate the constant process of investigation in the matter of highway accidents to lead to legislation, having as its object, speed with safety.

It wasn't necessary to interfere with the efficiency of machinery in order to accomplish industrial safety, thanks to the good work of state safety departments, and it isn't necessary to sacrifice the speed of the automobile; speed is what makes the automobile so great a factor in our American life. Ignore the speed element in automobile travel and our transportation will slide back into the standard of the '80s and the '90s.

Present day highways undoubtedly are not suited to the changed character of traffic. And while corrective steps must be based largely on general estimates and guesswork in lieu of definite information such as a state highway safety department would give, nevertheless there are certain conditions of unsafety which are apparent to all.

Roads to Suit Traffic.

Highways must be built to meet the new conditions of automobile traffic, just as railroads have been built to meet the conditions of fast rail traffic.

One way thoroughfares with roadways kept clear and views unobstructed, presumably will go a long way to solve the present day problem of combining speed and safety. Elimination of blind spots, unnecessary curves, grade crossings and unguarded cross roads, also the clearing of roadways of pedestrians and parked or stalled cars must ultimately come.

On all congested routes, it is imperative that roads be built for one way travel. New roads must be built around cities for the accommodation of through traffic. Overhead or underpass crossings must be constructed at the junction of main highways. In populous sections of the country, we need separate roads for trucks, buses and other slower moving vehicles. The roads we have are not wide enough, nor are the dirt shoulders properly graded to meet the demands of safety.

Separate City Problems.

All of this is from the standpoint of state highways, regulation of which is a function of state highway safety departments; the manning of these departments by expert authorities is a necessary forward step yet to be formulated.

City traffic presents a problem all its own, but one which is receiving more study than is the case with the state highways.

Education of both motorists and pedestrians along with proper regulation of both is already producing favorable results.

So far as motorists are concerned, they must remember that streets are to be used for traveling and not for extended parking. Pedestrians must learn to use increased precaution; as time goes on, official measures regulating the crossing of streets by pedestrians will be enforced everywhere.

It is encouraging to note that in New York City in the first nine months of 1924, the campaign of education against "jay walking" resulted in a 43 per cent decrease in fatalities of that class.

No one will say that speed of automobiles will not always be a subject for proper regulation, but the years have proved that speed regulation alone is not the cure for the accident situation. A solution must be found that will permit speed with safety. Roads must accommodate themselves to the traffic—not the traffic to the roads.

ECONOMY BRINGS SMALL AND LIGHT CAR TO THE FORE

"Since the invention of the automobile the trend of design has been toward light, small cars of low original cost and economical operating expense," said Henry W. Burritt, general maanger of the Gray Motor corporation.

"A demand has always existed, of course, and will continue to exist, for heavy and exceedingly luxurious cars. And certain builders will continue to construct such automobiles for years to come. Such companies as ours, however, have bent every effort to produce a car within the reach of the greater portion of people, incorporating in that car all the characteristics of fine engineering and beautiful body construction.

"The cumbersome cars of yesterday were powered by huge motors—a picnic lunch could almost have been served from any one of the cylinders. Eight miles to the gallon of gasoline was excellent mileage for these monsters. The pleasure and profits of motoring were limited to the wealthiest people.

"It was vital that motor cars be placed within the reach of people of moderate means. To this end weight and engine displacement were greatly reduced. This naturally resulted in a lowering of the original price and the cost of operation. Automobiles ceased to be an unattainable luxury and came into general use.

"At least 74 per cent of the automobiles sold are in the lower priced, light and economical four cylinder field."

PRESS HAS BEEN THE AUTO'S BEST FRIEND, HE SAYS

And Car Has Proved It Really Is News.

BY A. B. C. HARDY.

[President Olds Motor Works.]

Cutting the time required to travel from one place to another and reducing the time element between the occurrence of any event and the broadcasting of this information in the form of news are the factors that have been responsible for some of the greatest achievements of the last quarter century.

Without question the three great mechanical and scientific events of the last twenty-five years have been the development of the automobile, the wireless transmission of sound, and the airplane. The rapidity with which these have been received, improved and made part of our lives, particularly the automobile and the radio, have been veritable miracles when compared to the slow, tedious fight against ignorance and unenlightenment that the rail roads, the steamship, and the telephone had to wage before their worth was fully recognized.

Newspapers Aid Advancement.

Newspapers and periodicals, but particularly the daily press, should be credited with much of the rapid success attained by the worth-while inventions of the last twenty-five years. During that time news gathering and news disseminating agencies have so perfected their methods that New York and San Francisco are only minutes apart as regards the world news of today.

The growth of the automobile industry from almost nothing in 1900 to the second largest industry in the world today is one of the most striking examples of mechanical progress aided by the widespread publication of news of interesting events in the industry.

In view of its great advance, it seems that the automobile had a start of many years over the radio and airplane, but such is not the case. In 1894 the first vehicle was propelled by a gasoline engine. In 1901 Marconi sent his first wireless signal. In 1903 the Wright brothers made their memorable flight at Kitty Hawk.

Press Was Auto's Best Friend.

The only background the automobile had was the carriage industry, which started downward when the first auto started chugging.

The radio and the airplane, on the other hand, had industrial relatives that aided their progress. The automobiles constant development of the gasoline engine greatly helped aviation, while the telephone and telegraph gave constant aid to radio.

The newspapers proved the "big brother" to the automobile and helped it over the bumps of the early days. From the time the first curved dashed Oldsmobile chugged its merry way over the streets of Lansing, Mich., in 1897, newspapers throughout the country recognized the automobile as news. It is the only industry that is accorded special pages and sections in the daily press, such as is given national sports.

And when it is considered that we have nearly 18,000,000 automobile owners in this country and that nearly 75 per cent of our population are automobile riders, it appears that the newspapers knew their business and could foresee this great mass of the public all interested in the one thing—the automobile.

EIGHT-IN-LINE MOTOR SEEMS HERE TO STAY

Dealer Tells Us Why It Is Popular.

BY LOUIS GEYLER.

[Chicago Gardner and Case Distributor.]

In this curious world of ours fashion is one of the tremendously important reasons for demand in any line of merchandising, and in the quick changing methods of the automobile industry the fashion for the straight eight has become the vogue so fast that it has surprised even those on the inside.

In the long years of my connection with motor cars we have seen the development from the little old single cylinder, or one lunger, as it was termed in those days, all the way through to twelve cylinders. The only ones they missed were the five, seven, nine, ten, and eleven. Why some misguided genius did not feel that such a combination was feasible cannot be answered.

In the natural elimination of things some of these types were thrown into the discard, and today it has narrowed down to the four, six, and the eight cylinder motors; what later years will develop would be, of course, hard to predict.

Recalls Debut of the Eight.

It was twenty years ago, as I recall it, that the first eight cylinder car put in its appearance. I was in the south on business when I learned of a "two-mile-a-minute" race which was to be held at Ormond, Fla., the beach over which so many sensational records have been made. Frank Marriott, driving a Stanley Steamer, was top heavy favorite to win; in fact, virtually every one conceded the race to him in advance.

But shortly before starting time Demogeot, the French mechanic, was substituted for the temperamental Hemery, who was to drive an imported four cylinder car. Demogeot came out of the pit in an eight-in-line Darracq. This was the first eight cylinder car I had ever seen and I was certainly one of the most surprised men in the crowd when Demogeot not only won the race easily, but crowded the two miles into the minute with several seconds to spare.

There was a lot of talk about this feat among motor car manufacturers and many began to experiment with eight cylinder motors. Nothing came of these experiments, however, until about 1915, when the first V-type eight cylinder motor made its appearance. The introduction of other V-type eights followed almost immediately, but these quickly proved impractical.

Eight in Line Wins Favor.

Today, only a few car manufacturers are using an eight cylinder motor of the V-type—the great majority have swung to the vertical eight or eight in line, as this type of motor is generally known. That the vertical eight is here to stay is indicated by the fact that the ones exhibited at the New York automobile show outnumbered the V-type two to one.

Since the days of the one and two cylinder cars manufacturers of fours and sixes have always used the vertical type motor and today vertical alignment of cylinders is the accepted standard of engineering practice.

You may recall the experience of one of the early car builders who brought out a car with a three cylinder motor. This proved a flat failure; in fact, it caused so many complaints that the manufacturer was forced to send his dealers one additional cylinder, with separate crankshaft and crankcase, to be bolted on to the original three in order to keep his cars sold.

Meet Test at Indianapolis.

The straight eight got another tremendous boost from the performance of these motors at the recent Indianapolis Decoration day races. It was proven there that this type of motor not only ran smoother and with much less vibration, but had the standing up qualities that existed among the best of other types, and their economy in fuel was astounding. This immediately started some manufacturers towards the development of this class of motor in a commercial way, with, as the public knows, fine success.

There are definite and tangible reasons for the superiority of the eight-in-line motor. Perhaps the most important is the fact that it gives a balance of power impossible to get in a twin-four or tandem four. The engine is perfectly balanced and each cylinder fires in proper order. This gives greater smoothness of operation, particularly at high speeds. Less power is wasted in lost motion. When repairs or adjustments are needed they are made more easily and at less expense, due to the accessibility of parts.

The popularity and wide acceptance of the eight cylinder motor is indicated by the increasing number of manufacturers now producing cars with this type. Fifteen manufacturers exhibited cars with eight cylinder motors at the 1925 New York automobile show—seven more than in 1924, and eight more than in 1923.

A DISTINCTIVE SIGN.

The New Hampshire department of motor vehicles has adopted the "Old Man of the Mountain" for use on automobile registration plates as a distinctive mark for New Hampshire motors in the future.

FEDERAL LEVY ON AUTO CALLED A "STIGMA TAX"

Time Congress Dropped It, Maker Says.

BY H. H. RICE.

[President Cadillac Motor Car Company.]

There is an evident urge throughout our country toward greater efficiency and economy. It is reflected in the policies of our national government, and with the results of post-war boom conditions still clearly in mind it permeates the policies of big business and influences the personal attitude of the individual.

The ground work of a long continued era of prosperity is being laid by sound business practices both in business and in the business management of our government. Conservation policies now being advocated at Washington, if carried through to fruition, will add to the substantial nature of our present prosperity and will be an investment safeguarding the wealth of future generations.

Taxes and the Automobile.

One year ago, with a contemplated general federal tax reduction in view, the automotive industry asked for reduction in excise taxes which had been imposed as a war finance measure. Their continunance was in the nature of a stigma tax. The industry had paid in 1923 a total of more than $157,000,000 in federal taxes in addition to some $313,000,000 in state and municipal taxes. It felt that, in view of the removal of taxes upon many articles distinctly and wholly in the luxury class, continuance of the motor car tax was unjustifiable.

That the industry was reasonably prosperous and that automobile taxes were large and easily and inexpensively collectible were the most reasonable excuses for their continuance.

Reductions which became law during 1924 decreased the taxes upon tires, tubes, parts, and accessories from 5 to 2½ per cent. Truck and motor wagon chasses selling for $1,000 or less and truck bodies selling for $200 or less were also relieved of the 3 per cent tax.

Relief, But Not Enough.

These reductions, though small, were essential and well directed. The parts tax had been essentially a nuisance tax, as it was a tax upon misfortune. The original vehicle had been taxed, and there was this additional tax upon parts to replace those worn out in service or destroyed by breakage.

Upon trucks, which are solely and distinctly units of distributive equipment, the tax had been equally obnoxious. Yet the mere statement is sufficient to prove that the motor truck chassis costing more than $1,000 is no more of a luxury than the one costing less.

The relief granted was in the right direction, but far from adequate. Arguments for the retention of federal taxes upon passenger cars are equally pointless. The time has long past when any one with the slightest knowledge of how cars are actually used has presumed to claim that their use was other than 90 per cent utility and 10 per cent pleasure.

The automobile tax reduction accomplished by federal legislation is estimated at $20,000,000 to $25,000,000—and this out of a total of more than $157,000,000.

Citizens in every walk of life are directly affected by federal motor car taxation, and it is to be hoped that steps will be taken in the next session of congress for the abolition of this tax, which, imposed as an emergency measure for war purposes, is now continued long after the emergency is passed and the cycle of readjustment well under way.

WHY CLOSED CAR CAN BE SOLD AT TOURING PRICE

Trade Has Found Ways to Cut Its Cost.

BY G. M. WILLIAMS.

[President Nordyke & Marmon Company.]

How can a manufacturer of modern, full fledged closed cars, combining all of the luxuries and refinements developed in this department of the great automobile field, offer them to the public at the same price as an open car?

Manufacturing developments in the last year have made this an outstanding question in the minds of the buying public, and the public is entitled to an answer.

Those who have followed the various announcements of this radical departure in automobile practice no doubt have been impressed by the absence of any "excuse" on our part for having been able to do this. As a matter of fact, we cannot attribute this achievement to any of the circumstances which ordinarily are held accountable for such innovations.

Reductions Must Be Explained.

Ordinarily when an automobile manufacturer announces he has been able to effect a saving in the production of his car, he at least reflects a notion that he has to justify what he has accomplished by attributing it to such things as decreased cost of materials, increased production, adjustment of labor conditions, or a dozen and one other things which may or may not exist.

There's an old copy book maxim which reads: "Where there's a will there's a way." And in final analysis one finds that practically all success is predicated on a belief in it.

Few there were who felt it ever would be possible to cross the continent by air between dawn and dusk even after the heavier-than-air flying machine was a reality. People stuck their tongues in their cheeks and tapped their foreheads knowingly when some one suggested the possibilities of wireless as they now are afforded us through the radio.

An Axiom of Economics.

And it is a strange commentary on progress that all man-made things are amenable to a definite economic adjustment which causes their cost and price to become continually less and less while the bounties of nature move in just the opposite direction, costing more and more as time goes on.

Our grandmothers would have passed out of the picture if some one had suggested that they pay $1 for a dozen eggs!

Competition Finds a Way.

Competition has stimulated the will to find a way to build automobiles better and for less money. And, to my mind, this driving will has contributed more to the problem's solution than all else.

So our company climbed over to the motorist's side of the fence and began to apply our knowledge of the automobile business and manufacturing in general, gained through almost three quarters of a century of honest, hard work, to the problem of finding a way to accomplish what the motorist felt should be possible.

We recruited the aid of every man and woman in the plant—let each and every one of them throw his ideas into the hopper—banish tradition and past practice—and take a fresh start, going on the principle that if there was a will there would be a way to accomplish what we had set out to do.

The closed car at almost the price of the old open car is the result.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE SIX

The new Wills Sainte Claire Six is a worthy companion piece of the famous Wills Sainte Claire Eight, embodying those traditions and characteristics which have made C. Harold Wills pre-eminent as an engineer, a metallurgist, and a designer who has always built with but one thought in mind—QUALITY.

Advanced engineering and advanced metallurgy have never produced a finer car than this new Wills Sainte Claire Six.

Overhead valves and cams; removable head; 7-bearing crankshaft; water-cooled oil; interchangeability of all corresponding parts and many other advantageous features have caused this motor to be regarded in engineering circles as an outstanding achievement in automobile engineering.

Eight beautiful body styles are mounted on the standard chassis of 128-inch wheelbase. The smart lines of the Six are very akin to those of the Wills Sainte Claire Eight, regarded as the smartest car on the boulevards of America today.

A bridge-girder frame, with four pressed steel cross-members and two tubular supports, gives the body rigidity and solidity, preventing rattles and squeaks.

Balanced balloon tires; unusually generous springs, both front and rear; deep, luxurious upholstering and the natural design of the seats give the car a riding comfort which cannot be appreciated except by riding in the car over the roughest roads.

A fully developed and proved system of hydraulic four-wheel brakes gives the driver a feeling of security because he knows he can stop—smoothly, quickly and easily

Molybdenum steel, the most marvelous alloy steel ever developed, is used liberally throughout the chassis where stress and strain are encountered, assuring thousands upon thousands of miles of the safest possible and most luxurious transportation at the minimum of operation and maintenance cost.

Its distinctive style; its exclusive engineering features; the strong, dependable materials; and the completeness and fineness of the appointments and finish, all combine to make this new Wills Sainte Claire Six—OUTSTANDING.

SILVER JUBILEE FINDS AUTO IN STABILIZED ERA

Day of One Year Car Is Gone Forever.

BY ALVAN MACAULEY.

[President Packard Motor Car Company.]

With the advent of 1925 the automotive industry celebrates, with pardonable pride in its achievements, the completion of its first quarter century of existence.

While the first motor vehicle propelled itself laboriously over its first mile in 1890, thirty-five years ago, the ten years following can be accurately termed the incubation period. The invention was being developed to a stage which would remove it from the realm of mere curiosities. The possibility of the basic idea was being demonstrated.

As an industry the manufacture of motor vehicles can be said to have had its birth in 1899 when, for the first time, production exceeded 3,000 units. These were all passenger cars, or as they were then accurately called, "pleasure cars," for they were but expensive playthings.

Giant Grows in Twenty-five Years.

In these twenty-five years just ended we have seen production increased a thousand times and the new wealth annually created by our industry grow from less than $5,000,000 to more than $2,000,000,000. Never before has any industry sprung with such rapidity from nothing to a position in the front rank among all the industries of the nation.

In twenty-five years this industry of ours has reached full maturity. It successfully combated the ailments of childhood; it safely avoided the pitfalls of early youth; its growing pains are long since past; its fundamental education has been practically completed; it served its country with magnificent distinction and with indispensable talents and facilities during the greatest war in history; it wintered the trying period of readjustment which followed the world conflict and emerged triumphant, purged of much that was superfluous to its future good.

It stands today in the full flower of ripened maturity of strength, judgment and experience, with all the virility of buoyant youth, gazing clear eyed ahead to the assurance of a great destiny.

Transitional Stage Is Past.

It is singularly appropriate that the twenty-fifth birthday of the industry should mark the beginning of a new era—the completion of a transitional period. I believe we have definitely passed the hectic and extravagant though unavoidable period of revolutionary change. Our education proceeded so rapidly during our youth; the progress of the art was so swift; improvement followed upon improvement with such speed, that what we made and sold each year was out of date and inefficient and wasteful compared with the next year's product.

Now, in my judgment, short of some unforeseen epoch making discovery in the realm of science, comparable to the discovery of steam or electricity, the future will be a period of slow evolution marked by the gradual refinement and greater perfection in application of principles now employed and well understood.

It was inevitable that out of the flux of ideas, principles, designs and methods which marked our early years, would ultimately come, through test and study and experiment and experience, a crystallization of final basic design which could improve but slowly. After years of violent agitation and rapid change the industry, to the relief of all and particularly, I believe, to the relief of the public, has reached a state of stability as to both design and appearance.

Stabilized Era Is Here.

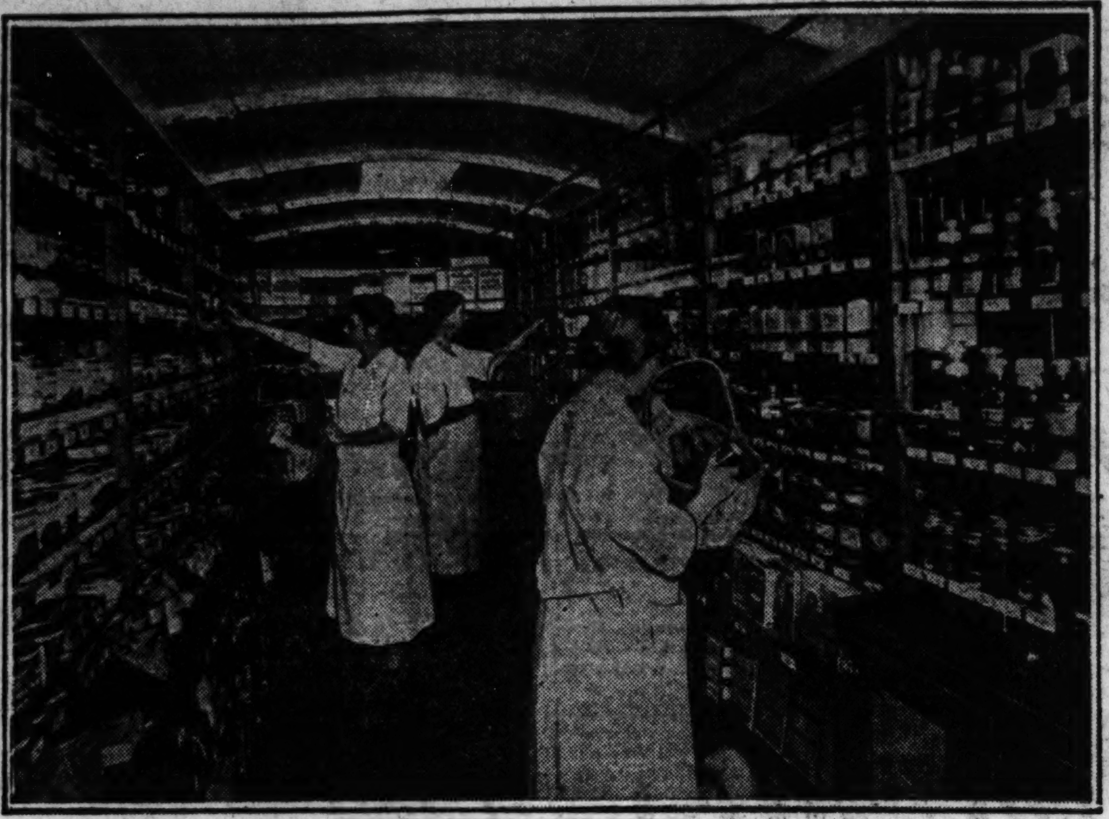
Now as we enter our second quarter century, I believe we have at last reached a stage which permits us to announce in the markets of the world that the industry charged with the important task of providing mankind with one of its most indispensable transportation facilities, has been stabilized; that we are building into our vehicles years of useful life, in some cases more than a hundred thousand miles of transportation, which it is wrong and wasteful to utilize completely.

Perhaps we all see the future of the industry from the perspective of our own position. Using as an instance that unit of the industry with which I am most familiar, I can say that I believe our firm has reached a point where it can say with confidence that while improvements will continue, they will not be spectacular; that while, without doubt, our car of 1930 will be a better vehicle than the one of 1925, no changes will be made sufficiently important from either the standpoint of appearance or performance to warrant any owner doing other than wearing out his car.

I know we have reached a point when we can say with truth and confidence to any new car owner:

"We have built at least 100,000 miles of first class transportation into this vehicle. It is yours to use in one year or ten. You have bought that much transportation."

THE MOBILE GROCERY STORE



No more shopping excursions to crowded stores for the women who happen to live on the route of the new "mototeria" service established as the latest job for the modern motor truck. Here is a typical interior, showing the stock carried by the trucks and the "help yourself" method used in shopping.

THE ONLY WAY TO OIL SPRINGS

There is only one way to lubricate springs. The car should be jacked up, lifting pressure being brought to bear upon the body of the car, not on the axle. In this manner the spring leaves will be slightly separated. The leaves should be then pried apart with a cold chisel or similar tool, and the lubricant applied to the leaves. Ordinary cup grease is suitable for this purpose, though the best results will be obtained from the use of an emulsifying fiber grease. Periodical inspection of springs will be well repaid, as the car will ride much easier.

AUTO IS ALWAYS IMPROVING, THIS PIONEER HOLDS

The automobile industry celebrates the silver jubilee conscious that in twenty-five years it has advanced further proportionately than has any other industry in the same length of time. For all practical purposes the automobile need be advanced no further. It now serves most intimately and economically every conceivable human transportation need. It lies within the range of more people than has any other advancement of equal utility.

But there is a driving urge within the automobile industry that makes it impossible for it to countenance anything but consistent progress. There are men whose inspired genius causes them continually to strike forward into new fields and enables them continually to bring to the development of the motor car even greater advancements and improvements than any which have been presented to date. This is the opinion of C. H. Wills, founder and active head of Wills Sainte Claire, Inc., of Marysville, Mich.

A pioneer builder of motor cars, Mr. Wills traces his connection with the industry back to the days of its very beginning. He has consistently refused to recognize any limitation to infinite motor car development. Each year, he believes, human ingenuity will provide better and still better automobiles.

Junior Eight! to be known as JR-8
Born of gruelling tests on our National Speedways

Do you realize what it means when a motor car is capable of traveling at twice the speed of the average railway train for 500 miles?

Can you imagine the kind of material in such a car and the extraordinary character of design and construction necessary to withstand this strain?

Such a Car Has Been Developed

For years, "Cliff" Durant, the well known racing pilot, son of W. C. Durant, has been devoting his time and risking his life for the avowed purpose of adding to the Durant controlled group a car of unusual stability and merit.

Motor Designed by Miller

Miller-motored racing cars, designed and built by Harry A. Miller of Los Angeles, Cal. have achieved sweeping victories on all the speedways of the country for the past three years. The motor he has designed for the Junior Eight is a straight line eight-cylinder motor, embodying all of the features which have given to Miller-made motors a world wide reputation.

Built by Locomobile

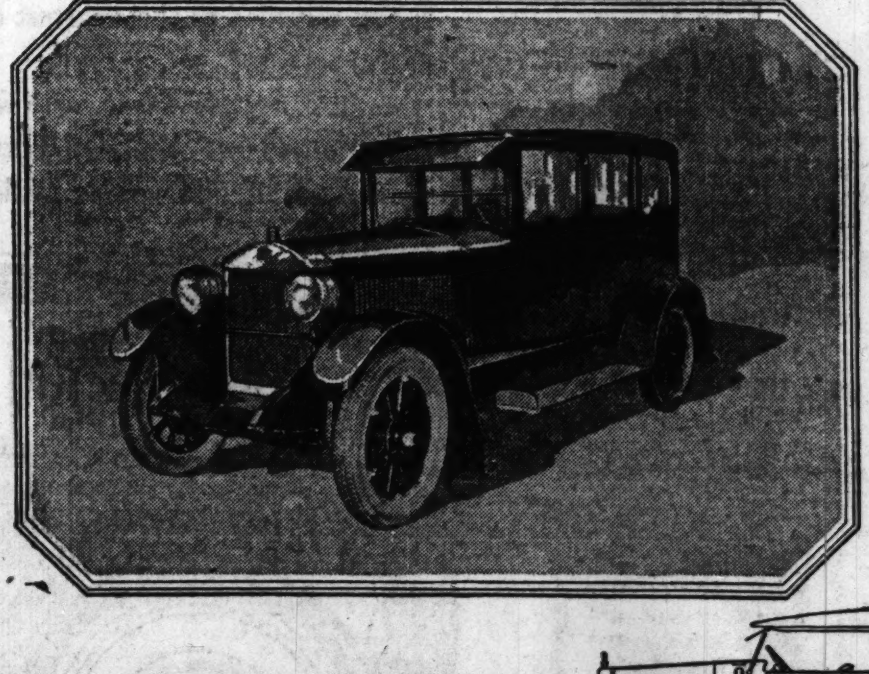
STANLEY



A car whose performance is as unusual as its power

¶ The modern Stanley with its perfected power plant and ultra smart body not only marks a decided advance in steam car development, but establishes a new and higher standard of automobile performance.

¶ Like all its predecessors, it is the easiest and safest operating car in the world.

¶ Its power is so correctly generated, its power is so correctly applied, and its power is so correctly controlled that a simple movement of the throttle gives its driver instant and absolute command of every gradation of pace.

¶ The car in traffic is uncanny; it starts like a yacht leaving its moorings, and rides as smoothly as a Pullman. Its minimum speed may be maintained all day with no vibration, no overheating, no stalling, and above all, without the slightest anxiety or attention.

¶ On the hills it is a revelation; for, in addition to its smoothness and flexibility, there is always a reserve of power, as instant in its response as the need for its use—no gears to shift, no engine-speed to think of, no headway to consider, just a movement of the throttle, as simple as a wish.

¶ There is no car in America you know less about—there is no car in the world you should know more about.

¶ See it at the Show in the Coliseum, Space 1, January 24 to 31.

Let's stop "cussing" the Gasoline!

Motor car performance can only be improved by better methods of handling present day fuels . . . .

Here's something to think about

Be sure to see this new development—a real sensation at the New York Show.

Exhibited at the Chicago Show Space Nos. 68—69.

Write for a copy of the booklet "Some Things You Ought to Know about Your Car." There are certain makes of cars on which the Swan System can readily be applied as a re-installation unit. If you own one of these cars you can take advantage of this development now.

There is still some open territory for distributor and service station franchises on re-installation equipment. Inquiries from capable distributors and service stations are solicited.

DOES your engine spit and sputter when it's started cold?

Do you have to jockey it along for blocks before it shows normal power and smoothness?

Is it "lumpy" and jerky below ten miles an hour?

Do you have to change gears every time you slow down to 10 or 15 miles an hour?

Do some cylinders show more carbon than others?

Do you get the economy you have a right to expect?

Few Do—Here's the Answer

These things are all due to imperfect fueling—unequal distribution of fuel—incomplete combustion of modern gasoline.

A few years ago a saucer of ordinary gasoline would evaporate completely in an hour or so at room temperature.

Today, the kind of "gas" we give our cars wouldn't evaporate completely in days—or weeks.

And you can't blame the refiners. It's utterly impossible to get enough of the old "high test gas" to supply even a fraction of the demand. President Coolidge has recently appointed a committee of his cabinet members to devise a means of conserving our oil supply.

Yet the fact remains that the gasoline of 1915 would vaporize readily. Ordinary carburetors could convert it into a practically dry gas. Equal distribution to the cylinders was not a problem then. Almost any design of manifold would function well.

Entirely Different, Now

Today, it's a different story. Present fuel, of necessity, contains a lot of kerosene. To vaporize such fuel requires twice as much heat as it takes to boil water. Such heat is not available—and if it were—the fuel mixture travels too fast to absorb it. Consequently, our engines are forced to operate on "wet mixtures."

Fuel distribution is now a real problem. On thousands and thousands of engines in use today it has been definitely proved that some cylinders get nearly twice as much fuel as others. Remember—one cylinder can actually get twice as much fuel as another and still run fairly smooth. But neither of them is right. One is too "rich" and the other is too "lean" to give the best performance.

"Hot Spots" and treated fuel are not the answer. The solution must be more fundamental and far reaching.

There Is Just One Solution

It is—uniform distribution to each cylinder and perfect combustion in each cylinder.

There's just one system that can give these results. And there's only one system in existence today that is designed from start to finish to handle the fuel we're now getting.

It's the Swan System—carburetor and fuel distributor combined—a system built on principles discovered and perfected by engineers who are acknowledged experts on fuels and engine performance.

Any engine equipped with the Swan System will start on all cylinders—always—cold or hot.

Any engine equipped with the Swan System will throttle down to less than five miles in high gear without bucking or jerking.

Any engine equipped with the Swan System will show remarkable torque or power at low engine speeds.

Any engine equipped with the Swan System will run smooth and sweet at all speeds and still have remarkable "pep" and "punch."

Any engine equipped with the Swan System will show 10 to 15 times less carbon monoxide than when it's equipped with ordinary carburetor and manifold. And carbon monoxide is the product of imperfect combustion.

Any engine equipped with the Swan System will show substantially perfect combustion in all cylinders under all conditions.

A Great Forward Step

These are the reasons why the Swan System is called the greatest forward step in carburetion in the last ten years, a real contribution to the industry.

What does it mean to you? Simply this.

No more uncertain carburetion to cause carbon, crank case dilution, fouled plugs, piston and cylinder wear. Lessened danger from carbon monoxide. No more excessive upkeep cost on your motor.

Or expressing it positively—smoother, sweeter action—increased power—and above all, real economy both in fuel and upkeep.

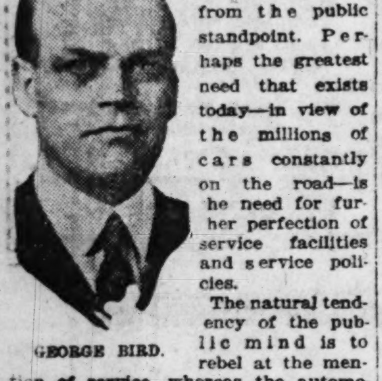
OF FUELING FOR AUTOMOBILES

LET THE DEALER BE THE DOCTOR FOR YOUR AUTO

You'll Save Both Cash and Trouble, Is Tip.

BY GEORGE BIRD.
[President Bird-Sykes Co., Paige-Jewett Distributors.]



GEORGE BIRD.

The tremendous and rapid growth of the automobile business during the last few years has developed certain definite needs from the public standpoint. Perhaps the greatest need that exists today—in view of the millions of cars constantly on the road—is he need for furher perfection of service facilities and service policies.

The natural tendency of the public mind is to rebel at the mention of service, whereas the automobile owner should himself make a point of determining the service facilities available on the car he buys—and the scope of its manufacturers' service policies.

There is no good reason why service should not be freely discussed. There are several reasons why it should be. Every man or woman who has driven a motor car knows that any car will need adjustment at times. This is no reflection upon the manner in which they are built. The modern automobile factory uses every known means for maintaining the faultless operation the public expects in a motor car. Considering the hard wear they get, most of them do well.

Hard Usage Means Service.

Hard usage is the reason for service. Don't jump when a salesman mentions service facilities. Jump if he doesn't.

Service costs money. It is a convenience to the automobile owner. It is not something the manufacturer devised through fear that his car would fall to pieces. Motor cars are not built that way today. Nation-wide service is your assurance that when an adjustment is needed in your car there will be a trained mechanic within a few miles to serve you, no matter where you are.

We urge our dealers to become better acquainted with their customers. We wish it were possible to impress each of our owners with the importance of knowing his dealer well. Whatever make of car you drive you will get better service, more reasonable service, and at lower cost, by going to the dealer who sold you the car. He understands, first, the mechanism. And it is highly important that you have adjustments made by mechanics who know your car.

Have Dealer Inspect Car.

Your dealer keeps a complete stock of standard parts. Every part of a motor car is built to work with some other part. There is some good reason for using the particular type of part in each place. If through accident or particularly hard usage one part becomes worn or injured be sure it is replaced by a part that is identical.

Your dealer is the man to do the job. He will take less time than the well known "pirate." And he will make your adjustments at lower cost—since he knows exactly what he is doing. Don't forget that your dealer is in business to sell automobiles. If he sells you one it is because he has a good car and is a good salesman. If he sells you another he will do so by first demonstrating that he appreciates your business. He will do everything possible to keep your car running smoothly, without the need of adjustments. And if the need for adjustment comes up he will make it, quickly and economically.

Have your dealer inspect your car occasionally. Have him give you the benefit of his knowledge. Get acquainted with him; he will save you money and trouble.

What Experience Has Taught.

In our twenty-two years of experience in the automobile business in Chicago we have insisted upon adequate service facilities and skilled mechanics. This business has been built upon the idea of giving our patrons an honest, fair, and intelligent service at all times.

Our service facilities have been steadily expanded until at present we maintain our own paint shop completely equipped, our own sheet metal shop, and numerous other departments, manned by trade experts. We have gone to great expense to provide these skilled mechanics with the most modern equipment and machinery. If there is any one factor more than another that has influenced the success of our business we believe it is our service policy.

So when you go out to buy a car don't think of service as something to be afraid of. Discuss it with your dealer—make certain that service will be available when you want it.

Over twenty years ago, when we first started in business, at automobile shows the question was not "How well does your car perform?" but simply, "Will it run?" For, remember, in those days folks used to start out riding and usually come back walking. But today things are different. Cars must not only run, but run well, right, indefinitely. And manufacturers are constantly striving to improve.

Firm Born in 1911 Will Soon Build 2 Millionth Car

Early in July, 1925, according to present production schedules, the Chevrolet Motor company will have produced its two millionth car—the second motor car company to achieve this record. It is a remarkable record when it is recalled that even in this youthful industry, Chevrolet is not counted among the pioneers. Organized on Nov. 3, 1911, with a capital stock of $275,000, it has grown from a small, single factory to a worldwide organization with twelve American factories and assembly plants, 7,000 dealers, and a pay roll of 26,000 men and women.

17,700,179 CARS IN U. S., ONE FOR EACH SIX PERSONS

Investment Total Is $10,620,107,400.

New York, Jan. 24.—Motor vehicle registrations in the United States for the year 1924, not including the final ten days of December, when they were comparatively negligible, reached the amazing aggregate of 17,700,179, a gain of 16.28 per cent over the total of 15,222,658 recorded in 1923.

This total, compiled by Motor from official figures obtained from every state, means that there is one passenger car or truck for every 6.42 persons, basing the calculation on an estimated present population of 114,000,000.

The number of passenger cars increased from 13,455,073 at the end of 1923 to 15,520,663, a gain of 2,065,590, or 15.35 per cent.

The number of commercial vehicles increased from 1,767,585 at the end of 1923 to 2,179,516, a gain of 23.3 per cent, indicating the rapidity with which the use of trucks and buses is being expanded.

A Staggering Investment.

The amount of money invested in these vehicles is conservatively estimated at $10,620,107,400.

With a total production for the year of about 3,580,000, of which about 300,000 were exported, it would appear that something like 800,000 of the cars and trucks made were used to replace vehicles which were scrapped.

New York still leads in registrations with 1,412,050, of which 1,136,300 are passenger cars. California is a close second with 1,321,480, and is less than 10,000 behind on passenger cars with 1,126,956. Ohio with 1,237,000, Pennsylvania with 1,221,893, and Illinois with 1,123,000 are the only other states in the 1,000,000 class.

South Prospers; Takes to Auto.

The second five, in order, are Michigan, 877,453; Texas, 823,074; Massachusetts, 672,315; Indiana, 649,797; Iowa, 614,000. Other states in the 500,000 class are Missouri, 545,000; Wisconsin, 526,400; Minnesota, 503,115, and New Jersey, 499,000.

When it comes to percentage of gains the south steps to the front, showing the results of two prosperous years. The leader is Florida, with a percentage increase of 34.9, jumping from 160,000 to 215,872, but Georgia is right on its heels with a gain of 34.5 per cent, rising from 173,794 to 233,818. New Mexico is third with 32.2. Louisiana with 29.4 and Mississippi with 29.3 are virtually tied for fourth place.

Other states which gained 20 per cent or more, in alphabetical order, were Alabama, 24.3; Arkansas, 25.8; California 21.9; Michigan, 20.0; New Hampshire, 20.9; North Carolina, 21.6; South Carolina, 27.6, and Utah, 20.0. Connecticut gained 19.9.

Business Slumps in Grain States.

Further analysis shows that the grain states of the middle west and other agricultural areas made poor showings, offering additional evidence that motor vehicle sales depend largely on the general course of business. States which gained less than 10 per cent, in alphabetical order, were Iowa, 6.6; Kansas, 9.4; Montana, 7.9; Nebraska, 8.0; North Dakota, 7.1; Oklahoma, 5.8; South Dakota, 8.1, and Wyoming, 9.9.

The largest numerical gain was 221,197, in California, with New York second with 197,408. Ohio came third with 168,300, Pennsylvania fourth with 157,269, and Texas fifth with 134,175.

The only states which failed to gain 10,000 or more were Arizona, Delaware, Idaho, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, and Wyoming, and of these Arizona and Rhode Island fell short by only a few hundred.

In making its compilation Motor obtained its figures from the office of the secretary of state or motor vehicle di-614,500. Other states in the 500,000

THE HANDY TOW ROPE.

Perhaps not one motorist in 100 carries a tow rope. Yet this useful article would frequently save a man a lot of time, trouble, and money. If you have a tow rope handy most any motorist will "hook on" and give you a tow. In the old days, before cars reached the mechanical perfection of today, were more popular.

BRITISH MOTOR MAKERS THRIVE ON SMALL OUTPUT

Imports from U. S. Soar When Tax Is Cut.

BY H. THORNTON RUTTER.
[Automobile Editor of the Daily Telegraph, London, England.]
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON.—There has been little cause for complaint by those engaged in the British automobile industry during the year 1924, although competition enforced reduction in the prices of the goods they manufactured and sold.

The figures may seem small as compared with those of the automobile industry in the United States of America, but it must be remembered that a population of 46,000,000 in the British isles cannot provide as large a home market as the United States automobile manufacturer has at his command. In fact, the problem of making a profit on the small output of individual British automobile factories would puzzle even the best experts in the United States.

Production Figures.

For example, the year's output of Morris Motors has been 26,000, that of Austin Motors 20,000, and that of the Standard Motor company just under 20,000.

Out of the remaining ninety other British manufacturers, few reached a production of 5,000 cars and trucks for the twelve months.

Britain's total motor vehicle production for 1924 amounted to 175,000 cars and 38,000 commercial motor vehicles, including reconstructed trucks, fire engines, taxicabs and motorbusses, equal to about the output of a month from the United States factories. Imports of cars, trucks and chasses for the year were 25,000. Of these the United States exported to the United Kingdom 6,000 cars and chassis and 150 trucks, and the Canadian factories 6,000 cars and chassis and 250 trucks, a combined total of 12,000 cars and chassis and 400 trucks, or, roughly, 50 per cent of the number of imported automobiles to England.

It is interesting, however, to note that, as regards the value of the automobiles imported into Great Britain for the ten months [Jan. 1 to Oct. 31] of 1924, France imported automobiles to the value of £983,960, the United States to the value of £979,403, Canada to the value of £886,850, and Italy to the value of £762,016.

Export Trade Sets Record.

British automobile manufacturers achieved a postwar record in their export business in the last year, as, although the December returns have not been officially checked, the total value of British cars, trucks, and spare parts exported during the year amounts in value to about £6,250,000, or $29,562,500, as compared with the total of £3,505,219 achieved in 1923, showing an increase of 60 per cent. In chassis alone the total value of British exports exceeded £1,000,000, equal to $4,730,000. Australia was England's best customer, taking 1,500 chassis, valued at over half that amount.

The value of the motor vehicles of all kinds and parts imported into Great Britain for the year 1924 amounted to £8,000,000, or $37,840,000, compared to £6,270,674, or $29,650,288, exceeding the value of 1923 [£6,719,765] by 20 per cent. Thus, while Great Britain improved her general automobile business, her manufacturers exported $30,000,000 worth of goods, as compared to $38,000,000 paid to her competitors for her home trade.

Perhaps the dropping of the import duties of 33 1-3 per cent on passenger cars in August, 1924, helped to throw the balance of trade on the wrong side of the British returns, as the imports suddenly jumped up to nearly $4,700,000 in value for that month from an average of $2,500,000 of the preceding ones.

1,312,357 Licenses.

According to the latest available returns from the British government department, the ministry of transport, which furnishes the account of the motor taxation, the total number of motor vehicles that have paid the road tax for 1924 and were licensed to use the highways was 1,312,357, as detailed below:

Passenger cars	473,528
Commercial goods vehicles	203,156
Public motor service vehicles (taxicabs, etc.)	94,153
Invalid motor carriages	555
Road locomotives, etc	2,320
Motor plows, etc	15,131
Motor tractors	1,362
Fire engines, etc., exempted from tax	14,040
Motorcycles	495,579
General trade licenses	2,313
Limited trade licenses	10,220
Total motor vehicle licenses	1,312,357

Taxes Net $73,315,000.

Receipts from these road-using licenses amounted to £14,246,900, or $67,387,737, up to Aug. 31, 1924, and the total annual income derived from this road tax on automobiles is estimated to reach £15,500,000 for the full year ending in December, equal to $73,315,000, when the official statement is issued by the ministry of transport in the next few weeks.

In the year 1923 the automobile road licenses produced revenue of $58,652,000 for 1,117,590 motor vehicle licenses; so the last year showed an increase of nearly 200,000 more automobiles on the roads in England, Scotland, Wales and Ulster [northern Ireland], and added $14,663,000 to the road fund over the total provided in 1923.

England's motor cars live long on her roads, as out of a total of 10,250 motor vehicles with engines built before 1913 that were in service in 1923, 8,940 were licensed in 1924.

The average horsepower of all the passenger cars was 16 h. p., showing the popularity of the small cars of from 7 h. p. to 12 h. p. Following the example of American motorists, the year 1924 also saw a 20 per cent increase in the sedan or saloon type of motor carriage in England and even the tiny 7 h. p. and 10 h. p. chassis were provided with fully enclosed coachwork and fixed tops in place of the open tourer with demountable hood. Rigid side curtains are also the standard equipment of all British touring cars, so that these can be converted into practically closed carriages when the top or hood is raised.

Speed Added to Cars.

Engine improvement in England was confined to a more general adoption of aluminum pistons to lighten the reciprocating parts and to increase the power developed, but side-by-side valves were equally as popular as overhead valves. More speedy cars were the result of the use of the lighter piston in place of the cast iron variety, so that even the smallest passenger cars can travel between fifty and sixty miles an hour on the level road.

More attention has been paid by the automobile designer to provide even cooling of the engine under different atmospheric and climatic conditions. This has greatly assisted the British export business, although naturally the general reduction in cost and in selling prices has helped in this direction.

Brakes on all four wheels are now fitted as standard equipment, or at option of the buyer, on all British cars, together with low pressure tires, though as regards the latter item the beaded-edge tire still holds a majority position, the straight-sided tire only slowly coming into favor, as the British motor manufacturer has not standardized wheels on his cars with suitable rims to carry them. Consequently, though a few car makers give an option to their customers to have straight-side or beaded-edge tires and wheels, the British motoring public usually has to pay extra to change over from beaded-edge to straight-sided wheel covers.

Tire Exports and Imports.

British tire exports represent quite a substantial contribution to the value of the export trade of the country. In the first eleven months of 1924 they had achieved a value of £2,499,590, or $11,823,060, an increase of $2,365,000 on the corresponding period in 1923.

CONCERNING VALVES.

It does not pay to have the valve ground when the stems and guide are worn. Have them replaced.

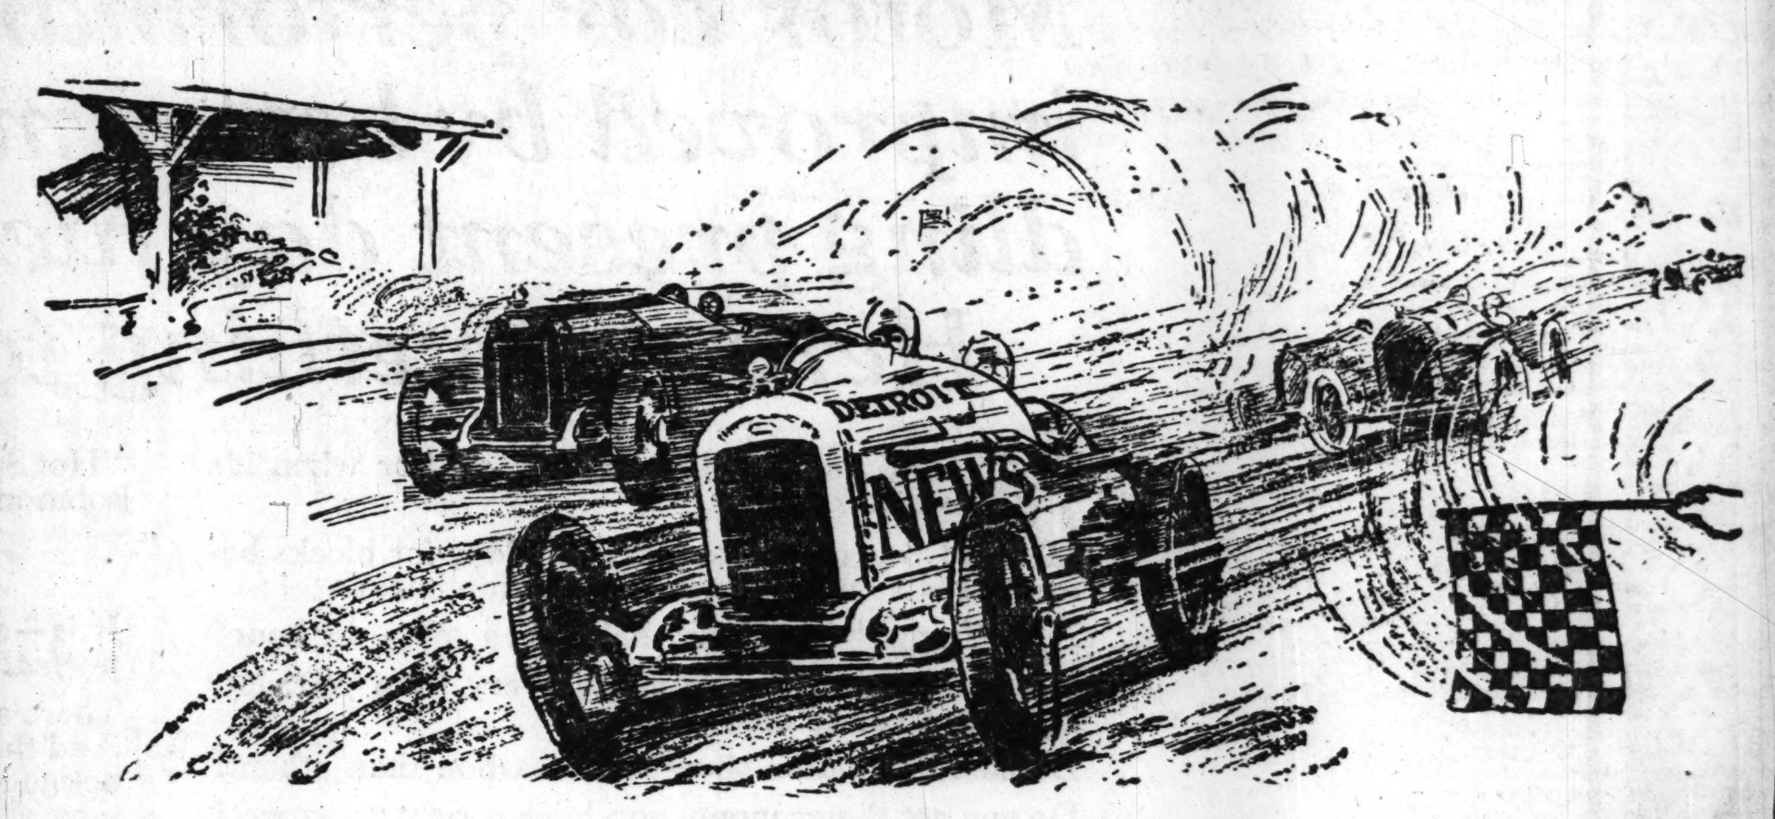
ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE



In Detroit The News Is the Accepted Motor Medium

During All 1924 The News Consistently Led All Other Detroit Papers Week Days or Sundays in Automotive Advertising

THOSE who have their fingers on the Detroit automotive pulse know that there is one Detroit paper that can be depended on for best results, and that paper is The Detroit News.

Practically every week during 1924, The Detroit News led in automotive advertising, piling up a volume for all 1924 in this classification of advertising that is consistent with the unequalled record established by The News in total advertising lineage.

The leadership of The Detroit News in automotive advertising during all 1924 reflects a fundamental principle of sound space buying.

Covers Detroit and State

With more than 285,000 copies weekdays or Sundays The News has the greatest circulation in Michigan, and is the only Detroit medium that provides a large state circulation without sacrificing thorough coverage of the city.

That is why The Detroit News has led for years in every selling classification of advertising and why it is NOW FIRST IN TOTAL ADVERTISING IN AMERICA with more than 30 million lines—the greatest volume in the history of journalism.

Circulation dominance plus the fact that The Detroit News was among the first of the great dailies to conduct its automotive pages on a strictly news value basis, has won for it the confidence of motordom. The automotive department of The News, as befits that of the leading newspaper in the great motor city of the world, has its own title page in The Sunday Edition and can be regarded as a separate, excellent automotive magazine.

Reflects Buying Influence

It is no wonder, then, that during 1924 The Detroit News printed a total of 1,419,992 lines of automotive advertising — 243,950 more than the second medium!

Weekdays The News published 605,640 lines of automotive advertising — 113,526 more than the second paper; Sundays The News, with 814,352, led the second Sunday paper by 130,424 lines.

Such leadership and not the score for some one day in the year, is the true test of a medium's value. Its record during 1924 reflects the remarkable coverage of the Detroit field by The News and its superior ability to influence the buying habits of the motor public in the world's greatest automotive center.

CORONER BACKS LAW TO BAR THE UNFIT DRIVER

Holds State Test Will Cut Accidents.

BY OSCAR WOLFF.
[Coroner, Cook County.]

Safety on our streets for pedestrian and autoist alike is the aim of all officials charged with protecting the public who are obliged to use our streets going and coming from their employment and in the course of their daily routine.

During the last year some success has been registered and the number of victims of careless and reckless drivers, which for many years had been increasing steadily, has been checked and in a small degree reduced.

Analyzing the results attained through the efforts of the various safety commissions, pedestrians' organizations, motor clubs, etc., efforts of the chief of police to curtail the number of fatalities by reducing the speed limit of autos, and publicity campaigns by the large dailies of Chicago, we find that the decrease in the number of victims for the year 1924 over the year 1923 is exceedingly small.

Legislation Needed.

Merely stopping the increase in the number of victims is not the object desired in Cook county's safety campaign. Material reduction in the number of these unfortunate victims is the goal, and the attainment of a degree of success worth while in this objective can only be realized by legislation that will remove from our streets and highways the careless, reckless, drunken, and irresponsible drivers of motor vehicles.

The necessity of a law requiring strict mental and physical examination of all auto drivers has been recognized by every progressive organization of any consequence in this county.

Other States Protected.

The state of Massachuetts has in force a law requiring all applicants for license to drive a motor vehicle to pass a strict examination as to their fitness and competency. The death rate due to automobile accidents in Massachusetts has been reduced to a minimum as a consequence. Last year the state of New York adopted a similar law.

On Jan. 2 representatives of over 300 women's organizations in Cook county, realizing the urgency of protective measures for their children, passed unanimously strong resolutions demanding that the Illinois legislature pass a law in this session that will safeguard their little ones by ridding the community of drunken and irresponsible auto drivers, compelling all applicants for licenses to prove themselves competent and fit to drive.

The statistics in this office prove that nearly two-thirds of all victims of automobiles are 16 years old and under or 53 years old and over. The pedestrian of mature age is better able to take care of himself or herself; it devolves upon the constituted authorities to protect those not able to protect themselves.

Must Make Our Streets Safe.

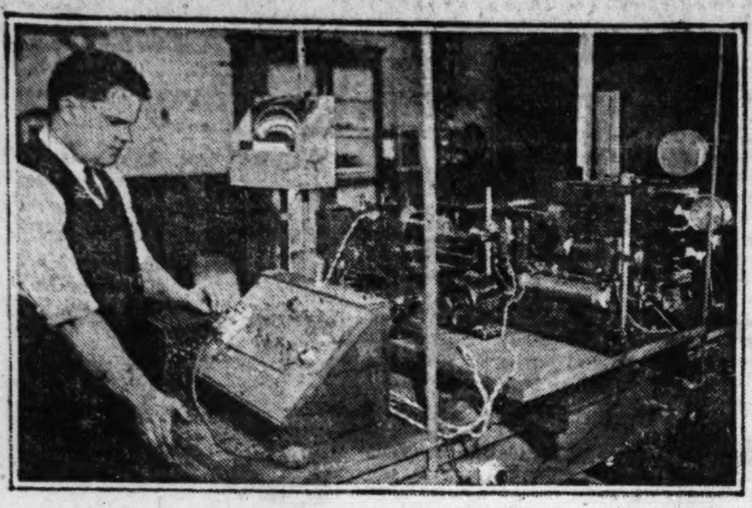
I am at present sponsoring a bill before the state legislature similar to one I urged the legislature to adopt last session, which was defeated in committee by powerful agencies opposed to any restrictions on any class of drivers. This bill has been approved by the mayor's safety commission, Association of Commerce, Illinois Automobile club, Federation of Women's Clubs of Chicago, the Pedestrians' Protective league, and, in fact, by all progressive organizations and motor clubs interested in bettering conditions in Illinois, and it is my fondest hope that by this time next year this law will be written in our statutes, and when it is put into effect in an honest, conscientious manner the results will be all that are hoped for and our streets will again become safe for the careful driver and for the pedestrian who is compelled to use them.

Lauds Tribune's Campaign.

The Tribune is entitled to much credit for the "stop reckless driving" plank in its platform, and the powerful influence of its editorials is in no small degree responsible for the growing sentiment in Illinois demanding physical and mental examination of auto drivers.

When this law has been adopted and put in effect The Tribune can justly claim credit for its valued assistance in securing this much needed progressive legislation.

X-RAY FOR AUTOMOBILES



Modern mechanical science has made it impossible for even the combustion chambers of an automobile motor to retain their privacy. Here is a new machine, recently installed at the University of Illinois, which determines the exact cause of any "knock" that may develop. By means of light flashes projected on motion picture film the operator can learn what happens in the combustion chamber.

MANAGER TELLS OF CLUB'S WORK FOR MOTORISTS

Much Accomplished by Illinois A. C.

BY HUGO MEYER.
[Manager Illinois Automobile Club.]

The chief functions of the Illinois Automobile club are in rendering free emergency road service to its members everywhere in the United States, which includes mechanical first aid, towing, crane hoisting service, delivery service and tire changing for women drivers; the maintenance of an efficient touring bureau for assisting members in planning trips, furnishing maps, detailed road information and such other data as are essential to tourists; the maintenance of a legal department for the convenience of members requiring legal service.

In addition to these services the activities of our club are many and varied. During the year just passed probably the most notable accomplishments, which are tangible and undoubtedly still fresh in the memory of the citizens of this community, can be tabulated briefly.

Addison Street Project.

First is the Addison street boulevard project, in which this club, at the urgent solicitation of various improvement associations, assumed the leadership. It is safe to say that before the end of this year, Addison street will be designated a boulevard.

Next is the auto drivers' competency measure. This club advocates and unqualifiedly supports Coronor Oscar Wolff in the enactment of a competency bill under which the life and property of the citizens of this state will be safeguarded.

Then comes boulevard lighting. The Illinois Automobile club, being a civic organization of individual automobile owners created in the cause of service to the motorists and fair dealings to the general public the nation over, is the medium through which contact is made with the various law enforcing agencies and civic bodies. Consequently, it is with pride that we take occasion to congratulate the various park boards of this city for the better lighting facilities of the boulevards and much credit is due the individual members of these park boards for the great improvements accomplished in this direction during 1924. Special credit is due the commissioners of the south park district, west park district and north shore park district.

Campaign for Children's Safety.

Also there are the street and alley repairs and through street marking. Through close coöperation with the commissioner of public works, Col. A. A. Sprague, and his very efficient department, which also includes the department of electricity, more streets and alleys have been repaired during this régime than for many years past. One of the greatest improvements, and one which this club has been much interested in and advocated, is the proper illumination of stop signs at through streets, making such signs intelligible at all times and particularly for night driving.

Of vast importance also is the safety campaign for children. Perhaps the greatest accomplishment of this club during the past year was the successful safety drive exclusively handled by this organization. It is a matter of great concern to learn that during the month of December, during which period the safety books were distributed by this club, not a child was fatally injured, which is a remarkable record and one of which we are proud.

4,000,000 NEW CARS FORECASTS FOR 1925, GREATEST AUTO YEAR

The purchasing power of the United States this year will be far beyond anything we have ever seen, according to William Riley, sales manager of the Jordan Motor Car company.

People everywhere are conservatively spending money that they have saved. Approximately three and a half million motor cars were produced in the year just closed. The year 1925 will see a production of nearly four million, because the purchasing power of the country is increasing and old cars will be replaced by new ones, while hundreds of thousands of people who have never owned an automobile before will buy Fords and enter the kindergarten class.

This will be the biggest year the automobile industry has ever seen.

FIRST AUTO FIRM ON MICHIGAN AV. OPENED IN 1908

"The silver jubilee of the automobile industry brings to mind the transformation of South Michigan avenue, Chicago's 'automobile row,' in the past twenty-five years," says E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash motors company.

"Michigan avenue, from Harrison street south, was the beginning of the south side's smart residential section in 1899," he relates. "The home of Gen. Blackstone stood then and for many years prior to that on the corner where the Blackstone hotel now is.

"Along about 1908 the automobile industry, as represented by a Chicago distributor, made its bow to the Chicago public, and it was in that year that the first motor car sales room was established on Michigan avenue. Within a few years scores of dwellings had been given over to the automobile sales and service stations, and today we find the 'row' represented by immense establishments flanking both sides of the boulevard as far south as 43d street, with similar 'automobile rows' in various sections of the north, south and west sides.

"To picture the growth of the automobile industry in the last twenty-five years one need but contemplate the vast investment in buildings and real estate represented by the industry in Chicago alone."

Here's a Little Tip That Concerns Your Spark Plug

There are a great variety of reasons why any automobile engine should lack power, but the spark control mechanism is among those too frequently overlooked. Is your spark really advanced when you regulate it as such on the steering wheel, or is the mechanism disconnected, leaving the distributor head in a set position that is half retarded? It often happens. Sometimes mechanics will work on an engine without noticing this.

10,000 Motorists Join Careful Drivers' Club

More than 10,000 memberships have been filed by the Careful Drivers' clubs, formed recently by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in its campaign to reduce grade crossing accidents. Each member carries on his car an enameled tag bearing the legent, "This car stops at all railroad crossings."

MAYER DETAILS HIS CLUB'S WORK AND ITS PLANS

North Shore M. C. Aims to Aid Motorists.

BY SI MAYER.
[President North Shore Motor Club.]

The North Shore Motor club enters its fifth year of usefulness to motorists with a membership of conservative business and professional men and women nationally known for their uniform observance of motor vehicle laws, their desire to be of service to the community and their courtesy to all.

During the short period of our growth we have worked untiringly and unselfishly in behalf of all motorists and pedestrians, for we have felt that our obligation extends beyond our membership to the general public everywhere.

In the legislature many bills have been presented in which inventors and others sought authority to compel motorists to affix to their cars certain accessories, such as governors, stop lights, fenders, etc. It is estimated that in one year the cost to each motorist for such appliances would have been approximately $250, had all the measures passed.

Guard City's Street Fund.

The uniniated do not know, perhaps, that the city vehicle tax fund amounted to $3,562,458 in 1924. This fund was created for a specific purpose—namely: the repairing of our streets; often, however, well meaning persons desirous of obtaining funds for other schemes, try to borrow or have appropriations made from this fund. It has ben our privilege to be invited by the city finance committee to scrutinize such proposals and either oppose or approve them. In this manner many thousands of dollars have been saved and applied to proper expenditures for road improvements.

Works for Motorists' Safety.

Almost every one has seen danger signs at various places, but few people know the cost of such signs or the trouble in properly locating and erecting them. Hundreds of these signs have been placed by us at various points in Cook county to prevent accidents. Complaints as to dangerous railroad crossings have been received, investigated, and acted on. The railroad companies have coöperated with us in erecting signs, cutting down tall weeds and grass and removing other obstructions in the interest of public safety.

Some of our friends know what we have done to eliminate speed traps, but unless you personally "got a ticket" probably you don't realize how much we do in fighting this evil. Often our attorneys have to fight a number of these cases and convince officials that they are hurting themselves and their own city or village more than the motorists; in some cases it is necessary to use the big stick. All of this takes a great deal of time —and some money.

During the last year we have extended our service to include the five surrounding counties, Lake, McHenry, Du Page, Kane and Will. More than sixty mechanical service stations along the main highways have been authorized and have been giving service since June, 1924. This means that our members who in an emergency need club service can now avail themselves of it free of charge on any short pleasure or business trip.

Club's Service to City.

As president of the club it has been my privilege to serve on the mayor's safety commission and as president of the Illinois safety council. We have labored incessantly for public safety and the enforcement of motor vehicle laws; we have been behind and pushed through such well known improvements as the "outer drive" in Lincoln park and the McCormick drive along the drainage canal from Devon avenue north into Evanston. We have obtained the signatures of property owners necessary for consent to the widening of the Lake Shore drive to 100 feet from the Drake hotel to North avenue and we have helped to obtain uniform stop signs at through streets and boulevards.

The North Shore club's program for 1925 partly includes the following items:

Appropriate punishment for persistent violations of the speed and traffic laws.

Wider country roads.

An outer drive from the Drake hotel through Lincoln park to the city limits (and in addition to that, the extension of that drive all along the lake shore to Milwaukee).

More through streets north and south.

Recording and furnishing abstracts of sale of automobiles.

The widening of La Salle street.

Enforcement of the headlight law.

We will also undoubtedly be in favor of legislation providing for the examination of drivers of motor vehicles, in other words, a competency act. This is now being given consideration by the legal committee of our club, which consists of some thirty prominent attorneys.

Bus Routes Now Cover All of North Carolina

Motor vehicles in North Carolina are proving to be the residents' chief means of travel. Passengers can journey from one end of the state to the other by bus, spacious motor busses making regular schedules on routes between 75 and 100 miles of length.

Goodbye! Goodbye! To High Priced Sixes

ANY woman with a last year's hat can understand this.

It is the simple story of the passing of a certain type of motor car from the field above $2000.

We might as well be frank.

The day of the line eight has come.

The day of the high priced six has gone.

It's simple enough to understand if you follow me closely.

One year ago you had to pay from $4000 to $5000 to buy a real eight.

Then Jordan produced The Great Line Eight.

Now you can buy as fine an automobile as is built in America for $2000 below the high priced eights.

That, friends, started the deluge of price cutting in all six cylinder cars.

Ford dominates the four cylinder field.

You cannot continue to sell a great volume of four cylinder cars above his price.

Any four cylinder above the Ford must have a bolero here and a pom-pom there.

You must doll them up.

There was a time when six cylinder cars above $1500 were sold in great volume.

Then someone built a low priced six cylinder coach.

That reduced the style standard on all six cylinder cars.

And started the deluge of price cutting in the lower priced field.

But costs are not lower.

Prices on eights will probably go higher.

That will be the tendency in the impending period of prosperity.

Prices on sixes will go even lower.

For sixes cannot be sold in quantity above $2000.

When father and mother rise above the four cylinder class and have passed the grammar school stage of the lower priced sixes, they are ready for a real automobile.

That's why Jordan built The Great Line Eight.

Any woman with a last year's hat can understand this.

Hats become obsolete within one year's time.

For example:—

One year ago a man named Firestone built a balloon tire.

Count them on the cars today.

One year ago four wheel brakes appeared.

Count them on the cars today.

One year ago there were two leading eight cylinder cars in the high priced field.

Then Jordan built The Great Line Eight.

It was offered at $2000 less than the eights then dominating the field.

Immediately the sales of sixes began to fall off.

It is impossible to sell sixes in volume at anywhere near the price of The Great Line Eight.

Six months from now any six selling above $2000 will be as obsolete as "The Covered Wagon."

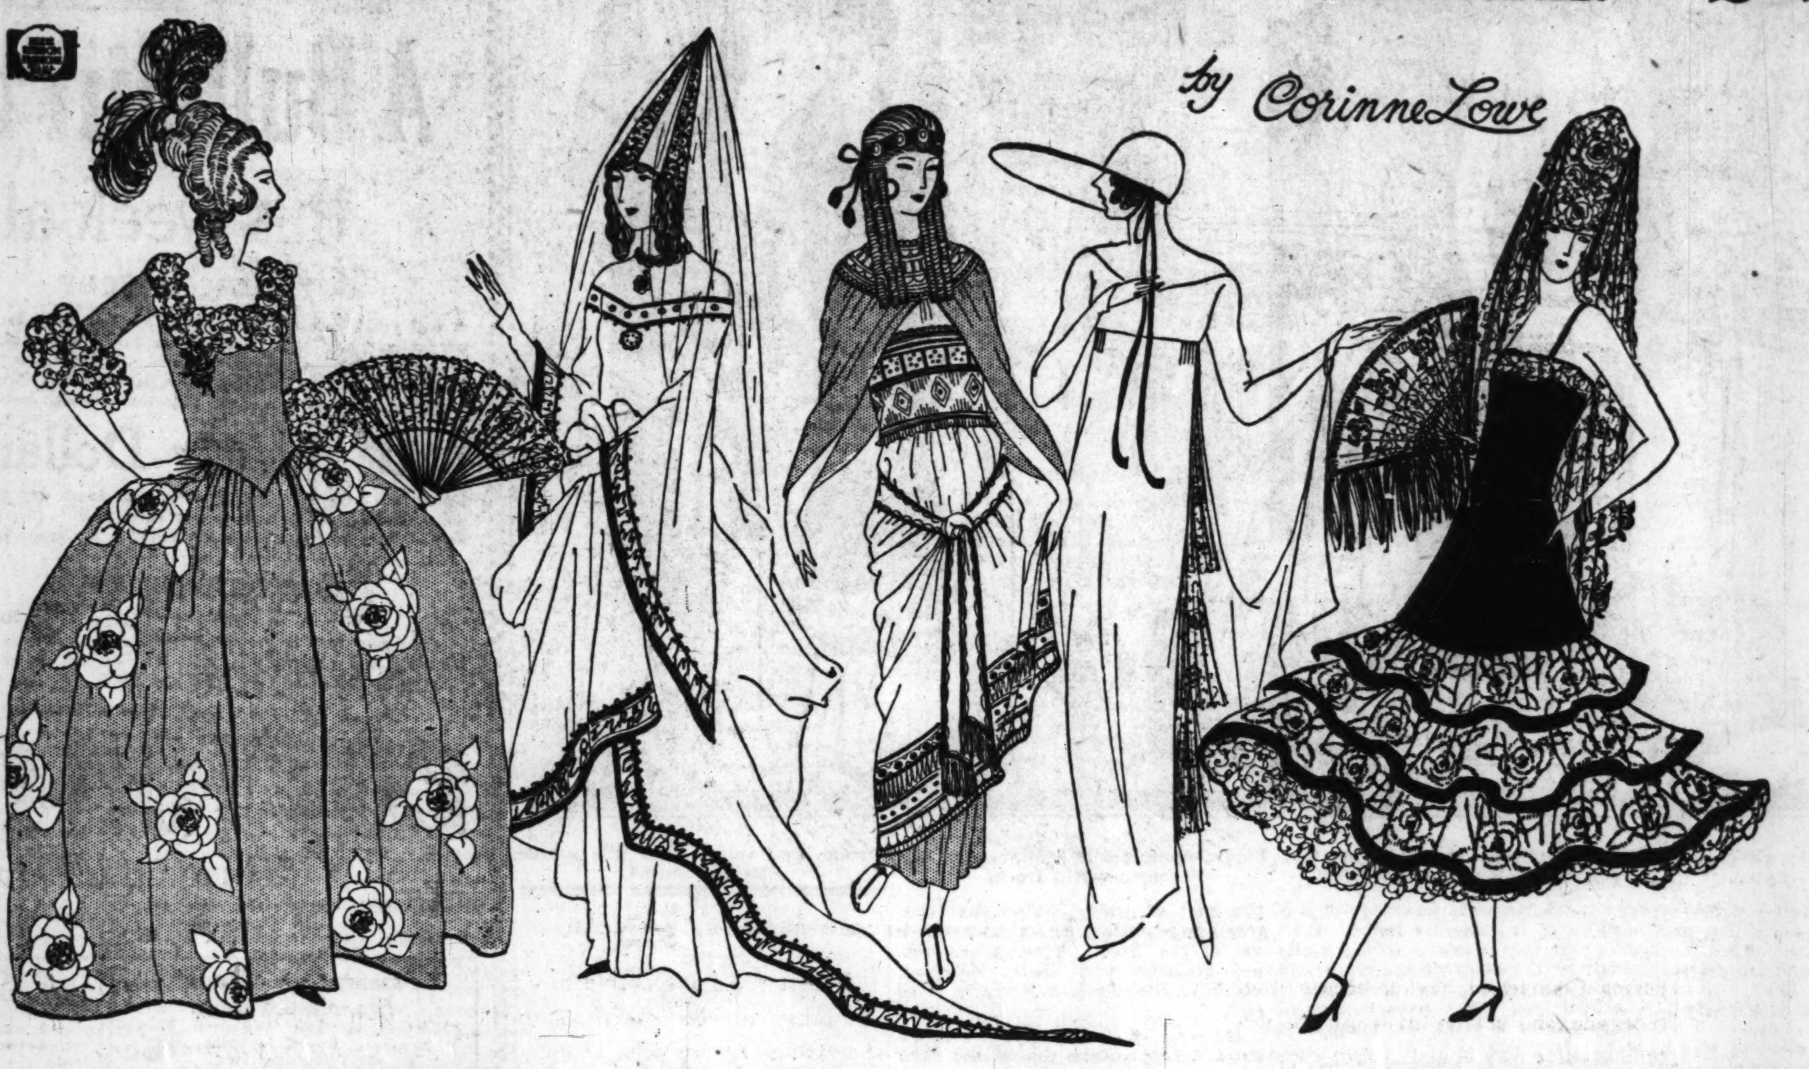
SUGGESTIONS FOR THE BAL MASQUE

by Corinne Lowe



NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence)—"What shall I go as?" In this season of the fancy dress ball, that question is racking many intellects that have satisfactorily disposed of such comparatively simple problems as—the umlones of a fish, Norse word for Brownie, obsolete word for scold, cloth used by the Ionians, and all those other synonyms contained in the cross word puzzle.

Each succeeding year the question of a masquerade costume becomes more vital, for each succeeding year the fancy dress ball assumes a more important position in the round of both winter and summer festivities.

Confronted always, on land and on sea, at home or abroad, by the necessity of appearing in disguise, most people today include at least one masquerade costume in their wardrobe.

We are showing today five costumes that may prove helpful to her who is on the brink of "going as" some one. These are designed for various types of women. In this latter statement there is a note of warning, for by some irresistible impulse many of us choose a masquerade in direct ratio to its unfitness. We who have retrousse noses and a suite of features that might have been lifted from a Holbein portrait, elect the flowing classic garments worn by the straight nosed Greek type; we of flaxen locks and blue eyes charge upon the party in the mantilla and swirling skirts of Carmen; and with equal hardihood we of the flashing eyes, of Semiramis essay the garments of Faust's meek Marguerite.

To regard your masquerade togs as your antagonist instead of your accomplice is, of course, the height of folly. Before investing time and money in a costume which you expect will serve you for perhaps several years, you should study your own features and physique as dispassionately as you would those of your neighbor. If you have irregular features, don't deny it and don't think you will hide the fact by wearing a Greek peplum. By doing that, you will only accentuate the contrast between garb and wearer. On the other hand, by deciding just what type of irregularity your face represents—whether it is that of Madam Butterfly or piquant Columbine, whether its merriness would justify Puck's tights and peaked cap, or whether its gravity would fit well with the costume of a Leonardo da Vinci, whether it is the modeling immortalized by Holbein or that painted for us by Velasquez—yes, by carefully weighing these points any one can achieve a thoroughly successful garb.

Perhaps, indeed, we owe the popularity of the Bal Masque to this one glorious possibility. Here we have a chance to realize our own type in a way which modern, every day dress does not often permit. Certainly it is a fact that many women who are considered almost plain in their usual attire often outshine at the masquerade ball the accepted beauty.

I recall, for example, one woman who attended a masquerade dressed as a Velasquez infanta. No one had ever realized until that evening, when she was transformed by the coiffure and the brocaded petticoats of the great Spanish artist, what a wonderful pictorial quality her face had. Ordinarily, you see, she was simply snuffed out by the chic hats and gowns of our period. Thus it goes. Many a mute, inglorious Mona Lisa gets her real chance at the Bal Masque.

Now to be concrete. At the left you will find a costume borrowed from the eighteenth century. There are many delightful suggestions from this period and, though all stress the fitted bodice and bouffante skirt, there are many such inflections as the panniers of the Watteau shepherdess. Indeed, if you belong to the group that can qualify for this kind of costume, you can do nothing better than to refer to prints of Watteau's pictures. As to those who can best wear the Louis Quinze or Seize costume, they are the girls with delicate, finely cut features. If the nose is slightly aquiline, so much the better, for it will be remembered that many of the best people of that time wore that kind of nose. They are also the girls with slender figures of medium—or even less than medium—height.

This model at the left is a charming example of that picturesque period, and, although the initial outlay of money required is not inconsiderable, that outlay provides for years of service. The materials employed are silver cloth and a brocade of silver and rose. The former, which is seen in the bodice and in the front panel of the skirt, is shot through with rose, so that it provides a contrast with the pure silver lace touching off the square neck line and the short sleeves. The coiffure is a powdered wig crested with the characteristic ostrich plumes of the period, and, true to type, the fan carried is of the dainty Watteau type.

This frock does not present to the home dressmaker nearly so many difficulties as do many of the fancy dress costumes. The same may be said of the Directoire frock sketched second from the right. Indeed, most of the empire and Directoire models are comparatively simple to make. They have, too, other recommendations. To be shunned by the tall woman because of their effect of added height, they are—with their short waisted line—eminently becoming to the petite or the medium sized. Also, they do not make any exacting demand upon the wearer in the way of feature or coloring. Be thou blonde or brunette, piquant or classical, the short waisted gown is apt to become. Also, there never was a more charming frame for the face than the poke bonnet worn during these periods.

Our model is transcribed from that which Pavlowa wears when dancing the famous gavotte. Made of yellow satin, it is slit at the side in the exact fashion of the Merveilleuse, and this incision reveals flounces of deep cream lace forming the under gown. The lace is given still wider publicity by the fact that the rear section of satin is attached to the arm by a bracelet. A poke of matching satin ties at the side with narrow streamers of black velvet ribbon. For the girl with red hair, this costume should be transposed into green, and many a blonde would succeed better with blue as the color motif

To those looking for a range of selection among the high waisted types of costume, one could do no better than to recommend the drawings of Kate Greenaway. The Englishwoman's books are full of suggestions as to both color and line of that delightful period before the era of the fitted bodice and full skirt.

The Egyptian costume is one which is often chosen and not always, alas, successfully. It is for the brunette, but for the exotic type of brunette. Although much can be done here in the way of makeup, the woman with a rather long slender face, long straight nose, and eyes that are set in a trifle obliquely, gives a much more convincing presentment of Aida than any other type.

Some of the Egyptian costumes are so elaborate that they defy home construction. Here, however, in the center of the page we present a model that should be comparatively easy to copy. It is made of dull green silk embroidered in gold, terra cotta, black, and pomegranate red, and the characteristic girdle is embroidered with black set off by touches of gold thread and fringed with the metal. This green garment falls over an under skirt of pomegranate red crepe to match a shoulder cape yoked with gold embroidery and drawn up in the back so as to form sleeves.

There is a variety of Spanish costumes from which to choose, and they range from the stiff skirts and fitted bodices of Velasquez portraits to the dancing costume which we illustrate at the extreme right. This is an exceedingly effective creation of red velvet comprehending the skirt, which, fitted closely over the hips and developed into a wide flare at the hem, has been such an active influence in our present silhouette. The ruffles are of yellow printed silk and the mantilla of gold lace. A petticoat of white lace is revealed under the skirt.

There is, of course, an inexhaustible fund of historical and national costumes upon which to draw. Operas and plays often suggest appropriate parts. Thus for the saucy boyish type, what could be more attractive than that worn by Viola in "Twelfth Night"—the plaited kilt, velvet jacket and sash, in which so many of us remember Miss Julia Marlowe as her most charming self?

Second from the left we commemorate one of the most picturesque ages of women's dress. Especially arresting is that steeplelike hat composed of alternating bands of gold and black embroidery and burnt orange velvet. This hat, draped with fine gauzy gold, comes straight to us from the medieval times, which suggested also the accompanying dress of burnt orange velvet, also embroidered in black and gold. This dress is made with a fitted basque and the skirt is wide at the sides. One may hold up these surplus folds, but usually they are looped with a chain.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

SCALED TO SUIT THE INDIVIDUAL.

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Scale: To make or pattern in regularly graded proportions; hence, to judge proportionately.

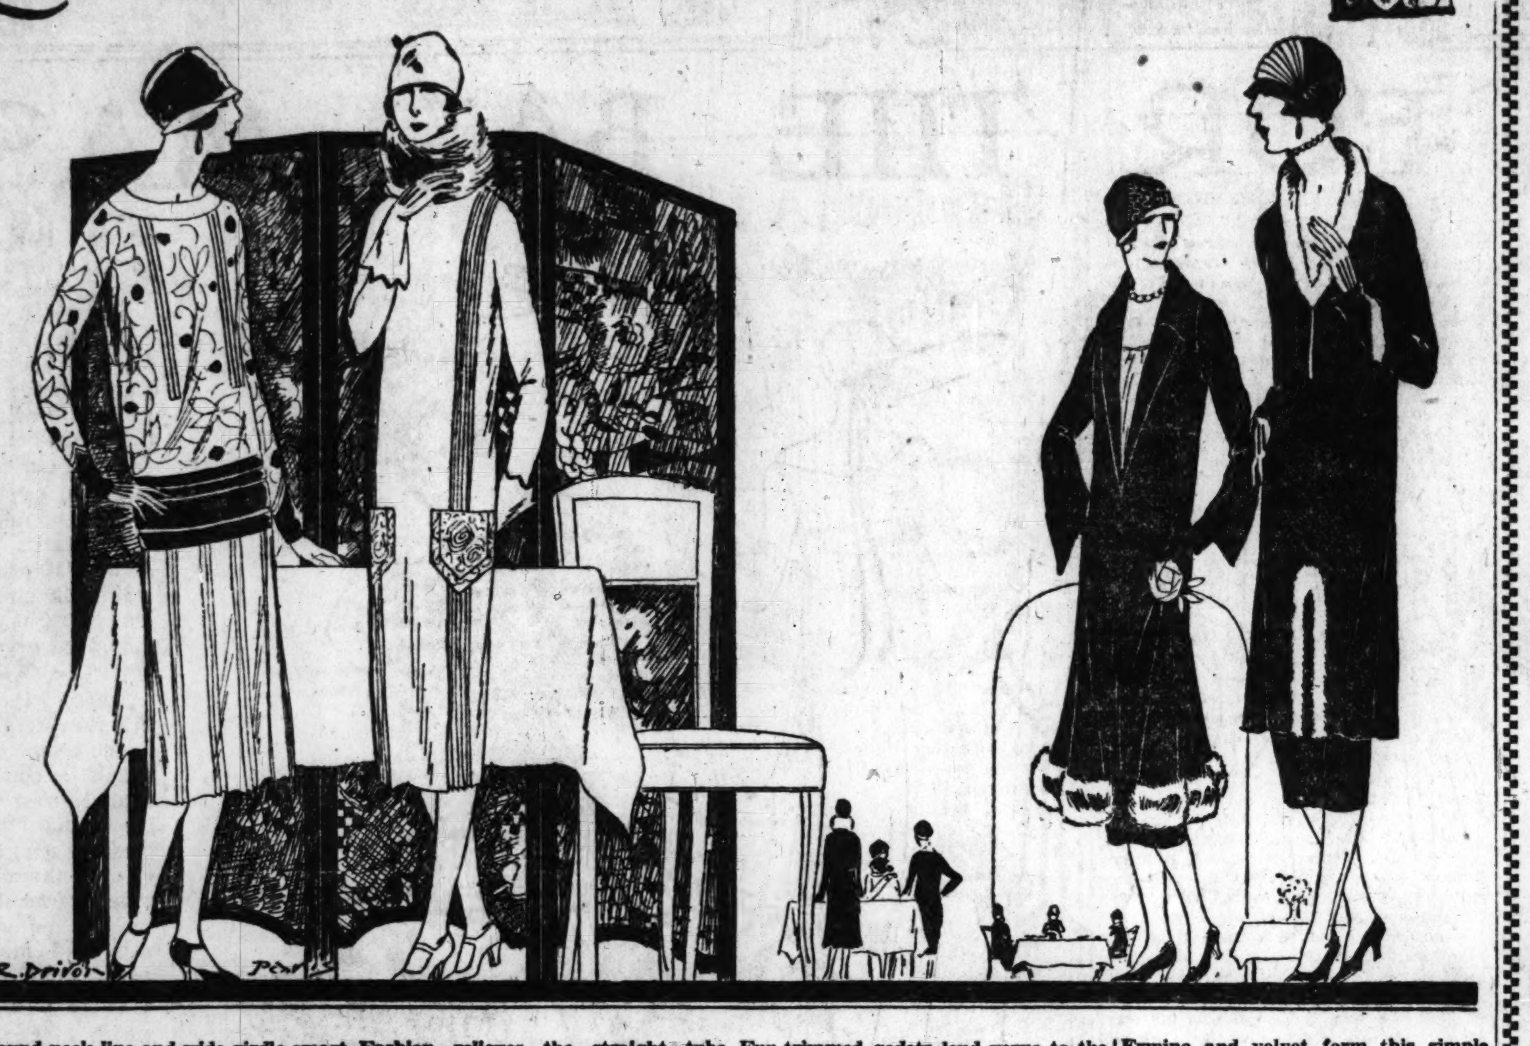
That definition might have been written for modern fashions. The whole secret of the great fashion creators, who make today's modes, lies in that one word: proportionate. And it is also the password of the well dressed.

Take, for example, any of the big four lines of fashion—the neck line, waist line, hip line, or hem line—and you will find they are operated in good styles on a sliding scale to suit the individual. The waist line slips practically all over the map of the gown, according to the needs of its wearer. They are letting us put it directly under the armpits, à la empire, if we are young and slender enough to get away with it gracefully; or, on the other hand, it can, with the penultimate of chic, fall below the hips. In fact, waist and hip lines are scarcely distinguishable on the majority of smart frocks. Sometimes they merge; often they disappear altogether. It depends entirely on your proportions. Your waist line can be a mere line of stitching, or it can be accentuated to the greatest prominence by a six inch ornamental belt. Both are smart.

The same proportional liberty is allowed the hem line. We say skirts are short. That's just a generalization, and as such is true; but short may mean anywhere from just below the knees to the young and slender, to the ankles for the massive and mature. The hem line may waver up and down in a seemingly drunken course, as it is doing on some new advance spring models, and it may maintain itself on two distinct planes, by means of a short slip and transparent overdress. It can be made irregular by means of tunics and panels. All these lines are legitimate features of fashion.

The proportional license of the neck line is no less great. It may be round, bateau, V, square, high, or different from the known and standard brands. Its only curb is that it must be appropriate to the woman who wears it, to the gown on which it is worn, and to the time of day or night.

Our first offering shows some applications of the scaling process to a gown for the tall, youthful figure. This model was designed by Worth and first worn by Mme. Charlotte Lyses. The first and most general proportioning is done in the division of the waist and skirt, by means of differing motifs. The gown is a dance frock of framboise crêpe georgette—a warm, pale raspberry shade—and the bodice is embroidered in silver with applique of velvet, in the same tone. The skirt is plain georgette, plaited in lengthening clusters of small plaits, so that the width of the shoulders and torso are exploited and the lines below are slenderized.



Round neck line and wide girdle smart for the youthful figure.

Fashion relieves the straight tube frock with plaits and embroidery.

Fur trimmed godets lend verve to the simple velvet frock.

Ermine and velvet form this simple afternoon model.

There is a series of velvet girdles of varying width, placed on, above, and just below the hip line. This is a daring but O so becoming accentuation of that particular line. The soft fullness of the embroidered blouse is restrained by the tight sleeves, with their fitted cuffs of framboise velvet. In the round neck, with its small yoke of georgette, you have a perfect line for the slender but rounded throat, which deserves this enhancement that does not interfere with or hide its beautiful symmetry. Those narrow pipings of velvet that march down the side front of the waist are the clever finishing lines of perfect proportion.

The second model is another thing altogether, created for a different set of angles and curves. At first glance it looks like one of those straight tube dresses you have seen so often this season, but the first glance is, in this case, deceptive. In the subtlety of this deception lies an extraordinary amount of distinction, which reveals the genius of Callot. First of all, there is the color, the soft horizon blue of the French army uniform, and one of the new season's smartest shades for the southern resort. Next comes the fullness that adapts the gown to the proportions of the angular figure. It is placed in four clusters of flat plaits placed at the sides of the front and back and extending from shoulders to the hem line. They have facings of yellow crêpes de chine that make lines of the plait edges.

The fullness is properly curbed at the hips by two huge patch pockets and a line girdle in back. These pockets are embroidered in an exquisite design done in red and yellow. That's all there is to the front, except for the choker collar of natural fox. It made a stunning ensemble when worn by Mlle. Germaine Baron at the Theater Marigny, with plain strap slippers of suede and a small beige hat trimmed by an ornamental pin. Everything is in perfect harmony, with just enough of each color for the best proportion.

That carries us on to another set of lines and arrangement thereof. Concentration of interest in this frock is placed at the neck line and at the hem. That's a way of giving vim, verve, and vivacity to a figure which has no particularly attractive curves. The deep V of the neck is accentuated by revers and a rolling collar, and softened by the gilet of white chiffon that contrasts so agreeably with the black velvet of the frock. The sleeves, too, are gracious with their looseness, which terminates in a perfectly fitted cuff.

However, it is the tunic, with its extra flaring godets, that is the chief distinction and that lends so much verve to the model. Terminating about four inches above the hem line, this tunic is edged by wide bands of the new imitation chinchilla, a fur which is overwhelmingly popular in Paris this winter. It is an almost perfect counterpart of the real and priceless chinchilla, wears much better, and is seen on the smartest toilettes. This fur, by way of forecast, is being used on a great many spring toilettes which couturiers are fashioning at present.

The French make use of many inexpensive and often ratty looking furs which Americans, who are trained to demand the best of everything, scorn. However, in the near chinchilla they have succeeded in getting something which looks both elegant and expensive, and our American women are taking to it with enthusiasm.

Of course, there are many old fashioned folks who demand the real in whatever fur they choose, and for them there are many models trimmed less sumptuously, but with the genuine pelts of such furs as sable, chinchilla, and ermine. Such trimming is used on our fourth model, with its narrow collar and trimming of the rarest ermine. Martial and Armand have contrasted the ermine with violine velvet, in fine proportion.

This gown is cut with the straight tunic, of classic simplicity, so that the rich color and pile of the velvet are best displayed. For the tall, massive women the unbroken lines of this model are particularly suitable. The long, rather loose sleeve with its band of ermine is a becoming cut for the arm that is a bit heavy and awkward.

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

> What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily [illegible]

MARY M.: YES, YOU MAY USE vanishing cream before the powder with perfect safety. It would be well for you to cultivate the habit of greasing your skin well every night with a cream with oils in it. Your skin is dry, and the drier the skin the more it needs to be fed this way.

JULIA: INGROWN TOENAILS are the result of ill fitting shoes. It is not a peculiarity of the toenail itself. If the shoes are too narrow or too short the toenails are caused to run diagonally on the toes instead of parallel. The shoe pushes the front end of the nail around and causes the opposite corner to dig into the flesh.

KITTIE: YES, SKIN MAY BE grafted from one person to another, but such a graft is not so likely to give the satisfaction as skin taken from the injured person herself, and it is well to take the skin from the nearest point possible, where the grafting is to be done on the face, on account of the difference in the color of the skin.

MARION R.: SWIMMING IS THE best exercise for development of the bust. You have to take deep breaths to keep afloat, and the muscular movements of the arms do just the work you want. If you haven't access to a pool and do not wish to connect up with one, send for some exercises which you may do at home. A stamped, addressed envelope is all that is necessary.

◆

AGNES: NAILS THAT HAVE been bitten or chewed are unsightly. Dipping the finger tips in aloes has helped many people in breaking themselves of this habit. The following is an excellent nail varnish for nail biters: Alcohol, 1¼ ounces; chinoidin, ¾ ounce; gum mastic, ¼ ounce; gum myrrh, 1⅓ ounces. Mix and let stand for 48 hours, frequently shaking the bottle. Apply with a camel's hair brush. It can be removed with alcohol or hot water.

M. E. M.: BRAN HAS BEEN found helpful in the treatment of constipation. It may be taken with cream and sugar, with your cereal, with soup, or by itself. If moistened it may be swallowed readily; however, it is best taken with other foods. A tablespoonful three times a day is not too much. Bran will not cure constipation but is effective as long as it is taken.

◆

PATRICIA: A GIRL 4 FEET 11, age 18, should weigh 109 pounds to conform to the standard chart and measurements. You can tell from this whether you are underweight or overweight. If you wish my booklet of instructions on how to reduce or how to gain weight, send along a stamped, addressed envelope, designating which you wish.

BLONDY: DISSOLVE A TEAspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a glass of warm water, and apply with a bit of absorbent cotton dipped in the solution. It will dissolve the scales on the eyelids. This is not a cure

MARGARET: WHEN YOUR EYES are unusually tired use the following eyewash: Boric acid, 1 per cent; sodium bicarbonate, one gram; water camphor, sixty drops; distilled water, three ounces. Apply with an eyecup. A simpler eyewash which is good is boiled water to which a little salt has been added—just enough salt to make the water taste salty, like tears, the natural eyewash.

FRANCES F.—TO BLEACH THE elbows use undiluted peroxide of hydrogen, but if you find this too strong dilute it with water, half and half. Apply and leave on to dry. Massaging with cold cream is also beneficial, as it keeps the skin from wrinkling and removes the grime and dirt.

◆

R. R.: IT IS NO TROUBLE WHATever. I am always glad to give you the information you wish. Pimples are invariably the result of allowing blackheads to remain until they fester. Remove the surplus dirt and grime with a good cold cream, massaging for a moment, which softens the hardened substances so that they may be removed easily. After removing the cream, wash the face with a good pure soap, scrubbing it with a soft brush, particularly around the nose and mouth and forehead, where the blackheads are most liable to be. Rinse with warm and then cold water—following with an ice rub. Squeeze out the blackheads before the cold water rinse. I should be glad to send you my booklet, the care of the complexion, if you will send a stamped, addressed envelope.

PAULA L.: THE FORMULA FOR the cleansing cream is as follows: Two ounces oil of sweet almonds; one-half ounce spermaceti; one-half ounce white wax; one-half ounce rosewater; twenty grains powdered borax; oil of rose, four drops. Melt spermaceti and white wax together at a moderate heat, add the oil of sweet almonds, stirring in thoroughly. Dissolve borax and rosewater and add to mixture slowly. Beat briskly and thoroughly until cold. Add four drops of oil of rose. The odor of the rosewater evaporates in the beating; therefore the need of the oil of rose.

X. Y. Z.: THE TROUBLE IS, YOU are not getting sufficient fresh air and exercise. Make a practice of walking every day, starting out by walking two miles and increasing it to three or four miles a day. Be sure the bowels move regularly, and bathe daily. Drink plenty of water and eat fruits and fresh vegetables.

◆

JEAN M.: THE DARK CIRCLES under your eyes are matters calling for medical correction, unless they are due to lack of sleep. You do not say just how late you stay up those two or three nights, but if you are not in bed by 11 o'clock, that you may have eight hours' sleep every night, then you have the answer, haven't you?

Are you reducing?

Scientific reduction is not a matter of enforced perspiration. It is a matter of diet, exercise and massage. Corsets and reducing garments made with Kenlastic allow the body to breathe freely and evenly while, with every change in motion or posture, they gently massage the excess flesh away. VEGEX the delicious food—richest of known foods in Vitamin "B"

YOU know of course that growth and health depend on normal nutrition. But do you know how closely dependent normal nutrition is on the vitamin and food salts contained in the diet? If they are lacking (as is unfortunately true of many modern foods) conditions due to undernourishment must arise.

"While often referred to as growth promoting, it should be emphasized that Vitamin B is essential to normal nutrition at all ages." From "THE VITAMINS" by H. C. Sherman, Professor of Food Chemistry, Columbia University and S. L. Smith, Specialist in Biological and Food Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture. In VEGEX, made from grain grown yeast, you have the ideal means of adding Vitamin B to the diet and supplying other valuable food salts.

Improves the Flavor of Many Favorite Dishes

Serve VEGEX in many ways as directed in the Cook Book. Its rich meaty taste (though there is no meat in it) adds zest and satisfaction to other dishes. Makes a delicious bouillon and most tasty spread for bread and crackers.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

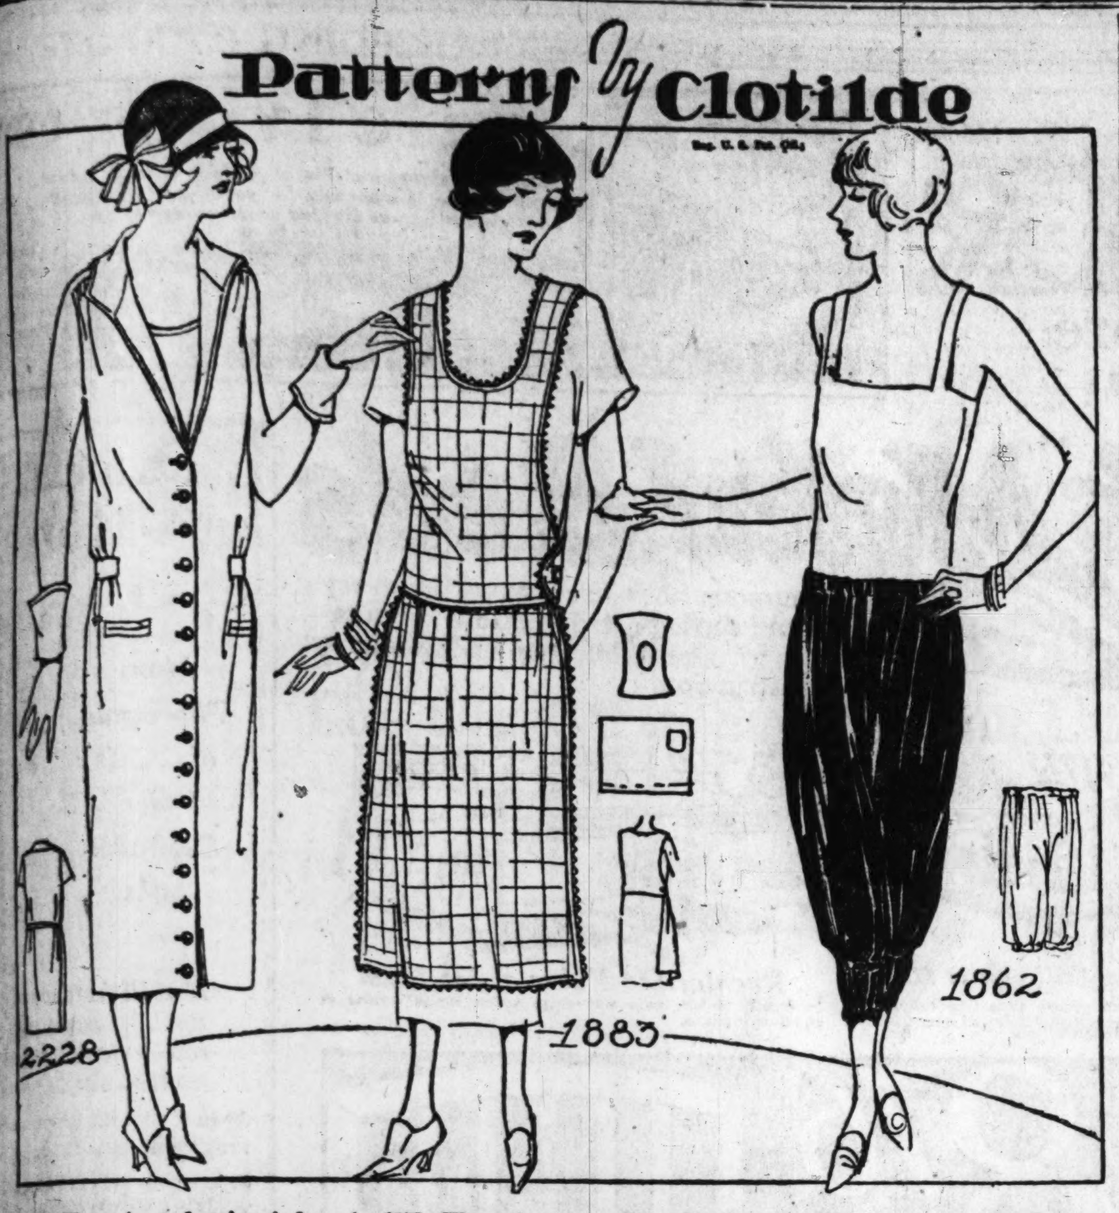
Patterns by Clotilde



2228—Women's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 42 inch material.

1883—Woman's apron. Sizes 36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 36 or 40 inch material.

1862—Women's and misses' bloomers. Sizes 16 years and 28, 32 and 36 inches waist measure. Size 28 requires 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

A RUST brown kasha would make up smartly by pattern No. 2228, and one nice feature of this design is that it is not difficult to use. There are front and back pieces, extending from neck to hem, full length sleeves, finished with deep turned back cuffs, a convertible collar, inset vest or shield, and belt extending across the sides and back.

There is slight fullness on the fronts at the shoulders—a becoming feature alike to slender and full figures—and the slight fullness on the sides at a low waist line is perfectly held in place by the belt. The front is made to button the entire length from where the dress is open at the top, and there are inset pockets—altogether a dress that is strictly up to date.

Black silk braid will be just the thing to bind the cuffs, pocket openings, top of vest, collar, and front opening. If you have a binder among your machine attachments, you will have no trouble in stitching on the braid, but if you haven't, the braid should be folded together so that the edges exactly meet, and pressed so that the crease is well put in. Then baste it on carefully, watching every stitch to see that the edge of the material is kept close to the crease of the braid. The stitching should be slowly done, else one is apt to run off sometimes, and that spoils the appearance of the work.

Satin crêpe would make up prettily by this design, and the short sleeves would look well. The reverse side of the crêpe should be used for the collar, front facing, cuffs, and vest.

It won't be a waste of time for many sewers to use a small piece of the material to practice on in making the buttonholes. Overcast the buttonholes first from the wrong side, and keep the stitches very short and evenly spaced. Then, turning the other side up, do the buttonholing from the right side. One thread of the material between each stitch will be right, and keep the stitches short.

The width at the bottom, for size 36, is about 1⅞ yards, so there is enough room to enable one to walk easily.

Pattern No. 1862 is an excellent pattern for knickerbockers or bloomers, and crêpe or silk jersey would be the best material. There are many ways to make the space between the shirrings at the bottom of the legs decorative—and one of these consists in stitching on baby ribbon of a contrasting color in parallel lines, V shaped or rounding.

Wash satin or light weight sateen may be used for the less expensive ones. Both seat and legs should be reinforced with shaped pieces of the material—which will add to the length of service.

Most women like pretty aprons and will undoubtedly be pleased with pattern No. 1883. The apron is cut in two pieces, the upper part being cut in one piece, slipping on over the head, and the lower corners at the back lapping over the front lower corners and buttoning there.

The skirt is in one piece, is straight, and is finished at the sides and across the bottom with hems.

The skirt would look well made of black sateen, and the upper part of chintz or some other gayly colored and patterned material.

The upper part should have the edges bound with a bias strip of the skirt material. If one prefers, the sides and bottom may be bound instead of hemmed.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

THAT WILL NOT DIE.

DEAREST: How many years have passed since I last called you that? Do you remember the time? We had met to say good by. We knew that after that our pathways must lie apart. It has been a long, lonely road for me. What has it been for you?

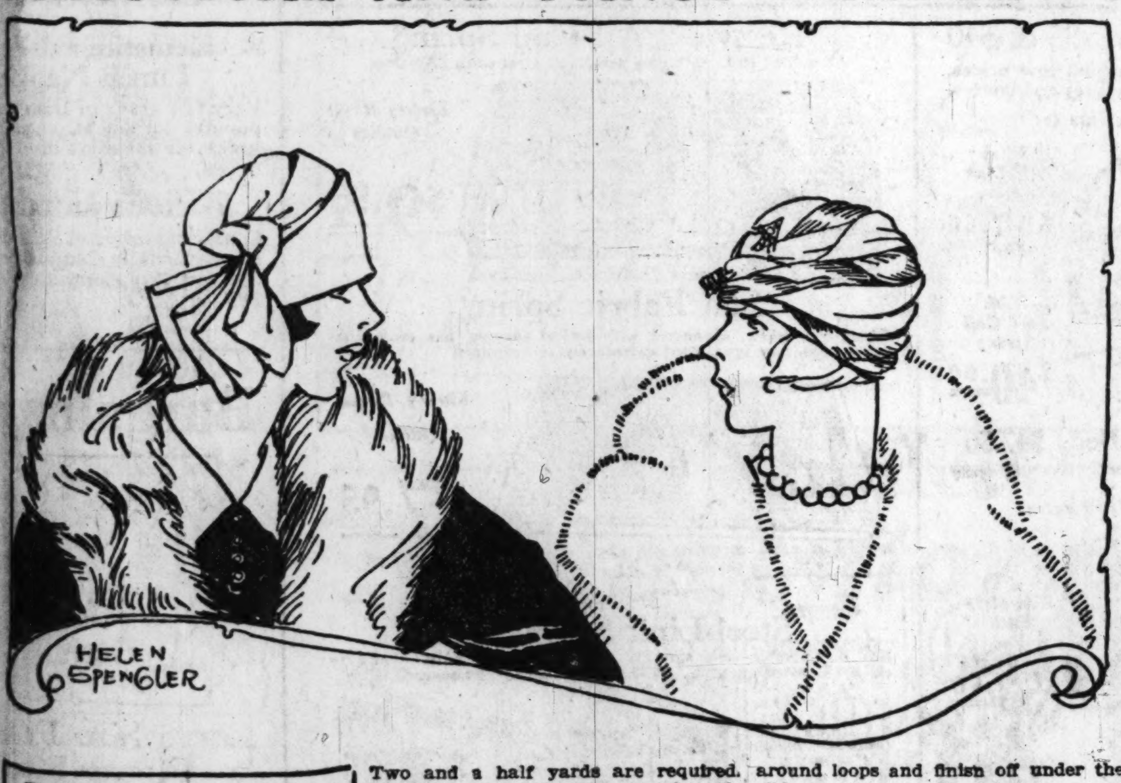
I see your picture quite often in print, and it brings back such a surge of memories that it seems I must choke, must lay my head on my arms and cry, because of the pity and the hopelessness of a love like ours that would come unbidden; in fact, that was not wanted, but that, once it came, was strong enough to endure through the years.

That we met and loved was not our fault. Surely it was but the working of the fate that ruthlessly deals with its puppets, carrying them to dizzy heights, only to dash them to the lowest depths. But out of those depths we gained the strength to be different from most. We had the strength to part before it was too late to save the honor we both value more than life itself, for there is no honor when one is married yet loves another and gives way to that love. But it is so hard to fight, sometimes I wonder is there any use? Is it worth while?

I cover this ache with a laugh that is light and gay. People wonder—they do not know that when I am alone I gain strength to go on because—well just because you are always in the heart of CLEE.

PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

TWO ATTRACTIVE HATS.

THE first hat shown is of black satin. A crown can be used to make the turban effect. It should measure 16 inches from front to back, 14 from side to side. It should be a trifle higher in front than back—8½ and 7½ inches respectively. Beginning back of the ears, slope gradually toward the back. Wire with frame wire, using a buttonhole stitch. When wiring this, pull the sides and edges of frame as flat as possible on wire but in the back hold in the frame snugly on wire. A snugly fitting hat is more comfortable with large fur collars than one not well fitting.

After wiring bind with bias tape. Then cover bottom part of frame up about 2 inches with light weight canton flannel. Use this on the bias also. Pull it around, join in back and pull in head size. Sew this firmly with no wrinkles.

Have ready one-half yard of satin. Cut from corner to corner on the bias. Take 4½ or 5 inches of this bias, put on bottom of frame the same as flannel. Fit it around at the back allowing ¼ inch for seam. Take off, join on bias, press seam, and set back on frame. Sew on outside of brim, then pin the head size. Sew firmly. Take the corner of one of the pieces, set on top of crown. This should measure at least 9 inches on straight of goods. It can be shorter on sides. Pin front to back and side to side. Pull the fullness down on corners where the bias comes. First pin, then sew firmly with No. 40 thread. Cut this off evenly all the way round.

The trimming ribbon is double faced satin or satin with moire on one side. Two and a half yards are required. Cut ¾ of a yard, start at right side back, bring around to where begun, and sew firmly. With the remainder of the ribbon make four loops 9 inches long. This leaves an end ¾ of a yard in length. Sew loops firmly on joining of ribbon, take end of ribbon, bring around again but up a little higher on crown, bring back to loops again, twist around loops and finish off under the ribbon on bottom of crown.

Brown and black satin with the same color of ribbon can be used, also colored failles, canton, and georgette crepes with ribbon trimming.

The second hat illustrated is a draped turban used for more formal occasions and is called the semi-dress turban. It may be worn with afternoon or street costumes. Any crown or turban can be used for this. Silver and blue metal cloth and periwinkle blue maline, or tulle, are used here. Three-quarters of a yard of metal cloth and a yard and a quarter of maline are required. Cover frame as for hat No. 1. Get a bias in the same way but make the strip ⅜ of a yard wide, that is 13½ inches on selvedge. Cover top crown, bring down goods on top of crown at least 10 inches all around. Use a bias piece to cover bottom of brim. Take maline and bias silver cloth. Start at back, sew the silver cloth first, then a few inches from that start the maline. Bring both around loosely over and under until around to back again. Finish off maline where silver cloth started, then bring silver cloth over this joining. Finish off under one of the folds either of maline or cloth.

Any kind of metal cloth may be used. A brilliant pin gives a nice finish. Gold metal cloth may be used with brown maline, or the metal cloth with colored brocade will make up a pretty turban combined with solid colors.

Beauty
A Gleamy Mass of Hair

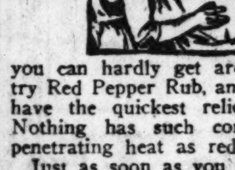
35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair-brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.



When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

Quick, Harmless Way to Remove Wrinkles

This season brings wrinkles to many sensitive skins that are much exposed to winds and changing temperatures. To make an effective wrinkle remover, mix an ounce of powdered Saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in the solution — immediately every wrinkle is affected. It acts wonderfully on sagging facial muscles, also, the lotion possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties. Use it once a day for a while and see how it will improve your facial contour.

This simple lotion cannot harm the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance. But be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered Saxolite.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of the CHILDREN

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Bobbie is fond of brother Jackie and is exceptionally good about watching him to see that he does not get hurt or run away.

The other day Aunt Mary stopped in a moment on her way to the home of the children's grandmother and when she left she took Jackie with her. Bobbie played round a while and then was quiet so long that mother went to investigate, and found him sitting dejectedly with his elbows on his knees and his chin in his hands looking forlorn.

"Are you sick?" she asked.

"O, no," said Bobbie. "I am just thinking where my Jackie has went, 'cause maybe Aunt Mary has losted him." E. M. L.

Don and mother went with grandmother to a neighboring town, where grandfather was to preach. After the services a stranger kindly invited them to dine with her at the inn. They accepted, and were just finishing dinner when the hostess turned to Don, and asked if he had had all he wanted.

"No," was the prompt reply. And when questioned further, announced he wished a pot of ale.

His amazed mother asked what he meant, well knowing the child did not know what ale meant.

"Isn't this an inn?" asked the child. And when mother said it was, he replied, "Well, when Robin Hood's men went to an inn they always asked for a pot of ale."

F. G.

Dorothy had been obstreperous and her mother, seeking to conquer the child, thought she was subdued. When father returned from the office mother said, "Daddy, your little girl had a dreadful tantrum today."

"Yes, and daddy," interposed the tot, "Muvver had a tanturm wif me."

M. M. R.

Maurice was allowed to play with Robert, who had been ill for some time, and stayed longer than he should have. When he returned home mother scolded him for staying so long.

"O, mother, I did not play with Robert for so long I did not have the heart to leave him," he explained.

H. M. H.

As is usual at Christmas time our son made gifts in school for the various members of the family. He zealously guarded his secrets but had the usual childish wish to say just a little something about them.

On the day before Christmas he called his daddy aside and said, "Daddy, when I give you your present I will show you where to strike the matches." A. S. F.

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy.

ISN'T it odd that the sea gull should work out for itself a scheme for opening the shell of a clam that it may get at the meat of this mollusk for its breakfast!

Here is the way the situation develops. The sea gull is hungry, and finds this lusty bivalve there on the beach. The clam, living in the sand on the beach, is wise in its way, and keeps its shell so firmly closed that its enemies cannot get inside to despoil it, have struck back at the shore birds that seek to prey upon them. Many of these mollusks attach themselves to rocks instead of merely living in the sand. All of them must open their shells more or less and let the water run between. That is the way they get their food from it.

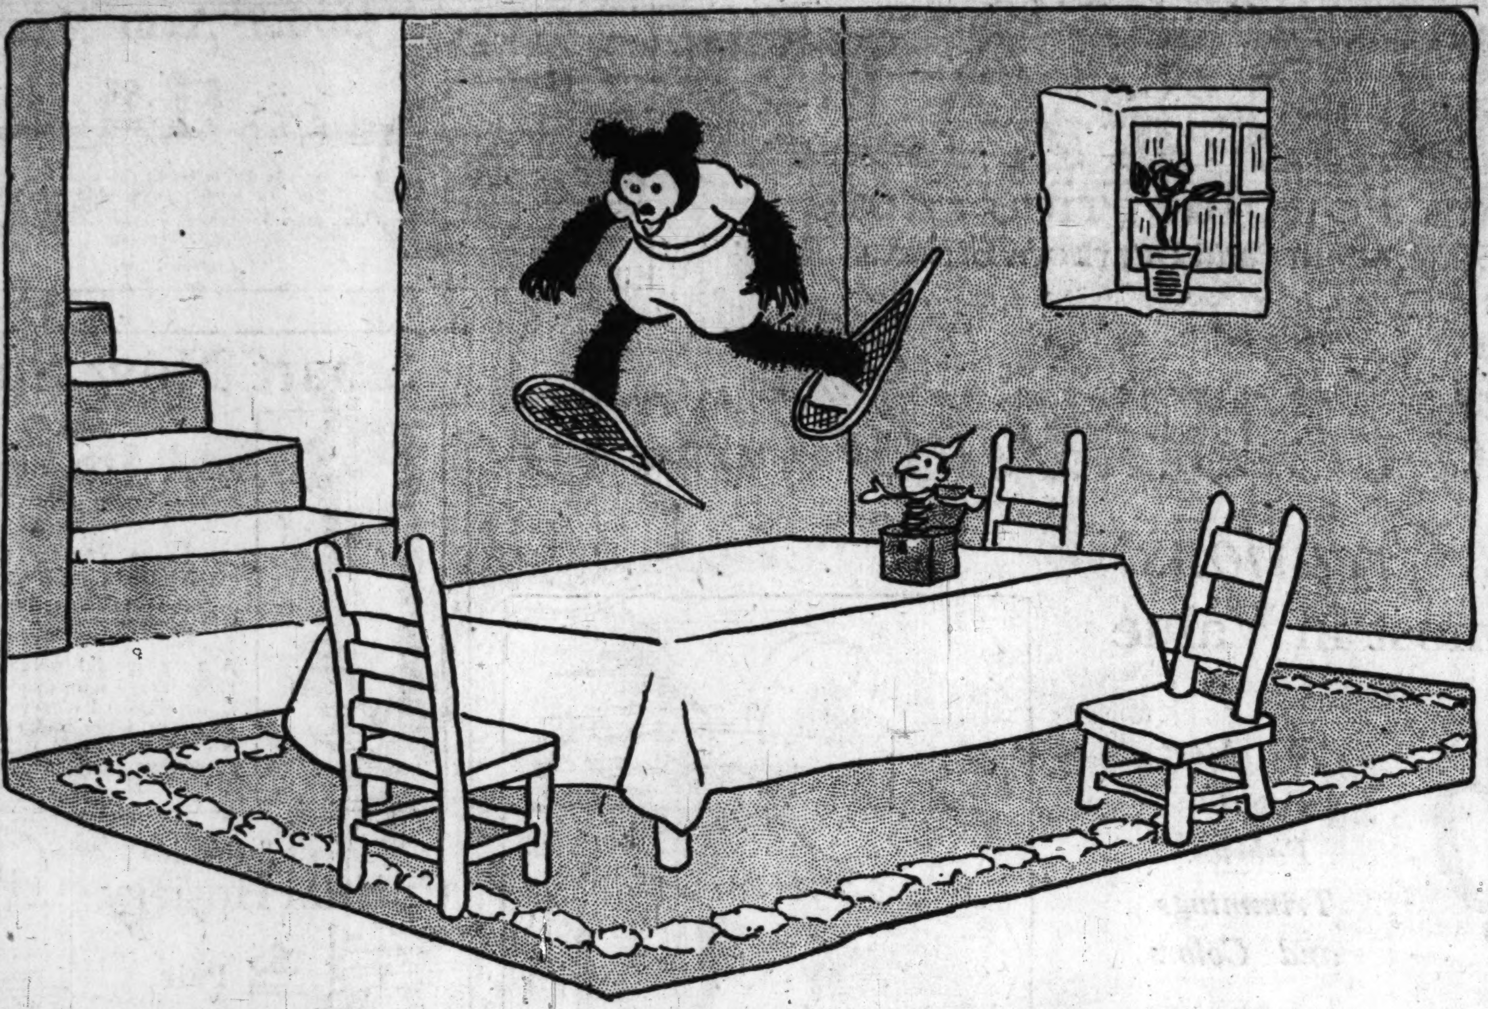
It is when the bivalve has opened the door for its breakfast that the shore bird may reach in and gobble it up.

It happens now and then that one of these mussels, securely attached to a rock, snaps its shells together just as some impudent gull is reaching in for a mouthful. It catches the gull's bill and holds it captive until the tide comes in and drowns it.

The wise gull, however, finds a clam in the sand which is not attached to a rock, gathers this clam into its beak, and flies into the air. It circles over a boulder strewn bit of the beach. It may fly fifty feet into the air and drop this clam shell among the rocks.

If it strikes just right, it will break; otherwise not. When it bursts open, the wise gull has one clam toward its breakfast. If it does not burst, this gull will pick it up, fly into the air again, higher this time, and drop it once more. He will repeat this process, going always higher until finally the compact of shell on rock is sufficient and it bursts open. Thus does the gull use a rare intelligence in obtaining its food.

THE ADVENTURES OF FUZZY WUZZY



THE MAGIC SNOWSHOES.

By Raymond Kelly

MOTHER BEAR was putting lace curtains on the stretcher. Father Bear was taking a nap, with the cat curled up beside him to purr while he snored, and Fuzzy Wuzzy was sitting beside the dining den table. It was a nice table, too, with a red oilcloth that was much better than a thread one, because when you shoved the salt-shaker it went where you wanted it to go, instead of just turning over.

On the table before Fuzzy stood the Jack-in-the-Box he'd received for Christmas, and Fuzzy was resting his head on his paws while he talked to it.

"Do you know what I think, old Jack-in-the-Box?" asked Fuzzy Wuzzy, and, despite the fact that he'd been made in a factory and guaranteed only to squeak, that Jack-in-the-Box answered Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"No, little bear," said he. "What do you think?"

"I think you're the nicest and ugliest old Jack-in-the-Box there ever was."

"O, thank you, Fuzzy Wuzzy," said Jack-in-the-Box. "I'm ugly enough for a sixty-nine cent one, but the dollar Jack-in-the-Boxes are far, far better. But it's sweet of you to compliment me on my ugliness, because it proves you like me. When people like me, I reward them. What do you wish?"

"It would scarcely be proper for me to ask for more toys," replied Fuzzy Wuzzy. "It's only a little while since Christmas, and lots of those I got then aren't broken yet. I would like to learn a new game, though."

"Very well, then. I have one for you. First, however, you must put on your father's snowshoes. You'll find that good fun, I'm sure."

So Fuzzy Wuzzy tied the snowshoes on his feet and, strange to say, they fitted perfectly, instead of wabbling around as they'd always done before.

"Now," said Jack-in-the-Box, "take a deep breath and slowly raise your paws above your head."

And Fuzzy Wuzzy did as he was told. Then he laughed with delight, for, as he raised his paws, he left the floor and found that he could float about the den wherever he wished to go and without bumping into anything.

"My, I must look queer," thought he, stopping before the big mirror. "No," he corrected himself, "I don't look queer, because I cannot see myself in the mirror. I must not be here at all."

"O, you're here all right," said Jack in-the Box, "but you are invisible. Those are magic snowshoes, and you cannot be seen or heard or felt. Fold your paws now, and settle to the floor."

So again Fuzzy did as he was told.

"Now," said Jack-in-the-Box, "glide across the floor until the wall stops you."

But when Fuzzy Wuzzy came to the wall it didn't stop him at all. He glided through it as though it weren't there, which was great fun, and he did it again and again. Then he jumped right through the lace curtains his mother was stretching, and they didn't break, though Mother Bear remarked that the den was drafty and ought to have weather strips before another winter came around.

"Take me with you this time," said Jack-in-the-Box then, "and we'll go tree skating."

So Fuzzy Wuzzy picked him up and again skipped through the wall into out-of-doors. Then, with Jack-in the-Box perched upon his shoulder, he lifted his paws and rose up, up, up until he was level with the tree tops. That was real skating, skimming the tops of the tall trees, gliding down to the lower ones, and chasing the moonbeams from pine tip to pine tip. Once they met two frolicsome young owls and played tag with them for an hour, without the owls knowing that they were in the game at all.

Best of all, Fuzzy Wuzzy floated, first into Hawk Feather's tepee, and then into the playroom at the home of Betsy Ann and Bobby. He'd have liked to take off the snowshoes and let the children see him, but Jack-in-the-Box whispered that there wasn't time, for they must be getting back to the den.

And, sure enough, Fuzzy had scarcely got the magic snowshoes back into the corner where they belonged when Mother Bear called him to help set the table for supper, which was a little later than usual, because it's a slow job stretching curtains, as your own mother will tell you.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Misunderstood.

It was circus day and parade hour in a small country town when I, a budding young lawyer, started to a store on a crowded corner of the public square.

A gaunt, weazen faced woman with a lone front tooth protruding stood on the doorstep whirling a little purse. It slipped from her finger and fell to the sidewalk just as I was about to enter the store. I stooped to pick it up, when to my utter amazement, surprise, and chagrin her foot came down on my hand the instant it reached the purse.

"Well, I guess not!" she shouted, with a triumphant grin.

Imagine my embarrassment as the surrounding crowd jeered while she stood firmly on my imprisoned hand. I broke away before an officer could be summoned and resolved never again to be gallant on circus day.

S. C. M.

In Excess of Duty.

I was employed as doorman for a large furniture store. The president's wife made it a point to be friendly to all of the employés.

Each evening as she drove up to call for her husband, I would gallantly assist her from the machine and carry her bundles into the store. One day I happened to look out and see her car parked at the curb. I walked up to it, but it was vacant. On the back seat was a long, blue package. I decided to take care of it. I took it into the store and went about my usual duties. About five minutes later I walked back to the door and discovered the machine had disappeared. When the woman in question finally put in her appearance, I learned she hadn't been near the store all day.

This to me was a most embarrassing moment to know I had taken the package from an unknown car. Strange to say, it contained new collars [just my size], and an expensive tie, but no identification slip. As I recall this happening, I still blush with embarrassment. R. B.

Turkey Hash Everywhere.

It was the Sunday following Thanksgiving. We were invited to a friend's house for dinner.

Just as we were sitting down to the table, I remarked, "I sure am glad to be invited out today, for I would have to eat turkey hash at home."

Just then my eyes fell upon a large platter of turkey hash. I had to choke down a double portion to redeem myself. P. J.

Time to Go.

I was attending a high school party. We had been playing "Spin the Platter" nearly all the evening, and the time had come to redeem forfeits. To redeem one of my forfeits my escort and I were to count the stars.

We left the room and walked the length of a long porch in order to see the sky. We descended the steps, so absorbed in each other that we never noticed what was below us. We stepped off the bottom step into about two and a half inches of water. We were both much surprised, and you can imagine my embarrassment when we returned to the parlor and explained what we had done.

I was able to get my forfeit, but we had to go to the hostess and beg to be excused for the remainder of the evening while we went home and secured dry-clothing. L. H.

Losing 39 lbs. In 6 Weeks Was Easy

Had Mrs. Betty Clarkson been told that in less than 6 weeks she could lose 39 lbs., she would have smiled incredulously, and then pointed to her 162 pounds as a pretty good reason for her doubt. She had tried about everything. To stand just 5 ft. 2 in. and weigh 162 lbs. made Mrs. Clarkson, as she puts it, "the despair of friends and dressmakers." Her story is interesting, for there are thousands today who have the same problem she has so happily solved, and who now have the same opportunity for free proof.

"I was so fat that I hated to look in a mirror. I was the despair of friends and dressmakers. I tried about everything to lose weight, without success, when a friend urged me to try the Wallace records. I really did it to please her, and as she told me the first lesson was free, I figured I had nothing to lose. I sent for the lesson—it came, everything free. Imagine my joy when the scales showed me 4 lbs. lighter the first week. At an incredibly low price I got all the lessons, and in just 6 weeks I lost 39 lbs. to music, nothing else. Now I am slender, wear modish gowns, look and feel better than ever, and, Mr. Wallace, I owe it all to you. What I have done others can do, and the lessons aren't 'work,' they're 'just fun'."

Wallace's Free Offer

For those who doubt and wish to test at home, Wallace has set aside a thousand free lessons, records and all, which he will gladly mail for a free trial, if you will send name and address. There's nothing to pay—no postage—no deposit. He wants you to prove for yourself that you can reduce, just as Mrs. Clarkson and thousands of others have done.

Wallace, 630 S. Wabash Ave.,
Chicago, Ill., 533.

Please send me free and postpaid, for a week's free trial, the Original Wallace Reducing Record with all instructions. This trial is not to cost me one cent.

NO MORE CASTOR OIL FOR THE CHILDREN

Give Them Haley's Magnesia-Oil

Mothers, there's an easy way now to correct that sour stomach, and to relieve the effect of something that has "disagreed" with the youngsters. Simply give them a teaspoonful or more of Haley's Magnesia-Oil.

It has no oily taste—can be mixed with milk and given children without their knowledge—and it's harmless. A big dose for emergencies is perfectly safe and promptly effective. There is no griping or other unpleasant effect. Haley's Magnesia-Oil is simply milk of magnesia and mineral oil combined.

The oil carries the magnesia straight to the lower bowel, where most "stomach trouble" originates. The milk of magnesia neutralizes the acids and the mineral oil lubricates and aids nature quickly to remove the cause of the trouble. Both work together.

If your druggist can't supply Haley's Magnesia-Oil we will mail a bottle postpaid on receipt of price. Large family size, $1. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

HARMLESS LAXATIVE
All Children Love Its Pleasant Taste

Mother!
When Your Child Needs a Laxative
Give "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother! A teaspoonful of delicious "California Fig Syrup" now will sweeten the stomach and thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love the pleasant taste of this gentle, harmless laxative. It never cramps or overacts. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has full directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

GRASSE, France.—[Special Correspondence.]—When Cannes, now the playground of the fashionable world of Europe and America, was an unknown fishing village its next door neighbor on the Riviera, Grasse, was a thriving city. It is one of the oldest and most historic spots on the Mediterranean. In the middle ages it was a town of sufficient consequence to attract the unwelcome attention of the Saracens. For centuries it has been the scene of sackings and rebuildings by various kings and princes.

Today society meets at Cannes to repeat the whirl of the London, the New York season. It is a great sports center; the chief exponents of golf, polo, tennis foregather at Cannes, and its harbor shelters more palatial steam yachts during the season than any other along the Mediterranean. No one of feminine gender comes to Cannes or Nice but gives a day for a visit to Grasse, now a small town with one great thriving industry, the preparation of scents and perfumes, the distilling of essences and oils to supply the world.

I am told here that the basic materials for the perfumes of the far east, the near east, Europe, America—in fact, the entire world—are distilled and shipped from this delightful little town of Grasse. A perfume such as chypre, which the majority of us has come to believe is some magic concoction, possible only in the land of the oriental eyed, is manufactured here and extracted from the moss of the oak found in the neighboring community. All the flowers used in the industry are grown within a radius of twenty-five miles of Grasse, which furnishes a slight idea of the beauty of the country hereabouts. It is one of the most charming spots on the Riviera. An atmosphere of poetry and sweet fragrance pervades the town. It is an eventful day in a woman's life to come here, visit the distilleries, be sprayed with many varieties of perfumes, and be helped to a decision on a personal selection by men with a century or two of experience behind them.

Extraordinary Sense of Smell.

In one establishment at Grasse, I suggested to the officer of the company guiding me about that this must be an old institution.

He corrected me with "No, madam, this is not an old house. We have been in business only a little over one hundred years."

In another distillery plant I was introduced to a man whose official designation is "The Nose." He was of the sixth generation, in direct line from father to son serving as "The Nose" for this particular house. So extraordinary is his sense of smell that any perfume, any combination of oils, herbs, essences, flowers, spices, may be submitted to him for analysis and he can tell to the last faint petal, every ingredient included therein.

An interesting bit of gossip on perfume extravagances was regaled to me by the manager of one of the large plants. A standing order from his house supplies an American millionaire with a perfume to wash the upper deck of his private yacht.

The Most Expensive.

Women, usually a "reech A-mer-e-can," sometimes come to this man and demand the most expensive perfume that possibly can be manufactured. Were it musk or ambergris, it would not matter just so she may have a more expensive smell than her neighbor. If she insists, against all advice, she gets a bottle of Jasmine absolute, which my informant tells me, is "terreeble." It is the pure extract of the jasmine flower, and the most expensive because it requires one million flowers to make a ton and one ton to produce one kilo of extract. Jasmine is used in every good French perfume. It is never sold alone, however, except to women who must have the most expensive without pity for the nose of a harmless passerby.

Few, if any, perfumes sold as a single flower odor are really the odor of that single flower. The jasmine you buy is a combination of jasmine, rose, jonquil, and tuberose. When you buy lily of the valley perfume, instead of a perfume made from the small, white flowers alone, you have a combination of lilies of the valley, jasmine, tuberose, a little jonquil, and a drop of mignonette. There are not enough lilies of the valley in the world, I am told, to supply the trade for a pure extract; and, beside, the pure essence of any of the single flowers is not agreeable.

Skill in Blending.

The art of making perfumes is like that of the painter who has a limited number of colors to work with. The masterpiece is produced by the skill in blending. There are only about ten flowers used in the perfume industry: Jasmine, tuberose, narcissus, jonquil, violet, mimosa, mignonette, rose, carnation, orange blossom, and possibly a couple more. Spices, too, are used and herbs, and even a touch of camomile.

One perfume popular in hot countries, also used by professional dancers, is a mixture of ambergris, rose, patchoula, elong-elong, musk, and camomile. The dancers apply this under the upper arm and on the legs. When they move, the effect is like a faint, pleasing incense. This same perfume is recommended for use on strong furs. Orange peel, lemon, the extract of peach and pineapple are also incorporated into perfumes, if the "The nose" decides a fruit flavor is needed to perfect the scent.

A perfume made with the mimosa flower as its most active ingredient is in current favor with Mary Garden, I am told. Her home, by the way, when she is not in America, is not far away from Grasse. This perfume was neatly described to me by one of its producers as a "perfume for yourself and not for your neighbor." In which description abides an excellent little sermon, don't you think?

Perfumes for Individuals.

Here in Grasse I learned one of the methods of the experts when they are asked by particular women to prescribe an individual and appropriate perfume for them. It is based on the theory that every individual, no matter how scrupulous as to bodily hygiene, has an odor peculiar to her own person. Medical and other authorities indorse this fact. And, incidentally, it is told me that to the Chinaman white persons have an odor as repellant to his sensitive nostrils as other races have to ours.

The idea, therefore, in choosing a perfume is to get one that blends harmoniously with the individual odor. To get this, one of the big institutions here in Grasse supplies narrow strips of blotting paper, the length and thickness of a lead pencil, which patrons are requested to wear under the arms at night. On to these blotting pads is put the perfume that either the patron shows a definite preference for herself or one that is suggested by her adviser, a man experienced in summing up the personality and the type and coloring of the inquirer. The reaction of the personal odor on the perfume applied to the blotting paper, or vice versa, determines whether or not it is the one to be adopted. The chemical reaction on the customer's own favorite, or that suggested at first, may prove after this test to be an ill advised choice, in which event experiments must be continued until perfect harmony is obtained. This is an experiment the fastidious woman may work out quite well for herself.

To offset odors peculiar to furs, experiments are advised with the stronger perfumes containing spices, herbs, and flowers until one is attained that counteracts the odor of the fur. But for ermine, white jasmine is said to be the best. For caracul, Persian lamb, astrachan, and the general run of furs, violet is used with the happiest results.

Different Scents for Different Types.

Paul Poiret, famous couturier, recently gone into the manufacture of perfumes, with a plant at Grasse, believes women should experiment with different perfumes, mixing several different products and thus attaining an individual scent. A mixture of fruit and flower may serve one woman and be fatal to another. To get a well dressed smell, a woman has to be quite as fastidious on the subject as she is in the matter of silhouette and color in her dress. Her eye, he warns, is not the guide, nor the shape of the bottle nor its color in relation to the color scheme of her boudoir.

Lilac, Poiret grants the most refined odor; chypre the odor one associates with the café girl. Flowers from the forest are allotted to the wholesome, vital femme who fills her lungs on foot, not in motors. The heavy oriental perfumes are to be used only by the girl with a dash of the orient in her dress and in her eyes.

For the light blonde, flat, delicate odors are suggested, such as jasmine, lily of the valley; for the gray haired woman, he prescribes lilac or violet; carnation for the burnette; a combination of rose, carnation, with a touch of chypre, for the sophisticated red head; a lighter odor for the more delicate Titian haired, perhaps a combination of jasmine, tuberose, and mignonette. Rose, he tells me, is not for the blonde.

AMERICAN BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

IN the Buckeye state, which used to be a compendium of New England and the central states as far as cookery was concerned, and was not without southern influences, they used to make their buckwheats by the following recipe, with its interesting introduction:

"Buckwheat flour, when properly ground, is perfectly free from grits. The grain should be run through the smutter with a strong blast before grinding, and the greatest care taken through the whole process. Adulteration with rye or corn cheapens the flour. The pure buckwheat is best and is unsurpassed for griddle cakes. To make batter, warm one pint sweet milk and one pint water—one may be cold and the other boiling—put half this mixture in a stone crock, and add five teacups buckwheat flour, beat well until smooth, add the rest of the milk and water, and last a teacup of yeast. Or, the same ingredients and proportions may be used, adding two tablespoons of molasses or sugar, and using one quart of water instead of one pint each of milk and water."

Like most old recipes, this mixes up exact measurements in pints and quarts with inexact in the way of teacups—an old favorite is the wine glass—and so forth. A teacup usually contained just half as much as a modern standard cup.

Sense and Nonsense.

And now a word of digression about the old Buckeye cook book, from which this recipe has been copied. Like its state, this is compendious for recipes, and is one of the books to try to procure, if one is interested in American cookery. It was published in 1885. It was first published "for a benevolent object," and in three years 100,000 copies had been sold.

My own copy, dated 1888, was of the three hundredth thousand. Its title page reads: "Practical housekeeping, a careful compilation of tried and approved recipes." It also has the most amusing picture for its frontispiece labeled "Love in a cottage—Never mind; don't cry, pet, I'll do all the cooking." The words are from the mouth of a gentleman with burnsides, who has a chicken only partially plucked, much sprawled over a gridiron. He seems to be in doubt as to what to do with the long neck with head attached, which he holds in his hand. The kitchen has evidently been wrecked by the stout person seen through the window in bonnet, with bandbox and carpet bag, stepping sturdily and briskly off towards the horizon. A cat is in the milk on the cluttered table, the contents of a jar are dripping from the edge of the table into the gentleman's silk topper on a stool—which, being a gentleman, he set crown down, a point in etiquette which our men of today do not always observe. A lady is holding her head and crying. The gentleman's long stride looks precarious, since his left foot rests partly in a long handled frying pan.

The fun of cook books is endless but not always so well demonstrated as in the picture described, yet there 's great seriousness in the Buckeye, dedicated as it is "To those plucky housewives who master their work instead of letting it master them"—not a bad motto for those who try out the old recipes for buckwheat cakes.

The other day I saw a note to the effect that buckwheats did not rise well in steam heated kitchens. Shut away in a fireless cooker, a good place to set anything to rise, it is doubtful whether the batter would know anything about the kitchen radiator. The light and thin batter seems to have bothered housewives much by rising so fast as to run over and spread all about. The cooker confines its activities. My own way of mastering some of these troubles is presented in the following two recipes:

Quickest Buckwheat Cakes.

Sift into a bowl one cup of buckwheat flour—not the prepared, which one who wants the plain has to watch out against while buying—with two teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, and one tablespoon of sugar. Buckwheat flour swells more than wheat flour; therefore, we may add to the one cup of buckwheat flour one and a half cups of water. Mix thoroughly, and bake at once on a thoroughly well and evenly heated griddle. The flavor of this pancake depends upon a nice roasting or browning of it on the griddle.

Raised Buckwheat Cakes.

Make a thin batter of two cups of buckwheat flour and from two to three cups of cold water—not ice cold, but nearer tepid—milk may be used instead of water (scalded and cooled to tepid), but the water does well. Add to this batter one-fourth of a yeast cake dissolved in one-fourth cup lukewarm water, with one tablespoon of sugar and half a teaspoon of salt. The latter ingredients may be sifted with the flour.

Stir the batter so completely that every bit of flour is surely and fully wet and all the ingredients well blended. Set to rise over night, or for about eight hours. Molasses instead of sugar may be used in the batter, but it should be of a mild sort.

This batter may need a little thinning before it is baked, in which case use a little lukewarm water. It does no harm and may help to add about one-fourth of a teaspoon of baking soda dissolved in two tablespoons of warm water. A little molasses may be added at this time, but only a little, and of a mild sort, or the buckwheat flavor is in part destroyed.

Bucks County Buckwheat Cakes.

Quite in hopes of finding a Bucks county recipe for buckwheat cakes, I looked in that Pennsylvania Dutch cook book with the title "Mary at the Farm," and found this most elaborate one: "About noon dissolve 1 cake of yeast (the small, or round or square cornmeal cakes) in 1 pint lukewarm water. Add to this one tablespoon wheat flour, one tablespoon yellow cornmeal, and enough good buckwheat flour to make a thin batter. Set in a warm place near the range to rise. About 6 or 7 o'clock in the evening add this sponge to 1 quart and 1 pint of lukewarm potato water (water drained from boiled potatoes). One tablespoon of mashed potato improves the cakes; add salt. They need considerable. Stir in enough buckwheat flour to make quite a stiff batter, beat hard and set to rise, covered, in a warm place over night.

"The next morning add 1 tablespoonful saleratus, dissolved in a little hot water; 1 tablespoonful baking molasses and a little warm milk, to thin the batter; or water will answer. The batter should be thin enough to pour. Let stand a short time, then bake on a hot griddle. Half this quantity will be enough for a small family. Then use only ½ teaspoonful saleratus. Bake golden brown on a hot griddle. Serve with honey or maple sirup.

"If this recipe for buckwheat cakes is followed, you should have good cakes, but much of their excellence depends on the flour. Buy a small quantity of flour, and try it before investing in a large quantity, as you cannot make good cakes from a poor brand of flour."

Bethlehem Buckwheat Cakes.

The Bethlehem [Pennsylvania] Cook book has the following simple recipe for buckwheat cakes: "Six large tablespoonfuls of buckwheat meal, one large tablespoonful of cornmeal, 1¾ pints of milk or water, 1 cup of yeast or 1 yeast cake, 2 teaspoonfuls of salt. Beat well, cover top of bowl or pitcher, stand in moderately warm place until morning. Bake on hot griddle." Note that the amount of meal—it is meal instead of flour—is probably as much as a cup. Pity that the measurement is not as definite for the dry as for the wet part, but the dry does vary in absorptive power.

Miss Beecher's Buckwheat Cakes.

Miss Beecher in her cook book [1865] gives three recipes for buckwheat cakes from the first of which we learn that home brewed yeast was only half as effective as distillery and that "some people never stir them after they have risen, but take them out carefully with a large spoon."

It is a point worth proving. I am inclined to believe it a good one, but it would require a number of tests to prove it.

Her second recipe has the title "Extempore Buckwheat Cakes," and reads: "One teaspoonful carbonate of soda, dissolved in water enough to make a batter, and when mixed, add a teaspoonful of tartaric acid, dissolved in a few spoonfuls of hot water. Mix it in, and bake immediately." But to "Buckwheat Cakes Wet with Milk" she adds the statement, "This is the best kind of buckwheat cakes."

The recipe reads: "One quart of flour, and in winter stir in lukewarm milk till it is a thin batter, and beat it thoroughly, adding nearly an even tablespoonful of salt. Add a small teacup of Indian meal, two tablespoonfuls of distillery yeast, or a great deal more if home brewed; say, half a teacupful. Set it where it will keep warm all night, and in the morning add a teaspoonful of saleratus."

Points on Buckwheat and Cakes.

1. Mrs. Lincoln says: "Buckwheat cakes, even if not sour, usually require the addition of soda just before baking, to make them light and tender. But when in their best estate, they are far from perfect food. They should be eaten only in cold weather, and but seldom even then. They are better and brown better when made of boiling milk instead of water."

2. Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, in her "Motherly Talks to Young Housekeepers," advises quick baking, and says: "The thinner the cakes can be baked, the better they will be."

3. The old White House cook book has some advice of the type we laugh at today: "Not a few object to eating buckwheat, as its tendency is to thicken the blood, and also produce constipation, this can be remedied by making the batter one-third cornmeal and two thirds buckwheat, which makes the cakes equally good. Many prefer them this way."

3. In the days when water cures abounded the New Hydropathic Cook Book (1854) had this to say: "Buckwheat, sometimes called beechwheat from the resemblance of its nuts to the nuts of the beech tree, has no natural affinity with the cereal grains or grasses, but is similar in alimentary properties, and is sometimes employed in bread making. It is less nutritive than wheat, contains more sugar, but less gluten and starch. It is usually cooked in the forms of porridge, puddings, or griddle cakes. Various skin diseases have been attributed to its employment as food, and they are really attributable to the melted butter and sugar, pork, greasy sausages, etc., with which buckwheat cakes are usually eaten."

4. "Harder's American Cookery," really a dictionary, has this: "Buckwheat originated in Asia, but is now universally grown. It is healthful and nourishing, and it is easy of digestion especially when boiled with milk. When cold, after having been boiled it is cut in slices and fried. When the buckwheat flour is made into batter it makes a winter breakfast dish well known to and appreciated by all Americans. Buckwheat when it is made into bread is only good while in its fresh state, for as soon as it becomes dry it splits and on being [illegible] bles into small pieces."

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, or bronchial asthma.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PINEX for Coughs

Remember this Old Conundrum?

"WHICH is heavier—a pound of feathers or a pound of lead?" Even when you didn't ask for a quick answer, some would think a bit and then say, "lead!"

Such folks may not immediately realize why Sealdsweet Florida Oranges and Grapefruit are heavier, size for size, than ordinary oranges and grapefruit.

The answer, of course, is that, size for size,

THE FOREIGN MARRIAGE

by Doris Blake

It May Succeed, But More Often—It Doesn't.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—American soldiers who succeeded in capturing French wives have not been uniformly successful in holding their fair captives, it seems. Here in Paris it is universally, though regretfully, admitted that these international marriages, which were still further to cement the Franco-American alliance, are not a success. The divorce courts give ample proof, and the offices of the American Aid society on the Rue de L'Elysée, are full of stories of the domestic difficulties of these couples. National prejudices on both sides seem to have reared insurmountable peaks.

Miss Grace Countiss Green, a niece of Frederick Countiss of Chicago and secretary of the American Aid society, attributes the home wrecking to two principal causes: The extravagant habits of American boys and the nagging interference of French in-laws.

In her office overlooking the gardens of President Herriot's mansion, Miss Green discussed with me the disappointing results of these marriages as she hears them day by day from the lips of the men and women who come for assistance.

Many, Many Divorces.

"Divorces? I should say there were," she said in reply to my question. "It is really terrible. Of course, we do not handle such cases here except when it is necessary to refer them to the lawyers on our committee, but I get all the harrowing details—all those small, irritating causes which repeated many times are enough to spoil any marriage.

"You see, it just appears an impossible thing for these husbands and wives to get on together happily — not all, of course, but far too many. Early training, national and racial prejudices—how do I know?

Two Reasons Why.

"Much of the trouble comes, I believe, from what might be considered a virtue: The French girl's strong feeling for her own family. This can be carried too far. When, for example, an American soldier marries a French girl, she agrees to cleave only unto him. But, as a matter of fact, she cleaves to her own papa and mamma. She goes to America with her husband, but when things turn out differently from what she expected she begins to be homesick for her family, and she does not conceal the fact.

"She urges her husband to return to France. Papa will give him a job, she says, and all will be well. He agrees, but unfortunately all is not well. And here is where his weakness shows up, his inability to live the thrifty life of a French family. A typical instance is a case in our office which has just been settled after a year and a half of effort on the part of both French and American officials."

One Case in Point.

The story followed. An American soldier, married, shortly after the armistice, a pretty French girl, and took her to America. She had always wanted to visit the United States and, as her husband had good prospects, everything looked rosy for the young couple, although the parting from the good father and mother cost a Niagara of tears.

They settled in Detroit, where the young husband got a good job. Jobs were not lasting in those days of postwar upheaval, however, and after a time he had to content himself with much less than he had had before—a beggarly hundred dollars a month. To make matters worse, his wife began begging him to take her back to France so she could see her father and mother. She was not happy in America, could not get used to American ways. She had been brought up to depend upon her parents for all decisions. They were not in America, and she was lost. She wrote to her father, who lived in the country, and secured from him a promise to give work to her husband. It might not be quite so much, but they could live more cheaply in France, she said. Her husband finally agreed, and they set sail.

There was trouble from the first between him and his father-in-law. The salary of 200 francs a week, which seemed luxury to the old Frenchman, was not movie money for the American. He found that French economy was practiced in his wife's family to an extent he had never dreamed possible, and that living cheaply meant doing without many things which he had always considered necessities. Then, too, his wife, he felt, was being drawn away from him. The decisions she made through the advice of her parents did not seem as good to him as the timid ones she had made independently in America.

One night there was a violent scene between the young husband and his father-in-law. He told his wife she must choose between them. Her father ordered him out of the house. He left but, wanting to think things over a bit, took refuge in the barn. There he lit a cigaret and fell to meditating. Sleep overtook him, and his cigaret fell from his fingers. When he woke, he did not notice the little column of smoke just starting from the union of the cigaret with the damp straw, which burned slowly.

He went to Paris and started to look for work, hoping then to send for his wife. He was arrested there on the charge of having set fire to his father-in-law's barn. All the evidence was against him and it took a year and a half of fighting to get him out of jail.

An Extravagant Wife.

"And that is one case," said Miss Green. "Of course, we have many others. Here is an unusual one, in which the husband, an American soldier, had to complain of his wife's extravagance. She was an attractive little mannequin who had adored her 'so beeg American soldier,' but she had exaggerated ideas of the wealth of Americans. 'All Americans are rich,' she would say, obstinately, when he would remonstrate with her. And when he finally refused her demands she concluded that he was just 'steengy,' and left him for a richer man.

"There was one American soldier whose French wife became quite insane on the subject of his extravagance. She would follow him around picking up things he would throw away and making all sorts of things out of odds and ends, which she expected him to admire. He complained of the time she wasted in saving. It is difficult to know which was right, but the marriage barque went on the rocks."

She Ought to Know.

"There must be some happy ones," I suggested. "What makes them successful?" She was silent a minute. Then from another part of the room a voice piped up.

"Why, look at Maj. Cotchett, if you want to see a happy married man. He married a French wife, but she knows how to cook."

Miss Green laughed. "Don't say we told you," she said. "Mrs. Cotchett is really a marvelous cook, and she sometimes evades the vigilance of her servants and makes a little dish for the major, who is president of our society. He brags about it for weeks."

"So it can be done," I said.

"It can, but too often it isn't," she said. And she ought to know, for her office handles 150 cases a month where advice and assistance is given to the families of Americans living in France.

A FRIEND IN NEED
by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

KINDNESS APPRECIATED.

THERE is nothing like a glimpse of results to make us feel that our efforts are worth while. On that point the following letter speaks for itself:

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: The shower of blessings which came so unexpectedly is about ended, and while resting from the thrills of surprise I want to thank you and the person who instigated the shower, also every one who contributed to it. I would enjoy thanking every one who contributed, but having so much eye trouble, I can only send my thanks through you and assure you of my grateful prayers for all who helped give me this wonderful experience. I am 83 years old, and I can't tell you how much this has done to make life brighter and happier.

"MRS. A. F."

This happiness was created as simply as could be, just by the generous thoughtfulness of those who read a letter explaining Mrs. A. F. was alone in the world and asking that little Christmas remembrances be sent her. And the result—a happiness which will be an outstanding experience in her life!

I wish I could show all the happiness which the good friends of this department have created. Right now we have a number of talented children continuing their musical education, thanks to generous friends who provided instruments. We have invalids on the high road to recovery and families given new hope and new starts in life. And most of it has been done by giving things which the donors could spare—in many cases gifts which the givers actually thought were trifling.

On behalf of every one who has been made so happy, I want to extend thanks to our friends who are doing so much to create joy.

Puppies Want Homes.

"I wonder if there are not readers of your corner who would like to give homes to several puppies which we are no longer able to keep? They are not of any especial breed—just little dogs, but quite adorable and filled with life and playfulness.

"MRS. W. B."

Just little dogs! They sound mighty attractive, don't you think so? Just what little boys and girls need to make the horizon of their lives perfect.

Left Shoe to Give.

"I have a left shoe, size 7, to offer to some man in need of it. The shoe is in perfect condition, having never been worn. A. G. B."

If you need a left shoe, size 7, we hope you will see and take this splendid opportunity while it is offered.

Gift of Footwear.

"I have a pair of galoshes, size 7, to give to some one in need of them; also several pairs of slippers, size 6-A and 6½ triple A, to give to any one who needs them and wears that size.

"MRS. R. A."

This generous gift of footwear will surely appeal to those who can wear the size offered.

Offers Sewing Machine.

"I have a small hand sewing machine which I am able to pass on to some reader of your column who is in need of one. MRS. E. G. D."

It is almost an impossibility to do one's own sewing and housework as well if there is not an available sewing machine somewhere. And now, thanks to this reader's kindness, there is one available for you if you need it.

Child and Invalid.

"I know of a little tenement boy who has been ill for five years. He is able to be out doors at least, and is longing to ride a bicycle. I wonder if some reader has a bicycle, suitable for a boy of 12, to donate to this little fellow? J. F. S."

We hope some big hearted person has a bicycle to give to this little boy who craves outdoors and outdoor toys and joys after his long confinement.

Requests a Dress.

"I am in need of a black dress, size 36, and cannot afford to buy one. I do a few hours' work every day, and am asked to dress in black. I should be grateful for the gift of one, if some one has one no longer needed; also for a warm pair of overshoes, size 5, of which I am badly in need.

"MRS. P."

Mrs. P. has had a recent operation, and has no money to spend on these necessary articles of clothing. Has some one a dress and a pair of overshoes or galoshes to pass on to her.

Iron and Toaster Offer.

"I have an electric iron and toaster to give some one in need of them.

"MRS. H. B."

An offer that will appeal to the heart of any housewife, who is trying to get along without an electric iron and toaster. Write to us, if you need them.

CALLING IN THE LAW ABOUT EXTREMES

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—"Well," doubtless will be remarked by some new reader of this column, as he takes a cursory glance at the illustration, "if that is the kind of fashions that A. T. Gallico person prescribes, I guess I'll be one man who won't follow the suggestions. There's something about those styles that seems to me just a little bit overdone."

Which is quite true. For what I have to offer you today is just a hint, a warning if you need it, of what may happen in a few seasons if styles should go over the line. That is, if the men who indulge in certain smartness of dress forget where to stop.

For it is possible they won't draw the line, even as in ye goode olde days certain fashions got so out of control that laws had to be passed restricting the extremes of style.

For instance, there was a time when men, for lack of something better to do, indulged in the fad of long pointed shoes. The points got longer and longer, were twisted into the shape of scorpions' tails and rams' horns, or were so long they had to be fastened to the knees. This was in the fourteenth century. But they knew how to deal with such excesses in those days. A law was passed prohibiting the points of shoes to be over a certain number of inches.

A little later on in the cycle of fashion another extreme in footwear had to be suppressed. Shoes became so absurdly broad that an edict was passed limiting the width of men's shoes to six inches, showing what may happen if the present day brogues get any wider.

Then there was the time when the large circular ruffs were the vogue. Each beau tried to outdo the other. Ruffs got wider and wider. A law was passed to the effect that neckwear exceeding a certain dimension would be considered illegal.

Think upon these horrible examples, and let not your enthusiasm run away with you, when you feel like outdoing the styles. Here is my idea of some of the laws that would perhaps be passed if 1925 Beau Brummels should make too much of a good thing.

Take, for example, the wide trousers. They're pretty voluminous now. But they may get more so. Then the law will have to step in. An edict will be issued. No trousers that will hold more than ten pecks of potatoes in each leg will be allowed on the streets. No trousers that flop out at the ankles more than twelve inches will be considered legal.

The long points on shirt collars would have to be controlled by law. They are getting longer all the time. If they grow like the pointed shoes of the fourteenth century fashionably dressed men will be stumbling over them as they walk. No collar points which come within a foot of the ground will be permitted, or if they are longer they must be securely pinned at the knees so that they will not be a menace to fellow citizens.

Broad shoulders would need suppressing. No coats with shoulders projecting more than half the length of the body will be allowed outside the home. And as only those men who live in spacious quarters would be able to wear them in the privacy of the home, this style would die.

As for the striped shirt tendency, this would have to be controlled. The law might read something to the effect that no shirt which would cause a member of an Arabian desert tribe to step up to the wearer and demand the shirt for a new roof to his tent would be allowed.

Butterfly bow ties are another article of apparel that will come under the control of the law. The sketch in the lower right hand corner of the illustration shows the next step from the present bow ties. No bow ties which would enable a hen to fly ten feet from the ground will be permitted. The other extreme which bow ties are apt to run into, that of the small bow, will be controlled something on this order. A bow tie will be considered illegal if it is not visible under an ordinary reading glass. If microscopes are necessary, the tie isn't within the law.

Women the World Over

Gertrude Atherton, the author, is a great-grandniece of Benjamin Franklin.

Nearly one-half the women in Washington, D. C., are engaged in gainful occupations.

Dr. Helena Normanton, noted British lawyer, who won from the English bar the decision that though married she was entitled to the use of her own name in her profession, is now in this country to aid in combating a ruling which denies women the right of signing any name but that of her husband to government payrolls.

New York claims to have the largest beauty parlor in the world. It occupies the entire floor of a half block building and it cost about $500,000 to fit it up. It is possible for a patron to spend $114 at one sitting.

Records of the United States patent office show that the first woman was granted a patent in 1809, a process of weaving straw hats with silk.

SUGGESTIONS FOR MODEL ROOMS.

MANY of the leading houses of interior decoration are displaying sets of model rooms. From these may be gleaned all sorts of novel suggestions. The clever woman, with an eye for detail, may carry home from them numerous ideas for introduction in her own rooms.

A charming model set is being shown in the studios of an eastern firm. There are seven rooms, laid out in the style of the modern apartment or house of that size. Entrance is gained through a fan lighted doorway. Woodwork and ceiling in the spacious reception room are old ivory. The walls are done in two toned ecru paper.

Flanking the doorway, on the inside, is a pair of tall torchères, with lantern lights, in which the glass is frosted. The only other lighting fixtures are double candle patterned side lights, with little parchment shades. Windows and fan light are curtained in ecru casement gauze.

Directly opposite the entrance door is a long Tudor table. A pair of old urns stands at each end, with a Venetian glass bowl of flowers in the center. Filling the wall panel behind this table is a fine old tapestry. In the corners of the room, at each side of the table, are two high backed needle point chairs. Double doorways, at the ends of the room, lead, one into the living room and one into the dining room.

On the other side of the reception room, to the right of the entrance door, is a console table which holds an antique model of the Mayflower. A mirror, in an artistic old frame, hangs above. Filling the remaining wall space is a credence, topped by a graceful statue in bronze.

Taupe carpeting is used on the floor in the large living room. Woodwork is old ivory, and ecru grass paper is used on the walls. Ecru gauze glass curtains hang straight to the sill. Floor length draperies are of blue and gold damask, and are hung by means of large wooden rings on an old ivory wooden pole. There are no valances. Colonial patterned side lights have little frosted glass blowers hiding the electric bulbs.

Dominating the wall space opposite the doorway is an open fireplace with a mantel of old ivory woodwork combined with malachite marble. Placed at right angles to this is a davenport upholstered in taupe tapestry, with crewel work embroidery on the three loose seat cushions. Facing the davenport, at the other side of the fireplace, is a pair of tapestry chairs with a small table between, holding a wrought iron lamp and a number of books. Altogether, this makes a most companionable grouping.

Against the wall, opposite the fireplace, an old commode, decorated with antique floral painting, is flanked by a pair of walnut side chairs, with tapestry seats. An oval mirror hangs above.

Partly covered by an elaborate brocaded throw is an apartment grand piano in one corner of the room. A comfortable arm chair and reading lamp stand in front of an old leather screen in another corner. Open book shelves, near by, complete this group.

In the dining room, woodwork and wainscoting are painted old ivory, and the wall paper above is of a floral pattern, in dull colors. A blue chenille rug covers the floor. Glass curtains are of ecru lace. Black and gold draperies have ecru sateen linings. Blue hair cloth upholsters the seats of the Chippendale chairs. On the buffet is a blue Venetian glass bowl, filled with lemon yellow shell flowers.

Adjoining the dining room is an unusual little kitchen. The walls are painted light yellow, the woodwork white. Black and white linoleum in four inch alternating squares covers the floor. Table, chairs, cabinets, etc., are enameled white. Shaped lambrequins at the windows are of jade green oilcloth, with an appliqued pattern, in the center, of flowers and leaves, in different colored oilcloths. Sill length curtains, which hang from beneath these, are of white dotted scrim, and are caught back with cuffs of the jade green oilcloth.

Woodwork in the sun room, at the other side of the dining room, is painted apple green and walls are done in rough ecru plaster. A Chinese rug partially covers the Kaënstone floor. Furniture is painted black with trims of dark red, except for a pair of fan back hour glass chairs in black and straw color. There are two wrought iron reading lamps with parchment shades. Glass curtains are of sheer, changeable red and silver gray gauze, with draperies of flowered blocked linen, in harmonizing colors.

There are but two bedrooms shown, though a third is suggested. Woodwork in the main bedroom is white, and walls are covered with white paper, showing tiny polka dots of blue. White voile is used for glass curtains, and overdraperies are of hand blocked flowered linen, lined with sateen. Panels in the furniture are decorated with painted floral motifs. A large armchair of walnut is upholstered in blue, rose, and ivory striped taffeta. Changeable blue and rose washable sunfast is used for a bed cover. This has deep valances at the sides, reaching to the floor, and is trimmed with ruchings of the same material. On the little night stand beside the bed is a Dresden lamp with a taffeta shade, matching the colors in the bed cover. Parchment shields on the side lights are decorated with motifs copied from those on the furniture.

Gray and white paper covers the walls in the second bedroom. The woodwork is painted white. White silk gauze is used for glass curtains. Draperies are of leaf green and gray silk damask, lined with pearl gray sateen.

Small rugs are of sand colored wool chenille. Furniture is light walnut, with leaf green trim. The cover on the bed, as shown in today's illustration, is made of ecru linen, with a wide filet panel down the center. There is an undercover of leaf green silk. Fillet runners are used on bureau, dressing table, and chiffonier. Glazed chintz, in gay colors, upholsters a little arm chair. Shields on the side lights and a shade on the night stand lamp are of mauve silk, edged with leaf green ruching.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Flattery Surest Way.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 18 and am in love with a fellow five years my senior. I see him often and he is friendly with me, but that's all. I would appreciate it if you could give me some advice on how to make him love me. BOOTS."

Boots, if you wish to make an impression on him the thing to do is to flatter him when you see him. Tell him how you enjoy visiting with him, what a pleasure it is to meet him, and any other words of praise you may find appropriate to offer. It is the surest way to make the boys feel you are the right sort of girl, dear.

Too Much to Ask.

"Dear Miss Blake: A few months ago I met a fellow at a party to whom I took a liking. I met him several times after, and he always escorted me home. A week ago I met him again; as usual he took me home and asked me if he could take me to the movies the next night. I was willing to go, but told him to bring another fellow for my girl friend, as we always go together. I could see that he felt hurt, but he said he'd try to get one and, if he did, he'd call me up the next evening, but he never did. I may meet him again soon, so please tell me whether I should go with him alone if he asks me, or should I keep to my word. Jo."

Having met the young man on several occasions you should be able to judge whether or not you would wish to go with him to the movies or any other place of amusement, dear. If you feel you would enjoy being with him, I should accept his invitation, Jo. It may not be possible for him to bring another chap for your friend, and you should hardly expect it, dear.

The easy way and the scientific way to fight it is with McKenzie's Antiseptic Mineral Oil. You can easily prove this without risk.

An internal purifier as well as lubricant, McKenzie's induces regular habits, and is certainly great for mucous colitis, auto-intoxication and similar intestinal disorders.

Get McKenzie's from your druggist and test it. It is guaranteed to break the constipation habit in five days or money back. Good for children and old folks. Recommended by physicians.

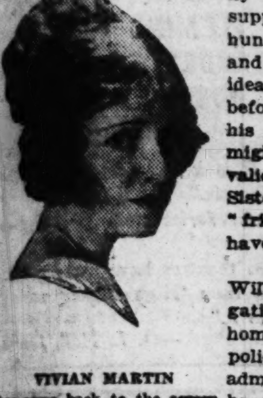
GOOD Morning!

No, it isn't the sort of picture you think it is.

Disappointed? I don't believe it! Disgusted—rather—aren't you, that a producer went out of his way to select a filthy name with the idea it would attract your interest?

The plot can be outlined in comparatively few words: Trouble comes to the Brown family when the only son and main support appropriates twenty-five hundred dollars. He's not a rogue and he really meant no wrong, his idea being to return the money before the loss was discovered, and his object in taking it that he might provide comforts for his invalid mother and his young sister. Sister Mary is a chorus girl—the "friendless" kind—and doesn't have much of a salary.



VIVIAN MARTIN
has come back to the screen in "Soiled."
[Raymor Studios Photo.]

BUT—Mr. Munson, for whom Wilbur works, starts an investigation. He calls at the Brown home and with him is a large policeman. Wilbur, confronted, admits his guilt. He prepares to be taken off to jail, telling Mrs. Brown and little sister that he's being sent across the ocean on a big deal. Mrs. Brown is convinced—not having seen the man in blue. Sister Mary is convinced until she DOES see him. Then she learns the truth.

"Please," she says to Mr. Munson on the side, "give me 'til tomorrow and I'll have the money for you."

"How'll you get it?" inquires Mr. Munson, skeptically. She tells him she'll sell something. Mr. Munson says, "Until tomorrow, then," and departs, taking the law with him.

Sister Mary Steps In

What Sister Mary means to do is to borrow the money from a certain rich man who has been begging to give her supper after the theater. She has never gone out with him, having a perfectly good fiancé and being a perfectly straight girl.

She gets the money—remaining a perfectly straight girl. Her fiancé pays it back in a jiffy, and so far as you know the picture ends without any soil having accumulated on anybody. Of course, Wilbur did do wrong, but he comes out clean. Of course, the rich man isn't a nice person and you suspect from several scenes that his wife plays about some,

HOW ROMANCE PUTS AN END TO CAREERS

By Rosalind Shaffer.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—"Now it can be told"—since Estelle Taylor has received her final decree of divorcement and Jack Dempsey is saying it with flowers and music and rings and all the rest of true love's aids.

ESTELLE TAYLOR
To forsake the movies when she marries Dempsey.
[Freulich Photo.]

A much-in-love couple sat in the dining room of Jack's hotel, the Barbara, and told of their plans and dreams and hopes for their life together. Estelle, in a plum colored poke with a gold bow perched jauntily on the rim, drew off her gauntlets, decorated with hand painted sprigs of roses, to display her new ring proudly. Five thousand dollars' worth of diamonds twinkled and winked from a twenty-five hundred dollar platinum setting, but Jack dismissed it with a half deprecating gesture.

They both want you to know that this is to be an old fashioned "till death do us part" affair, with an old fashioned family thrown in.

Estelle, with a shy glance, allowed that a possible Jack Junior would have brown eyes, as she and Jack have, and he will not be a pugilist. There is to be no pugilism, marital, ringside, or hereditary, in this family.

"Jack has promised me that our wedding day will end his boxing career," said Estelle, "and it will be a great relief to me. I positively will not let him go on with it." To play fair, she will give up her film career.

Estelle admits her only script in future will be a cook book, and her ambition is to make her mark with Mr. Dempsey as a first rate wife and nothing else but.

"We'll both settle down like everybody else, won't we, honey?" said Jack, peeking under the plum colored brim. And while the doves cooed the fifth wheel rolled away.

Leatrice Joy Comes Back.

Another one of those retiring stars, Miss Leatrice Joy, has reversed her decision and is busy making a new film, "The Dressmaker from Paris," with Paul Bern directing. Alan Forrest, Lottie Pickford's husband, was on the set chatting animatedly with Etta Lee, the Eurasian beauty who played the traitor slave girl in "The Thief." Her blonde silk hose and black and gold slippers cover a foot tiny enough to put in a teacup. Sally Long, the girl with the $100,000 insurance policy against falling in love, taken out by Florenz Ziegfeld when she was in the Follies, was posing in the sheerest of negligees and a fur wrap; and a little farther over a girl with legs insured for the same amount as Sally's heart stood in an abbreviated model. They are two of a selection of the fourteen most beautiful types of female comeliness, which Paramount is sponsoring.

A blonde French poster girl, a voluptuous eyed daughter of Ham, a pure gold Scandinavian beauty, a saucy, red-headed Hibernian, and every type of woman that ever made it hard for a poor distracted man to be good are now waiting to see who the lucky fourteenth girl will be. When the last is chosen, the fourteen names will be made public. They form an unusual and exotic background for Leatrice Joy's return, under Paul Bern's direction.

Speculations as to a reconciliation between Leatrice and Jack Gilbert are both ways. One side says, "Of course, they'll make up. With that darling baby they're bound to. Leatrice

Pavlowa's Radiant Art Now Appears

By Edward Moore.

AFTER almost three months of opera one may now turn attention to the radiant art of the dance. Consider and rejoice, if you please, at the approach of the lovely Anna Pavlowa and her company. She and they will be at the Auditorium tomorrow night, and will remain there for the next two weeks.

Once upon a time Pavlowa used to be considered a Russian dancer. She was that, of course but she has become more than that. She came from Russia, from the Imperial ballet, where the art of the dance burst into its finest florescence; she is now a world figure. To a substratum of Russian witchery she has added dances from Japan, from India, Egypt, Mexico—the world generally. She is now about to present a scene from Spain, Cervantes' "Don Quixote," put into ballet form.

FRITZ KREISLER
in recital at the Auditorium this afternoon.
[Koshiba Photo.]

At the close of her American tour last spring Pavlowa went to Spain to study with the native dancers and professors for the purpose of making her new presentation authentic. She would seem to have succeeded, for observers elsewhere state that "Don Quixote" is the most elaborate and pretentious of any of her long repertoire. The scene is laid in the Barcelona of 350 years ago, and the scenery has been made and painted by the dean of Russian stage painters, Constantin Korovine. As an incident in the performance there will be a rendition of the "Cachucha," an ancient dance now rarely done even in Spain. It was with this dance that Fannie Ellsler, who occupied something of the same position a century ago that Pavlowa does now, found her greatest fame.

Some of It New; Some Revival

"Don Quixote" will be one of a considerable list of major ballets to be given here. Revivals of works not done in several seasons are promised, among them "Coppelia," "Invitation to the Dance," and "The Sleeping Beauty." Prospects are also held out of "Amarilla," "Chopiniana," "Magic Flute," "Snowflakes," "Autumn Leaves," "Fairy Doll," and "Oriental Impressions."

Among the divertissements, a peculiarly charming section of the Pavlowa entertainments, Drigo's "Coquetterie de Colombine" is listed as new. Here the star will appear for the first time with two premier danseurs, Laurent Novikoff and Alexandre Volinine. Another new piece is a Russian dance, with music by Rubinstein and Tschaikowsky. There is also mention of Lincke's "Gavotte Pavlowa," Drigo's "Serenade," Tschaikowsky's "California Poppy," and Glazounow's "Bacchanale." There will be seven divertissements on each program.

As indicated, Pavlowa appears this season with two leading men, dancers who, like herself, have attained high positions in the dance. She has many other notables with her—Hilda Butsova, premiere classique; Muriel Stuart, Tamara Froede, Pianowski, Oliveroff, Vaginski, Zalewski, Domoslawski, Algeranoff, and others whose names one pronounces by ear rather than by note, Theodore Stier, widely experienced conductor, will direct the music, and Ivan Clustine, another veteran, will be stage manager.

Those who have seen Pavlowa in past seasons need no

"THE PIKER" SWELLS SORDID DRAMA LIST

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—These are the calomel days of the drama, my children, and we may as well get used to them. The dose is going to be large and corrective, and cleansing, I hope.

Last week I went through the list of one hundred odd plays produced since last August, looking for those I might reasonably include as representing the trend of taste and thought in the American theater, in the next issue of the drama's year book.

I found five, the use of which I felt I could justify—and not a clean, wholesome, unprofane, typical American drama of the old fashioned sort among them. Strong they are, and dramatic. True, too, to the people and the locales they represent. But, O, the language of them, and the character!

LIONEL BARRYMORE,
in the title role of "The Piker."
[Mishkin Photo.]

Here is another called "The Piker." In it Lionel Barrymore plays a Jewish nit-wit, named Bernie Kaplan, presumably a young fellow in his early twenties, who is a bank messenger. The day of the play's opening he has filched an envelop from the cashier's cage marked, as he supposes, "$50.00." It is the first money Bernie has ever stolen, and he has been tempted this time because he is, as he admits, stuck on a dame, and he wants to buy a new suit with an extra pair of pants, that he may do her honor when they walk out from the cheap theater in which she is employed as a chorus girl.

He brings the money to his dingy furnished room in the Bronx, and tries to hide it back of a picture on the wall. But Willie Riley, his shrewd, but unscrupulous, roommate, sees him. After that it is easy for Willie to worm a confession from the poor mutt and blackmail him for half his haul.

They open the envelop, and in place of $50 there is $50,000 inside. Bernie is for taking it back. He is no fellow to steal $50,000. He is not, agrees Willie; he is just a lousy piker. Willie is so outspoken!

Sheer Waste of Fine Talent.

It is finally agreed that Bernie shall keep the money, and Willie will be allowed to help him spend it, as a reward for not snitching. Willie is too smart to take any of the loot as his share. That would make him an accomplice.

For six months the boys' lives are something swell. By the end of that time Bernie has been cleaned out. His dame has fleeced him for all she could, Willie has taken his bit, and a bucket shop sharper has done the rest.

Hysterical with grief and anger, Bernie stands at the end, stripped and naked to the soul, crying his crime aloud. He hopes to be arrested that his girl may recognize him at last as a great thief, in place of the "lousy piker" she also has accused him of being. But even the police will have nothing to do with him. He must be dopey, they tell him. They sent the bank cashier who lost the $50,000 up the river, and the police never make a mistake.

It has its bids of vivid drama, this recital of the upper slums. But you feel a little dirty when you leave it. And a little resentful that Lionel Barrymore should be wasting one of the fine talents of the American theater on it. I sincerely hope no one writes an equally vivid piece about the towel man in the gentleman's rest room. Lionel might want to play

This Thing and That About the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

TO MOST of Miss Barrymore's patrons, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" will be a new play: such life as it has had in this country since Mr. and Mrs. Kendal performed it here, more than thirty years ago, has been in the répertoire of one actress or another: Miss Nethersole, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Carter, et al. . . . The play is generally referred to as Pinero's masterpiece; and maybe it is: I don't know; and I am at a loss for a process of finding out. Pinero wrote good plays before this variant of "Camille," and has written good plays since. All of them have "dated," of course: some more than others; and it may be that the test of a masterpiece in plays is that it shall not or cannot "date." As I've said, I don't know; and I don't believe that any-anybody else knows.

LESTER ALLEN
He is here again as the main cut-up of George White's Scandals.

Pinero's comedy of "The Hobby-Horse" was a fine work; and I've no doubt that it would be a joke if acted today. "The Magistrate" held its own through many years as the best farce written in the English language; and the last I saw of it was as a bad piece with tunes. "The Amazons" was a masterpiece in kind; and, who would pay two-fifty to see it today if acted by nothing save stars? "Iris" was a fine piece twenty years ago; so also was "Letty." . . . He has written some trash, part of which was meant to be precious; and he has written little in any milieu that hasn't had brains in it. Nobody else has written for the English-speaking stage so good a play of the actors as his "Trelawney of the Wells." . . .

I went to a London theater not long ago to inspect a comedian whose merits had been lauded to me by other Americans, and found him cavorting through the débris of another good farce of Pinero's, "In Chancery": it had been made over with songs into something named "Who Is Hooper?" Not long afterward, I encountered still another fitted out with songs and dances, and called "My Nieces"; 'twas Pinero's "The Schoolmistress," a gay and a good piece in which I, as a kid, had my first view of the late Rosina Vokes.

This One Seems Durable.

Because of Miss Barrymore's coming in it, I read "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" the other day, and for the first time; and I found that it has stood up pretty well through more than three decades. It isn't as topical now as it was when written; but I'm considering it as a play rather than as a social document. Pinero's technique in this piece was the best of its time; and the play was in the best mode of that time. I expect to find that it survives disinterment with more sturdiness than would any other piece of its period,—or many a celebrated piece of later date. Pinero's own "The Gay Lord Quex," a stimulating contribution to the drama of 1900, seemed an awful thing when, not so long ago, John Drew revived it. . . . As to Miss Barrymore, I expect her to be good as Paula, as I expect Mrs. Fiske to be good as Mrs. Malaprop. If Pinero were writing "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" today, it would be sheer logic for him to have Miss Barrymore in mind,—or, if he were writ-

"The Piker" Swells Sordid Drama List

By Burns Mantle.

him. Is that being snobbish, I wonder? Or is it a sensitiveness to odors that impels the recoil.

Irene Fenwick (Mrs. Barrymore), grown as thin as a reed bird the last year or two, plays the piker's dame with a flare of the tough soubrette spirit she formerly capitalized. Alan Brooks is impressively true to type as Willie, and Frank Conroy and Adrienne Morrison have flashy short parts.

Quite Unlike Barrie.

Nearly every one who reads anything about the theater has heard of Sir James Barrie's one act piece called "Shall We Join the Ladies?" Ovah theah they are always doing it, at benefits of one sort and anothah. Now it is ovah heah and being used as an afterpiece for a featherweight comedy entitled "Isabel," with which Margaret Lawrence last week made her bow as a Frohman star. A Frohman-Famous Player star, I suppose, we should say, seeing the Frohmans are owned, body and soul, by the Zukors and the Laskys. Fortunately, Gilbert Miller stands between. That is a help.

"Shall We Join the Ladies" is the first act of a mystery play Sir James apparently did not have the stomach to finish. And I, for one, am glad of it. He is too fine and gentle a soul to be wasted on this sort of stage trickery.

In atmosphere the play is not unlike the late "Thirteenth Chair." At the curtain's rise thirteen persons are discovered at the table. The butler must sit down with them to break the superstition. The gods are not thus successfully propitiated, however. Within the next quarter hour the host has told his twelve guests that they have been gathered from far corners of the earth, and at great trouble and expense, because they are the only twelve he knows positively were with or near his late brother, who was mysteriously murdered aboard his yacht at Monte Carlo. One of them, continues the host, is undoubtedly the murderer. Either a man, or a woman dressed in man's clothes.

Quickly suspicion darts from one guest to another, accompanied by hysterical screams, nervous snapping of wine glass stems, and the like. Finally the women are sent to a room by themselves, and the tag of the play follows, as one of them utters a piercing scream. "Shall we join the ladies?" calmly queries the host. And that is all there is. A. P. Kaye plays the host.

Chauve-Souris Returns.

Nikita Balieff poked his round face between the dark velvet curtains of the Forty-ninth street theater the other night, and smiled pleasantly at the welcoming applause that greeted him. Nikita is a much more confident person now than he was when first he came to town, dragging his Russian "Chauve-Souris" artists after him like a string of hopeful refugees, three years ago.

Since that first American engagement he and they have conquered several world capitals and any number of world's capitalists.

Now they are on Broadway for eight weeks, after which they go touring all over the American map. Coming your way, you may depend upon them as the supreme novelty of your theater year. And, I am glad to add, their current program is the best they have offered. It averages best, at least.

They are sweet singers, and they have a curiously incisive sense of the dramatic. Their backgrounds are splashes of color that become strangely interesting after the first shock of them. A little Russian vaudeville has gone a long way with me many times. But I thoroughly enjoyed this bill, in especial certain Cossack paintings brought to life in rude, but smashingly dramatic, living pictures. I think there are new performers in this year's troupe. But I can't spell or pronounce any of the names, so why report them?

Change at the Century.

The Shuberts, having made a fortune and burnished up the old family trademark by putting Composer Franz Schubert and his popular melodies into "Blossom Time," seek this year to turn a duplicate trick with Composer Jacques Offenbach and his livelier and more sentimental tunes.

The result is "The Love Song," gorgeously and expensively staged at the Century theater. And in the Century, incidentally, they have been able to insert an additional 400 opera chairs by taking out the roomy, semi-divan, arm chair seats the promoters of the new theater first installed. These have been replaced by smaller and narrower seats, a little tight for some, it may be, but wide enough for the average and returning, as you may see, a better percentage of revenue per seat.

I have called the Century our first theater, on occasions past. And so, in magnificence, it is. It lacks the atmosphere and will never be able to attain the prestige of the old Empire. But it is a grand place for opera and spectacle.

The chorus and ballet are big, the chorus singing wonderfully, and the ballet dancing, the matinee I was there, quite raggedly. And the scenery is magnificent as the Century warrants.

O. L. HALL, Journal.
"Suggests that age when sophistication reaches the highest climax of playful brilliancy. Possesses a plot of substance."
C. J. BULLIET, Post.
"Miss Larrimore acts Joan as she acted her prototype in Mr. Hamilton's 'Scandal,' with all her tawny-headed skittishness and a delightful air of joshing the material of the play. Her assistants, particularly Mr. Humphreys, are excellent."
BARTLETT CORMACK, American.
"Capital entertainment."
CLAUDIA CASSIDY, Journal of Commerce.
"In 'Parasites' Miss Larrimore is even more beauteous than she was a year or two ago and acts more sincerely and graciously."

HIT THE BULL'S EYE
This massive entertainment was produced in the Apollo Theatre, New York, Monday June 30th and scored an instantaneous success, playing to capacity houses for six consecutive months. It is the only revue presented in New York this season that registered a sensational hit the opening performance, and is the only Revue that has not made any additions or changes of any kind in its cast of players.
It was great the first night, but is much greater now with the same cast—the same wonderful Parisian costumes and draperies—the same numerous comedy scenes—the same marvelous novelties and effects and the same American beauties.

This Thing and That of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

ing in complete detachment as to actors, then to select her from all the available players for the rôle.

Some of the Others in It.

Her Paula was to me Miss Nethersole's outstanding reason for classification as a good actress: when I saw her in the rôle, she was incredibly clever and "fine." That was before I saw Mrs. Campbell in the part; and there was nothing in the latter's way with it to take my admiration from any aspect of the other Englishwoman's. . . . I should think it unfair to say now how bad I as a boy thought Mrs. Kendal was in the part were it not that I possess a matured and seasoned certainty that Mr. Kendal was perfect as Tanqueray. He was one of the best actors I have ever seen; and it was the affectation of the critics who wrote of the stage in the years he visited this country to say that he was acting at all in the best theaters only because he was Mrs. Kendal's husband. . . . I saw Duse as Paula; and she was as far away from it as she would have been if playing the prowling mulatta of "White Cargo."

Some profitable reputations had their basis in the old play: Mrs. Campbell's own, for one. The Kendals, I've been told, made a fortune from their canny and surprising acquisition of the piece for this country at a time when the American newspapers were gladly paying cable-tolls on tales of how Pinero and Mrs. Campbell had combined to upset London. . . . J. H. Dodson, who had the grateful part of Cayley Drummle with the Kendals, found in it an avenue whereby he came into high-salaried demand with managers in this country, although he wasn't so much of an actor as the managers believed him to be. And the same part served well another English player who was a nobody at home—George Arliss: Mrs. Campbell brought him along on her first visit, to play Drummle in this piece and the wicked old St.-Olpherts in "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith," and so good did the critics say he was in the former rôle that he found this a good place to remain.

Five or Six More.

New plays of the week in New-York will be:

"Beyond," by Walter Hasenclever, with Miss Helen Gahagan and Walter Abel constituting the entire cast: there are but two characters in the play, which is divided into twenty-two scenes. . . . Doubtless these uncommon specifications had something to do with the decision of the producers to have a go at it: the producers are Eugene O'Neill and his associates, who just hate plays that are reg'lar.

"The Stork," by Ben Hecht from an Hungarian piece by Laszlo Fodoro named "Marguerite of Navarre," with Miss Katherine Alexander, Geoffrey Kerr, Miss Wanda Lyon, and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

"Out of Step," by A. A. Kline, with Eric Dressler, Miss Marcia Byron, Malcolm Duncan, and Miss Miriam Doyle in a cast said to utilize thirty-five performers.

"Hell's Bells," by Barry Conners, with Thomas H. Walsh, Edward Garvie, Humphrey Bogart, and Miss Shirley Booth. . . . This is the piece by the author of "Applesauce" formerly known as, first, "Fool's Gold" and, then, as "The Hide-Behinds."

"The Depths," by Hans Müller, with Miss Jane Cowl, Rollo Peters, and the cast as in the recent Chicago performances in the Selwyn, where the piece was known as "Who Knows."

"The Small-Timers," by Knowles Entrikin: to be staged by a new concern calling itself the Art Theater and avowedly on the look-out for the Unusual and also for Something Higher.

The name of Mrs. Richard Mansfield, long absent from print, reappears as a patroness of the Art Theater referred to in the preceding paragraph. As Miss Beatrice Cameron, she was for many seasons Mr. Mansfield's leading-woman, and took part with him in his early adventures with the plays of Shaw, acting the untruthful heroine in "Arms and the Man" and the clergyman's wife in "The Devil's Disciple." She was the first actress in this country of Nora in Ibsen's "A Doll's House": that was in 1889, in Philadelphia, in some special performances put on by Mr. Mansfield, although he did not take part in them.

Into the Alley with These!

"Carnival," which had Miss Elsie Ferguson in it; "The Bully," with Emmett Corrigan, and "Milgrim's Progress," with Louis Mann, were taken off the New-York stage last night, and added to the season's imposing list of failures down there. "Carnival," by Molnar, was by far the most pretentious venture of the three. . . . The stage-version of "Simon Called Peter" also was taken off; but it had been in New-York eleven weeks, and was designed from the beginning as bait for boobs. Chicago saw it last spring.

The Marx Brothers in "I'll Say She Is!" are near the end of a New-York run that started back in mid-May. They have been so much of a success down there that the critics pal around with the four stars and refer to them in print by their prænomens. Indeed, the one known as Harpo Marx is hailed as the outstanding comic hero of the last five years in Broadway. . . . The odd part of it is that the Marx Brothers are funny. And no richer comic line has gone into a rough show in all the years of rough shows than that wherein the Marx who plays Napoleon tells Josephine that she is "as true as a three-dollar cornet."

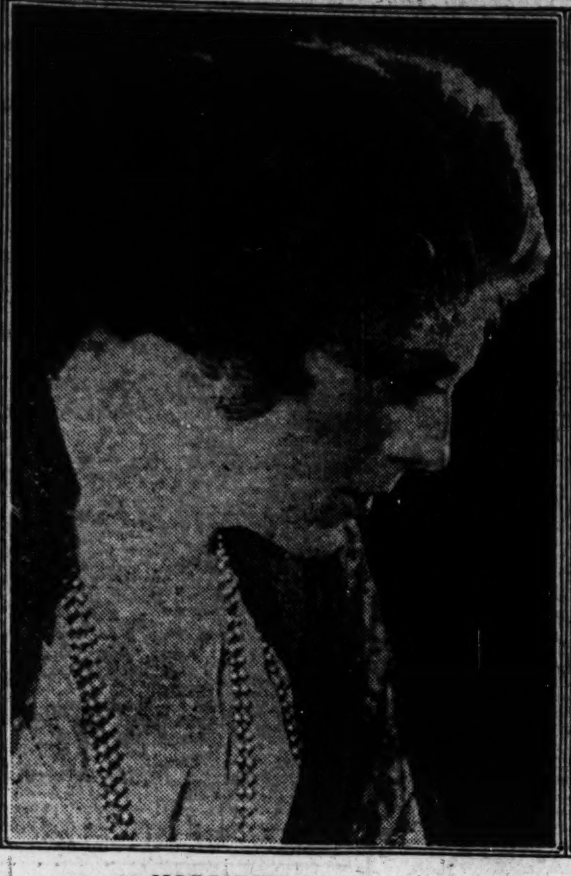
IN THIS REVIVAL, AND IN THAT



MISS ETHEL BARRYMORE

MISS LOLA FISHER

MISS BARRYMORE returns to act the celebrated title-part in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," wherein she has had as predecessors Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Kendal, Duse, Miss Nethersole, and Mrs. Carter. Her recent New-York appearance in the role provoked columns of discussion among the critics, none of whom seemed to be aware that she knew more about acting Paula than they knew.

Miss Fisher will be back a week from tomorrow to act with Mrs. Fiske in "The Rivals," wherein she has the part of Lydia Languish, in which she is pictured here. She was in Chicago a year ago with Leo Ditrichstein in "The Business-Widow"; and she is best remembered here for her acting in "Good Gracious, Annabelle!"

New Playbills

What Is Due in the Chicago Theaters as Far Ahead as the Managers Know or Care to Tell About.

OPENING TONIGHT:

George White's Scandals [1924] in the Selwyn.—Sixth issue of the annual, which was the subject of warm praise from the reviewers when it was staged last Summer in New-York. . . . Lester Allen, Miss Winnie Lightner, Tom Patricola, Will Mahoney, Miss Olive Vaughn, and Miss Helen Hudson are of the company.

TOMORROW NIGHT:

Miss Barrymore in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" in the Blackstone.—The popular actress in her revival of Pinero's most celebrated play, wherein, from all accounts, she has been entirely successful in other cities. . . . Henry Daniell is the Tanqueray; Lionel Pape, the Cayley Drummle; and Miss Helen Robbins, Miss Margot Kelly, Miss Jane Wheatley, and George Thorpe are of the company.

De Wolf Hopper in "H. M. S. Pinafore" in the Great Northern.—Third operetta in the comedian's use of his répertoire in Chicago. He will again be Dick Deadeye, as in the 1911, 1912, 1914, and 1915 engagements here. . . . Miss Kate Condon will appear Thursday night as Little Buttercup.

NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT:

Charlot's Revue in the Garrick.—Belated engagement of an imported entertainment immensely popular last season in New-York. . . . Miss Joyce Barbour, Miss Beatrice Lillie, Herbert Mundin, Miss Jessie Matthews, and Sam B. Hardy will be in it.

FEBRUARY 2:

Mrs. Fiske in "The Rivals" in the Illinois.—The veteran comedienne as Mrs. Malaprop in a revival of Sheridan's comedy. . . . James T. Powers, Miss Lola Fisher, Thomas A. Wise, and Chauncey Olcott are cast, respectively, as Bob Acres, Lydia Languish, Sir Anthony Absolute, and Sir Lucius O'Trigger.

Hassard Short's Ritz Revue in the Apollo.—What is said to be the first issue of an addition to the long list of annuals; it is named for the director who staged the current Music-Box Revue and its two predecessors, and also for the playhouse, in which it was performed through some weeks in New-York. . . . Miss Charlotte Greenwood, the lady with the legs and arms, is at the head of the company.

Miss Fay Bainter in "The Dream-Girl" in the Studebaker.—Victor Herbert's last score for operetta: the libretto is made from the once-popular play named "The Road to Yesterday." . . . Walter Woolf, here last season in "The Lady in Ermine," and Robert Woolsey are with Miss Bainter.

FEBRUARY 8:

"Rose-Marie" in the Woods.—An operetta now in immense vogue in New-York, where it has been running since September. . . . Miss Myrtle Schaaf and Richard Gallagher are to head the Chicago cast.

FEBRUARY 15:

"Minick" in the Princess.—The play made by Miss Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman from the former's novel named "Old Man Minick." The comedy has had some of the season's best "notices" in New-York, where it has been running since September 24. . . . O. P. Heggie, Miss Phyllis Povah, Sydney Booth, and Frederic Burt are in the cast.

MAKES GOOD

MISS JESSIE MATTHEWS

She is on her way hither in Charlot's Revue, whereof she is a new identity, although a seasoned wage-earner. The illness in the New-York engagement of Miss Beatrice Lillie gave to Miss Matthews an opportunity as understudy, which she grabbed and held. Later, on tour, Miss Gertrude Lawrence fell ill; and Miss Matthews was again the eager player on the spot. When Miss Joyce Barbour was called in to take Miss Lawrence's place, the latter's rôles and songs were divided with Miss Matthews, who is now enrolled as a principal of the famous English troupe.

Stage-News

Mrs. Alice M. Bradley, whose piece named "The Governor's Lady" was put on some years ago by Mr. Belasco, is at law to assert that "Cobra," which the New-York critics say is great drama, has been stolen from a play of hers called "The Honor of a Clown." Martin Brown, whose "The Lady" was acted in Chicago by Miss Mary Nash for two or three weeks last season, is credited with having written "Cobra."

Lynne Overman is credited with a success in London in his old part in "Just Married." . . . Miss Anne Nichols, part-author of the play, is at law over the London performances, alleging that they are without her permission.

Other live litigation based on allegation of plagiarism has to do with "Polly Preferred," the movie-business piece acted last season by Miss Genevieve Tobin and Thomas W. Ross in the La Salle, and "White Cargo."

Miss May Irwin is about to return to the two-a-day; and it is said that she will receive $3,000 weekly for acting in George Ade's sketch named "Mrs. Peckham's Carouse." . . . She was a high celebrity in her day, and fared well at the box-office.

Another who's returning to the two-a-day is Eddie Buzzell, who hasn't been able to make a go of it as a star, although he seemed to have the main's in his New-York run in "The Gingham Girl." . . . He was in Chicago a year ago in "The Town Clown," which he tried this season in New-York as "No Other Girl."

Madame Emma Calvé, most famous of all the singers of Carmen in recent decades, is returning to the United States for a tour of the Keith and Orpheum two-a-day theaters. . . Miss Marie Tempest is just out of a London flivver named "Orange-Blossoms."

Another play by Pirandello, the Sicilian writer of "Six Characters in Search of an Author," has been taken for American production: it is named, in English, "Right You Are if You Think You Are!" and is to be staged in due time by the Theater Guild of New-York. F. D.

How Romance Puts an End to Careers

still is perfectly crazy about Jack, in spite of everything." The other side says, "Impossible. Jack is too irresponsible and temperamental ever to be a good husband."

Meanwhile Leatrice is taking the baby out on location with her, and last week when the company was out at Pomona making scenes the whole crowd was held up all one morning while Leatrice hunted through the town's five best hotels till she found a steam heated one for the baby.

Heroines Too Sweet.

Jetta Goudal is working on the set next to that of Paul Bern, who is her most devoted escort and admirer. This dynamic little French lady is being directed by Raoul Walsh, who made "The Thief of Bagdad." During a short intermission Jetta declared that her abomination is being a "yes woman" in film rôles. She complains bitterly that screen heroines are too sweet for her to play.

"Every one knows how the story will end—the heroine does not act, she reacts to the male rôle. If I slap you—but I will not—" she added, with the most naive of smiles, "I act and you react. It is not my desire to be always the one who reacts."

In this film Ricardo Cortez is to have the "acting" part, and that's what it is to be, no fooling, for he does two bull fights, a la Valentino in "Blood and Sand."

Rudy Puts His Foot Down.

Great sputtering over at the Valentino set this week at the United Studios. All those who think of the great sheik as henpecked, hear ye! From the New York studio, during the making of "The Sainted Devil," came the story about a fuss between Mrs. Valentino and Jetta Goudal over the costumes, after which another actress replaced Mlle. Goudal. But this time the outcome was different. Mario Carillo, Rudy's old schoolmate, and later an Italian cavalryman, with whom Rudy is wont to take his morning constitutional over the Beverly Hills bridle path, is taking part in Valentino's new film. And so, as usual, is Mrs. Rudy, although her capacity is not actorial. Mario and Winifred clashed, so it is said, over some details on the set. Higher and louder came the protestations from each side of the controversy.

"I," Mr. Carillo is quoted as saying, "was personally delegated by Mr. Valentino to attend to this matter."

"And I," said Winifred, "am his wife, his personal manager, and what I say goes," or words to that effect.

Then enter Rudy. "Both of you had better get off the set," said he, according to the generally accepted version. And for several days the tents of the sheik at the studio knew not Natacha.

Gossip of the Chaplins.

Lita Grey Chaplin has been seen nowhere lately except shopping in Hollywood boulevards.

"I don't care much to go about with the film folk, though Charlie does," she said. "I spend much of my time shopping with my mother, or visiting at grandfather's, or just staying at home. Of course, I have my lessons, you see, but I hope to be released from some of them soon. Yes, Charlie hopes the baby will be a girl. He is crazy about little girls. But he is busy at the studio now, going early and coming home late, and sometimes I never see him."

Mrs. Chaplin's mother, Mrs. Lillian Curry-McMurray Spicer, is her daughter's inseparable companion, day after day in the midst of the forty rooms of Charlie's mansion.

Right in the Eye.

On orange, right in the eye from the husky hand of an electrician, was the New Year's eve greeting that Lloyd Hughes got as he was entering his set. Two electricians, perched upon the rafters, were eating lunch; one tossed an orange to the other and Lloyd intercepted it at first, with the result that he spent New Year's day with a nice blob of beefsteak on the injured orb to get it in shape for the next day's work.

Mabel Normand has been out of the movies for sixteenth months, but has spent her time writing poetry and becoming an adept golfer. Her return to the movies probably will be announced in two weeks, but her next picture will not be for Mack Sennett. During her time out Mabel has published a volume of verse anonymously.

ONE OF THE CLOWN-LADIES

MISS WINNIE LIGHTNER.

SHE returns tonight in George White's Scandals, whereof she was a performer last year and the year before. . . . Miss Lightner was taken by Mr. White from the two-a-day, whence emerge most of the performers in the home-made revues and extravaganzas; and, as she doesn't spare herself in labors for laughter, he doubtless figures that he did well so to take her.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

Conscientious Objector.

Two English tourists and a Scot were fellow passengers in a train going north. As the train drew up at a station one of the tourists popped his head out of the window and, drawing a deep breath of fresh air, turned to his companion and exclaimed, "Isn't this salubrious?"

"Yes," replied his friend. "I think it is exhilarating."

"Na, na," chimed in the Scot, who was sitting near them, "ye're baith wrong; it's Bannockburn." G. P.

Thoughtful.

Movie star — What beastly soap! Where on earth did you get it?

New maid—Why, madam, I bought some because I saw an advertisement in which you said you were never happy without it. W. J.

Literal.

The witness had been cautioned to give more precise answers.

"We don't want your opinion of the question," the judge told him. "We want it answered—that's all."

"You drive a wagon?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"Why, no, sir, I do not," was the decided reply.

"But, sir, did you not tell my learned friend only a moment ago that you did?"

"No, sir, I did not."

"Now, I put it you, my man, on your oath. Did you not drive a wagon?"

"No, sir."

"Then what is your occupation?" asked the state's attorney, in desperation.

"I drive a horse," was the reply. G. P.

Maid—I wish you would, ma'am. There's quite enough work for two of us. E. V.

Who Should Play Lightnin' Bill?

Dear Miss Tinée: With Frank Bacon in mind I would say Alec B. Francis would come the nearest, both as to looks, actions, and his general ability to play the rôle. I am a fan and know them all. M. H.

Mong Gets Vote

"Dear Miss Tinée: Please may I put in my bid for a Lightnin' Bill"? William Mong would be my choice. I have seen him do some wonderful quaint bits such as Lightnin' calls for—for instance, the inventor in "Welcome, Stranger." His physical makeup and features are perfect, seems to me. Of all the actors named, Henry Walthal seems the most impossible—a wonderful actor, really a genius, but hardly in the line of Lightnin'.

Incidentally, may I also thank you for your cheery and fine criticisms. I have been a fan since the nickle days, when I used to slink close to the buildings and dodge in the entrance quickly when no one was looking. H. P. D.

* *

Looking the Part

Dear Miss Tinée: It seems to me the one to play Lightnin' Bill is Tully Marshall. He is inimitable in whatever part he essays, and does he not look the part of Lightnin' Bill to perfection? S. F.

* *

Francis Named Again

Dear Mae Tinée. May I suggest an actor who could certainly play the part of "Lightnin' Bill?" It is Alec Francis—at least, I think that is the name. You know who I mean. He is the most lovable of characters and I know a number of people who ordinarily care nothing for the movies always make it a point to see every picture in which he appears. DOROTHY.

* *

Keenan Her Choice

Dear Miss Tinée: This is my first letter to you, yet I closely follow all you write and enjoy it all.

I saw wonderful Frank Keenan in "The Dixie Handicap," but tell me, Miss Mae, whoever saw a wild cat in Kentucky, or a southern man wear his hat in greeting a woman?

I think Frank Keenan is wonderful, and would like to see him in Golden's play, "Lightnin'." C. M. C.

KICK KORNER

Tired of D. W. G.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why all the lavish praise for Griffith's "Isn't Life Wonderful"? To me it represented nothing more than a news weekly of incidents in Germany, during the war and the food shortage.

Anyway, people are getting tired of Griffith's hokus-pokus characters. They are not true to life. I for one am tired of the "soft" closeups of Carol Dempster, rolling her eyes, twitching her lips convulsively, and twirling her toes. All bunk! And when he makes his characters walk from room to room, they move so slowly and jerky, you'd like to give them a push.

I'll bet the small towners eat this up, thinking it's art, because the critics in the big city newspapers say it is and they think surely they can't be wrong.

O, no! Griffith had better watch his step. I'll bet Chaplin's next picture, not his comedy, but his next drama, which he says will be even better than "A Woman of Paris," will so far outrank Griffith, Chaplin will be proclaimed the new master—unless Griffith stages a big comeback. He's been skidding since "The Birth of a Nation" and "Broken Blossoms." Well, that's all; I spoke my piece. G. J. G.

HIS VICTIM LIES DEAD BEFORE HIM
Too Late The Vision of the Electric Chair
Is the Death Penalty Useless?
Thomas Mott Osborn
former warden of Sing Sing declares in a debate in the February FORUM that the death penalty does not prevent crime as well as other forms of punishment and is contrary to the fundamental ethics of human progress. "Thou shalt not kill."
THE FEBRUARY FORUM
Robert E. Crowe
District Attorney of Chicago, who plead in vain that the law be upheld against the youthful murderers, Loeb and Leopold, maintains that death is still the only effective deterrent to murder and the just penalty of society for the great crime.
LOVE AMONG TRAMPS
"Poor Man's Inn," by Richard Hughes in the February FORUM, is a powerful story of primitive passion in a cave in the Welsh mountains.
NEW AMERICAN GODS
Jules Bois, the French psychologist, explored America on behalf of the FORUM and unearthed a group of new religions, the first of which he describes in the February FORUM: "The Holy Rollers."
THE GREAT FARM REBELLION
At last a workable solution of the perennial woes of the farmers is present in the February FORUM by Frank Bohn, an ex-farmer who has become an economist. Every American should read it.
WHAT IS WOMANHOOD?
"Soundings," the serial by Hamilton Gibbs, analyses with astonishing reticence the problems of a motherless British girl approaching her destiny.

"Soiled" Isn't as Bad as It Sounds

By Mae Tinee.

too, but though their domestic affairs are given quite a little footage, they really haven't a great deal to do with the story proper.

It's nice to see little Vivian Martin again, and Johnny Walker plays admirably the brother who, aside from his one slip, is such a decent, likable, upstanding young fellow. Kenneth Harlan makes a satisfactory lover, and he has a good, substantial fist that teaches the rich man something. So has Mr. Walker, by the way, who teaches the suave gentleman something else again. Result—TWO black eyes. Yes, and one can always learn about villains from Robert Cain. Minor rôles are well enough played, and the photography is all right.

So much for the picture. But, still thinking of that title—here are some excerpts from a letter Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal company, wrote me the other day. Read—think—and write me your ideas on the subject. Will you, please?

"May I ask you to give me your candid opinion on the matter of whether I am on the right track in my determination to make clean pictures and nothing but clean ones? . . . I am searching for the honest truth.

"You are in a better position than I am to judge whether the people want the clean stuff or the other. You see more pictures than I do and you see them in the presence of an audience. I see them in the lonesomeness of my own projection room, and there's a big difference.

"There is a natural temptation to say, 'The clean stuff is the best in the long run.' We would all like to believe that—but is it true, in your opinion? . . . Tell me something further about the masses who attend the movies. Do they really want costume pictures? Do they want sex problems? Do they want outdoor productions, or westerns, or comedy dramas, or fairy tales?"

What DO you want, folks? Honest and truly? You're the doctors. What sort of pictures do you prescribe for the producers to turn out that shall make them happy and wealthy and wise, this year?

See you tomorrow!

Voice of the Fan

Charmed with "Peter Pan."

Dear Miss Tinée: I just this minute got home from seeing "Peter Pan," and, judging from your enthusiastic review, I'm sure you can appreciate my feelings. O, you Betty Bronson! Wasn't she just adorable, Miss Mae? So young, so fresh, so radiant, and such an amazingly good little actress! Next to her I liked Nana, the dog, best. Strongheart hasn't a show against that clever imposter. And Mrs. Darling reminded me of David Copperfield's mother, of the Dearest of Little Lord Fauntleroy, and—well—of just all the sweet, pretty young mothers I've ever read about.

That's just the way with "Peter Pan." It keeps reminding one of something. Children may adore it and laugh loudly at its humor, but I think its subtleties, its charming little ins and outs, can best be appreciated by an adult—an adult who hasn't grown up yet inside. BEBE.

[Editor's Note: Thank you for the pleasant words I haven't space to print. I was happier all day after that letter!]

Confessing an Error.

Dear Miss Tinée: I was much interested in your review of "Peter Pan." I haven't any right to like this picture. After what I said last summer about the utter, abysmal stupidity of everybody who could not see May McAvoy was the one foreordained to portray this rôle, I am really duty bound to be utterly disgusted with Betty Bronson. I intended to be, but the minute I got my first glimpse of Betty I knew it was going to be hard.

The production is to me entirely satisfying, at once one of the loveliest and one of the most significant of recent years. Lovely, because it is the best child and fairy play since "The Blue Bird," since those blessed things of Marguerite Clark's "Snow White" and "The Seven Swans" that once upon a time Paramount was in the habit of giving us for Christmas. Significant because, like "The Thief of Bagdad" and "The Enchanted Cottage," the outstanding achievements of the last season, it seems to indicate that the screen is turning toward fantasy, that it is at last about to take possession of the one realm of the imagination in which it is without a peer.

I earnestly hope the success of "Peter Pan" may encourage producers to turn more attention to this field, and consequently to spare us at least a few of the numerous tiresome chronicles of gilded debauchery and pious guff which now seem to constitute their favorite type of screen literature.

As for Peter himself, my imagination is still haunted with visions of what Miss McAvoy would have done with the part. But that is no excuse for failing to acknowledge that Betty Bronson's radiant performance has placed me greatly in her debt. She is the freshest, the healthiest personality that has flitted across the screen in a long time, and it is precisely because she is so inexperienced, because she hasn't grown up artistically any more than physically, because she is in the main yet ignorant of the tricks of the theater, that her performance is so beautiful. Never, except when Irene Pavloska sang Hänsel on the stage of the Auditorium, has a woman succeeded so gloriously in playing the part of a boy.

Miss Bronson is so lovely that I find myself concerned for her future. Her Peter is such a success that it is a foregone conclusion she will remain on the screen. But what will they give her to play? Heaven knows a "Peter Pan" isn't written every day. Will she, the next time we see her, be trying her best to go through the paces of some maudlin yarn of "unshackled youth?" Will she pass into the tender talons of some idiot of a director who, instead of allowing her to be her natural, radiant self, will teach her to register and to present a characterization? That would be a rather terrible fate for Peter Pan, wouldn't it? If Betty is a wise little girl, she will save herself for the Peter rôles, even if they come only once a Christmas. E. C. W. assurance of what exquisite loveliness of line and color is in her performances. Those who have not are due to have a totally new experience.

"It is impossible," says M. Lewenson, the Paris critic of art and drama, "to compare any other theatrical sensation to that poetical spell exercised by one of Pavlowa's arabesques. This schematic line of the arabesque, its geometrical outline, is transformed by Pavlowa into an undulation of sudden and surprising beauty. The line is traced by the foot, stretched out and magnificently arched; by the knee, elegantly curved; by the torso, supple as the stem of a flower; by the rounded curve of the elbow, and the delicate angle of the wrist. Taut, like a vibrating chord, the vibrations of the line seem to extend into space.

"Pavlowa's 'line' is not only decorative and expressive, it is symbolical. We decipher the arabesque of the ballerina as the visible sign of a concealed message. The technique of the classic school speaks here the sublime language of hieroglyphics. The gymnastic feat of Pavlowa, expressed in the extended muscles of a limb, rises to the mystic heights of a liturgy."

A Musical Adventure.

It has been left for a Chicago singer, Miss Laura Williams, to make some interesting discoveries in Arabian music. For nearly two years she has been in Tunis, where she found a great wealth of what she was seeking, and which she has been studying and collecting ever since. She speaks of having met Baron Rudolf d'Erlanger there, a man who has been investigating the subject exhaustively for a number of years. Among his discoveries is "the first, original scale," the system of tones that went from Ancient Egypt into Greece, from there into the Christian church, and thence to modernity.

Miss Williams has written to some of her friends of the difficulties she found with strange melodies, strange rhythms, and quarter-tones used as naturally as we use half-tones. In the search it was necessary to learn the Arabic language and three or four oriental instruments. But she considers the experience has been worth the trouble.

"Before I met Baron d'Erlanger," she says, "I had secured about thirty songs from a Syrian here who sings and plays professionally. They were mostly the simple, every day folk songs, which these people sing at their work, in their homes, or on the road; songs learned from their parents, who had in turn had them from their parents, and so on back. How old these songs are no one knows; I had to take them down from hearing him sing them; so far as I know they had never been written.

"In the small towns and in the country these people are living the same lives, in the same sort of houses, using the same tools and utensils, and clothes and customs that were lived and used in the time of Christ, or even beyond that. Even in the cities in large Arab houses where the salon is an atrocity of French furnishings of the eighties they still do their cooking over numerous, three legged earthen pots of charcoal, as they have done for centuries. If they turn on the phonograph it is quite likely to play "Yes, We Have No Bananas," but when they prepare food over a charcoal fire they hum or sing things in strange scales and in rhythms like nothing you ever heard. So it seems likely that their music, which is the natural expression of an inner state of mind, has changed as little as the more material evidences of that state of mind.

"That is real folk music. But then we have the so-called classical music of the Arabs; beautiful old poems set to beautiful old melodies based on definite rules of mode and rhythm—those old rules which we are so anxious to find. Some of these classic songs I got from my Syrian, but most of them I took down from a man whom Baron d'Erlanger had trained, so that he knew the old rules as well as the songs. And there my troubles began. Those modes or scales have frequent quarter tone intervals and the poor old ear which is accustomed only to half tones has rather a bad time of it at first. But, worst of all, are the rhythms. They are marvelous. We of the west have no idea what rhythm can be. When the accents of the melodic line are continually broken so there can be no time indication and then against that is the rhythmic beat of 10-8 in three, four, and three, or again a 4-4 rhythm in a syncopated accent, you can imagine how impossible it seemed. At first I could sing the songs or beat the rhythm but not both at once. Strangely enough, also, when the singers played and sang to me I could use my ears and brain and hand and write the things down, but the moment the rhythm was beaten with the singing all mental reactions ceased. I could no longer analyze what I was hearing; I seemed to be merely feeling. If I believed in reincarnation I should be certain that some time I had lived in the desert to the beat of the tom-tom.

"All that made it very difficult, but I hope I have caught something of it. I want so much to have people like this music for itself. It is lovely."

Here and There in Music.

The Civic orchestra of Chicago, by all odds the most prominent result of the work being done by the Civic Music association, will give its first Orchestra hall concert of the season this afternoon. Frederick Stock is the musical director and Eric DeLamarter assistant conductor. The soloist will be Florence Scholl, pianist, who will appear in Saint-Saëns' Fifth Concerto. The orchestra will play Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture, two movements from the same composer's Seventh Symphony, Dukas' "L'Apprenti Sorcier," and Chabrier's "Espana."

Mr. Stock tells of a popular concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra on Thursday night, as well as the regular subscription concerts of Friday afternoon and Saturday night, all at Orchestra hall. A typical popular program will be played on Thursday. The subscription programs will have Alfred Cortot, the distinguished French pianist, as soloist in the Schumann A minor Concerto, also Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" Overture, Bach's Third Concerto, and Daniel Gregory Mason's Symphony in C minor, the last named a new work.

Though the opera company has moved along, headed for Boston on the first lap of its annual gadding about the country, three of its important singers are remaining behind, at least for a day, to appear in a recital of large dimensions at the Auditorium tonight. They are Florence Macbeth, one of Campanini's discoveries in the days of that lamented maestro, and who has done by all odds the finest coloratura singing of the season; Tito Schipa, who begins to sing at the point where other lyric tenors leave off; and Joseph Schwarz, one of the most notable baritones of the age.

The Auditorium will be reasonably busy today, for in the afternoon Fritz Kreisler will take the stage for the first time this season and give a violin recital. He schedules a Handel Sonata, a Bach Fugue, Bruch's G minor Concerto, and a group of short pieces.

A correspondent from Casper, Wyo., desires to know what is the national musical instrument of the United States. As R. H. L. is fond of remarking, I'll bite, what is the national musical instrument of the United States?

Nicholas Medtner, the Russian composer-pianist, is announced to give a recital at Kimball hall on Tuesday night. The greater part of the program will be of his own works, including some songs to be sung by the Chicago soprano, Louise Hattstaedt Winter. She will, however, present some songs by other composers.

The North Shore Festival association's prize contest for composers closed the first of the year with eighty-two manuscripts entered. Between now and May the judges, Charles M. Loeffler, Richard Hageman, and Percy Grainger, will select the five most meritorious, and during the festival they will go into conclave to select the best as it appears from the performance of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The winner will receive a prize of $1,000 and his work will be played at a later concert of the festival. It and the second choice will also appear next season in the orchestra's Chicago programs.

Another February event, to take place the third, will be the first Chicago appearance of Nadia Boulanger of Paris, who will lecture under the auspices of the Musical guild and the Chicago Woman's club, at the rooms of the latter organization, on modern music and its evolution. She will speak in English and give illustrations at the piano. Mlle. Boulanger is professor of harmony at the American conservatory of Fontainebleau, professor of organ, harmony, counterpoint, and fugue at the Paris Normal Music school, and musical critic of the Monde Musical.

TONIGHT

FLORENCE MACBETH.
[Moffett photo.]

Having made an operatic record in which to take pride this season, Miss Macbeth will appear tonight in a song recital at the Auditorium. She will be associated with two other notables, Tito Schipa, the tenor, and Joseph Schwarz, the baritone.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Overdoing the Sobs.

My Dear Miss Tinée: Does the movie public know what it wants? A certain movie now being shown in one of our large picture palaces is being received coldly. The idea back of this movie story is not weak, nor is it far-fetched: the conflict between romance and duty.

The central figure of the story is depicted by one of our lovely women of the screen, who shows fine feeling for each situation. Her supporting cast gives able and intelligent aid. The background consists of the group of sure fire scenes, which are almost a formula for modern society pictures: interior of millionaire's residence; deck of liner; the dance; not to mention our old friend the church wedding. Why then the lack of appeal in this picture? There was even the baby, and an adorable one, too.

Now we'll tell you why this play is not a success. Poor Christine of the Hungry Heart was not allowed to be happy for five minutes out of the hour or more she was before us. Those responsible for this picture seemed to enjoy having their poor victim writhe in innumerable mental agonies and they intended you to writhe with her. You did unless you were hard as nails or rose in revolt against the whole proceeding and refused to weep. There was about as much joy in this picture as sun light in a coal mine.

Well, we won't have our fair women of the screen, especially Florence Vidor, treated that way. They must have a fighting chance or we stay away.

They took little Dick Barthelmess and had three gigantic loons mess him all over the screen till with his last gasp he killed the three and made "Tol'able David" a great success for many who thought his scriptural namesake's exploit rather tame. However, we must admit the director gave him a "fitin" chance, which Miss Vidor's director did not till her audience was asleep or dissolved in tears.

B. L. A. LISTENS TO DISCUSSIONS ON RECEPTION

Engineers Demonstrate How It's Done.

At the Broadcast Listeners' Association of America, Inc., open meeting at Hamilton park Wednesday the fans were thoroughly instructed how to obtain selectivity with their receivers—the eliminating of interference and secure perfect reception. The technical program included William J. Schnell, M. H. Romberg, Ralph S. Drummond, James Schultz, and Jack Kebberup. They demonstrated a reflex receiver.

Questions and answers brought about an open discussion and relation of experiences by the fans which proved most beneficial to all present.

The next open meeting of the B. L. A. will be Wednesday, Feb. 4, when there will be discussion of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE range.

F. H. McDonald, president of BLA, has accepted an invitation to go to Elgin Jan. 29 to organize a radio club for the Y. M. C. A. branch there. The new organization will be in affiliation with BLA in Chicago.

RADIO TUBES TO BE EMPLOYED TO MELT STEEL

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

SHEFFIELD, England, Jan. 24.—Wireless tubes can be used to melt masses of steel to white hot liquid, it is revealed by Dr. C. H. Desch, dean of the faculty of the Metallurgy University at Sheffield. Within a few months the big Sheffield steel plants will install the first trial furnaces operated by wireless for the manufacture of certain nickel alloys by passing 200 volt currents direct into the tubes with alternating current of extremely high frequency, and then through the metal, which gets hotter than the crucible containing it.

SWEDISH PAPER OFFERS PRIZE TO U. S. AMATEURS

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 24.—Word has been received by the American Radio Relay league from Radiobladet, a Swedish magazine in Stockholm, in which this publication offers a prize of $100 to the American amateur whose station is heard by the greatest number of Swedish amateurs. The test is to be made next Sunday between 1 and 3 a. m., eastern standard time. The wave lengths are to be in the 75 to 85 meter band.

Illinois Manufacturers to Have Big Program

"Making Your Opportunity," will be the subject of a talk by Samuel M. Hastings, president of the Dayton Scale company, Chicago, at the Tuesday noon radio program beginning at 12 o'clock, of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, at the Daily News broadcasting station, WMAQ, Hotel La Salle. The musical program will be by members of the Sloan Valve company. As an added attraction Miss Rose Vavra of the Illinois Manufacturers' association staff will sing by request "My Dad's Dinner Pail" and also the popular selection, "All Alone."

Gets France on Wave Length of 90 Meters

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 24.—Signals from England and France were picked up on a wave length of ninety meters at station 5-AC, owned and operated by Norman S. Hurley of this city. Stations heard were English 2-SZ and French 8-SSC. The signals from the French stations were heard all over a big room on a two step amplifier. The receiver used is a home made low loss timer. The distance is approximately 4,500 miles.

OUCH! BACKACHE! RUB LUMBAGO AWAY

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 35 cent bottle of old, honest St. Jacobs Oil at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and the soreness and lameness is gone.

In use for 65 years, this soothing, penetrating oil takes the pain right out, and ends the misery. It is absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Take These 2 Steps to Better Pay and Greater Opportunity

1 A few short months of training in shorthand, typewriting and secretarial duties will put you in a position that pays a better salary than the average income of young people. Our appointment bureau always has more requests for our graduates than we have graduates to send out.

2 In the position of stenographer-secretary you will work with executives where your efficiency will be seen and rewarded with ever-increasing salary and responsibility. Thus, the position of stenographer-secretary is Youth's greatest opportunity for advancement—as thousands of our graduates have proved.

Book of Facts, free

If you want to do something today about your future six months from now as well as six years from now, investigate GREGG SCHOOL, the gateway to larger earnings. Call in person and get the facts—write or telephone, and our 64-page Book of Facts will be sent. No obligation in either case.

ZION TO TRY OUT HIGH POWER SET TOMORROW WEEK

Listeners to Gain Idea of How It Works.

BY STEPHEN GILCHRIST.
[Radio Editor.]

Listeners in the middle west will have opportunity a week from tomorrow to judge whether or not they like the idea of high power transmission. On that date WCBD will put on in the evening what Announcer De Pugh has been pleased to designate as "the finest program this station ever has prepared."

WCBD will have an input into the antenna of 1,500 watts, and it is quite likely that crystal reception of the station will be reported from many points quite distant from Zion.

This station has always been sharply tuned and consistent in its transmission and it is not expected that anything but favorable comment will follow its advent into the ranks of high power transmitters, except from that element who believe that Elgin, Mooseheart, Zion, Batavia, and Joliet should observe silent night with Chicago radiophones.

Silent Night Suggestion.

That brings us again to an idea expressed in this column some time ago, following the European tests. This had to do with the possibility of silent periods by districts, possibly of one night a week, from 7 to 12.

This would present a really ideal arrangement and would not be difficult to work. Nor would it be hard, in the opinion of the writer, to find enthusiastic support among the broadcasters. It would mean that on one night of every week broadcast stations would be assured of hundreds of thousands of listeners who otherwise never would be reached.

Also it would afford science new opportunity of studying transmission peculiarities.

The United States and Canada could be marked off into three districts, with two silent while the third transmitted. Bagging the far ones would then be something on the order of a real national sport, with new crystal records to be recorded when high power gets fairly into swing.

Injustice to WOC.

In the record of Dialog, covering reception on New Year's eve, WOC, the Palmer school station at Davenport, Ia., came in for a chiding for interference with WOO, Philadelphia, during the Liberty bell ceremony. It was only recently that the writer learned that WOC signed off at 10:58 (11:58 eastern standard time), remaining off the air several minutes in order to give listeners in its territory opportunity to hear the tolling of the historic bell. Dialog's record showed that interference experienced came before WOC left the air and after, and may have been due in part to "side tuning" to get away from a pestiferous spark.

Left Handed Compliment.

On Dec. 28 we printed a bit of advice, under our signature, on the tuning of regenerative sets. A week ago, in a batch of publicity sent out from General Electric company headquarters, Schenectady, N. Y., we received this same article, with the suggestion that we print it for the benefit it would work in the communities served by THE TRIBUNE.

It was somewhat of a compliment to have this article sent out to the newspapers of the country for publication, but inasmuch as General Electric failed to give the slightest hint that it had been taken word for word from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, we failed deeply to appreciate it.

OPEN HIGH POWER PLANT

A special program has been prepared by Fred Smith, studio director, for the official opening Tuesday night in Cincinnati of the new 5,000 watt transmitting station of WLW. It is the first remotely controlled station, being twenty-five miles distant from the studio. The idea of locating the station outside of thickly populated centers originated with Powell Crosley Jr., who is a member of the Hoover Radio conference. The purpose of locating the transmission plant as far as possible from the studio was to provide less interference among local set owners.

The program Tuesday night contains many attractive musical features, in addition to addresses by engineers prominent in the radio industry.

Work Proceeding at WCCO.

Minneapolis, Minn. — Construction of a building has begun on top of the new Nicollet hotel to house the new broadcasting studio for WCCO. Washburn Crosby Co., owners of the station, announce that this studio will be completed late in February, simultaneously with completion of the new 5,000-watt broadcasting station which is being constructed eighteen miles northwest of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Minneapolis executive offices of WCCO will be opened at the same time on the twelfth floor of the hotel.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, Jan. 25.) (Central standard time throughout.)

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, has arranged an unusually interesting hour of two-piano music to be broadcast today during the 2 to 5 o'clock classic program. Moissaye Boguslawski will present his artist students, Mrs. Helen Burnett of St. Louis and Miss Helen Pollens of Chicago, between 2:30 and 3:20 p. m.

Mrs. Burnett, coming from St. Louis for the purpose, will play the second and third movement of Rachmaninoff's concerto and Miss Pollenz the second and third movements of the Arensky concerto. Mr. Boguslawski will play the orchestral scores at the second piano. Musical Director Charles H. Gabriel Jr. will provide short explanatory remarks regarding the compositions and composers.

Edwin Stanley Seder will be heard from the Lyon & Healy organ studio in a half hour program beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At 3:30 the Chicago Musical college program begins, the following being scheduled to play and sing:

Empress Pierson, David Radunsky, Marshall Sosson, and Dorothy Amtman, all of Chicago; Anne Lee Taylor, South Bend, Ind.; John Kessler, St. Louis, Mo.; Edward Otis, Madison, Wis.; Gerald Smith Anderson, Ind.; Kathleen Ryan, Oak Park, Ill., and Sam Thaviu, Evanston, Ill.

Of particular interest this morning is the presentation of the opera "Martha" by a cast of principals consisting of Aroesta Parrish, Marie Herron, Themy Georgi, Milo Luka, and Carl Bitterl, a chorus of fifty members of the Apollo Music club, and the Symphony orchestra, broadcast by W-G-N from the Balaban & Katz Chicago theater. The opera will be sung in English, under the direction of Nathaniel Finston, musical director of the theater. It will begin at 11:45 o'clock, immediately following Uncle Walt's hour of comics for the children, which starts at 11 this morning.

Director Gabriel has chosen the late great French composer Achille Claude Debussy as the subject of tonight's "Evenings with the Composers," the hour being 9 to 10 p. m. Miss Ethel Wakefield and the Drake Concert ensemble, the latter under the direction of Henry Selinger, will assist. Last week's talk on Franz Liszt will be resumed next Sunday evening during this hour.

DETAILS OF TODAY'S W-G-N PROGRAM.

DUPAGE COUNTY LISTENERS HOLD AIR CONVENTION

The first county radio convention was held in Dupage county, Illinois, Friday night. Groups gathered in various homes in the county to listen to Albert E. Roberts, secretary of the town and country department of the Y. M. C. A. of New York City, who spoke over WLS.

Mr. Roberts has talked to more than 100,000 boys throughout the country in the last year. His address over the radio was of special interest to everyone interested in rural life conditions. In addition to Dupage county twenty-nine other counties in the central region participated in the program.

RADIO STOCKS IN DEMAND; TRADE STRIDES AHEAD

Rauland Incorporates; Stewart-Warner In.

Expansion of the radio industry—admitted on all hands in the world of business to hold the record for gigantic strides in volume of sales and number of concerns organized—has been marked by popular demands for stocks of incorporated concerns.

Sensational records have been made on the Chicago stock exchange and New York curb by radio securities within the last two months, these including the Electric Research laboratories, of this city, which was incorporated recently, and which was up $11 a share before it had been on the market a fortnight.

All-American Incorporates.

Important developments in the industry in the middle west, now regarded as the hub of the industry, in the last week, have been the entrance of the Stewart-Warner company as radio manufacturers, and the announcement that the All-American Radio corporation has been formed to take over the business of the Rauland Manufacturing company.

The Stewart-Warner company, nationally known as manufacturers of automobile accessories, shortly will begin marketing a five tube receiver, with other models, it is understood, to be turned out later. One floor of the Diversey parkway plant has been remodeled for the radio division.

Rauland Plans Extension.

Extensions of the business of the All-American Manufacturing company is a part of the plan of E. N. Rauland, president of the new corporation and also its chief stockholder.

Mr. Rauland started his business in 1920 as the All-American Electrical Manufacturers, makers of electrical devices, with transformers a specialty. Shortly afterward he began development of radio apparatus. In 1922 the business was incorporated as the Rauland Manufacturing company. The plant is at 2650 Coyne street, Chicago.

By formation of the new corporation 40,000 shares of class A stock having a par value of $5 a share was put on the market, and was oversubscribed before the subscription books were opened. The allotment price was fixed at $26 a share, and within twenty-four hours after the allotments the stock was quoted on the Chicago curb at $32 a share.

Assets and liabilities of the company balanace at $1,087,042.11, with cash on hand totaling nearly $550,000. Mr. Rauland is a director in the Radio Manufacturers' association.

W-G-N NOTES

Walter Murray, decorative advisor to O. W. Richardson & Co., whose talks on interior decoration every Wednesday and Friday afternoons from W-G-N have become very popular, will have for his subject next Wednesday afternoon at Rocking Chair time, "How Shall I Decorate My Piano and Mantle?" and on Friday afternoon, "Wall Papers that Furnish the Home."

Charles H. Gabriel Jr., musical director of W-G-N, is to speak next Wednesday evening before the association of commerce of Cedar Rapids, Ia. Quin Ryan, the chief announcer, directed an evenings' program last week at the radio show at Joliet, Ill., and afterward announced the program from Station WWAE, at Joliet. The boys do get around!

Bags and bags of mail come to Uncle Walt of W-G-N daily, begging him to send up stars for children listeners, and the traffic has become so involved that he has hit upon the following plan. Certain days will be set aside for children with certain names, such as "Mary," "John," "Margaret," and "James." Every name will have its day and all young folks with those names who request stars will receive them, shot into the heavens by Uncle Walt, assisted by "Cuckoo," and "Jumbo," the baby elephant. The dates are: Tuesday, Feb. 10, "Mary"; Wednesday, Feb. 11, "John"; Thursday, Feb. 12, "Margaret"; Friday, Feb. 13, "James." Other dates will be announced by Walt during "Skeezix time" at 5:30 each evening.

Miss Francine Larrimore, star of "Parasites" at the Princess theater, will be heard during Rocking Chair time from W-G-N Tuesday afternoon.

FRENCH WANT OWN TERMS.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Commandant Reue Mesny, famous short wave expert of the military service here, complained that French amature radiophans should not use such words as "fading," "speaker," and numerous others of American origin. The French should originate a radio vocabulary of their own, instead of using others' words, he says.

W-G-N TO PUT "PINAFORE" ON THE AIR TUESDAY

The entire performance of "H. M. S. Pianfore," the comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be broadcast next Tuesday evening direct from the Great Northern theater by W-G-N in the same manner that was so astoundingly successful two weeks ago in putting "The Mikado" on the air.

The beloved old comedian De Wolf Hopper and his associates will be heard in the rollicking operatic favorite all week at the theater.

Quin Ryan, the W-G-N announcer, will be again in a box at the theater with Paul G. Neal, engineer, who suggested the enterprise of putting Gilbert and Sullivan on the radio. Quin will have libretto in hand as before, explaining the action during moments of applause, and painting the scenes before him. Another "mike" will be in the footlights.

Announcer Ryan has received a record breaking total of applause cards and letters and commendation on "The Mikado." No other single feature broadcast by W-G-N has brought such widespread praise. The mail is still arriving, and when it has been finally sorted, a résumé of the contents will appear in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. In the mail noted so far, California, Maine, Texas, Louisiana, Montana, and five provinces of Canada are represented.

Next Wednesday night, starting at midnight, W-G-N will stage a two hour program for reception in Australia and New Zealand.

AMATEUR GETS RICE EXPEDITION IN BRAZIL WILD

Conversation Carried On Over 7,000 Miles.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—One of the most curious phenomena of English radio history occurred last week when Garlad Marcuse, an amateur at Caterham, found himself in communication with the Rice expedition, 7,000 miles away in the heart of wildest Brazil. The explorers, headed by Hamilton E. Rice, an American scientist, searching for "White Indians," are 1,000 miles up the Amazon river and 200 miles from the nearest village, and nothing has been heard from them for some weeks.

After first talking with a North American station, the English amateur heard a faint call and picked up the Rice expedition. He asked how the weather was and heard this answer:

"Balmy and warm. In the day the temperature is 90, and cold at night. The wind from the Pampas river is very swift."

The two men then said good-by across 7,000 miles.

The expedition has a small portable set, has an aerial input power of 100 watts, and uses a short wavelength.

COLLEGE MEN IN SONG FEST.

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—International intercollegiate night will be broadcast by WGY, Schenectady, Saturday night. Five hundred graduates of technical colleges and all student engineers or engineers of the General Electric company will participate, offering the songs and the cheers of their alma mater.

Super-Het Results on Four-Tube Knockout

Coast to coast with loud-speaker volume on a seventy-foot antenna—
That is the promise made by Silver-Marshall when this remarkable receiver made its first appearance.
Three Pacific coast stations in one evening; twenty-seven stations logged from coast to coast, in Chicago, in daylight—those are two of the many reports received as evidence of the manner in which the FOUR-TUBE KNOCKOUT is living up to our claims.
Behind the amazing performance of the knockout are the sound engineering principles of McMurdo Silver, Assoc. I. R. E.
Behind every claim made by Silver-Marshall is the confidence established by the consistent performance of the Silver Super, the Seven-tube Wonder Set—the set that with seven dry-cell tubes will surpass the performance of all other supers, regardless of the number of tubes used.
Parts for both the Four-tube Knockout and the Silver-Super can be seen on display at our store.
Parts for the Knockout, complete, price $43.50

Has highest insulating qualities
ANY leakage due to poor insulation has a very noticeable effect on the current and volume of the current delivered to the phones or loud speaker. This is why the panel material you use is highly important.
Make sure of good results from your new set by using Radion—the insulating material developed exclusively for radio's special needs. It helps to eliminate panel leakage and capacity effects, often increasing that extra bit of energy that is needed to tune in distant stations.
Radion Panels are good-looking, too. Two are easy to drill, saw and cut. Eighteen stock sizes, two kinds, Black and Mahoganite. Ask for them by name.

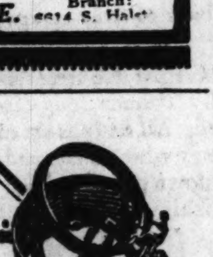
Say "B-T" for "Better Tuning"



BRADLEY, Technical Editor of Wireless Age, the oldest radio magazine, says:
"The results obtained with B-T Tuner have never been equalled by myself or my associates. Have never had a receiver of any kind before in this office with which WNYC could be tuned out entirely with WEAF on."
FREUND, Technical Editor of the Chicago Evening Post, which boasts the largest laboratory of any newspaper in the country, says:
"Can assert with confidence that the B-T No. 2 (using Type B Tuner and L-11 condensers) will outshine any other detector set working under similar conditions, for distance, selectivity and quality of tone."
Mr. J. B. Y., of San Antonio, Texas, says:
"In each instance where I did not use B-T parts I regretted it."

BROADCASTING CONGRESS BESET WITH PROBLEMS

Microphone Offers Greatest Physical Difficulty.

BY S. R. WINTERS.

That congress will not broadcast its own proceedings by radio is the belief that is prevailing in Washington official circles. Although a resolution has been introduced in the senate and house calling for an estimate as to the feasibility and cost of broadcasting congressional proceedings, it is generally anticipated that the sense of this report, to be made by government radio engineers, will be of an adverse nature.

Obstacles are encountered in both the contemplated installation of apparatus in the two branches of congress and in blanketing the debates by radio over the entire country. First, it is well nigh impossible to install microphones so that they will successfully pick up the discussions of the various members of congress. Even if a microphone were placed at the seat of each individual legislator the tendency of representatives and senators to meander or prance about the floor while speaking would prevent the microphones from picking up their respective speeches.

Have Daylight Difficulties.

If it were possible to install successfully a "pickup" system in the senate and house of representatives, then another obstacle immediately presents itself, that is, the limiting factor of daylight radio transmission and reception. The broadcast listener is aware of the difficulty of hearing the signals of other than local or nearby transmitting stations during daylight hours. For instance, this writer, with the use of a super heterodyne receiving set, is enabled to hear speech and concerts from Philadelphia stations during midday and the interception of more distant broadcasting station is only a freakish performance.

Obviously, members of congress would be averse to the broadcasting of legislative proceedings unless the entire United States could be blanketed. A representative from a rural district that is invading the "pork barrel" for an appropriation for widening Beaver Dam creek would be as much concerned that his discussions on the subject should be heard by his constituency as if the entire membership of the two branches of congress were involved in a debate as to the merits of a national tax measure.

Possible Solution.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, without any allusion to the broadcasting of congressional proceedings, has previously proclaimed the interconnection of transmitting stations as the most important radio development of 1924. Logically, it would then seem, that the interlinking of stations all over the country would prove a solution to disseminating the debates and speeches of our national lawmaking bodies.

The willingness of such a great number of stations to form a chain for this purpose is problematical, and if the cost factor enters then another difficulty is confronted.

The truth to tell, although there are more than 500 broadcasting stations in existence, these are not so advantageously situated as to reach all portions of the country through the medium of daylight radio transmission. For instance, there are thousands of crystal-detector sets and cheap vacuum tube receivers that are practically useless in the daytime, even though they may be almost within the shadow of a broadcasting station. The proceedings of congress, if broadcast, could not be heard by the owners of these inexpensive radio equipment and our lawmakers would receive complaints from these persons once this departure were introduced.

America to Get Latest in European Radio Weekly

New York, Jan. 24.—The latest happenings in the world of radio and science in all European countries will be broadcast by WGBS, New York, every Tuesday evening at 7:20 o'clock. A news service has been arranged for, whereby the radio audience will be informed of current scientific developments. This service is sent to WGBS by F. M. Delano from Paris. Particular stress will be laid on the methods of foreign broadcasting stations, showing the points of difference between them and the American stations.

WIDE VARIETY OF GIVERS IN RADIO FUND FOR BLIND

Short Time Remains in Campaign.

BY CHARLES D. WARNER.

Very little time remains in THE TRIBUNE's campaign to raise funds for the purchase of radio sets for the blind. Meantime interest in this enterprise is kept up among a widely varied number of organizations, as the list discloses. One particularly noteworthy contribution comes from "The Family Charity circle." The circle unites in a gift of $50. The family consists of Mrs. E. Mayer, J. Katz, M. Haber, P. Elsner, I. Mayer, L. Kallen, J. Kahn, M. Kahn, C. Weitz, H. Oberndorf, L. Oberndorf, J. Oberndorf, D. C. Oberndorf, J. D. Abraham, and D. A. Stein, 5001 Drexel boulevard.

"I hope the older blind will be the first considered," writes one. "Their time is short to derive the benefits."

The utmost care is being taken in the allotment, especially in the worthiness of the cases considered. It is not only a matter of judgment and discrimination, but the responsibility is fully realized of making the wisest possible expenditure of the money contributed.

Contributions to the fund since the last published acknowledgments are:

The Family Charity circle, $50; Unique Ladies' club, $15; F. H. Hallock, $13.50; Mizpah Aid society and Ravenswood post, No. 49, American Legion, $10 each; Mrs. J. C. Phillips, Mrs. W. A. Harris, Mrs. F. A. Tinkham, Chicago Woman's auxiliary of the American Railway Mail association, Clement Bible class of Austin Methodist Episcopal church, $5 each; Mrs. A. J. Tanck, $2; anonymous, $1. Total, $126.50. Previously acknowledged, $5,565.34. Grand total, $5,691.84.

PRESIDENT WILL TALK BUSINESS OF GOVERNMENT

New York, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—President Coolidge will deliver an address at the semi-annual meeting of the business organization of the United States government to be held in Continental Memorial hall, Washington, Monday evening. Broadcasting, which will be done by station WCAP, will begin at 7:30. Gen. Lord, director of the budget, will also address the meeting. The musical program will be rendered by the United States Marine band.

INAUGURAL WILL BE BROADCAST TO ALL OF U. S.

Another epoch making event in the swiftly moving history of radio broadcasting is foreseen in the arrangements being completed to enable the entire radio audience of the United States to "listen in" to the inaugural ceremonies at Washington, D. C., on March 4.

This announcement was made following a conference between the committee appointed by congress, representatives of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company, and the Radio Corporation of America.

Whole Country to Get It.

The proceedings will be broadcast through WEAF, the experimental station of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in New York City, coming from Washington over that company's long distance lines, and will be transmitted by other telephone lines to many other stations throughout the country, which will broadcast the ceremonies simultaneously.

How It Will Be Done.

The Radio Corporation of America will broadcast the ceremonies through station WRC in Washington, D. C., and, by means of wire lines, transmit it to WJZ, New York, and WGY, Schenectady, for broadcasting at those points.

In addition to the broadcasting of this event the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company will install public address loud speaking equipment at the capitol which will enable those witnessing the ceremonies to hear, word for word, what is said.

Not Merely a Clear Receiver, but a Fine Musical Instrument

Brings out the Overtones—the Rich Timbre of both Music and the Human Voice

Radio is becoming as much of a household convenience as the telephone. It should be just as dependable and true. Quality of tone is the supreme test. Distance can always be obtained by sufficient amplification. The problem is to secure distance without distorting or blurring the tone.

For years radio engineers have realized this. While the public was going wild over reaching out for distance, they were quietly exhausting every resource in experimentation to overcome the internal noises which increased with every new stage of amplification. The same steps which amplified the tone also amplified the stray oscillations within the set itself, as a by-product.

Nobody knew how to prevent them. Various means were employed to choke them or neutralize them. Potentiometers, extra condensers, complicated wiring were employed with only partial success. They work only when perfectly adjusted, and their operation interferes with a perfectly pure, free, flexible tone. By absorbing the true signal as well as the stray energy, they lose or blur those delicate overtones which make real music. They cannot prevent the conflict which occurs in the circuit between the forward stream of radio energy and the feedback of stray energy, blotting out the overtones.

The real trouble was this: No structurally correct long-distance radio system had been designed. All designs up to date generated feedback of stray energy which chattered, howled and squealed unless choked down or neutralized; and radio reception, while accomplishing wonders, was still a makeshift.

A New Capability in Radio: Overtones Perfectly Reproduced

Pfanstiehl's big contribution to radio lies in his discovery of the real causes of oscillations and his complete elimination of them by a circuit system which KEEPS THEM OUT. No choking or neutralizing elements are any longer needed. No adjusting is required. The receiver is always at its best. Tuning and operation are absolutely quiet. The tone or voice comes in sweetly, in all of its natural richness. All of the overtones are perfectly reproduced, exactly as transmitted. This is true of long distance. High amplification doesn't distort. His invention has turned radio from a stunt device, for fans to play with, to a dependable, enjoyable and trouble-proof instrument in the home—the thing it should be and was destined to become.

An Appeal to Radio Users: Every owner of a fine radio receiver should agitate for the suppression of regenerative interference in the air and undesirable radio transmission. They spoil the enjoyable possibilities of pure tone reception. Do not be a radio nuisance yourself by using a set which radiates or transmits noises to your neighbor.

See the new Pfanstiehl at your radio or music dealer's. If he does not have one to show you, we can quickly get it to him.

SERVICE BY THE GOLDEN RULE

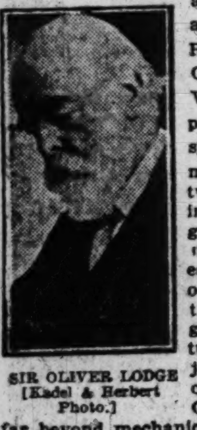
DIRECT THOUGHT TRANSFER NEXT, SIR OLIVER SAYS

Foresees Elimination of Sound Vibrations.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 24. — Sir Oliver Lodge, the famous British scientist and spiritualist, addressed the Radio Society of Great Britain Wednesday night, prophesying speechless communication between human beings as the next great scientific step in the process of interchange of human thought. The grid of a wireless tube was the subject of his discourse, but Sir Oliver elaborated far beyond mechanical bounds. Taking radio as the basis for his theory, he pointed out the fact that sound vibrations must be recorded on a metal disc before being sent out and then reproduced by the mechanical process of vibration in the human ear.



SIR OLIVER LODGE
[Kadel & Herbert Photo.]

After this point, he said, begins the real serious work. He declared wireless of the future will eliminate the intermediary process and will transmit thought direct to the brain without recourse to vibrations, as now known to radiology.

FRENCH CONTROL HERE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, Jan. 24.—A French radio company is now managing all sending in Jugo-Slavia and another French company is busy organizing a service in Poland. It is reported in Viennese wireless circles that the French also are seeking to gain control of radio in Spain.

Radio employment bureaus is the latest development of wireless enterprise in Austria. A local firm needing a number of extra stenographers broadcast a notice via radio, sending out a specimen of the letters the girls would be required to write, and then asked the applicants to send in examples of their work before applying in person. From the copies submitted it was a most simple matter to pick the likely prospects for private interviews.

Viennese music and light opera, such as is deemed the best sort of musical stimulant for the sick, is broadcast from a Vienna station to all tuberculosis hospitals. The programs are specially prepared by medical authorities and experts in the treatment of consumption patients.

Cincinnati has taken a new position among the radio production centers of the middle west in formation of the Kodel Radio corporation through the consolidation of the Automatic Electric Devices company and the Kodel Manufacturing company. The capitalization has not been announced, but it is believed it will run into millions. Immediate plans for general expansion and for 1925 production will be carried out.

Naval Surgery at Sea to Be Described by Radio

New York, Jan. 24.—The trials and hardships of the surgeon on a modern liner will be described for WJZ listeners on Friday evening at 10 o'clock, when Surgeon Rear Admiral J. Shand of the S. S. Aurania will speak under this title, "Surgery at Sea." Marvels have been accomplished by naval surgeons in operating under terrific handicap at sea with disease and the fury of the elements united against the doctor.

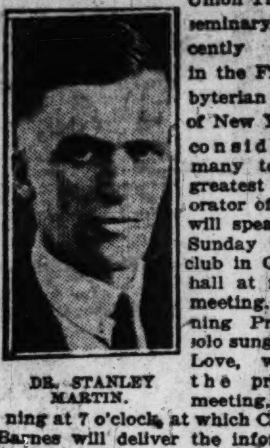
SUNDAY EVENING CLUB PROGRAM TO BE NOTABLE

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Baptist minister and professor in the Union Theological seminary, until recently preacher in the First Presbyterian church of New York, and considered by many to be the greatest religious orator of the day, will speak at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall at the main meeting. "Evening Prayer," a solo sung by Mark Love, will open the preliminary meeting, beginning at 7 o'clock, at which Clifford W. Barnes will deliver the informal talk in the series, "Pilgrim's Progress." Anthems by the choir of 100, under direction of Edgar Nelson, and organ numbers by Stanley Martin, will contribute to the music program. Addresses and music will be broadcast by KYW.



DR. STANLEY MARTIN.

Last season when Dr. Fosdick spoke before the club on Jan. 30, the doors of Orchestra hall were broken in and two ushers injured by the eager mob that sought to gain entrance after all the seats were filled. It is thought that assistance from the police will be necessary to handle the crowds today.

IOWA VARSITY STATION HAS A BRAND NEW NAME

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 24.—WHAA, University of Iowa broadcasting station, has passed out of existence and is now known as WSUI. The last three letters of the new call are the initials for the "State University of Iowa." Efforts to obtain this call were made when the station was established last year, but were unsuccessful until this week.

WTAY Plans Program of "Movies on the Air"

Movies on the air is an innovation which will be introduced at WTAY Friday night when the station will be turned over to the Atlas Film company of Oak Park. There will be a weekly Atlas night with screen stars appearing on the programs. This week Wesley Barry, who is starring in an Atlas feature picture now in production; Richard Allan, also of Hollywood; Charles Beyer of the Famous Players eastern studios; Adelaide Rondelle of the New York studios, and Lilyon Dumarais of the California studios, H. I. Walker, Louis Hollinger, Agatha Karlen, and others, many of whom have become acquainted with radio audiences through broadcasting from W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station.

WLS TO HAVE GIANT STATION NEAR CHICAGO

Erection of a 5,000 watt superpower radio broadcasting station, to replace the 500 watt equipment now in use by WLS, was announced today by Charles M. Kittle, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. The new station is to be built in the open country to avoid interference with other Chicago broadcasters, but the exact location of the antennæ has not been decided. The sending towers probably will be erected within fifty miles of Chicago.

"The activities of WLS have been so conspicuously successful in carrying forward the program of the Sears-Roebuck agricultural foundation to bring entertainment and education to millions of farm families throughout the nation that we have decided to make further appropriations to widen its sphere of utility," said Mr. Kittle. "Radio has broken down the last wall of isolation in the lives of the people."

OPEN EVENINGS

If Mozart could hear "The Magic Flute" on a FADA Neutrodyne

—his trained ear would approve the tonal fidelity to the original in his famous old opera. The peculiar charm of this woodwind instrument is caught in all its purity by the famous Fada Neutrodyne. With equal tonal truth, Fada reproduces the deep rolling bass of the pipe-organ.

The Fada Neutrodyne has the range of the 88-key pianoforte. McCormack's pure tenor, Bori's delicious soprano, create the illusion of standing beside the actual artists when you hear them on a Fada set. Bass and baritone voices are reproduced with equal fidelity. Nor does Fada create those raucous distortions that have kept many discriminating folks from investing in radio.

Fada selectivity is one of its chief charms. Turn the dials to predetermined numbers, and in rolls the very station you want to hear—provided the waves from that station are reaching your neighborhood. Fada also excels in distance and volume. In short, Fada is radio at its very, very best.

There are six models to meet every taste and pocketbook. $75 to $270. Fada is adapted to either dry-cell or storage-battery tubes, and either indoor or outdoor aerial. Hear Fada. It will be a revelation in radio! Buy your Fada now and be ready to hear the world's famous artists whenever they sing or play for you over the radio.

Dance with the folks at Hot Springs

WHILE guests are dancing at Hot Springs, Arkansas, you can keep step to their favorite dance music right in your own living room. Most every night, Hot Springs is "on the air" with a snappy dance program. Bring the Southland's sunshine into your home with a Mohawk Radio.

With the Mohawk you can easily break home ties and travel the country at will. Local broadcasting won't interfere. If you cannot find at home the entertainment you want, just turn the Mohawk dial and travel the country over. Operation of the Mohawk is simplicity itself. Just one dial to tune for coast-to-coast loud-speaker reception. Log your stations—the same stations will come in always at the same points on the dial.

Instrumental music, vocal music, speech—all are reproduced perfectly on the Mohawk. You cannot fail to be impressed by its bell-like clarity of reception. You have been waiting for just such a radio as this. Beautiful in appearance; beautiful in performance; beautiful in the rich quality of its tone. You need delay no longer. See and hear the Mohawk at the best radio dealers!

COIL DIRECTIONS BAFFLING MANY RANGER BUILDERS

One Recites How He Got "Tangled Up."

BY EXPERIMENTER.

These are hectic Ranger days. On top of preparing material for the forthcoming Tribune Radio Booklet, trying out new coils, methods of neutralizing the radio frequency tube, and wrestling with a share of mail, comes realization that the Chicago Tribune Ranger has carved a definite niche in the affections of a large number of home experimenters, which last makes our labors a lot easier and more pleasant all around.

In the increasing mail concerning the Ranger we have had many letters of late from prospective builders of the circuit who are at a loss as to how to wind the coil—as to which direction to be pursued. We thought we had made ourselves clear in previous articles, but it took an unusual letter from H. B. Kellogg of 6054 Kimbark avenue to bring us to a full realization of the fact that it is very easy to become confused.

Solves His Problems.

First, for the benefit of all who are interested in the Ranger series, we will reprint the letter, and then go into winding details after that has been digested:

"Chicago, Ill., Jan. 20.—[To the Radio Editor.]—I have built the Tribune Ranger and after having worked out a few difficulties by the trial and error method, I have succeeded in getting good results. The tone quality is fine and the strength of distant stations is remarkable.

"Perhaps you will be interested in knowing some of the difficulties I had in getting the set together. The first trouble was in orienting myself with the variometer to tell which way it was wound. When mounted on the panel, if one views it in one direction, it is clockwise, and from the other side it is anti-clockwise.

Getting Directions Right.

"The next thing was to be sure that I was properly oriented when starting to wind the secondary coil. If I viewed the form from one end my winding was opposite to that when viewed from the other end. I finally placed the former in the position the coil would have in relation to the variometer and, looking at both from the same direction, wound them in opposite directions, and it proved to be right.

"This (determining the direction of the variometer winding) seems like a very simple thing, but in talking to several friends who are interested in the set, I found that they were having the same trouble.

"I found that when the tube was placed in the corner of the cabinet back of the variometer, I could not get the outside stations, but when it was placed back of the condenser, as you pictured it, the set worked all right.

Bloopers a Nuisance.

"There has been a lot of talk about silent night, and I can't help but say a word. Silent night is useless to me and several of my friends who live in other parts of the city for the reason that there are so many regenerative sets in the neighborhoods that they spoil everything.

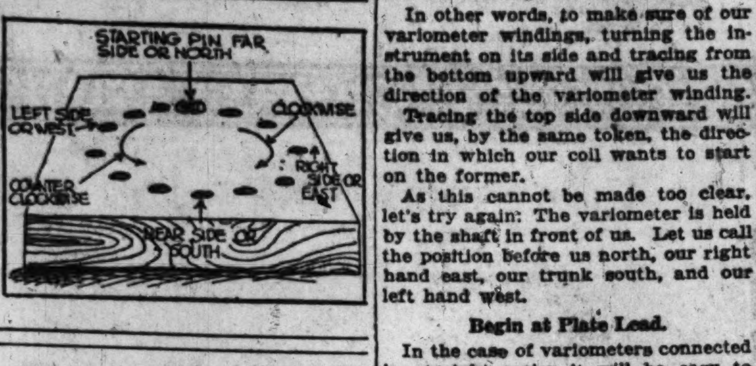
"On Monday night every one is out to see what they can get and as a result the interference is much worse than nights when the city stations are going and attracting the attention of a part of them.

"I can get through the local stations with fair success, but it is impossible to break through the howls of a hundred or more regenerative sets.

"More power to you.

"H. B. KELLOGG."

How to Wind



Determining Winding.

The preceding letter carried a peculiar interest to the radio department, due to the fact that the CHICAGO TRIBUNE Ranger was evolved because the radio editor at one time didn't do as well as Mr. Kellogg in the matter of orientation—but that story is reserved for the TRIBUNE Radio Booklet.

Let us state at the outset that practically all variometers are wound clockwise. Now to determine just which way clockwise will be:

Holding the variometer by the shaft in front of us, let us select the lead to our left. On most variometers this will be the end of the stator winding. Now let us determine which way the wire goes from that lead in its convolutions.

That done, we will turn the variometer half over, so that one rotor opening is up, the other down, the one down being that one on which is the lead referred to.

How to Trace Winding.

Now, let us imagine we are winding this variometer and that the binding post, or lead wire, as the case may be, is our starting pin on the coil former. We will find in practically all cases that the winding of the stator goes from a position on our left side in the direction of our right side. That is clockwise.

Take next the former and set it in front of us. Select a pin on the far side of the circle about center and trace direction with our finger. If we move toward the right in starting around the form we are winding clockwise.

Obviously, that is the wrong direction for our coil if the variometer is clockwise. So we reverse the position, starting from that far center pin, to the left and on around. Thus, when tracing the winding from the bottom of the former upward we are always finding it going toward the left, no matter how we stand in front of it. In tracing it from the top of the coil, going downward, we are tracing it backwards, or clockwise. But if we turn our coil upside down we merely reverse positions.

Tracing Another Way.

In other words, to make sure of our variometer windings, turning the instrument on its side and tracing from the bottom upward will give us the direction of the variometer winding.

Tracing the top side downward will give us, by the same token, the direction in which our coil wants to start on the former.

As this cannot be made too clear, let's try again: The variometer is held by the shaft in front of us. Let us call the position before us north, our right hand east, our trunk south, and our left hand west.

Begin at Plate Lead.

In the case of variometers connected in straight series it will be easy to trace one side, the side that comes out for the lead—which should be the lead to the plate and, on which side the coil should be. In other words, that should be the left hand, or west side, as we hold the variometer in front of us, with the rotor openings sidewise.

It will be easiest to trace with this side turned upward, so up we turn it. Let us think of this now as our finished coil, and trace the winding. If it moves in front of us from west to south, to east, with its rotation always west to south to east to north, and so on, then at the beginning it must start, beginning at a far pin on our imaginary former, from north to east, to south, to west, and so on. Hence the winding is clockwise. Therefore, our coil, starting from a north pin, to be counter clockwise, starts toward the west, moving thence to the south, to the east, to the north, and so on. Perhaps the illustration will help some also. Let us hope.

Winding IXL Coils.

For winding IXL coils, designed by Dr. Ralph S. Piper on suggestions supplied by the radio editor of THE TRIBUNE, the specifications for which appeared in the issue of Sunday, Jan. 11, and which will be reprinted in The Tribune Radio Booklet, this is the safe method of procedure:

We are most likely to have a variometer that is wound clockwise, hence our primary and secondary are to be wound counter clockwise—that is, in the direction opposite to the stator windings of the variometer.

Holding the cardboard tubing in front of us, we will prepare to begin our windings at the left hand end of the tubing. Our winding will start at the top of the tubing, the convolutions starting toward us, going on under the tubing, up and toward us again, and so on.

Now, as we determine the course of winding, let us turn the tubing so that the starting end is away from us, with our binding post from which our start will be made upward. The wire will go from this (north) position to the left (west), on under to south, up to the right hand side (east), back to north, past the binding post, and so on.

Whoo-ee! That has been some job, but if it gets us started right, we will vote it worth the work, the space, and the time. And we have left out this week's diagrams until next Sunday just for the sake of getting this over properly.

Let the winding class proceed!

COILS FOR RANGER SETS BEING MADE BY SEVERAL CONCERNS

Hundreds of letters have come to the radio department inquiring as to whether coils for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Ranger one and two tube sets may be purchased, a number of the writers asserting that inquiry among radio dealers had been met with the reply that they did not have these coils.

While the Ranger was evolved as a strictly home built set, from the standpoint of coil construction, its popularity has extended to that class who are either too busy to make their own coils or who feel that they are not sufficiently adept so to do and yet who want to build the Ranger. From these come most of the appeals for information as to where these coils may be purchased.

While those mechanically inclined are getting a lot of fun out of making both the basket wound and partispaced solenoid coil, designated as the IXL, for the benefit of those who want to get into the game without having to "roll their own" coils it is stated that both these types of coils soon will be purchasable. Several concerns have obtained specifications for the basket wound coils from the radio department of THE TRIBUNE and have turned their attention to production and distribution.

BRITISH ISLES AND CANADA TO HAVE BIG TEST

Will Exchange Programs on Feb. 3.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 22.—Canada and Great Britain night will form an international feature in the air on Tuesday, Feb. 3, when station CNRA, Canadian National Railways, at Moncton, will broadcast a special program intended to reach receiving sets in operation in the British Isles. This international broadcast has been arranged in coöperation with the British Broadcasting company, which has control of all radio broadcasting in Great Britain, and that organization will essay to rebroadcast the Canadian program when it reaches London.

Plan of Test.

It was at once arranged by W. H. Swift Jr., engineer of the radio department, to broadcast from CNRA at Moncton between the hours of 7 and 9, eastern standard time, with a view of reaching the British Isles between the hours of 11 p. m. and 1 a. m., Greenwich time. The British Broadcasting company will be silent at 11 o'clock English time, and this will give Moncton every opportunity of being heard throughout Great Britain, provided the air conditions are favorable.

Others to Follow.

This broadcast is to be but the first of others intended to bridge the Atlantic ocean, it being planned to arrange special programs from time to time for that purpose. The radio department of the Canadian National Railways decided to make these arrangements following a great number of letters received from various localities in England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland reporting reception of programs sent out by CNRA, in some instances listeners in England sending logs covering practically complete broadcasts.

This is the first instance on which a Canadian radio station has prepared a broadcast for British listeners, and the establishment of regular broadcast for Great Britain represents a distinct advance.

Electric Club to Hear Technical Discussion

The next meeting of the radio section of The Electric Club of Chicago will be held in the Rose room of the Morrison hotel at 7 p. m. Jan. 27. McMurdo Silver, John H. Miller, and C. E. Brush will discuss technical matters.

Resonant Wood Insures Natural Tone Quality

THE advent of Music Master sounded the death knell of the mere "loud speaker." It not only made satisfactory reception possible to all radio sets—to some of them it assured a success otherwise impossible. For it transformed the radio receiving set into a musical instrument—a triumph of re-creative art.

Two years ago Music Master's full-voiced volume and characteristic tone qualities heralded the New Era of Radio Art. It made possible the recreation of the supreme expression of Music, Song and Speech, exemplified in the wonderful stellar programme now an established feature of American nation-wide broadcasting.

Music Master does more than reproduce—it interprets, it re-creates—it transforms mere radio receiving into unalloyed enjoyment. It is the standard of comparison by which all "loud speakers" are judged. And while it has been inadequately imitated, it has never been equaled. Music Master remains the supreme musical instrument of radio—and there IS no substitute.

MUSIC MASTER—The Ultimate of Artistic Radio Re-creation

Music Master's precision instrument is the acme of scientific perfection. Music Master's tone chamber of heavy cast aluminum is a marvelous mold of sound without distortion. Music Master's horn of resonant wood gives to every sound its full, virile, vibrant qualities, its natural and life-like characteristics.

Music Master is sponsored by manufacturers who hold that every purchase of their product carries with it an implicit pledge of unreserved and unconditional protection. You can rely upon your dealer for full and unfailing service; but back of him stands the Music Master Corporation to guarantee its product to anyone, anywhere, at any time.

The Brunswick Hour of Music

Music Memory Contest

$5,000.00 Cash Awards Every Month

until further notice

Starting by Radio, February 3rd, 1925

The most dramatic contest in history starts in the interest of musical America to foster a deeper understanding of good music and to emphasize the remarkable musical and educational possibilities of radio

First Prize	$1000.00	Fourth Prize	$200.00
Second Prize	500.00	10 Prizes	100.00
Third Prize	300.00	40 Prizes	50.00

These prizes to be paid each month until further notice

Selections to be broadcast by Brunswick artists of the New Hall of Fame, chosen from a list including the following:

Mario Chamlee   Giuseppe Danise   Florence Easton
Edith Mason   Michael Bohnen   Karin Branzell
Maria Ivogun   John Charles Thomas   Willem Willeke

—and many others, including famous orchestras and instrumentalists.

THIS is an offer made by one of the largest and financially strongest industries in America—the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company.

It is made without reservations of any nature as an educational "music memory" test.

It neither requires nor requests contestants to buy anything or to render any service in order to enter—or win.

It offers $5,000 cash awards each month.

It will be conducted under special arrangement with the Radio Corporation of America, who, purely in a spirit of furthering musical appreciation, have placed their enormous Radio Broadcasting Station resources at the disposal of BRUNSWICK for use in this contest.

Open to all

The contest is open to everyone. The only persons excluded are employes of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, employes of the Radio Corporation of America, and the artists, musicians and orchestras whose selections will be broadcast in the contest.

Entry blanks are free and are now ready for distribution.

The object of the contest

1 To enable people to attain a more thorough appreciation and understanding of good music. And to familiarize them with the current achievements of the concert and operatic artists of the New Hall of Fame . . . . the great artists of today, who have succeeded Patti, Calvé, Jenny Lind, and those of other days.

2 To emphasize the remarkable new music possibilities of radio as recently attained through the combination of the Radio's outstanding achievement, the Radiola of the Radio Corporation of America with the world-noted Brunswick Phonograph.

* * * *

For years, Brunswick has devoted itself to the furtherance of musical appreciation—and understanding.

And many of the most notable musical achievements of the day are the result of that wide-spread educational effort.

Hence this contest is simply a continuance and broadening of that effort through the means of radio—a widening of its possible scope.

What is meant by a "Music Memory" test

Can you identify the music of "Il Trovatore" when you hear it? Can you call "Home, Sweet Home" by name when you hear it?

Are you able to remember and designate by name, tomorrow, the title of a piece of music, or the name of a singer or instrumentalist whom you may have heard today?

Can you identify the great marches — "The Washington Post March," for instance — upon hearing it?

These, in musical circles, are known as Music Memory tests.

By being proficient in them you may secure one of these important cash prizes.

Exact details of the contest—Note carefully

On Tuesday evenings, February 3rd, 10th, 17th and 24th, at 9 to 10 P. M. Eastern Standard Time and 8 to 9 Central Standard Time, the usual Brunswick Hour of Music will take place. Certain Brunswick artists, among them famous stars of the New Hall of Fame, will render several selections.

These programs will be broadcast from the Brunswick Recording Laboratories by means of a direct wire to the broadcasting stations, as listed in left corner below.

* * * * *

You will be told, by Radio, when the Brunswick Music Memory Contest is about to start. But you will not be told either the name of the artist or the name of the selection.

You are to identify the artists and the selections rendered.

The selections sung or played will be known and familiar to most persons. The artists will be famous ones.

The February contest will consist of 4 hours of music—one hour on each Tuesday as specified.

A contest blank, which will be furnished to you free by any Brunswick dealer, will list the names of all the artists and orchestras who will be broadcast in the February contest. And will also list the names of various selections—every one and all of which have been recorded on Brunswick Records—from which the program is to be selected.

Your object is to correctly fill in the names of the artists and the names of the selections broadcast on these evenings. In other words, you name the artists and the selections.

In addition to vocal numbers, orchestral and instrumental selections will be played by Brunswick orchestras or artists under the same conditions, all listed in the contest blank.

This blank also gives the other simple conditions of the contest—full particulars in every detail.

The Brunswick Hour of Music

This will be repeated at the same hour every Tuesday evening during each month. The length of each program will be one hour.

The awards will be made to those persons most accurately naming or identifying the names of artists and selections during the month's contest.

Entire program to be taken from selections listed in contest blanks

All selections played or sung will be taken from a printed list you'll find in the contest blank.

Many of them you will know. If some are unfamiliar to you, any Brunswick Dealer will gladly play the records of them for you.

Thus a fair chance is offered every contestant.

GET YOUR CONTEST BLANK NOW

To obtain a contest blank, go to any dealer handling Brunswick Phonographs, Records and Brunswick Radiolas. Simply ask for one—it will be given to you without charge. Or if there is no dealer convenient, write to Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, Chicago.

Lists all particulars

The contest blank explains every detail.

It tells you exactly what to do and how. Tells everything you need know. Get one now, so as to be ready for the opening concert on February 3rd.

February cash awards announced March 17th

In justice to everyone, we hope every parent, every home and every child in that home, will enter this greatest of musical educational contests.

Super-Heterodyne

For the convenience of those without radio sets, special Tuesday night receiving of the contest program will be featured in music shops and school halls, etc., in practically every city in America, over this the newest and most remarkable of all musical instruments—the Brunswick Radiola.

It combines the musical and tonal possibilities of the world-noted Brunswick Method of Reproduction of the Brunswick Phonograph with the internationally acclaimed Radiola equipment of the Radio Corporation of America.

It brings to radio a musical quality, clarity and beauty unattained before—a difference so great as to amaze foremost musicians and critics.

It combines, too, all the advantages of a Brunswick Phonograph with the miracle of radio. It is a phonograph and a radio in one. At a turn of a lever, it is a phonograph to play your favorite records. Another turn, and it brings by radio the mysteries of the air into your home.

It requires no outside antennae—no ground wires. Put it anywhere. It plays wherever you place it. Embodying almost incredible "selectivity," it enables you to pick out instantly what you wish to hear and "cut out" other stations and interferences. A tremendous advantage in big centers near many receiving and sending stations.

Experts pronounce it the outstanding musical achievement. See it. Hear it.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Social Season Dies as Civic Opera Departs

By Mme. X.

BANG, bang, bang! With a thunder of drums, long and loud, a farewell blast of trumpets, and a final shriek of flutes, Chicago's social season really ended some time this morning. The third season of the Civic opera began closing Friday evening with the gala performance, and the doors shut for the last time on an opera audience last night.

The season has been to all appearance a brilliant one. If, like the New York Metropolitan, all the theaters east and west, and even movie houses, the Civic Opera has felt the pinch of times of some financial pressure, it has not been evident either in the performances or the audiences. Again this department of the W. G. N. begs to reiterate that the preservation of our Civic Opera company is a matter of supreme moment to the intelligentsia of the city. If a time of stress is here we should all make an extra effort to support this splendid enterprise. It is one of the city's brightest jewels.

In a group of distinguished stars the most remarkable personality was undoubtedly Feodor Chaliapin, the Russian baritone. Both on and off the stage he is a striking figure, appealing to the latent romance in every women's being and arousing in men a sometimes reluctant admiration because of his tremendously masculine qualities, his huge size, and perfect proportions. It is not twice in a lifetime that such an imposing figure passes across the stage. He is a great singer and an even greater actor. He strikes the casual observer also as being an impressive example of all that is elemental in the human race. Especially is this quality manifest in such impersonations as Satan in the prologue of Boito's "Mefistofele" and the Brocken scene in the same opera.

To meet off the stage he is also a most interesting personality. He talks well, has a clear idea of whatever subject he tackles, and, although his English is halting, he conveys his meaning easily.

Some Outstanding Personalities.

Maestro Polacco is one of the great artists in our company, a man of culture, and one who is musical through and through. To meet socially or lecturing on some of the compositions of the day he always gives the impression of great distinction.

Mme. Rosa Raisa is without question the greatest living dramatic soprano. Claudia Muzio's voice grows richer, more delicious every day. Edith Mason's voice gives an exquisite satisfaction rarely experienced; it is so true, so pure. Ansseau, the Belgian tenor, improves each time one hears him, while Tito Schipa's mellifluous voice never fails to give a joy which nothing else does. Lazzari's deep bass tones and his dramatic acting make him one of the outstanding personalities of the company.

The rest of the troupe is of the highest standard, and the whole is an enormous credit to the city and should be most sedulously cherished by every one who believes that culture is supremely necessary to justify such a brilliant prosperity as ours.

Shadow of a Personality.

To few of us is it granted when we die to live on in the community in which we were born and grew up. Of such, however, is the late Miss Martha Wilson, daughter of the late John P. Wilson, one of Chicago's most brilliant men and great lawyers. Miss Wilson's work during her life, especially that part of it dedicated to the Children's Memorial hospital, achieved for her this kind of immortality.

Tomorrow a kindred work which she founded will once more bring her name before the community. The Central Council for Nursing Education has its annual meeting at the Woman's Athletic club, when the election of officers will take place and be followed by a talk from a notable authority on the subject of trained nurses, Mrs. Chester C. Bolton of Cleveland. The meeting will be preceded by a luncheon of about forty-five men and women at the Nurses' club, 116 South Michigan avenue. The Central Council for Nursing Education was founded largely by Miss Wilson.

Ralph Waldo Emerson said once that "every institution is the lengthening shadow of some individual." So this Council of Nursing Education is the shadow of that lovely and remarkable personality, Martha Wilson. The charter members of the organization were the Illinois Training School for Nurses and the training schools in such hospitals as the Presbyterian, St. Luke's, Michael Reese, Wesley, Evanston, and the Children's Memorial. This central council is active in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Indiana, Minnesota, and Kansas. The object of the council is to interest the young girls of the day in nursing and also to exchange the latest ideas on this essential and beautiful calling with other similar institutions such as exist in the east.

Our country is far ahead of any other in this important adjunct to the science of therapeutics.

Baroness to Speak.

Much water has passed over the dam since Baron General Wrangel fought and lost to the bolsheviki—was it five or six years ago? But few of us have forgotten that hapless and gallant campaign. Its echoes still ring and its sad results are still felt by hundreds of thousands. There are in the Balkans today 150,000 refugees whose livelihood continues to depend on help from outside.

For these Baroness Wrangel, wife of the unfortunate general of that name, is coming to Chicago next week. She will be the guest of the Potter Palmers during her stay here, and they and a Chicago committee are sending out invitations to an afternoon reception to meet the baroness and hear what she has to say about that historic campaign and its aftermath.

The Chicago committee includes Mr. and Mrs. David Adler, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Blair, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field, Prince and Princess Cantacuzene, Mrs. Waller Borden, Countess Irene Keller, Miss Marie J. Rozet, Arthur Aldis, Robert Allerton, and Michael Lasaref. The baroness is sponsored by her imperial highness Grand Duchess Maria Pavlovna, Princess Julia Cantacuzene-Speransky, Mrs. Robert Lansing, and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander.

Three of the midwinter's most important brides are Mrs. Vincent E. Healy, Miss Alicia Gilmer Clark of Baltimore, Md., who is to wed John Roche Howland, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Carter Howland of 4605 Drexel boulevard, on Feb. 21, and Mrs. Arthur Dixon III. Mrs. Healy and Mrs. Dixon were married on Saturday, Jan. 17.

Mrs. Healy was Miss Helen Hoyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Hoyne of Highland Park, and her wedding took place in the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. She and Mr. Healy sailed yesterday from New York for a four months' wedding trip abroad.

Miss Clark is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Judson Clark of Baltimore, where her marriage to Mr. Howland is to take place on Feb. 21 at the Christ Protestant Episcopal church. Miss Cora Virginia Howland, the groom to be's sister, is to be a member of the bridal party. Mr. Howland resides in Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Mrs. Dixon was Miss Anna Marquis before her marriage, and is the daughter of Dr. George Paul Marquis of 999 Lake Shore drive. Her wedding took place at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Following their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon are to reside in Lake Forest. Mr. Dixon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dixon of Oak Park.

success of this enterprise, which will be one of the spring's notable events. Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen's recent illness halted momentarily, but did not stop the organizing of the fair. Mrs. Bowen is chairman of the committee getting it up, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman is honorary chairman, Mrs. Howard Linn is vice chairman, Mrs. F. H. Rawson is treasurer, Mrs. Theodore Robinson is secretary, and Mrs. Medill McCormick is general executive. On the board of directors are Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. George R. Deane, Mrs. Silas Strawn, and Miss Helen Bennett. The last named is also managing director.

Among the women of this part of the world who will exhibit some of their work in the fair are Mrs. Howard Linn, whose chic little shop, Au Paradis, will have a booth. Mrs. Arthur Farwell is going to show some of her goats. Mrs. Medill McCormick will have some of her prize cattle and milch cows, to show what women in agriculture can do. There will be in all 250 booths, each one devoted to something especially connected with women in industry. Mrs. John Carpenter has made designs for the decoration of the wide sweep of floor space, for the fair will occupy the entire first floor of the American Exposition palace, on the Lake Shore drive. These include awnings and tents, and she plans to have strolling musicians, Italian mandolin players, German singers, hurdy-gurdies, and so on, meandering about the exposition, to give it a gay and festive air.

The two women governors, Mrs. Ferguson of Texas and Mrs. Ross of Wyoming, will be invited to come as guests of the fair. In short, it looks as if women "would at last secure the recognition so long denied them in a man ruled world." (This is satire, and should be so labeled.) Look out for April 18, Paul Revere day, when a relay of women rodeo riders will open the fair by riding along the twenty-six miles of lake front to the doors of the fair, whose doors will then swing wide. Wouldn't Paul be surprised to see them in their broad hats, chaparajos, and knickers?

"Little" Theater Activities.

There are many who remember the Aldis plays and players, that delightful epoch in the summer life of Lake Forest when the world that amused itself met in that quaint little playhouse nestled in the lilac bushes of the Aldis garden. It was one of the pleasantest aspects of the "highbrow" in social life. The group of men and women who, under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis, sought and found the newest plays of the time, who discovered the Irish dramatists long before Lady Gregory brought them and her Irish troupe over here, often talk of that time and regret its passing.

Like all things of this kind, it requires one master mind, one devoted enthusiast, to carry on for a long period of time any such enterprise. Mrs. Aldis furnished this impetus for almost a decade, and then, finding it burdensome, though her interest in high drama had not waned, she gave up the playhouse and players and betook herself to New York, where such movements have a larger scope and a more enthusiastic audience, or audiences, for there are many groups of little theater folk, each convinced that that particular outfit is keeping the flame burning on the altar of Thespis. Mrs. Aldis, under the stimulus of Gotham's more sympathetic atmosphere, has written a play that is to be produced tomorrow night in New York under the direction of Sam Eliot, a son of President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard university. Miss Margaret Wycherly, the well known actress, is taking the leading rôle, and really doing as much as Mr. Eliot to make the affair a success.

The piece is called "Sister Anne," and is being produced by the Vassar Alumnus Dramatic club in the Lenox theater. Arthur Aldis and Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis have gone on to New York to be present at the opening performance.

Among the Travelers.

The latest news from Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, whose voyage to the orient and to China in particular has been chronicled in this column, is that she is planning to leave China, somewhat compelled thereto by the increasingly dark outlook in that unhappy country's situation. She has already probably left the celestial kingdom and is expecting to embark on the Belgenland on Feb. 15 at Singapore for India. From India she will go to Egypt for a short stay before joining her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Hyde Clarke, at Mentone, on the lovely Riviera, where the Clarkes and their six youngsters are occupying a most attractive villa set in a lovely garden overlooking the Mediterranean.

Sixteen of our socially indispensables are sailing on the steamship Paris next Wednesday for France. The Hugh J. McBirneys are taking with them their son-in-law and daughter, the Henry J. Stimson Jrs. Mrs. A. A. Carpenter and Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. Leverett Thompson and Miss Laura Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Col R. R. McCormick, and Henry J. Patten are all I can remember of this sixteen, but that is enough to give an impression of the body blow to Chicago's gay world which the Paris' next trip entails. The Mauretania, which sails in February, is carrying still another numerous group of our s. c. (socially conspicuous).

Chicago will have to stagger along its slow upward way without this element for the next few months. But, between you and me, this old town doesn't know when this particular element has gone or returned. The community goes on its way just the same, with the theaters, dance halls, and movies quite as full of enthusiastic folk as ever. Also the city plods persistently on towards its goal of civic beauty and esthetic accomplishment.

Plan for Grant Park.

Next Friday evening the Fortnightly, that great-grandmother of women's clubs in this part of the world, is having what ought to be a most interesting and suggestive evening. Eliel Saarinen, the famous Finnish architect, whose designs for THE TRIBUNE building attracted so much attention and took second prize, is giving a talk on and showing his designs for the possible development of Grant park. These are said to be, by those who have seen them, quite wonderful, and, if they are carried out, would make Chicago far and away the most beautiful city on this round and exciting little globe of ours.

The plans he made for a similar development of Detroit's water front have been accepted by that enterprising burg. Millions have been voted to carry it out, and he has been summoned back from Finland to superintend the task. Shall we let the city of automobiles get ahead of us? It will if his designs for an extended river frontage are carried out and we leave Grant park in its present bleak, drear, anemic, and generally tragic state. Chicago's twenty-six miles of lake front will admit of its being made into a city of beauty far beyond anything that Kubla Khan ever dreamed of.

Of course this is taking it for granted that the curse of smoke is removed from us. Unless this is done all these plans for embellishment are futile and not to be considered. That it is smoke and nothing else was proved by that black Wednesday ten days ago when the city lay under a thick, murky pall which necessitated artificial lights in the middle of the morning. In the country and up to the outskirts of the city it was the most brilliant, clear, dazzling day of the year. Every leaf, every blade of grass glittered under its fine coating of frost like the jewels of Belshazzar. The sky was cloudless and blue from zenith to rim. It made the heart ache with the beauty of it, and yet a five minutes' drive carried the motorist from this amazing beauty into the black and stenchful atmosphere of the smoke belching city.

Historical Society Dinner.

No one is more interested in cherishing and promoting the Chicago Historical society than Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, head of the social committee of the society. She gave a dinner to twenty-two members of the board last Monday evening at her house on Rush street. Among those present were the president, Dr. O. L. Schmidt, Mrs. George A. Carpenter, Mrs. Paul Blatchford, Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Dixon, Henry J. Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, Mrs. Bronson Peck, Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. William S. Monroe, C. J. Hambleton, Mrs. Frank D. Stout, William Bush, Mrs. Francis Taber, Mrs. William Burry, Mrs. Frank W. Barker, Miss Estelle Ward, Mrs. Henry S. Robbins, Mrs. Eduard Furst, and Miss Carolyn McIlvaine. Potter Palmer is a recent acquisition on the board. George W. Dixon accepted the chairmanship of the new building and grounds committee.

It is to be hoped this one of the city's most valuable institutions will soon find a more accessible and suitable home than its present one.

As we pass from the winter's gayest season into the quieter precincts of Lent, the preoccupations of many become more serious, and lectures and lecturers appear on the scene. Next Thursday morning at 11 o'clock the Rt. Hon. Edward Hilton Young, M. P., is booked to give a talk at the Woman's Athletic club, of which Mrs. George W. Dixon is president. He is a distinguished authority on international finance, as well as being a barrister of renown in his native land.

He is also interesting from a romantic point of view, as in 1922 he married Lady Scott, the widow of the famous antarctic explorer. She is a sculptor of note. The Rt. Hon. Mr. Young is said to be one of the most interesting of the galaxy of Britishers who have been or are headed this way. After his lecture he will be the guest of the Woman's Athletic club at luncheon.

Talks on Music.

Musically minded persons in Chicago's smart set—and there are some genuinely so inclined, even among the most inveterate of the bridge and mah jongg players—are anticipating the two talks on music, on "Present Day Musical France," to be given by Miss Jeanne de Mare. The first one will be at Mrs. Waller Borden's tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The second will be at Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's two days later.

Miss de Mare is a most charmingly musical person, and her illustrations on the piano add greatly to the value and attraction of her lectures. She plays one composer's work, a Californian, I believe he is, by pressing at times all the lower keys of the piano with a slender but wiry left arm from the elbow to the fingers. The effect is superb, quite like that of a full orchestra. The volume of the sound eliminates any dissonance, and gives the impression of rolling drums.

MISS ELEANOR HUTTUNEN.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Iskar Gross of 19 East Pearson street of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Julia Huttunen to their son, Ralph Francis Gross.

For myself, I sometimes think the drum is my favorite instrument. There is something elemental, pulse stirring about it. It recalls a visit to central Africa at a remote settlement on the edge of Lake Victoria, just where the equator crosses the lake. Sometimes at night—and nights are powerful black there—we could hear the throbbing of distant drums coming out of the jungle, the reiterating tum tum tum, and we knew that behind that resonant vibration there was a stirring of savage pulses and a tumultuous surging of primitive impulses which had in times past boded no good for white folk.

There is always a little tremor of excitement among the members of those isolated, lonely outposts of Europeans when this drum music is wafted out of the depths of those African forests. It so often has presaged dark deeds and horrid experiences, those laughing, childlike natives when they run amuck being so drunk with blood that they will kill every living thing in a community, including dogs and chickens and goats. And it is the drum which sets their blood on fire.

Bright Spots in Busy Calendars of Chicago Clubs

By Kate Webber.

WITH the post holiday lethargy dissipated, and the spring moves and changes still in the offing, women's organizations in the city are having an intensive season of cultural and philanthropic activity. January is to be brought to a close with the club institute sponsored by the Chicago Federation of Women's organizations, the program of which already has been given on a preceding Sunday. Then, on, next Saturday, the Chicago League of Women Voters forum, coöperating with the committee on international coöperation to prevent war of the Illinos league, is holding an all day meeting at the Congress, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, when Prof. J. W. Joyner of the University of Illinois, and other speakers who have attended the recent war prevention conference in Washington, will be present. These two events are the bright spots in a busy calendar.

One of the younger clubs of the city, the Chicago Woman's Ideal club, has planned quite an ambitious schedule for the next few weeks. A dinner dance is to be given tomorrow evening at the Hotel La Salle, with Mrs. George F. Anderson as chairman. On Feb. 10 the club will have a view day at the Art institute, and on Feb. 18 the members will have a theater party. Then on March 9 a large card party will be given under the chairmanship of Mrs. M. H. Ingalls, the proceeds to be given to the Martha Washington home for crippled children, where the club is furnishing a room.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held on Feb. 5 at the Blackstone hotel, where all gatherings will take place. Clayton Hamilton of Columbia university will speak on the drama, and the past president, Mrs. Frank M. Fulton, will tell of European travels.

The Chicago Woman's Ideal club was organized in the autumn of 1922, its object being education along philanthropic and civic lines.

Meetings are held the first and third Thursdays of each month, from October to April, inclusive. Class meetings are held in the forenoon, followed by luncheon at 1 o'clock. Afternoon meetings are given over to musical and social programs. During the club year one charity card party is given, the proceeds being given to one of the special philanthropies. Among those institutions which have benefited from these affairs have been the children's room at the Art institute, the Chicago Industrial Home for Children at Woodstock, and the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children.

Officers of the club are Mrs. Frederick H. Kraft, president; Mrs. George F. Anderson and Mrs. Egbert E. MacPherson, vice presidents; Mrs. Charles H. Woodward, recording secretary; Mrs. George A. Carr, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James F. Rochford, treasurer.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

The monthly business meeting of the Chicago Woman's club will be held on Wednesday afternoon. The week's program includes the following meetings tomorrow: In the morning the membership committee, the committee on pictures for Americanization, and the program committee; at 12:30 o'clock a conference on smoke abatement under auspices of the committee on housing and zoning; at the same hour the home affairs committee will meet for luncheon. Following which there will be sewing for Judge Bartelme's Mary B. homes. The parliamentary law class meets on Tuesday at 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 there will be a conference of larger women's clubs of the state. The law enforcement committee will meet on Wednesday morning and the drama and literary classes will give a program at 10:30 o'clock, at which the speakers will include Clayton Hamilton, Mrs. Katharine Knowles Robbins, and Mrs. Frank Wright Thomas. The house committee will meet at 1 o'clock. On Thursday Paul Kammerer will address a joint luncheon meeting of the education and philosophy and home and public welfare departments upon the subject, "New Evidence for the Inheritance of Acquired Characteristics." At 6 o'clock there will be a child labor conference and dinner, when the proposed twentieth amendment will be discussed. The art and literature department will give a luncheon Friday for Miss Ethel Barrymore. On Saturday the education and philosophy department will have a luncheon, at which Mrs. W. S. Hefferan and Miss Grace Temple will speak. The School Children's aid will have a luncheon on Saturday. The Sunday open door program will be held this afternoon.

MRS. FREDERICK H. KRAFT.
[Connelly photo.]

Mrs. James Reilly is president of the Canterbury club, which will hold its midwinter ball and card party on Friday evening at the Edgewater Beach hotel. This is an annual affair of the club, which is among the prominent women's organizations of the north side.

The Albany Park Woman's club, of which Mrs. James H. Jackson is president, will have a reciprocity day program tomorrow at the Albany Park Presbyterian church. Though only three years old, the club has a membership of 200, and has a large share of the philanthropic and cultural interest in the community.

An account of the history and objects of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club, another youthful organization of women, is given in today's club notes. Mrs. Frederick H. Kraft is president of the club.

This week's program at the Woman's City club includes a meeting tomorrow evening of the business and professional women's unit. On Tuesday at 11 o'clock Miss Evelyn Wood will speak on "Nursing as a Profession" and Mrs. May Wood Simons will conduct the citizenship class. At 12 o'clock the transportation committee will have luncheon. Chicago policewomen will speak at a meeting at 1:30 o'clock under the auspices of the police, police stations, and jails committee. On Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock the parliamentary law and public speaking class will meet and at 12:30 o'clock a luncheon will be given for the Cook county affairs committee. The book review class will meet at 2 o'clock. On Thursday at 2 o'clock the Forty-eighth ward branch will have a card party at the Sheridan Plaza hotel. The Fortieth and Forty-first ward branch will meet on Friday at Independence park fieldhouse. Miss Mary E. McDowell will speak.

The Young Women's Christian association will hold its annual meeting on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at Central branch, 59 East Monroe street. A banquet for all members of the association will precede the meeting. Mrs. N. W. Campbell, president, and Miss Eleanor Richardson, executive secretary, will give reports telling what has been accomplished by the Y. W. C. A. during the last year in the way of housing, health, educational, and recreational activities for the girls of the city. Officers for the new year will be elected, as well as new board members to fill the places of those whose terms expire this year. A feature of the program will be a short pageant, "Candles That Burn," written by Miss Katherine Chase of Austin High school and presented by the Interclub council of Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserves.

An interesting feature of this week's club calendar will be the club institute to be held on Thursday and Friday at the Morrison hotel under the direction of the Chicago Federation of Women's Organizations. Women prominent in club, civic, political, and business circles will contribute to the program, which begins on both days at 9:45 o'clock. A publicity luncheon on Thursday will conclude the institute's sessions.

MRS. HENRY A. STINE.
[Raymor photo.]

Mrs. Henry A. Stine is chairman of a dance to be given this evening at the Midway Masonic temple, under the auspices of the Lawn Manor community center.

Tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock Mrs. Samuel D. Snow will preside at a meeting of the Ninth district, I. F. W. C., to be held at the federation headquarters, 127 North Dearborn street. The weekly citizenship class will have its regular session under the leadership of Mrs. Charles J. Trainor, and at 2:30 the committee of the official magazine, the Clubwoman's World, will meet. The First district public health committee will have a meeting on Tuesday afternoon, and the state department chairmen will meet in the morning. On Wednesday and Thursday there will be a state board meeting, with Mrs. George T. Palmer presiding.

Mrs. James W. Morrisson will present the legislative program of the Illinois League of Women Voters tomorrow before a meeting of the Conference of Jewish Women's organizations. Short talks also will be made by Miss Ann Davis and Mrs. Lawrence Hughes. At 2:15 Dr. David Rosenbaum will speak on his work as a Jewish chaplain.

The art department of the I Will club will have charge of the program at Tuesday's meeting.

Members of the College club will discuss the collecting of antiques on Wednesday at 4:15 o'clock at a meeting of the art circle. Club Ethics

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"FROM the way Mrs. Wilbur talks the members of her club must spend most of their meeting time wrangling among themselves," remarked the delegate from the East End club. "Every time I see her she tells me of the awful time they've had over this thing or the terrible time they've had over that thing. Excuse me from belonging to such a club. If I did belong, I certainly wouldn't go about advertising its dissensions."

"A woman who tells such things outside of her club is in the same class as the one who tells unpleasant things about the members of her family," opined the delegate from the Bay club. "Loyalty to her group should keep her lips sealed concerning such matters."

"I wouldn't even tell at home about any disagreements that may arise at the club. I'd be afraid my husband would get the idea that we women can't work together and discuss our problems good naturedly," said the delegate from the second district.

"I know two other members of Mrs. Wilbur's club rather intimately, and I haven't an unpleasant impression of it from their talk. Perhaps Mrs. Wilbur's idea of a terrible time is the lively discussion that sometimes accompanies a motion of importance," suggested the Eighty club delegate.

The delegate from the Writers' club had been busy with paper and pencil while the others were talking.

"I'm fixing up a slogan for club members," she announced. "How would this do? 'Tell what's right with your club to any one who will listen; tell what's wrong with it to those whose business it is to make it right.'"

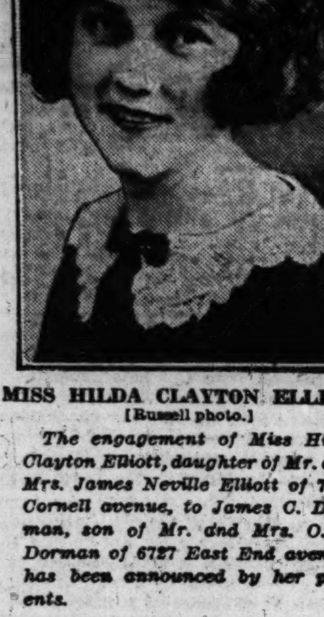
News...of... CHICAGO SOCIETY



MISS HILDA CLAYTON ELLIOTT.
[Russell photo.]

The engagement of Miss Hilda Clayton Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Neville Elliott of 7813 Cornell avenue, to James C. Dorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Dorman of 6727 East End avenue, has been announced by her parents.

community. The first of these will be given by Mrs. D. Pirie Beyea, who will speak on "The Watch Dogs of the Pacific." The second lecturer will be Mrs. Marguerite Harrison, whose topic is "Asia for the Asiatics." The third lecturer will be Dr. Lauro de Bossis on "Italy's Present Hour." The dates are Jan. 26, Feb. 2, and Feb. 7. The lectures will be given at the Fortnightly.

The three lecturers are most interesting individuals, as each one has had a series of unusual adventures. Mrs. Beyea was with the allied armies the entire course of the war and worked with the Hoover Relief commission. Mrs. Harrison was imprisoned twice in Russia by the bolshies. Dr. de Bossis is a young and learned Italian connected with the University of Rome.

Don't forget the Pavlowa benefit tomorrow night at the Auditorium for the Pasteur memorial fund and the Charlotte Cushman club. It will be a great occasion.

The Drama league of Chicago is interested in promoting the Charlotte Cushman club. This is a newcomer in the field of Chicago's philanthropies, although they have had a similar club in Philadelphia for seventeen years. Its object is to provide a place for actresses, especially the young among this numerous throng of Thespians, a club in which they can find shelter, wholesome living, and above all a protection from the many unhappy contacts with a world far removed from consideration for them and their calling.

Outsiders have small realization of the many distressing incidents that happen to young women who have adopted this career and have to go out into the world to follow it. A club such as this one is a godsend to many such. To find a comfortable lodging and good food and freedom from insults is to many of these eager actresses to find heaven on earth.

The club, which will hold about forty girls, will be opened shortly in one of the old fashioned houses within walking distance of the loop. The honorary president of the club is Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick. Mrs. Joseph Long is active president; on the board of directors are Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler, Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. William Tracy Alden, Mrs. Charles Kohl, Dr. M. L. Harris, Irving K. Pond, and Antonin Barthelemy.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent, either of the bride or the bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Thursday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be printed.

The marriage is announced of Miss Isabelle Stewart Robertson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Duncan P. Robertson of 6943 Jeffery avenue, to Charles Alexander Harlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Harlan of 6725 East End avenue.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Freeman of 5636 Prairie avenue of the marriage of their daughter, Alice Evelyn, to Charles Henry Lytle of 7120 Ridgeland avenue, which took place on Jan. 19.

Mrs. W. H. Wohlberg of 4518 North Ashland avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Lillian, to Ralph D. Bortz of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Alexandra Mary Novak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Novak of 1326 Independence boulevard, to William C. Rymer of Lincoln, Neb.

The marriage is announced of Miss Mildred Lilienthal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lilienthal of the Admiral hotel, to Harry Minsky, which took place on Tuesday.

Mrs. Julius Steif of 625 Stratford place announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Therese, to Harry Joseph Lockritz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul N. Lockritz, which is to take place on Tuesday at the Buena Shore club.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Irene Belle Ginsburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ginsburg of 1252 North Robey street, to Frank E. Shudnow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman S. Shudnow of 1303 South Spaulding avenue, which takes place today at the Parkway hotel.

Mrs. Bessie Shanks of 4548 North Sawyer avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Diana, to Irving Rosenfeldt of Chicago.

The marriage is announced of Miss Rose Weinberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Weinberger of 4542 Drexel boulevard, to Harry A. Stern.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ruth Helen Tausig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Tausig of 4139 North Ashland avenue, to Carl M. Schutz, son of Milton Schutz.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Lukes of New Buffalo, Mich., announce the marriage of their daughter, Libbie Clara, to Raymond Frank Granzow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Granzow of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Granzow are living at 9844 South Leavitt street.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Perlman of 843 Galt avenue of the marriage of their daughter, Lillian, to David Jacobson. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson reside at the Monterey hotel.

Mrs. Lillian Glebspan of 701 Bittersweet place announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen Pearl, to Philip H. Salzman of 5795 Ridge avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Salzman will reside after March 1 at 724 Buena avenue.

ENGAGEMENTS

Consul and Mrs. William James Yerby of Dakar, Senegal, French West Africa, and Chicago, announce the engagement of their daughter, Clementine, to Harold M. Tyler of Columbus, O.

The engagement is announced of Miss Catherine Elizabeth Owen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Owen of 548 North Lockwood avenue, to J. Russell Cesna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cesna of Oak Park.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Virginia A. Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hall of Oak Park, to John J. Hagan, son of Mrs. Mary Hagan of Champaign, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Carter of 3328 South Robey street announce the engagement of their daughter, Rhoda, to Delmar Houston Bone, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bone of Vandalia, Ill.

The engagement is announced of Miss Virginia Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wells Smith of Chicago, to Edgar Mattern Brill of Philadelphia.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Mary Bastar, daughter of Mrs. Mary Bastar of Sherrard, Ill., formerly of Chicago, to Judge Harry Edwards of Dixon, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Swanson of 2824 East 79th street announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen C., to Vernon R. Atchison of Robertsdale, Ind.

Prof. and Mrs. C. L. Palmer of 6440 Greenwood avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Ethel May, to Dr. Harry Eugene Swantz.

ART AND ARTISTS

Striking Portraits of Chicagoans in Art Society Exhibit

The hurt is grave, yet not so grave
But that a kiss may mend it.
Before the storm a heart might break;
A lesser blast but bend it.

And if the storm doth rage and roar
And all my castles shatter,
The hurt may be salved by a kiss,
So what does ruin matter?

A sovereign remedy—a kiss—
A pilot through rough water,
And two arms can sweet solace give—
A kiss then for—my daughter.

By Eleanor Jewett.

SHE is an exceedingly plain little girl with red hair. She sits on the cold curbing of a deserted city street. She is alone, yet the whole world of love and sunshine is there with her. In her arms she clasps tightly a doll. A beautiful doll with long yellow curls and long black cotton stockings, and slippers—a doll complete in raiment and beauty as never has its little mistress been complete. Upon its gorgeous complexion of brilliant rose, the little girl presses a warm kiss. There is evident trouble in the air, but she is seeking an escape from it by this passionate avowal of love for her child.

The picture is one by George Luks, and may be found in the exhibition of portraits, a loan exhibition assembled by Mrs. Walter Brewster, shown for the benefit of the Chicago Public School Art society, at the Chester Johnson Art gallery, 700 South Michigan boulevard. The exhibition opened last Friday, and will remain until Saturday next. It is an unique event. The portraits are of persons of note, for the most part, and, in every case, by artists of reputation.

The most striking portrait, to my mind, is, as was suggested in last Sunday's column, the portrait of Marshall Field by Oswald Birle. Mr. Field is shown in riding clothes in a negligent, natural pose. The canvas has an outdoor air. The whole thing sweeps criticism off its pedestal by its sincerity and vigor. There is nothing for it, in this portrait, but to breathe deep and admit its excellence. A finer, stronger, less padded piece of painting is not to be seen in the entire show.

The portrait of Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed, by Martha Walter, is like a breath of spring. It has freshness and beauty and charm. It is a little posterlike and a trifle sketchy, but these detractions go unnoted in the first wave of emotion the picture calls forth. The spirit of the sitter, an elusive something which many artists fail to catch, is alive in this lovely, delicate face. From the exquisite detail of the face, the painter flew to gown and background. Rapidly, beautifully, happily, she stroked these in. The effect is one of entrapped sunshine. Forever seems but a moment in the face of this portrait's springing loveliness. Almost, you think, it will endure as do the Romney and Gainsborough ladies, for their intrinsic charm.

A delightful little panel painting is the portrait of Graham Aldis, done when he was a child, by Boutet de Monvel. The blue eyes are seen again in the blue embroidery on the little suit and in the blue of the carpet. The silver gray wallpaper background tones in with his fair hair and skin and the snowy suit and socks he wears.

The Spanish painter, Zuleaga, is just now creating a sensation in New York with an exhibit of a number of canvases, so it is of interest that there is one by him in this exhibition. It is an insolent affair, this portrait. Hard, brilliant, striking, and ugly, flamboyant, too, all these words may be used in connection with it. Insolent is the best characterization, however, of the barbaric beauty he presents us with. He has nothing of Sorella's charm or feeling for light and warmth, nothing of Geya, of Velasquez, nothing. Zuleaga is modern among moderns. Whether just his type of brutal realism, of crude, undeviating color, of harsh, unsoftened curve, will live, remains to be seen. In the present instance his method of painting kills that, for example, of our countryman, J. Alden Weir.

The Weir portrait is but a timid affair at best, and may be passed over with these few words. The portrait of Madam André, by André, is lovely as to background, a background of water and hills. The costume, too, is good, but not the face. There is something repulsive in the misdrawing of that face. You wish it out of the canvas. It spoils what should be a scene of perfect beauty by its oddity.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick has lent a portrait of Cavalieri by Boldoni. It is simple, direct, dramatic, a good piece of work. The portraits of various Chicago women by Philpot make an interesting group. He painted Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Henry Stinson, Miss Ellen Borden, and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

The Sargent portrait of Duse is admirable. The Toulouse-Lautrec sketch of Yvette Guilbert and Oscar Wilde, seated together at tea in a little restaurant, is amusing. The "Madame V," by Degas, is a fine piece of work. The background is peculiarly beautiful. The rich color in the red cloak and green scarf, across her lap, is also of extraordinary value. The Faggi bronze of Miss Katherine Dudley is distinctive.

Among the other artists represented are Manet, Burne-Jones, Augustus John, Claude Monet, Orpen, Franzen, Laurencin, W. P. Henderson, Sorolla, Alexander, Alice Foote, Henri, Wickwire, William Strang, Kate Greenaway, Whistler, and Korbel.

At the Art institue there is now to be seen a beautiful room arranged by Jacques Seligmann and company of New York and shown under the auspices of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick. The room is in the Hutchinson wing, and is really one of the Antiquarian society's galleries. It has been arranged to represent the best in French eighteenth century art. It is a drawing room, a salon, and done with exquisite taste. A vulgar item, but opportune, the approximate value of the various furnishings, chairs, pictures, tapestries, tables and all, is near $400,000.

The first impression one gets from a glimpse of this salon is one of beauty and tranquility. There is a serene charm about it, not stiff but rather prim, beautiful and conscious of that fact. The chairs are covered in a pale green stuff. The walls are hung with tapestries and portraits. The tapestries are of the celebrated Beauvais manufacture and are in pale colorings, slightly sentimental in character. The portraits make up for any saccharine touch here, however, by their uncommon unprepossessingness. The portraits are by Drouais, De Largilliere, and Drolling.

The memory that French eighteenth century taste was a bit apt to run to overelaborateness in detail and decoration is stirred to life by a realization of the amount of brass—or is it bronze?—trimmings on the different pieces of furniture. Care has been taken, however, to construct the room with the simplest type of chair and table, in line and proportion, possible. The acme of that century's art is seen here. Marble tops are on the table, heavy candlesticks on the mantel, figures of heavy bronze pair off on various stands. The whole thing is toned down, however, so that no exuberance of weight condemns it to us. On the contrary, the salon bears perfect witness to the possibilities that sprang into being in France two centuries ago.

Every piece in the room is of the period and the majority of them have been brought from the best known collections in the world, such as the Rothschild and the Duke de la Rochefoucauld. It is an exhibit that ought not to be missed. It will repay a visit, if only with that first momentary thrill of having found a perfect thing at last.

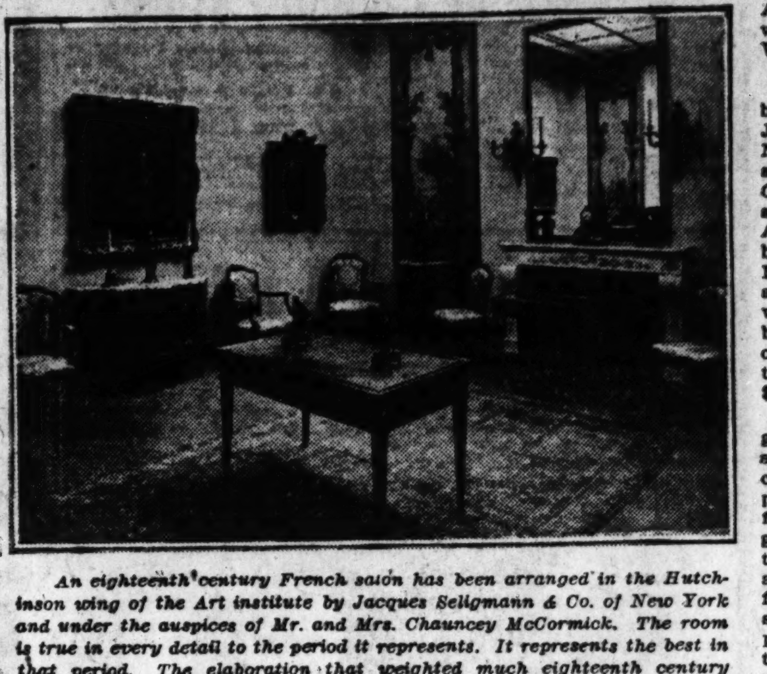
Next Friday the twenty-ninth annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity will open at the Art institute. A reception is to be given under the auspices of the Art institute, the Municipal Art league, and the Artists of Chicago.



An eighteenth century French salon has been arranged in the Hutchinson wing of the Art institute by Jacques Seligmann & Co. of New York and under the auspices of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick. The room is true in every detail to the period it represents. It represents the best in that period. The elaboration that weighted much eighteenth century French art has been toned down, with a resultant beauty and serenity that make a forceful appeal for earnest consideration.

NEUTRODYNE .... for Distance

When the children are in bed and Father goes exploring—with

NEUTRODYNE

THE thrumming of a piano a thousand miles away. The clear voice of a noted statesman coming from a thousand miles in some other direction. Now a singer—now an orchestra—

Through the vast night, countless impulses, passing, crossing, voices, music. . . . "Distance if you want it"—that's Neutrodyne. If the waves are reaching your neighborhood, you'll get the program with a Neutrodyne, no matter how far away the station may be.

Picks them clean

Neutrodyne selectivity is one of the marvels of radio. Just as definitely as the telephone operator plugs in at a certain spot on the switchboard, so you turn your dials to predetermined numbers—and there's your station, provided that station is on the air at the moment. It works every time. No fishing around, once you have the stations charted.

The tonal quality of the Neutrodyne receivers has won the warmest praise of musicians everywhere. The piping notes of the piccolo and the deep swelling tones of the pipe-organ are reproduced with a fidelity to the original that is unbelievable. The human voice sounds human on a Neutrodyne—not like the megaphoned overtones of the train-announcer.

Nobody likes a squealer

Have you ever listened to radio that sounded like the bird-house at the zoo? Be assured, that wasn't a Neutrodyne set. For Neutrodyne cannot create those squawks and squeals that have kept music-lovers from investing in radio. If all receiving sets were Neutrodyne, there would be no more squealing. Neutrodyne is noiseless. You'll appreciate its quiet, and so will the neighbors.

The thing you will like most about your Neutrodyne radio receiver is its absolute dependability. It is the set of no regrets. It is the set of no apologies as well. You can get up a radio party and not wonder if your set is going to "act up" at a critical moment. You will not have to alibi with: "It never did that before!"

Neutrodyne made for modern broadcasting

Neutrodyne was developed after modern broadcasting was established. The three other major receiving systems were invented previous to broadcasting. They were made first for dot-and-dash code (radio telegraphy) and adapted later to broadcasting. Neutrodyne was specifically designed to receive the broadcasting of music and speeches. It did not have to be "adapted."

In order to protect the public from fraudulent Neutrodynes, the Hazeltine Corporation was formed, and Professor Hazeltine, developer of Neutrodyne, entrusted his great idea to just fourteen hand-picked, licensed manufacturers. No other manufacturers may use the genuine Neutrodyne principle! Do not confuse NEUTROdyne with any other "dyne." Look for the Neutrodyne label on the set you buy. Neutrodyne uses either wet or dry batteries, and either outdoor or indoor aerial.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS · WORLD

Fundamentalists Open Conference in City Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

FUNDAMENTALISTS of the most radical type, those who believe in excluding from pulpits of all denominations modernists like Harry Emerson Fosdick and others who class with him, will hold a four days' convention in the Moody Bible institute, Chicago avenue and North La Salle street, beginning today. The addresses will be: At 11 o'clock, by Dr. E. M. Kierstead, Toronto; 3 p. m., Dr. J. Frank Norris, Fort Worth, Tex.; 7:45, Dr. T. T. Shields, Toronto.

Dr. Shields is president of the Baptist Bible union, Dr. Kierstead is professor in McMaster university, Toronto, and Dr. Norris is pastor of a church having a membership of 8,000 and a church plant with three buildings four stories high and costing $500,000. Dr. Norris and the association he represents announce their purpose to introduce their confession of faith into the coming Baptist Northern convention at Seattle, and the Baptist Southern convention at Memphis, and keep urging acceptance of a standard by which all men not accepting the Bible literally and fully shall be excluded from the pulpits of the denominations.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York will speak tonight at 8 at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall on the subject, "A Challenge to the Younger Generation." Clifford W. Barnes will speak at 7 o'clock. Orchestra hall will be filled early, according to present indications.

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

Edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson.

ONE of the first fruits of the labors of S. P. R.* or rather the pioneers who founded it, was the discovery of "telepathy," or thought transference between mind and mind without the use apparently of any of the known organs of sense. It was found by careful experiment that an idea or visual image, or other familiar notion, could be conveyed to another person, provided he possessed the faculty of receptivity, although that person was screened from all normal channels of communication. Experiments of this kind were at first conducted in the same room, usually with trivial things like portable objects and diagrams and numbers—stringent precautions being taken, by the use of opaque screens without dependence on the completeness of blindfolding, that normal means of acquiring information about the diagrams or objects were excluded. Experiments of this kind will be found in most of the earlier volumes of the "Proceedings of the S. P. R."

Similar or slightly modified experiments were afterwards extended to a considerable distance; and still, between so to speak "attuned" persons, the amount of correspondence was found to be beyond chance. The evidence is bulky, and perhaps rather tedious, but the establishment of such a faculty is of prime importance, and is worth the labor, for manifestly it begins the demonstration of the possible independence and separation of mind from its ordinarily used methods of communication. The voice and the hand, the ear and the eye, are no longer the only transmitters and receivers of mental impressions.

Several series of experiments in thought transference in the same room will be found in the early volumes of the "Proceedings of the S. P. R.," and a few of the diagrams looked at by the "agent" and simultaneously drawn by the blindfolded and screened "percipient" in these experiments can be reproduced here; these being selected as successful instances. But from the point of view of evidence the whole series must be studied, and chance eliminated.

Perhaps the most interesting of recent experiments on this subject are those conducted by Prof. Gilbert Murray in his own family, where the thing transferred was not a diagram or anything objective or visible at all, but an event or scene silently thought of by one of those present. For instance, these successful items from the "Proceedings of the S. P. R.," vol. 29:

Agent silently thinks of:

Alister and [Malcolm] MacDonald running along the platform at Liverpool street, and trying to catch the train just going out;

while, after a pause, percipient says aloud:

Something to do with a railway station. I should say it was rather a crowd at a big railway station, and two little boys running along in the crowd. I should guess Basil

As another instance may be quoted this one.

Subject thought of by agent:

Belgian baron getting out of train at Savanarilla with us, and walking across the sandy track and seeing the new train come in.

Statement by percipient:

Man getting out of a train and looking for something. I don't know if he's looking for another train to come. I think it is a dry, hot sort of place. I get him with a faint impression of waxed mustache—a sort of foreign person—but I can't get more.

And another, an ambitious and rather remarkably successful and dramatic attempt, may also be here cited.

Subject set by agent:

A scene in a story by Strindberg. A man and woman in a lighthouse, the man lying fallen on the floor, and the woman bending over him, looking at him and hoping that he is dead.

Percipient's guess:

A horrid atmosphere, full of hatred and discomfort. A book, not real life. A book I have not read. Not Russian, nor Italian, but foreign. I cannot get it. . . . There is a round tower, a man and woman in a round tower; but it is not Maeterlinck. Not like him. I should guess it was Strindberg. The woman is bending over the man and hating him, hoping he is dead.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 1490 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

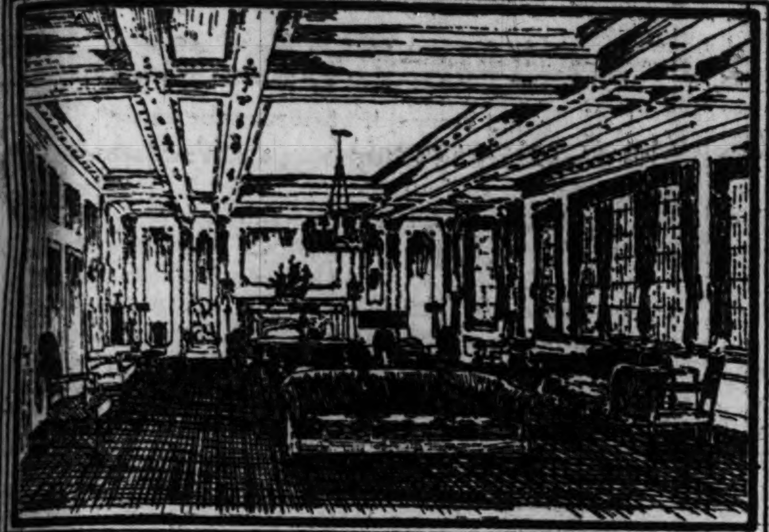
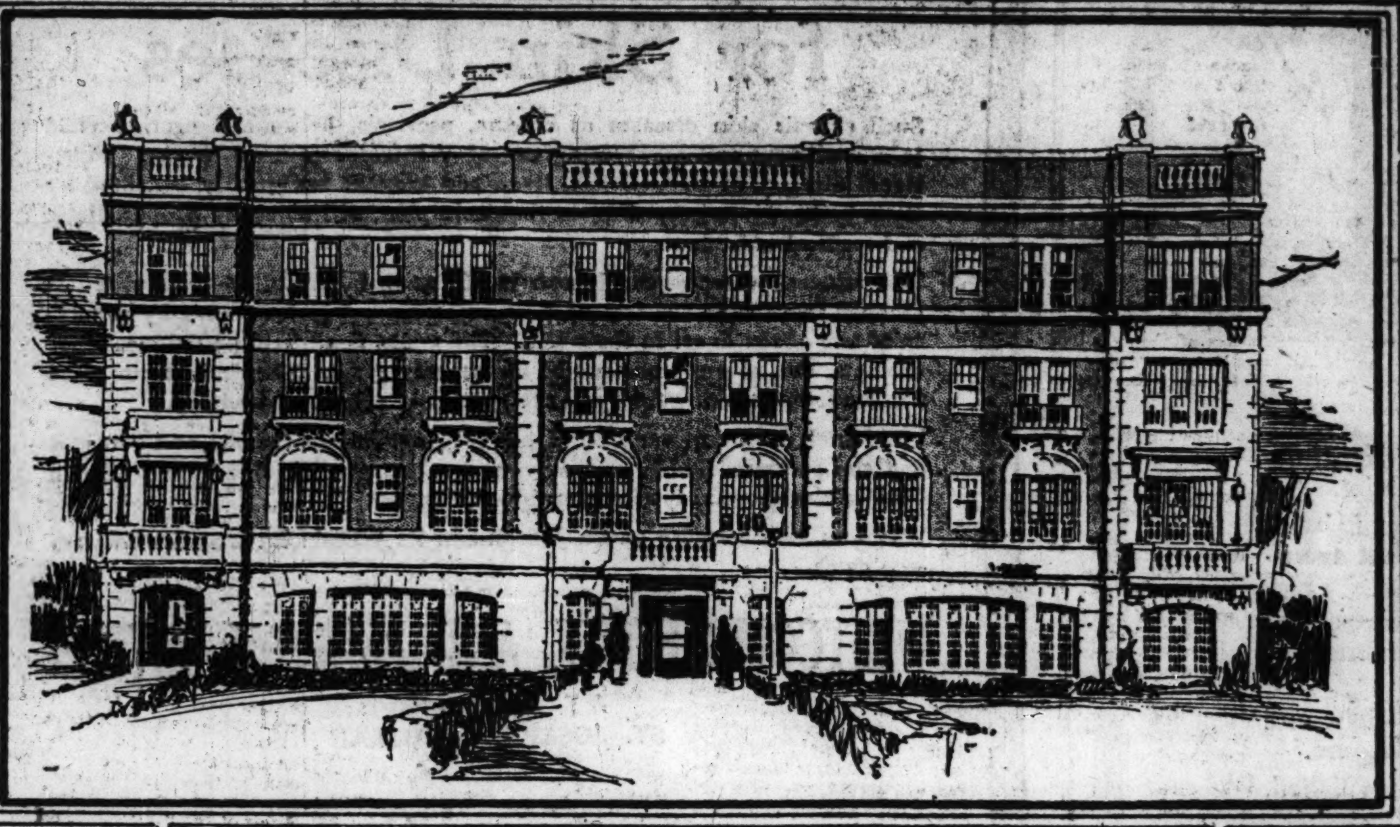
THE KENROSE HOTEL

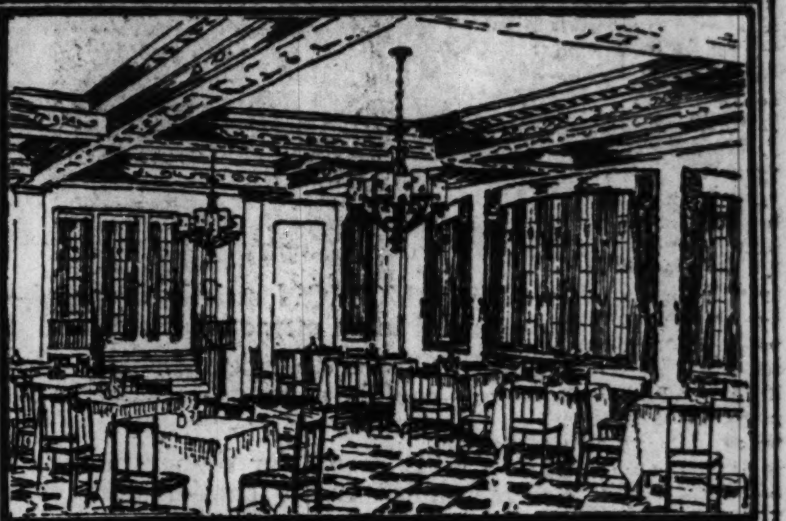
6417 Kenwood Avenue, Chicago



The Lobby



The Kenrose



Dining Room

FOR nearly thirty years the Barrett Brothers have been important factors in the growth of Woodlawn. They have grown up with the neighborhood; they have progressed as the neighborhood progressed; they have devoted their time to the upbuilding of Woodlawn.

When the Barrett Brothers were schoolboys, Woodlawn was a prairie. An unbroken path to the schoolhouse ran through what today is a most thriving business center. The initial building movement in Woodlawn preceded the World's Fair in 1893, but immediately following came a decided building depression which lasted for nearly two years.

It was during this trying time that James J. Barrett and John C. Barrett, the first of the family to enter the building business, launched their first large enterprise, the erection of a six flat building, the first in Woodlawn. At this time the construction of a six-flat was considered a tremendous and rather unwise undertaking. Contrary to opinion, the six-flat type proved to be very successful and many of them sprang up throughout the community.

As the organization grew other members of the family were taken into the business—P. William Barrett, Thomas F. Barrett, and finally Timothy A. Barrett. Each of the brothers contributed something to the success of the firm. The accomplishments of each of the brothers were united to make one of the foremost contracting and building concerns in Chicago. What M. J. Van Sweringen is to the Ven Sweringen Railroad Interests, what R. Ringling is to the Great Show Organization, Mr. P. W. Barrett is to Barrett Brothers. His diplomacy, suavity, and ability to handle men has been a great asset to the Barrett organization.

Realizing the need of the smaller, kitchenette type of apartment, the Barrett Brothers then established a new building precedent by the erection of the Kenwood Apartments, 6318 Kenwood Ave. Then followed the Dorchester Apartments, 1401 Hyde Park Blvd., the first building to incorporate both hotel and apartment features.

The Barrett Brothers had set the pace and a huge $50,000,000 building campaign swept over Woodlawn. The result was the erection of ten new hotels, three splendid bank buildings, five beautiful new churches, a magnificent Masonic Temple; Calumet Council, K. of C., Building, of which P. W. Barrett was an active director, stores, theatres and hundreds of other buildings.

And now comes the Kenrose, the latest achievement of the Barrett Brothers. This beautiful hotel has been created for the purpose of providing luxurious hotel accommodations at a very reasonable cost. The Barrett Brothers, Woodlawn's pioneer builders, have again set the pace, initiated a new movement for the progress of Woodlawn.

The Kenrose Hotel offers the comforts and refinements of the home plus the convenience and distinctiveness of a luxurious hotel at a tariff within the means of everyone.

The beautiful Kenrose Hotel, 6417 Kenwood Ave., is the ideal permanent home. In the heart of Woodlawn, Chicago's finest residential district, The Kenrose is convenient to theatres, amusement centers, smart shops, churches and the great Woodlawn business district.

Transportation facilities are unusually excellent. Elevated, steam and surface lines, within one block of the Kenrose, afford fifteen-minute service to the loop.

A luxurious lobby, spacious lounges and comfortable smoking rooms provide cheerful surroundings conducive to congenial home atmosphere.

The charming Hotel Dining Room, tastefully furnished and efficiently directed, affords the guests splendidly prepared food at surprisingly moderate prices.

The Kenrose gives complete hotel service. A large and efficient corps of attendants assure maid and valet service and many other accommodations.

Rates at the Kenrose Hotel are most reasonable. Room may be had as low as $10.50 a week. The average rental for room with bath for two persons is $15 a week. Accommodations may be had for one, two or four persons in a single suite. Connecting suites accommodate as many persons as desired.

The Barrett Brothers were most discriminating in the selection of the Contractors, supply houses and furnishers for the Kenrose. The excellence of the materials and hotel equipment used throughout the building necessitated the engagement of none but dependable concerns. The Thomas Molding Brick Co. furnished the Kenrose with all the face brick, as well as the Flax-Li-Num insulators and sound deafeners. Flax-Li-Num resists the penetration of both heat and cold and renders walls and floors practically sound proof. The Antique Marble Mosaic and Terrazzo Co. installed the terrazzo floors, adding much to the attractiveness and cleanliness of the Kenrose. Tiles, mosaics and fireplaces were furnished by the South Shore Tile Company. A very novel feature of the lobby is the Art Stone mantel equipped with an electric grate and fireplace of Adam design. The electric fireplaces, furnished by the Electric Fireplace Manufacturing Co., delicately set off the atmospheric effects of these rooms. Hand-forged iron electrical fixtures were chosen for the lobby, dining room, etc. These are finished in softly shaded colorings, blending perfectly with the other furnishings. These were furnished by C. G. Everson & Co.

The elaborate heating equipment of the Kenrose assures the guests of comfortably temperatured rooms at all times. Ray Fuel Oil Burners were selected because of their economy and utter dependability. The installation of Kewanee Boilers and a BST Hot Water Heater supplements the oil heaters and insures proper heating under all weather conditions. The BST Hot Water Heater was furnished by the Furgeson & Lange Foundry. The Kewanee Boilers, as well as the radiators and other heating and plumbing equipment, were supplied by the Kellogg-Mackey Company. American Radiators are used throughout the new Kenrose Hotel. The Barrett Brothers have found the American Radiator to answer construction purposes very well and they use it in all their buildings. The Kauffman radiator shield was selected for the Kenrose because of its attractive design and its sturdiness, its cleanliness and heat deflecting qualities.

In the interests of comfort and convenience the Murphy In-a-Dor bed and Perfection Spring Cushion mattresses were installed throughout the hotel. The Barrett Brothers, with their vast experience in hotel construction work, naturally selected these two articles of guest room equipage.

To the excellent work of the contractors, supply houses and furnishers and to Mr. Herman Semrow, foreman of Lind Construction Co., and Mr. John B. Sweeney, assistant foreman for Barrett Brothers, is due much of the credit for the erection of the Kenrose. The Barrett Brothers sincerely thank the following concerns for their co-operation and the good will which they have shown at all times:

The Kenrose Hotel

The Kenrose Hotel is a distinctive, modern, fireproof hotel of three stories and English basement, containing one hundred and fifty beautiful rooms. It was erected under the personal supervision of the Barrett Brothers to afford a complete, dignified, permanent hotel suite at a most moderate cost. Done in the style of the Renaissance, the Kenrose is architecturally beautiful, excellently designed and executed in attractive face brick and terra cotta facings. The lavish use of hand wrought ornamental iron work, delicately chased lighting fixtures, Terrazzo and art marble adds to the Kenrose a distinctive charm and substantial beauty. To Mr. Jacques J. Kocher, architect, of Kocher & Larson Co., Inc., goes the credit of designing the Kenrose and its perfection is indicative of the ability, knowledge and practicability of Mr. Kocher. The Lind Construction Co., one of the most efficient contracting organizations in Chicago, undertook the construction of the hotel. The work of the Lind Construction Co., the interior decorating scheme, planned and executed by William O'Hara, the luxurious furnishings installed by Mandel Brothers, under the direction of Mr. J. L. Dillon, mark the Kenrose as one of the most luxurious hotels in Woodlawn.

Location

The Kenrose Hotel is at 64•7 Kenwood Avenue, one block south of 63rd Street. It is in the heart of Woodlawn, one of Chicago's finest and most dignified residential districts. It is but a few minutes walk to Jackson Park. The Tivoli and Woodlawn Theaters, the Trianon and other amusement centers are within easy walking distance. It is but a stone's throw to the great Woodlawn business district.

Transportation

The Illinois Central Railroad, 63rd Street Station, is one block from the Kenrose, and affords 15 minute service to the Loop. All through trains on the Illinois Central, Michigan Central and New York Central stop at this station. The South Side Elevated and the Chicago-Milwaukee Shore Line as well as the 63rd Street surface line are but one block from the Kenrose on 63rd Street.

Rooms

The Guest Rooms are elaborately appointed with every possible convenience. Upholstered furniture, Carvell chairs, secretaries, tables, chiffoniers, floor lamps and smoking stands are in every room. Murphy In-a-dor beds, twin or double, are used throughout the hotel. Rooms may be had with or without private bath.

Lobby

The lobby, lounges and smoking rooms of the Kenrose Hotel contribute much to the pleasure of the guest. There are beautifully furnished, rich yet refined, cheerful yet dignified. The object of these pleasant rooms is to foster a spirit of homelike familiarity and congenialty between the guests; to create as it were, one large family.

Dining Room

The Kenrose Dining Room is under the direction of Mr. Ira A. Orahood, a capable and prominent restaurateur. The dining room is elaborately and cozily fitted, providing a delightful atmosphere. The prices are most moderate. Club breakfast may be had for from thirty-five to fifty cents; luncheon from forty to fifty cents, and table d'hote dinner for seventy-five cents. A special Sunday dinner is served for one dollar.

Service

The Kenrose affords complete hotel service. A corps of maids under the supervision of the housekeeper keeps the rooms scrupulously clean at all times. Bell, valet, telephone and elevator service complete the Kenrose accommodations.

Management

The Hotel Kenrose is under the personal supervision of Barrett Brothers and managed by Mr. L. H. Waechter, formerly of the Chicago Beach Hotel. Mr. Waechter is a thoroughly capable and experienced hotel man and comes to the hotel with the highest recommendation. The Kenrose has initiated an innovation by the employment of Mrs. S. J. Wheeler, who will act in a dual capacity, that of supervisor of employees and as that of hostess.

Entertainment

Dance and card parties will be held from time to time for the pleasure of the guests. The spacious dining room affords an ideal dancing salon and the lobby and lounging rooms are ideal for card and other parties.

Prices

Prices range from ten and a half dollars the week to eighteen dollars for room with bath. Each room has bath or shower in connection. Rooms also may be had without bath. An especially attractive accommodation is the two-room with bath suite with twin In-a-dor beds accommodating four persons.

Your Immediate Inspection of The Kenrose Will Be Given Courteous, Respectful Consideration

THE NEW MORRISON HOTEL

To Lead the World in Size, Economy and Service

RENTING rooms at $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in other leading hotels has long been a fixed policy at the Morrison, made possible by store subleases that pay all the rent. But the recently obtained "sky lease" will make this policy effective on a far larger scale; the new Clark St. section will contain 850 more rooms—400 in the tower—practically without ground rent.

The present capacity (1,054 outside rooms, each with bath) will eventually be increased to 3,400—the largest hotel in the world.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, "Chicago's Wonder Restaurant," the most celebrated "dance and dine" rendezvous in the Middle West. The specialties to be presented throughout the week beginning Monday, Jan. 26, will be as follows:

THE SEATTLE HARMONY KINGS

Wonderful Curative Waters for Skin Diseases

Such chronic skin diseases as eczema, psoriasis, lichen and prurigo yield to a consistent and persevering use of Whitcomb Mineral Water. Functional diseases of the stomach, liver, and kidneys are greatly benefited by these baths, given according to the tonic plan, and aided by proper dietic and medical treatment.

The mineral water at St. Joseph is of the Sulphur-Saline variety and is pumped from wells 800 feet deep. The bathhouse is considered by experts to be one of the finest in the world. The walls, floor, bath partitions, vapor cabinets, etc., are all constructed of sanitary glass. They afford no place for the lodgment of germs and are spotlessly clean and inviting.

The Hotel, open the year around, has accommodations for 600, and you will find the accommodations and service equal to that of a large city Hotel. Fine cafe with good food at sensible prices.

Write us for literature on St. Joseph and its Wonderful Curative Waters—or come.

Semi-Annual Sale

Here Are the Furniture Values of 1925!

"Of Genuine Woods"

Everybody is ready! For months the finest furniture Manufacturers in America and Abroad have been grooming their finest furniture; for weeks we have been assembling it—for days we have been assorting it, marking its prices at savings of from 10% to 50%.

AND NOW

the sale is ready for you—the great Colby Semi-Annual Sale has grown over a period of fifty-nine years to become the furniture event of Chicago.

People wait for it. People come to it from many other cities and states. Furniture from it goes out into many states in the Union, and some to foreign countries.

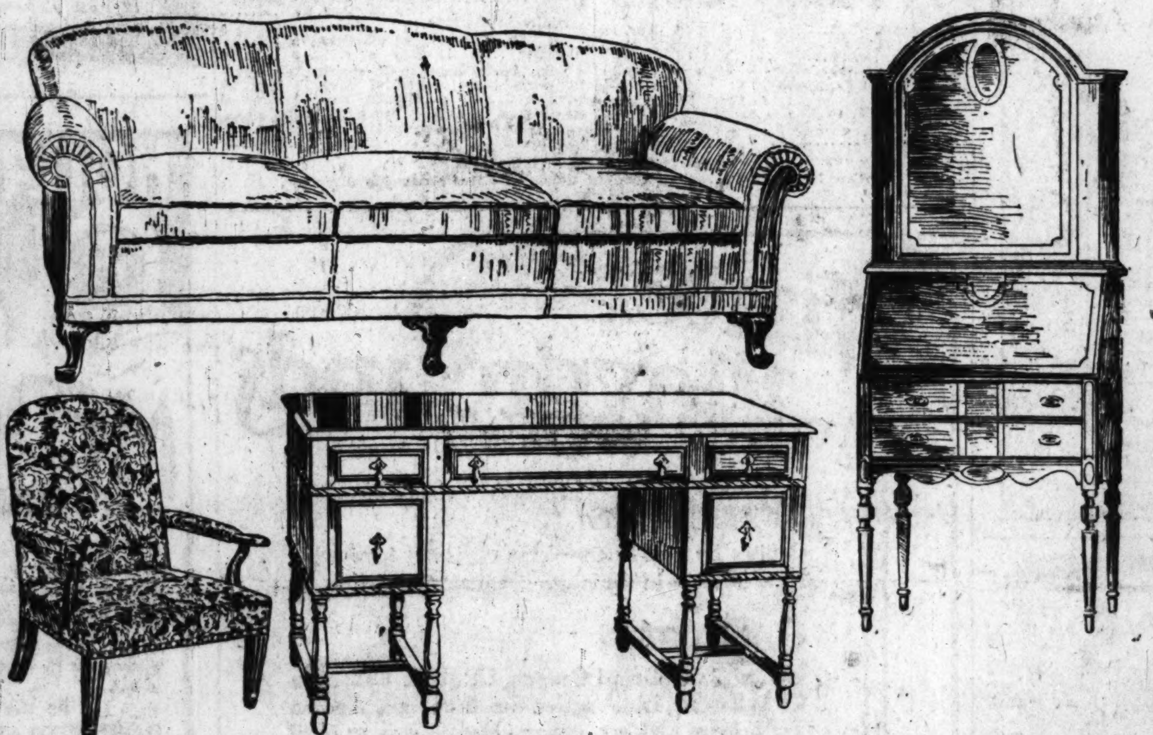
If this sale attracts people from points miles and miles away, how much more must it mean to you who can step into a conveyance and in a few minutes be here?

"OVER 6,000 DIFFERENT FURNITURE UNITS"

Colby's Semi-Annual Sale is more than a sale, it is an extraordinary exhibition of furniture, over 6,000 different pieces of furniture, all in one building, from a $7.50 genuine Walnut End Table to a $3,500.00 Imported Boudoir suite of rare inlaid woods trimmed with Ormolu bronze, and a wide variety in between. So every one can choose furniture for their home, all of Colby quality, of genuine Walnut or Mahogany, all hair and down upholstery. Correct style and finish, all at a saving that will please and at a price to fit most any purse.

Remember our $139.50 dining room group is designed, made and finished with the same thought and care as the more costly.

Come to Colby's whether for a $7.50 Genuine Walnut End Table, a $7.95 Windsor Chair, a $750.00 Lacquered English Secretary, a $2,400.00 Marble Top Suite of hand-carved Walnut or a $4,000.00 hand-decorated Satinwood Dining Room Suite.



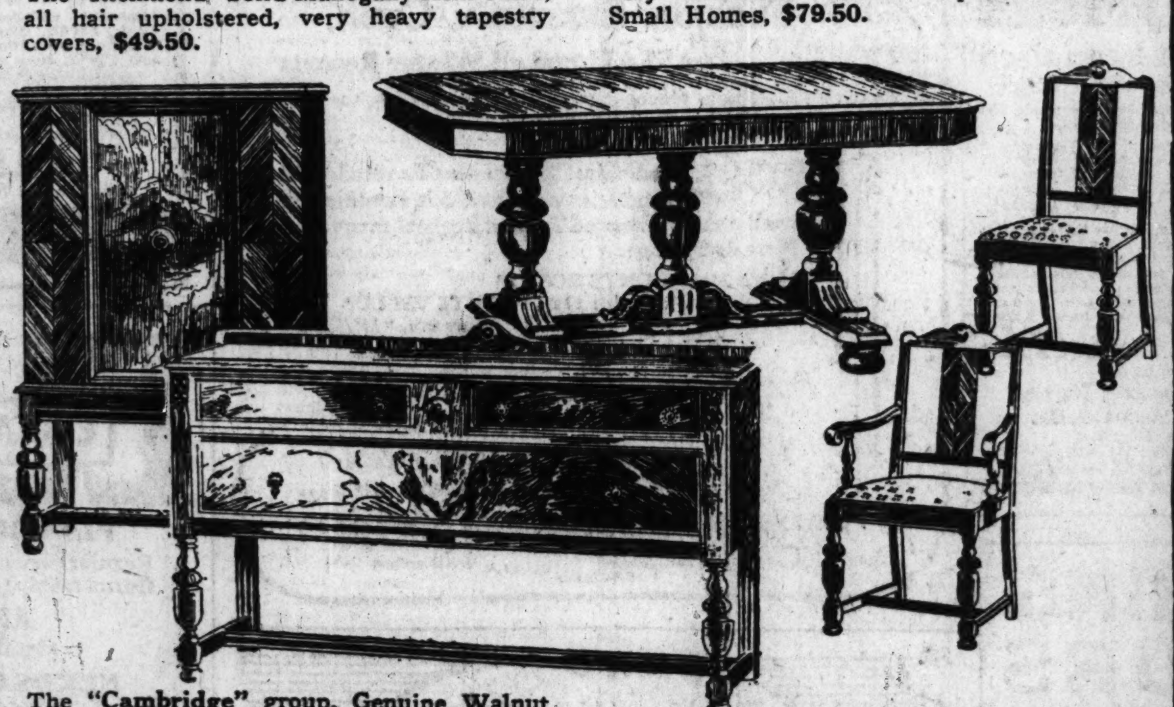
The "Newby" Davenport in figured or plain velour, extra well tailored, the very best of springs and workmanship, $100.00.

Chair to match, $59.50.

The "Richmond" Solid Mahogany Arm Chair, all hair upholstered, very heavy tapestry covers, $49.50.

The "Thackeray" Genuine Walnut Table Desk with quarter sawed white oak drawer interiors, 52 in. by 28 in., $95.00.

The "Berkley" Secretary, Genuine Walnut, very convenient size for apartments and Small Homes, $79.50.



The "Cambridge" group, Genuine Walnut furniture (no substitute woods here), 8 ft. table, one arm and five side chairs, $197.50.

The new Colby color, blended with pollard oak, makes this furniture an outstanding feature of the sale; all drawer work is splendidly made in quarter white oak. Buffet, $100.00; silver cabinet, $79.50; console server, $75.00; upholstered back and overstuffed, spring seated chairs—7 pieces, table, one arm and five side chairs, $250.00.

A REAL FUTURE FOR A WIDE-AWAKE, AMBITIOUS YOUNG SALESMAN.

This is an exceptional opportunity for making a permanent connection with one of the largest and most reliable concerns in Chicago, having thirty years of successful business back of it.

We are adding another unit to our sales force.

For a man who applies himself and follows instructions, large earnings are assured.

There are vacancies for TWO full time salesmen with PEP and ENERGY and for a few part time salesmen. The work as a part time salesman can be done while holding any other position.

The experienced, successful manager in charge of the unit was earning $60 per week when working as a part time salesman, and he will show you HOW IT CAN BE DONE.

We will teach beginners and train the unit under the most competent direction. We will supply all information, equipment and cooperation necessary to carry on the work to a successful goal. To start with us means your success is achieved.

A personal interview will convince you.

A WORD FROM DETROIT TO REAL ESTATE SALESMEN.

Why aren't you selling real estate in Detroit?

Do you realize that Detroit is growing like wildfire? That Detroiters are real estate hungry? That seasoned salesmen, even without acquaintances in Detroit, are reaping big harvests of commissions?

We are just on the verge of a mammoth development. We have bought 2,913 more acres for subdivision development. These acres are adjoining Brightmoor—the city we built to a population of 10,366 people, living in 3,596 homes, supplied by 161 local stores, in just 34 months.

Two thousand nine hundred and thirteen more acres assures permanence. We are here to stay. For 11 years we have been successful. Month after month, winter as well as summer, we pile up the big volume of business.

Be with our organization. We want seasoned salesmen. Arrange now to join in our new development.

Investigate Detroit; study conditions here; verify our statements.

Write at once to us for further information and interview.

AGGRESSIVE SALESMAN. BIG EARNINGS.

Making a connection with us now at the start of this era of prosperity will make you independent for life.

Our business is rapidly growing to gigantic proportions. We are expanding and need several high grade, forceful men, between 28 and 45 years, who can show with pride successful sales records for the past three or four years.

This is unquestionably a rare opportunity, as you will find upon inquiry, for the capable red blooded, two fisted, quick thinking type of man who appreciates the advantages that a concern of prestige, capital, and excellent working conditions can offer.

Because of our leadership in the business and many other conditions of which you will learn at your first interview, you will agree with us that the sales resistance is slight or small, if any. The earnings of even the average salesman with us are big and substantial.

Whether you are now employed or not, come in and talk it over between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. MR. BROWN, Room 1020, 508 S. Dearborn-st.

AMBITIOUS SALESMEN.

Experienced in commercial cleaners, or whose past selling was to industrials. Call Mr. Slicting, Van Buren 0425, for appmt.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR 1925—SALARY, COMMISSION, AND BONUS.

Salesman wanted to call and explain locations, prices, terms, etc., in answer to letters of inquiry and telephone calls received by us asking for information in response to our great advertising campaign concerning new property to be opened in the near future. Increased inquiries on this property have caused us to open up another permanent sales unit where experience is not necessary for permanent position. Salary, commission, large bonus, and rapid promotion follow energy and ability in this great organization. Promotion in this concern comes as the reward of continuous effort and ability. Our managers and executive heads were all promoted from the ranks. Apply to General Sales Manager.

CARD PLAYERS.

Lila Farrell in her work with us as a character analyst, selecting ladies to handle our special work, has determined through her classes that lady card players are especially qualified to succeed in a big way in our organization. The mind of the card player is quick and active and there are other qualities brought out that make for success. Probably that is why those ladies in our organization who enjoy card playing are earning over $100 per week. Miss Farrell wants to start a new unit composed entirely of card players to definitely demonstrate to us that $100 per week can be earned by those she selects for this new unit. If you are over 25 years old—married or single—and enjoy card playing come in Monday any time after 10 a. m. and let Lila Farrell frankly tell you whether you are qualified to get into the big money making class. Ladies belonging to card clubs are especially fitted to join, even though they can devote only part time to our special work. All applicants courteously received.

CAPABLE WOMAN.

A well established Chicago corporation, because of unusual expansion and success of their business, can offer splendid opportunity to three alert, energetic and capable women, age 30-45, to make a real place for themselves in a high grade organization which has doubled business in past year and is continuing with a sound and steady growth. Because of this condition executive opportunities are constantly being presented and if you have the right qualifications an exceptional future is before you. $2,500 to $3,500 first year and advancement with experience. Must be free to leave Chicago for short periods and have at least high school education. Call for Miss Strohm, Room 1009, 360 N. Michigan-av.

SELL ME YOUR SPARE TIME.

I made an average of $40 per week in my spare time. I am the manager now and will instruct and co-operate with you and show you that it can be done.

Come in and have a personal interview.

MANAGER,

20 REFINED WOMEN.

An unusual opportunity is offered 20 refined ladies over 25 to become established in various cities of North American continent as resident representatives of an Illinois corporation doing international business. Experience unnecessary but appearance is important. Salary $60 weekly with traveling expense advanced, and bonus arrangement making possible yearly income up to $7,500. Chicago positions open for eight serious, settled women, also one for Havana and one for Mexico City. Apply suite 521 Monroe Bldg., 104 S. Michigan-av., at Monroe. Ask for MISS EDIE or MRS. ANDERSON.

WOMEN—THE SECRETARY AND GENeral Sales Manager of an internationally known Chicago corporation, just returning from an annual survey of branch offices throughout the U. S., desires to employ ten more competent, refined women as resident representatives. Dignified, congenial, permanent connections with prosperous organization. Drawing account and bonuses insuring $3,000 to $6,000 annually. Transportation expenses paid. Business experience unnecessary, but appearance and tact essential. Chicago positions for three also open. Apply Suite 1516 Garland Bldg., 58 E. Washington-st. Ask for Mr. Gillfillan or Mrs. Dexter.

LADY—UNIVERSITY OR NORMAL SCHOOL graduate who wishes to capitalize her education; we have an unusual opportunity in our sales department for a woman who has unusual qualifications; position will shortly pay over $3,000 yr.; successful applicant will receive thorough training with weekly advance to cover all expenses; must be over 25, unincumbered and free to travel; previous business experience unnecessary; interview by appointment. Write EDWIN BELLOWS CO., Sales Division, Suite 505 to 520, Monroe Bldg.

WOMAN—PREPOSSESSING AND REFINED with good references; 25 to 35; college or high school training required; a twenty century idea giving the applicant a chance to enter a new field with a substantial and growing house; no books or house to house canvassing; drawing account and commission. This is a rare opportunity for the right party. See M. RITTER, 630 S. Wabash.

WOMAN—UNDER 36, TO LEARN MECHANical acts; assist dentist half time, half time in four adult family—treated as member. Rare opportunity; profitable schooling, rm., board, uniform, all exp. and $20 mo. while learning; increase as progress is made. After May 1 all time in office; ref. req. Address C 209, Tribune.

20—NURSES—20.

If you are at liberty I can place you in my organization. I have something that will universally interest your patients and members of your profession. The earning possibilities are very good. Call 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., Room 312, 81 E. Madison-st. G. H. SMITH.

WOMAN—WE HAVE A $2,500 POSITION with advancement to offer an ambitious, well educated woman over 28; opportunity to go south for the winter if desired; not house to house canvassing; only very capable women considered, though previous business experience not required. RENT OR CO-OP
TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

We are offering you the opportunity to secure a luxurious home in one of the finest apartment buildings in Chicago, just completed, on either the co-operative or rental basis. Available apartments limited.

In this way you can satisfy yourself as to the desirability of the co-operative plan before obligating yourself. That is, we will rent you one of our apartments at the normal rental of this locality with the privilege of changing your plan from renter to owner within the period of a year. In that case, you will be allowed full credit between what you pay in as rent and the actual cost of maintaining your apartment on the co-operative plan.

We offer you choice of a number of six room apartments with two baths and private open porches; or six rooms with three baths, third bedroom for maid; prices ranging from $160 to $180 per month. All rooms exceedingly large and light; built-in tubs and tile baths and shower room in all apartments.

Located S. W. cor. 68th and Crandon; block from Jackson Park and South Shore-dr.; I. C., surface, and bus lines transportation.

SMART APARTMENT HOMES are truly appreciated by only the most discriminating class of people.

THE REASON

why it is next to impossible to rent such an apartment is because in the speculative rental buildings the apartments are usually designed for the ordinary renter with average taste rather than with the idea of being the "last word"—excepting, of course, the huge apartment with rentals that are prohibitive except to persons of great wealth.

IN A BUILDING

designed for co-operative apartment homes, however, things must be just right, because you are an owner and you would not buy in the first place unless by doing so you could acquire a real home of refinement and exquisite taste—at the same time making a very profitable investment.

THE DEVONSHIRE

offers every desirable feature to one who requires six rooms and two baths—paneled and painted walls throughout, tile baths, artistic treatment tof lighting, abundant closet space, artificial refrigeration, and a delightful arrangement of rooms. Let us tell you of the advantages of this form of co-operative ownership.

WHY WORRY?

IT IS UP TO US
To Solve the Problem.

Conditions demand that we co-operate with you by solving the transportation, domestic, and high rental perplexities. We conclude that we can obtain occupants that will appreciate our efforts and assist us in our endeavor. We transport you to and from the city in a de luxe motor coach, stopping at all department stores and theaters; maid service, boats furnished free; every apartment commands an outlook of Lake Michigan's entire sweep; private beach and promenade, resplendent with seaside furnishings; splendid playground for your youngsters. The apartments are of 4 room units, so arranged to give 5 room accommodations; walls are canvased and studded with side lights of artistic design; bathroom is complete, with necessary fixtures, tile walls, shower, built-in bath tub; kitchen has tiled, recessed icebox, enameled kitchen cabinet, enameled stove with Lorrain heat regulator attachment; electric dishwashing machine; all rooms are spacious and so arranged to give one a homelike atmosphere. Agent on premises. Rental $90 per month. Telephone Rogers Park 4190. Our coach will call for you; 3 blocks east of Howard-av. express.

Poinciana-on-the-Lake.
7631-39 EASTLAKE-TERRACE.

TO YOUR INTEREST

WE HAVE A 2 AND 3 ROOM APT.

at a monthly rental within the reach of your purse. If one were to tell you that you could obtain an apartment in one of the city's most exclusive buildings, situated on the shore of Lake Michigan, with 150 ft. of private beach and private promenade, de luxe motor coach to transport you to and from the city, maid service, boats, gas, electricity free at a monthly rental not to exceed $50, you would hardly believe it. However, it is the gospel truth. Come and see for yourself. Only 2 available. Agent on premises. Telephone Rogers Park 4190; 3 blocks east of Howard-av. express.

Poinciana-on-the-Lake,
7631-39 EASTLAKE-TERRACE.

WHY DO YOU BUY

A RENT RECEIPT every 30 days when you can buy A PAYMENT RECEIPT with the same money? Rents go on forever. Payments come to an end in a few years and you have something for your money that can be CASHED IN for more than it cost you, while rent receipts are only reminders of what you MIGHT HAVE HAD. Move in our co-operative bldg at 2812 Cambridge-av. and get a payment receipt each month.

$90 PER MONTH AND UP FOR SPACE IN TRIBUNE TOWER

At this nominal cost a limited number of representatives of publishers, manufacturers and financial interests can secure choice location in a building which has an international reputation before its completion.

It makes no difference where you select space on any of the floors [from 13 to 23 are available], you will have the same benefits of light, beauty and convenience on any side of this magnificent structure.

Remember, Tribune Tower was built up to an ideal and not down to a price, and the best architectural and engineering brains available were brought to this work.

Anywhere in the civilized world you can take pride in the statement: "My address is Tribune Tower, Chicago."

For booklet containing data, floor plans, etc., phone Central 0100 or address

Cunningham Sport $2,500

ABSOLUTELY 100 PER CENT PERFECT.

This magnificent, distinctive, late model, powerful, quiet and smooth running, beautiful 8 cylinder Cunningham sport touring is mechanically perfect—cost $6,800 and presents the appearance of new.

It is smartly finished in two tone Dublin gray with seat covers and top boot to match. Equipment consists of 5 practically new Vogue tires, 5 wire wheels, bumper, massive custom built German silver head lamps and radiator, Houdaille shock absorbers, etc.

The few thousand miles that this superb car has been carefully driven has served only to cause it to run more smoothly.

Take it to Florida or California this winter and to Yellowstone or the Adirondacks next summer. You will be justifiably proud of its ownership. You will enjoy its thrilling performance, easy riding, comfort, and have peace of mind.

We realize that a practically new $6,800 car of Cunningham quality for only $2,500 seems almost too good to be true. If you do not feel qualified to judge, bring an expert with you. We invite the most scrutinizing examination of this aristocrat of eight cylinder cars.

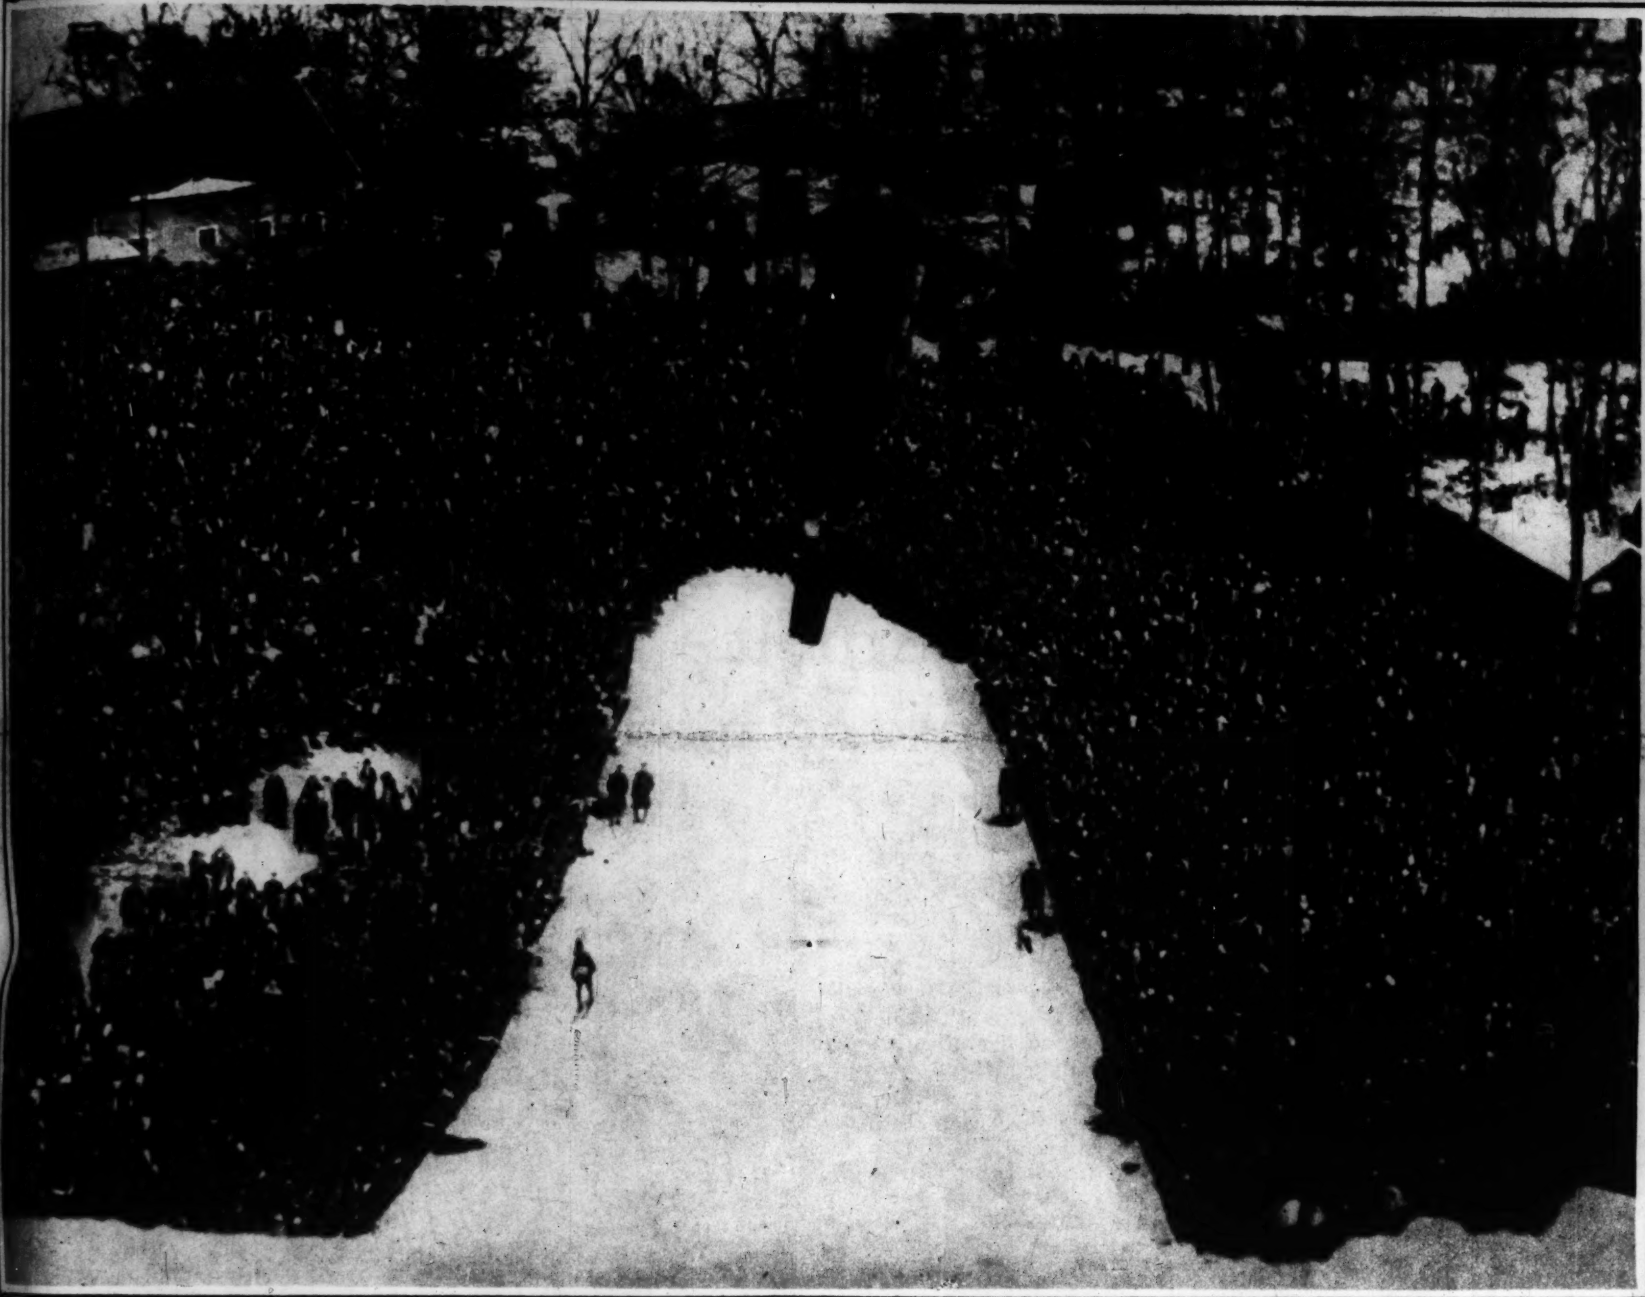
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

January 25, 1925

NURMI OFF FOR ANOTHER RECORD—The start of the one and three-quarters mile race at the annual meet of the Tri-Color club in the Chicago Coliseum, in which the flying Finn broke his own mark for the distance, racing it in 7:55 2-5 and beating Joie Ray of the I. A. C. by nearly half a lap. Nurmi, who smashed an indoor world record for the seventh time during his American visit in this event, is at the right; Ray is at center, and Frey Liewendahl at the left.

(Tribune photograph.)



WING-FOOTED CHAMPION OF THE SNOW FLIERS, Henry Hall of Detroit. This leap of 166 feet won first prize in the Norge Ski club's annual tournament at Cary, Ill., last Sunday. A crowd estimated at from 25,000 to 40,000 crowded the hill at the foot of the great steel slide to watch the spectacular sport. Hall's winning jump tied the Cary record, and later he set a new unofficial mark for the course by soaring 167 feet. Hall also holds the world's record, made when he jumped 229 feet at Revelstoke, Canada.

CHEERS AND CURSES FOR MUSSOLINI—Pictorial evidence in Rome that Italy's premier is at once one of the most idolized and most hated men in the world. One of Mussolini's ministers had just called for a cheer from the crowd during the latest demonstrations over the excesses of Facisti dictatorship, and imprecations punctuated the vivas.

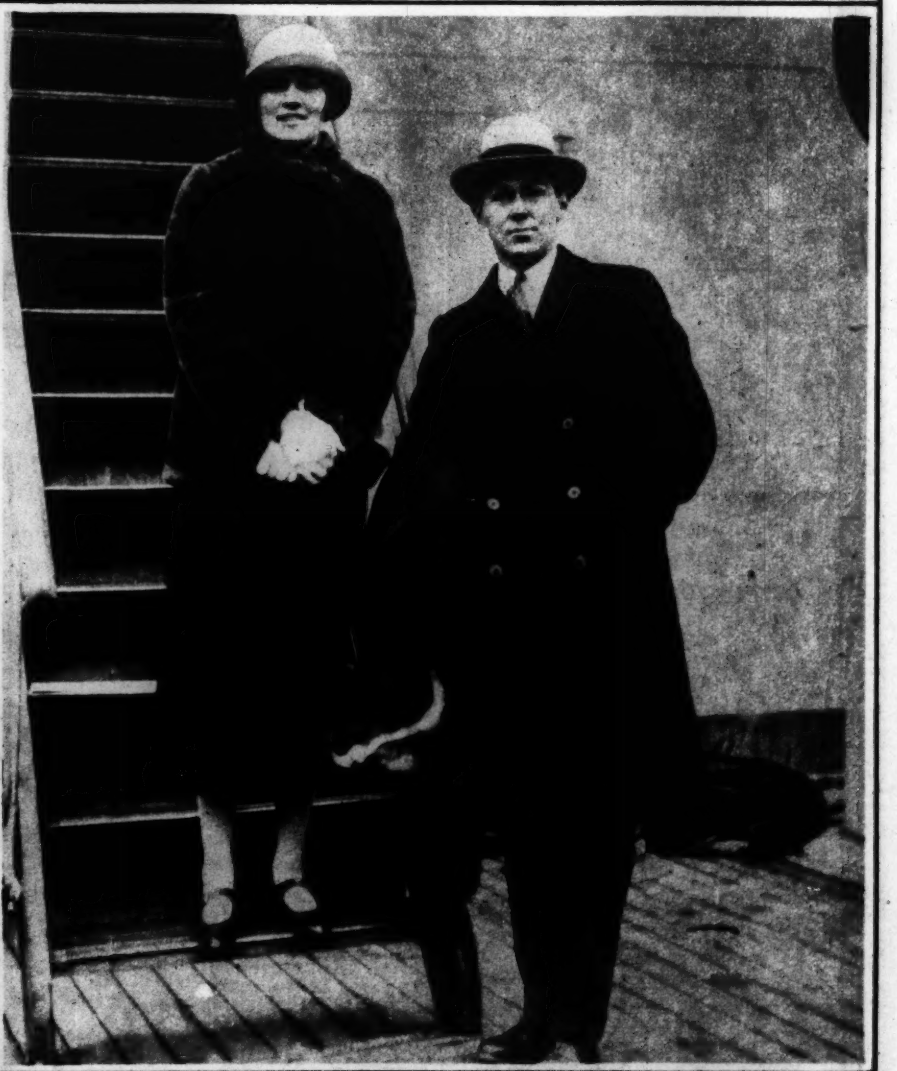
NEW BEAUTY IN THE DIPLOMATIC SET—Baroness Adolph von Maltzan, wife of the new German ambassador to the United States. She herself is of a capitalistic family: her father, Carl Cruson, is the steel king of Magdeburg.



RICHES ON HONEYMOON—H. P. Davison Jr. and his bride, who was Anne Stillman, sailing from New York. Young Mr. Davison is the son of the powerful Morgan official whose name he bears; Mrs. Davison is the daughter of James A. Stillman, the banker, and Mrs. Anne U. Stillman of divorce case fame.

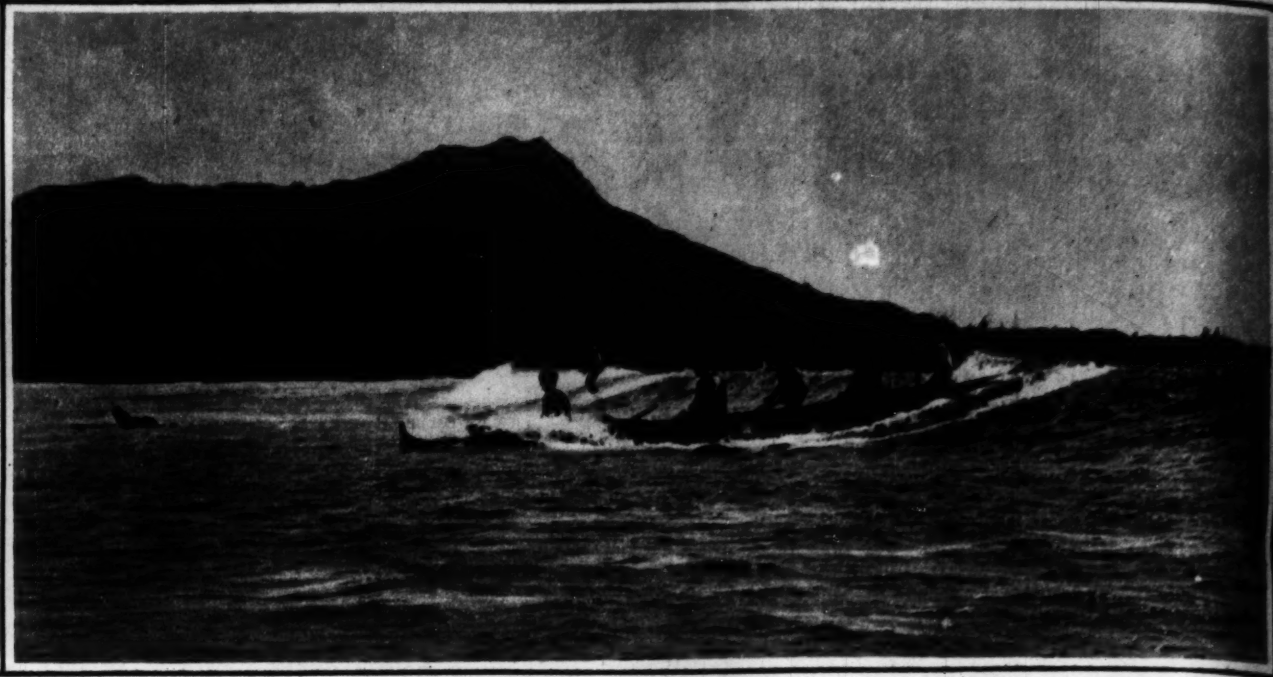
ROUGH RIDERS OF THE ROARING SEAS—From Honolulu comes this interesting picture of daredevils at play in the pounding Pacific. Looks as if they just shove off on surf boats, the game being to ride their powerless craft up and down the giant ocean waves. That must be a sport of thrills and spills—spills a-plenty, we'll venture. (Photograph from Perkins studio, Honolulu)



OFF THE BEACH OF WAIKIKI—perhaps—and perhaps not. At any rate, here's another vivid picture of water sports in the Hawaiian islands. The craft in the forewater might be a four-oared canoe such as we see in races here. We don't know just what the outrider at the left has to do with the plot. Back near the towering shore you'll notice a lone surf rider skimming the waves in flawless style. (Photograph from Gurry, Honolulu)

Squibb's
Sodium Bicarbonate
A HIGHLY PURIFIED PRODUCT
E.R. SQUIBB & SONS, NEW YORK
R. BOYD

Pleasant because it is pure

THE more often you use a product the more important is its purity and palatability. The reasons are obvious.

Squibb's Sodium Bicarbonate (bicarbonate of soda) is a highly purified, clean, snow-white powder. It is entirely free from impurities which impart the bitter, alkaline taste to ordinary bicarbonate of soda. It will not irritate the most sensitive stomach.

You will prefer Squibb's Bicarbonate of Soda, not only because it is pure and pleasant to take, but because of its high medicinal value.

Here is a product for your medicine cabinet that will have your physician's approval, for many of the preparations in his medicine case bear the name "Squibb." In the higher development of chemistry, as applied to medical service, Squibb has taken an important part for more than sixty years.

Insist on Squibb Household Products for your medicine cabinet . . . Squibb's Castor Oil (Tasteless), Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil (palatable—vitamin tested), Squibb's Epsom Salt Special (bitterless, palatable), Squibb's Milk of Magnesia. Your druggist has them.

Steichen

Unnoticed, unfelt – Dry Mouth is the real cause of modern tooth decay

The only way to keep your teeth both white and safe is to restore the normal action of the mouth glands

YOU cannot see Dry Mouth. And except in extreme cases, you cannot feel it.

Yet this curious condition, dentists say, is the underlying cause of most tooth decay.

Nature arranged to protect your teeth with the alkaline fluids of the mouth glands. But modern food is so soft, so quickly swallowed, that—from sheer lack of exercise—your glands dry up. The acids of decay collect.

Gritty scouring and strong washings whiten your teeth—but five minutes after you stop brushing the acids form again.

It is only recently that dentists and physicians have recognized that there is a simple, natural way to prevent tooth decay by stimulating the glands to do their normal work of protecting your teeth.

How Pebeco works

Pebeco acts directly on the salivary glands. As soon as it enters your mouth it starts a full, normal flow of alkaline saliva.

With constant daily use Pebeco completely restores the natural, protective action of your glands. Their alkaline fluids again bathe your teeth day and night. The acids of decay are neutralized as fast as they form.

Pebeco leaves your whole mouth normal and healthy. And in this healthy mouth, your teeth are kept not only white and shining, but safe.

DENTIST AND MOTHER

Our dentist told my mother that dental floss must be used. I bought a spool of it. Dad tried it, saying: "Now who can use that stuff?"—"Listen, Patsy, here is a dollar. Run and get one of those Ivory Flossys. You simply bite on it." After trying it Dad said:

"Had any one told me I carried so much stuff between my teeth I should have felt hurt. After using the safety 'Flossy' for a week I am ashamed I did not clean those 30 spaces before — so easy. Bot. 6 Flossys from Sargent's, one for each of my family."

Dentists say: "Clean the 30 hidden spaces between teeth or nature will destroy both gums and teeth by germ decay and make you a target for bad breath, pyorrhea, focal infection and slow poisoning of the entire body."

If this information seems strange the following test in your own mouth will astound you.

SURPRISE TEST

Brush your teeth most thoroughly then use a Flossy and you will find quantities of yellowish, odorous, fermented food particles clinging between the teeth, where brushing fails.

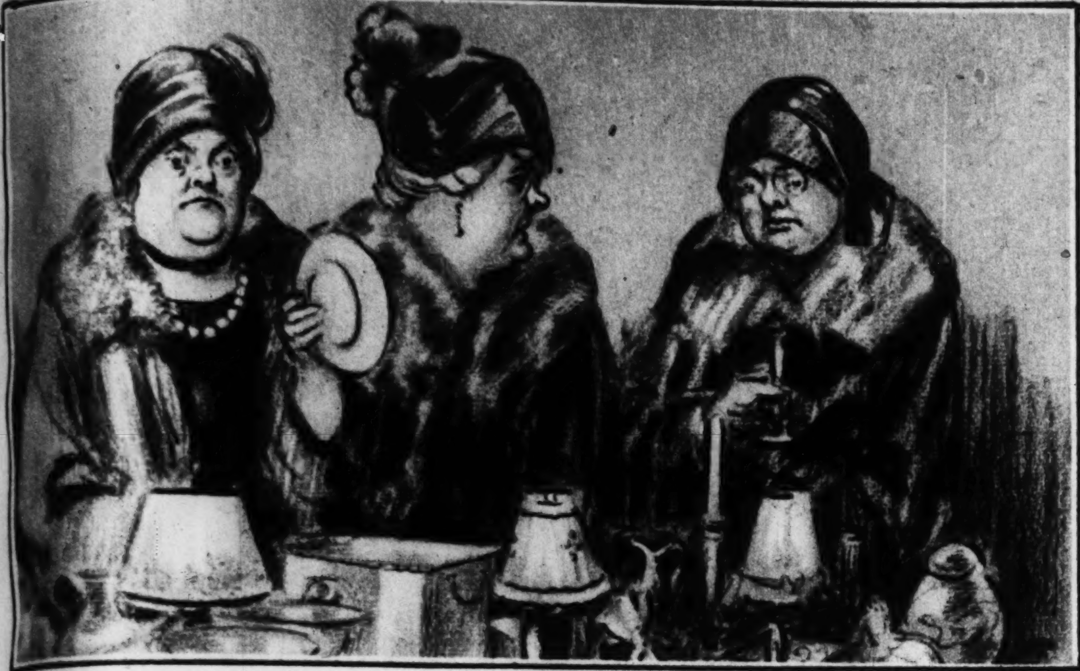
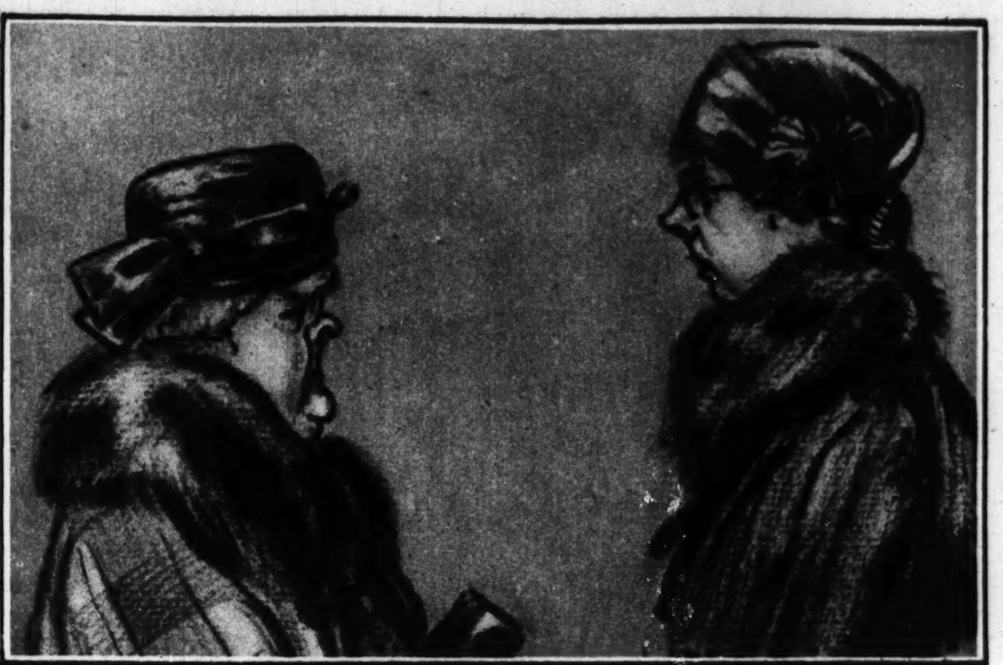
Wedding Presents

By
W. E. Hill

Copyright: 1925: Chicago Tribune Syndicate

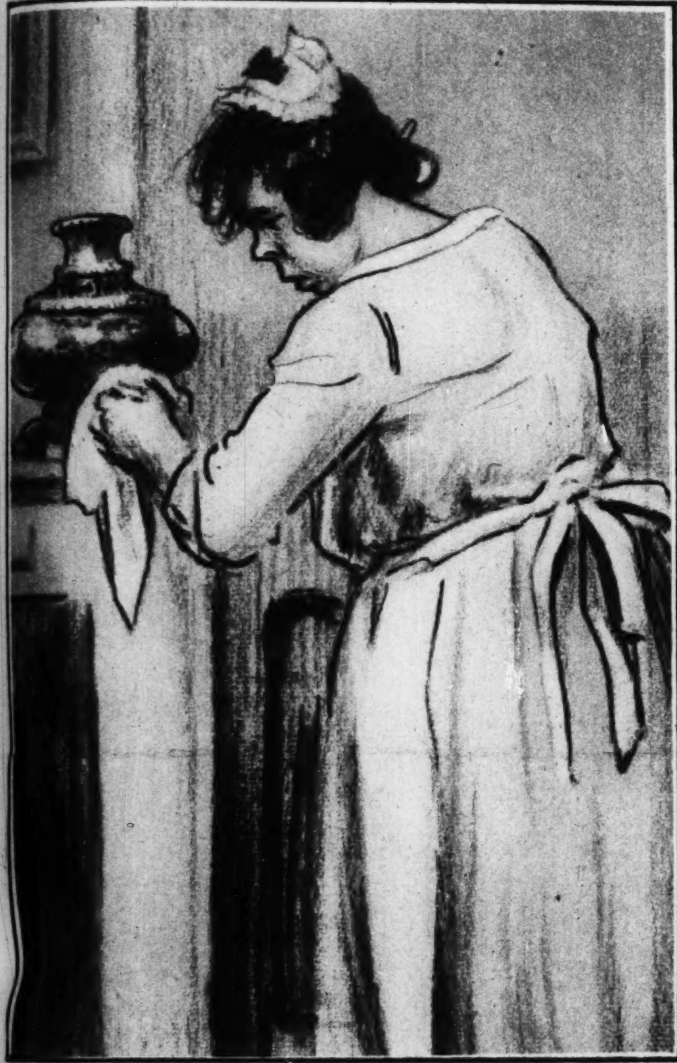


Three lovely ladies, shopping for a bride-to-be. The secret of buying a wedding present lies in making ten dollars' worth look like twenty dollars' worth. This little scene is laid at the five and ten dollar table of the Super-gift Shop.

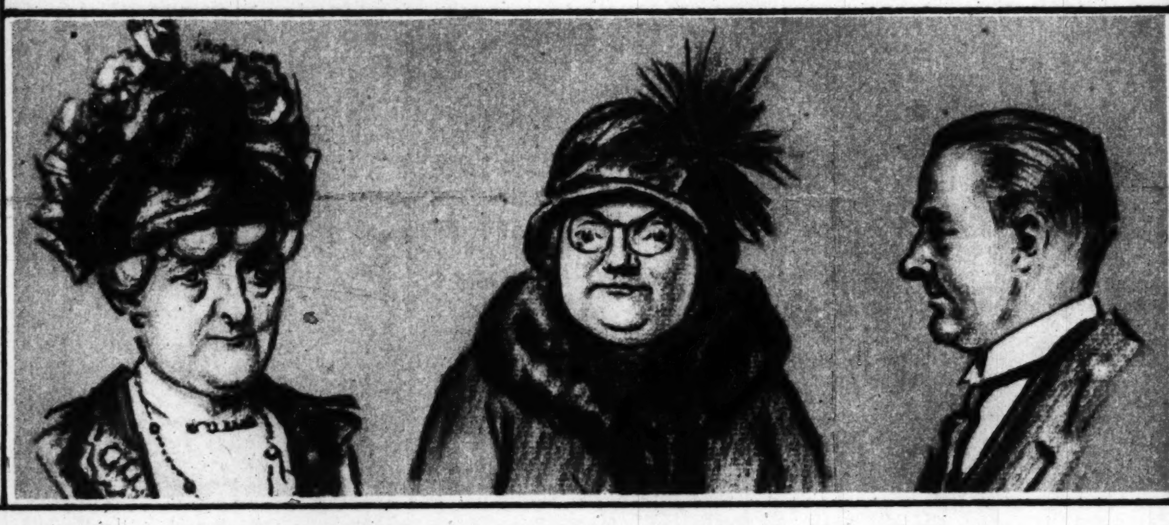


Two of her mother's girl friends have been to look over the bride's table of wedding presents. "My dear, I hope you saw the look she gave her mother when I asked what old Uncle Fred sent," Mrs. Thisbe is saying to Miss Bodenkamp. "I don't believe he intends to send her anything!"

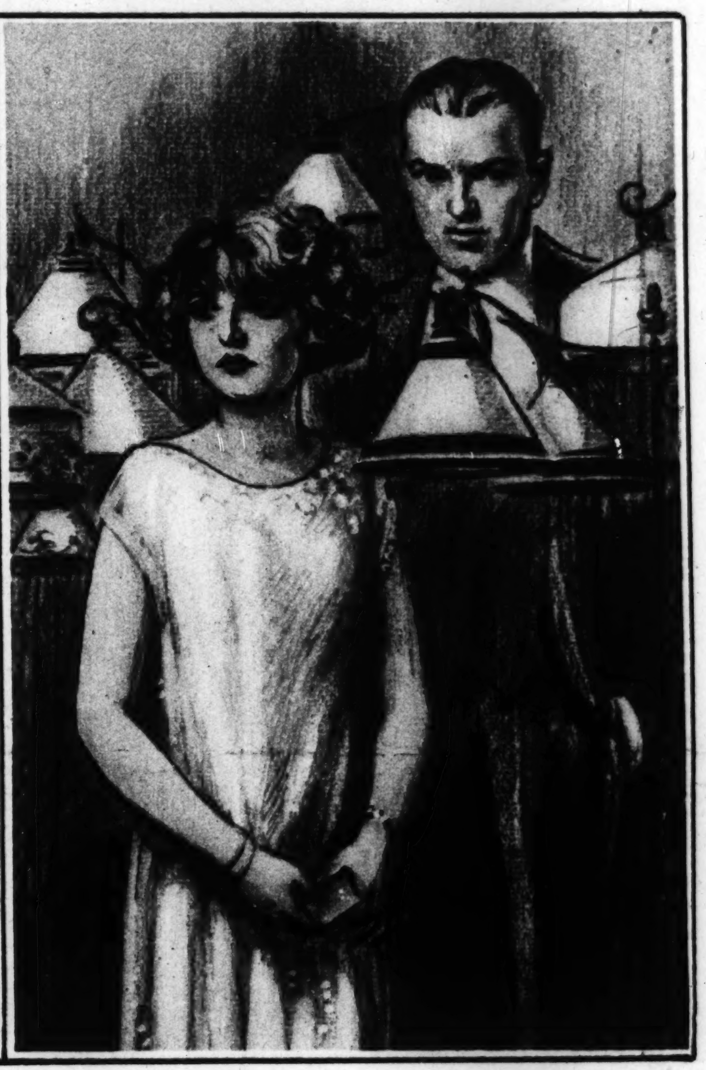
Three of the bride's kin and what they gave. Second Cousin Percival, who offered to wait and see what the bride lacked after all the other presents had come in, and hasn't yet been heard from, and the bride's dear mamma and papa. They are giving all the flat silver.



The eyesore. There's always one among every batch of wedding gifts. And it's the one thing that never seems to break. (See how carefully Norah dusts the vase Aunt Sadie Mills sent. She's broken almost all the Venetian glass, but Aunt Sadie's eyesore remains intact.)

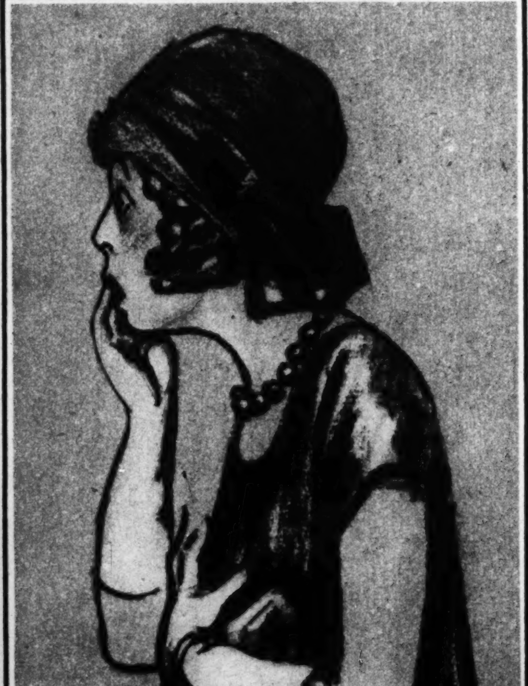


Three of the groom's relatives and what they gave. From left to right, the rich aunt, who sent only bread and butter plates; the mother of the groom, who gave the living room furniture, and the first cousin, who, being a bachelor, gave a coffee percolator.

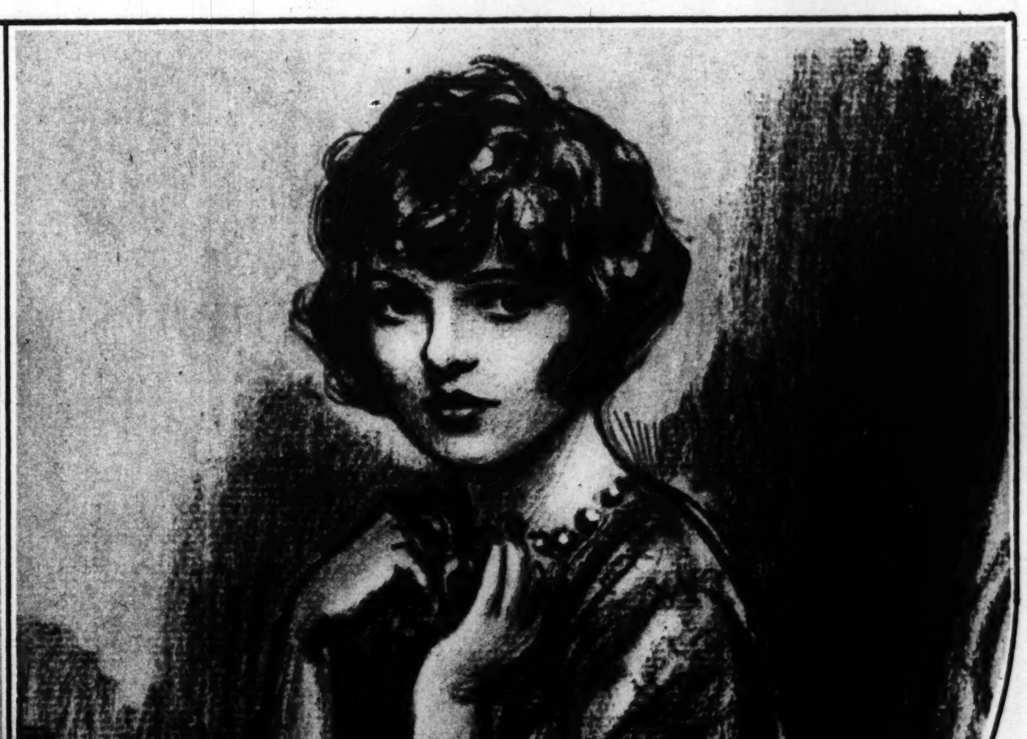


This is a quiet little scene in the home life of a bride and her lesser half, showing how the apartment would look if all the people who had thought of bridge lamps as presents obeyed the impulse.

"What do you suppose it's for, Harry?" Presents of doubtful mien should be labeled "useful" or "ornamental."



Poor Clara! A horrible thought has crossed her mind. She has been using up unexchangeable duplicate wedding gifts as Christmas presents. But, O horror, Clara has sent dear Cousin Nellie the selfsame pickle fork that was Cousin Nellie's bridal gift to Clara.



The bride of one week and the "thank you" notes. What is there to say that hasn't been said before about a tea-ball?

This is your opportunity to learn how to stop Gray Hair the quickest, easiest, safest way.

RICH
YOUNG

Why don't women realize that men don't like Gray Hair

To them it means the loss of youth and charm—"getting old." To you it means tragedy, unless you learn the quick and certain way to stop it—my way

By MARY T. GOLDMAN

ARE you a woman who is deceiving herself with the idea that gray hair is becoming? Do you tell yourself that it makes you look smart and distinguished, that it makes your face seem fresher — that your husband and the other men you know haven't noticed any difference in your appearance?

If so, you are shutting your eyes to facts, when you ought to be chasing them. Better admit the truth, that to be attractive, desirable — to enjoy admiration — to generally hold your own with other women—

You must find a way to stop the gray!

Then write me

No one is better qualified to advise, for I've been through the same experience.

Early in life my own hair began to turn gray, and I faced this dreary prospect without the hope of aid.

I couldn't believe that there was no way to stop gray hair—that science couldn't conquer the problem. I felt that it was neglect, that scientific men didn't consider the subject important. I determined to find one who did.

At last I found him—a laboratory expert with whom I worked in collaboration until success was attained.

We found it—the quick, easy, certain way to stop gray hair! And though this was many years ago, research has never bettered it.

What I'll tell you

That a clear, colorless liquid, clean and dainty, restores the natural, glorious color of youth. This color is so perfect, so exact, that it seems a miracle.

No one would guess you ever had been gray.

Wash this newly restored hair—brush it—have it waved and curled. There's nothing to wash, brush or rub off.

The renewed color is permanent as well as perfect. It lets you forget you ever were gray.

The proof?—A free trial bottle

Now don't think to yourself that what I tell you is too good to be true. Neither should you accept a single statement on faith. But prove all I say is true.

How? By filling out and mailing the coupon for a free trial bottle of my famous hair color restorer — this preparation I am proud to christen with my own name.

Test as I tell you, on a single lock. This single lock test will tell you exactly what you ought to do. It shows you how successfully you can stop gray hair — how easily, how quickly, how surely. You will understand why I feel that it is such folly—this letting your hair turn gray.

Applied with a comb

Acceptance of my free trial offer also shows you how easily my restorer is applied. You simply comb it through your hair—that's all.

You don't need anyone to help you, there's no skill required. You can keep your secret even from your family and from your closest friends.

Tell them, if they ask you how you transformed your hair, that you've been taking restorative treatments. This will be true. But if you have a gray haired friend, confide in her. She'll always be grateful.

Mail the coupon—I answer by return mail

I send my patented free trial outfit, containing a free trial bottle of my restorer, a special comb for easy application, and full directions for making the single lock test. Be sure to state the natural color of your hair with an X on the coupon. If possible, enclose a lock in your letter.

Then when you prove beyond a doubt that you needn't be gray, that you can quickly and easily get back the natural lovely color, you'll be eager to begin complete restoration.

Then get a full sized bottle of Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer from your druggist, who will gladly supply you. Look for my name and famous trade-mark on the label—that's your protection.

If you prefer, you may order direct from me without extra charge. I'll take care of your needs direct, postage prepaid.

A DUKE AND DUCHESS, NO LESS, AT PALM BEACH—Their presence insures the social success of the current season at the Florida resort. His grace the Duke of Sutherland is a young chap of 36 years. He seems a bit annoyed at something, perhaps at our bally photographer. The duchess is more amiable, it appears. Before her marriage in 1912 she was Lady Eileen Butler. THE KEY TO CHICAGO'S HEALTH is this dam at Lockport, Ill., which regulates the amount of water let into the drainage canal from Lake Michigan. Engineers for Chicago claim a flow of 10,000 cubic feet per second is necessary to dispose of the city's sewage properly. The Supreme court recently upheld an injunction limiting the flow to 4,167 cubic feet per second. Chicago will carry its fight into congress. Meanwhile it has appealed to the war department to delay enforcing the injunction, at least till it can arrange to dispose of its sewage in some other manner.

MISFORTUNE PURSUES EXILED PRESIDENT of Hungary. Count Michael Karolyi was called hastily from Paris when his wife became seriously ill of typhoid in New York City. Countess Catherine Karolyi had come to America for a lecture tour. Her entry here was delayed when enemies charged she was an agent of communism. Only recently Hungary confiscated the $2,000,000 estate of the count, who in 1918 was elected first president of the Hungarian republic. He was unseated in 1919 and driven into exile by the Bela Kun Soviet.

New way to keep your hair always at its best

MOST men's hair is stubborn. And women's hair isn't easy to keep in place. Yet every man and every woman knows how looks depend on it.

Pomades, dressings? They made hair greasy, matted. Water? It left hair drier and more unruly than before.

Today millions have discovered an easy, safe way to have smooth, lustrous hair—just a touch of Stacomb—smoothed on quickly before brushing. It keeps your hair always in place—naturally smooth and lustrous with health. Without ever making it greasy, or drying out the natural oils.

Get Stacomb at any drug or department store—in jars and tubes (or in liquid form).

Peace of Mind

By this NEW way in personal hygiene

FIVE million women have radically changed their habits in personal hygiene in the past few years. They have learned the new scientific way—Kotex.

Kotex is a super-absorbent sanitary pad made of Cellucotton, which absorbs instantly 16 times its own weight in moisture. It is 5 times as absorbent as cotton. Each Kotex pad is treated with a new secret disinfectant – making it, of itself, an active deodorant.

Another great advantage is that Kotex is easily disposed of without bother or annoyance.

In germ-proof, sanitary packages of 12, Kotex comes in 2 sizes: Regular, and Kotex-Super.

$10,000 in Cash Prizes!

The Chicago Tribune Announces

The Patriotic Game of Presidents

Educational! Entertaining! Simply Put The Pictures Together Right And Name Them–And Win A Big Cash Prize!!!

Starting in this issue The Chicago Tribune presents one of the most novel contests ever conducted — The Patriotic Game of Presidents. Educational! Entertaining! It is open to men, women, boys, and girls everywhere. $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes will be paid for the best answers.

It Costs Nothing!

Every week for ten weeks The Chicago Tribune will print a page of Composite Pictures of the Presidents of the United States.

Each set of three pictures, when put together properly, will make three complete portraits. All you have to do is put them together right and name them. Clews will be given to help you.

Note the first set of Pictures above. Can you put them together right and name them?

Try it! It's easy. Just an entertaining and educational patriotic game to familiarize everyone with all the Presidents in American history.

It costs nothing. Everyone has an equal opportunity to win a big Cash Prize.

Open to Every Man, Woman, Boy, and Girl

Remember, The Patriotic Game of Presidents is open to everyone—boys, girls, men, and women. It does not matter who you are or where you live.

The $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly named and neatest complete sets of Pictures.

Begin at once! Set No. 1 is printed above. Do you know these Presidents? Set No. 2 will be printed in next Sunday's Tribune! Save all pictures until you have the ten sets—then send them in.

THE PRIZES:

1st Prize	$1,000.00
2nd Prize	500.00
3rd Prize	100.00
Next 5 Prizes ($50.00 Each)	250.00

3. This contest is open to everybody—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of The Chicago Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.
4. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill!
5. The Composite Pictures must be cut out, assembled, and pasted or pinned together. Below each picture must be written the name of the President and the years of his administration. (Give only first and last year of administration. For example, Warren G. Harding, 1921-1923.)
6. In all, 29 Pictures will be printed—one of each President. Pictures are to be submitted only in complete sets of 29. Hold all Pictures until you have the complete set of 29. Then send them to "Presidents," The Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. Be sure to write your name and address clearly on your entry. All Pictures must be in by midnight, 21 days after Set No. 10 is published. We cannot undertake to return any entries.
7. Each entry should be sent by first-class mail—postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by Post Office Department. Contestants may send in as many sets as they wish, but no contestant shall be entitled to more than one prize.
8. Accuracy will count. Neatness will count.
9. You need not purchase The Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the originals and assemble the pictures from the copies you have made. The Tribune may be examined at any of its Offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.
10. The Judges will be a Committee appointed by The Chicago Tribune. The Judges' decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

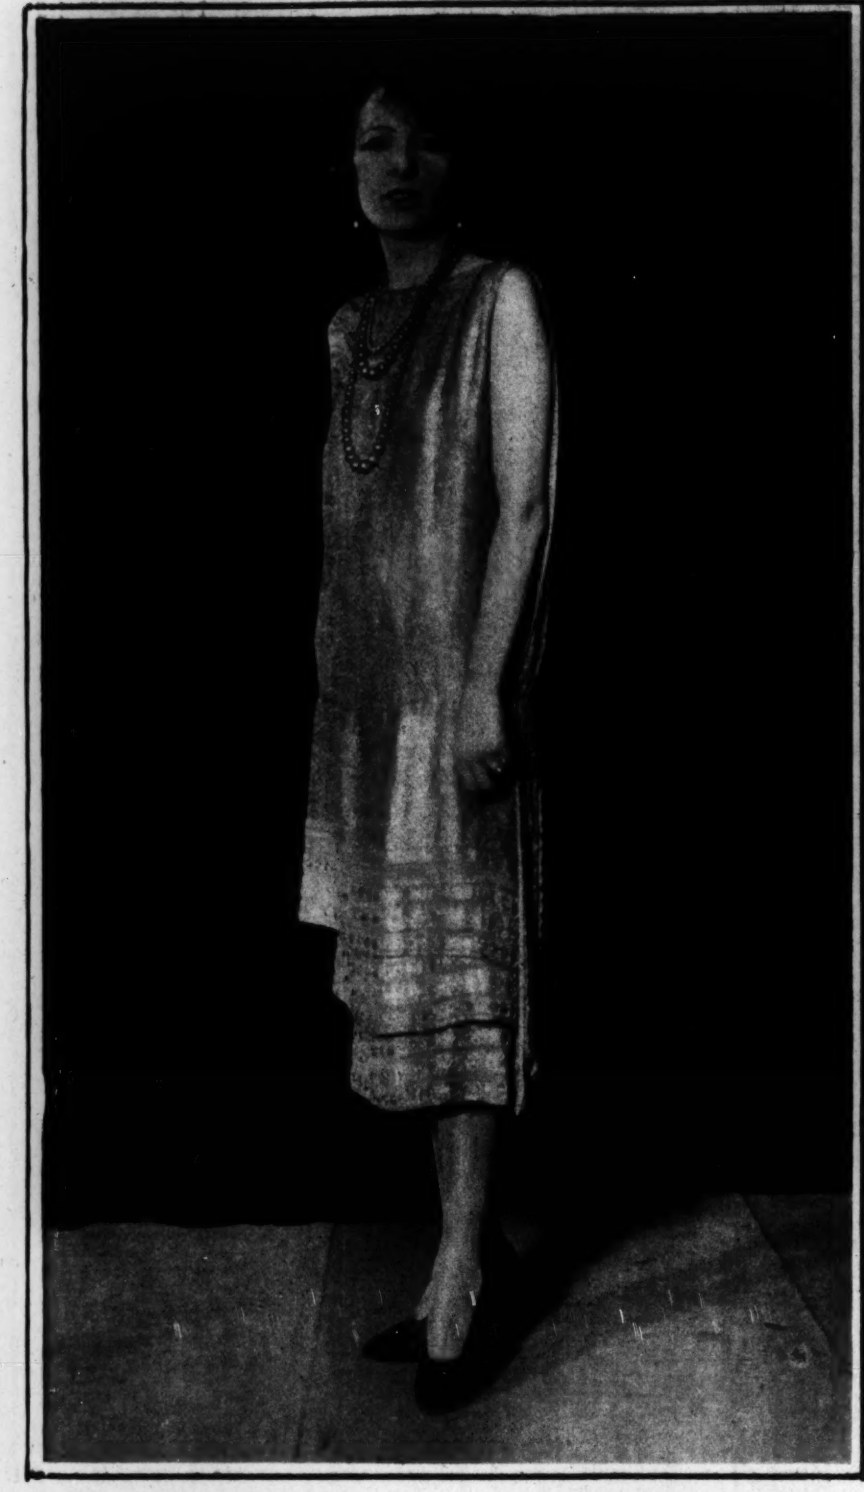
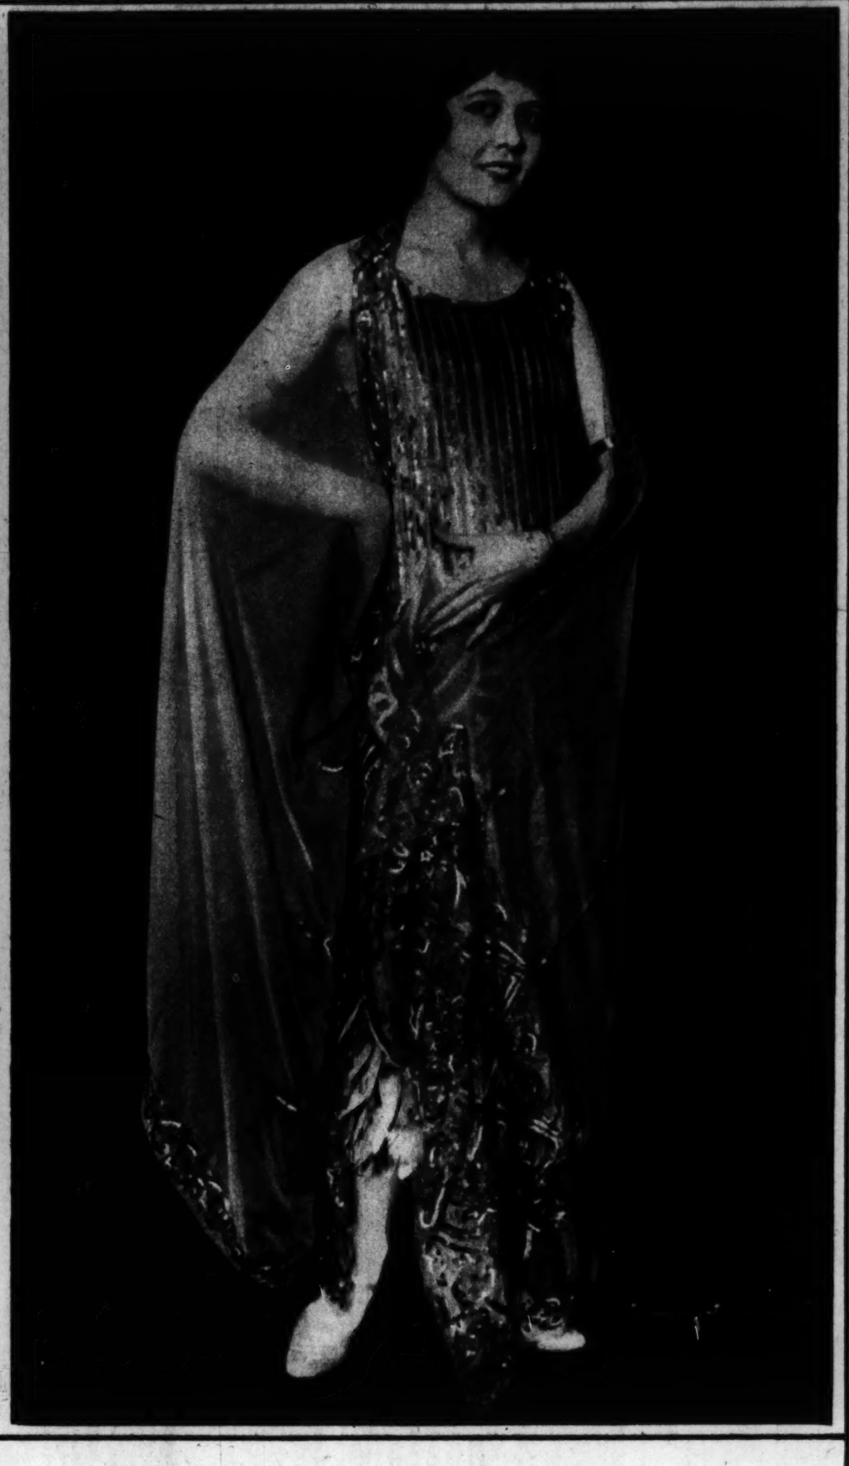
THE SIX MOST BEAUTIFUL MANNEQUINS OF PARIS

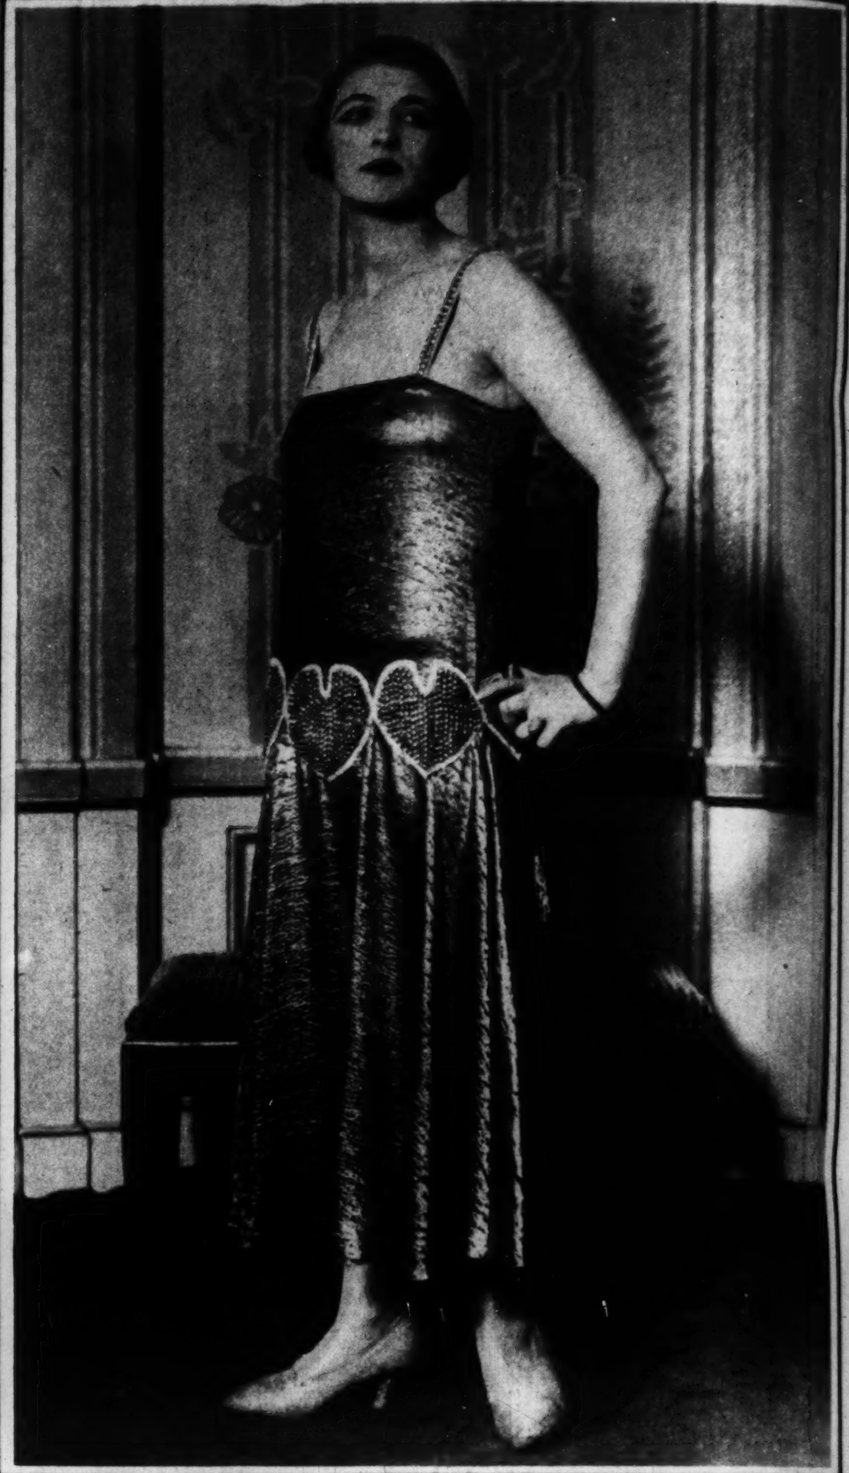
SELECTED BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY



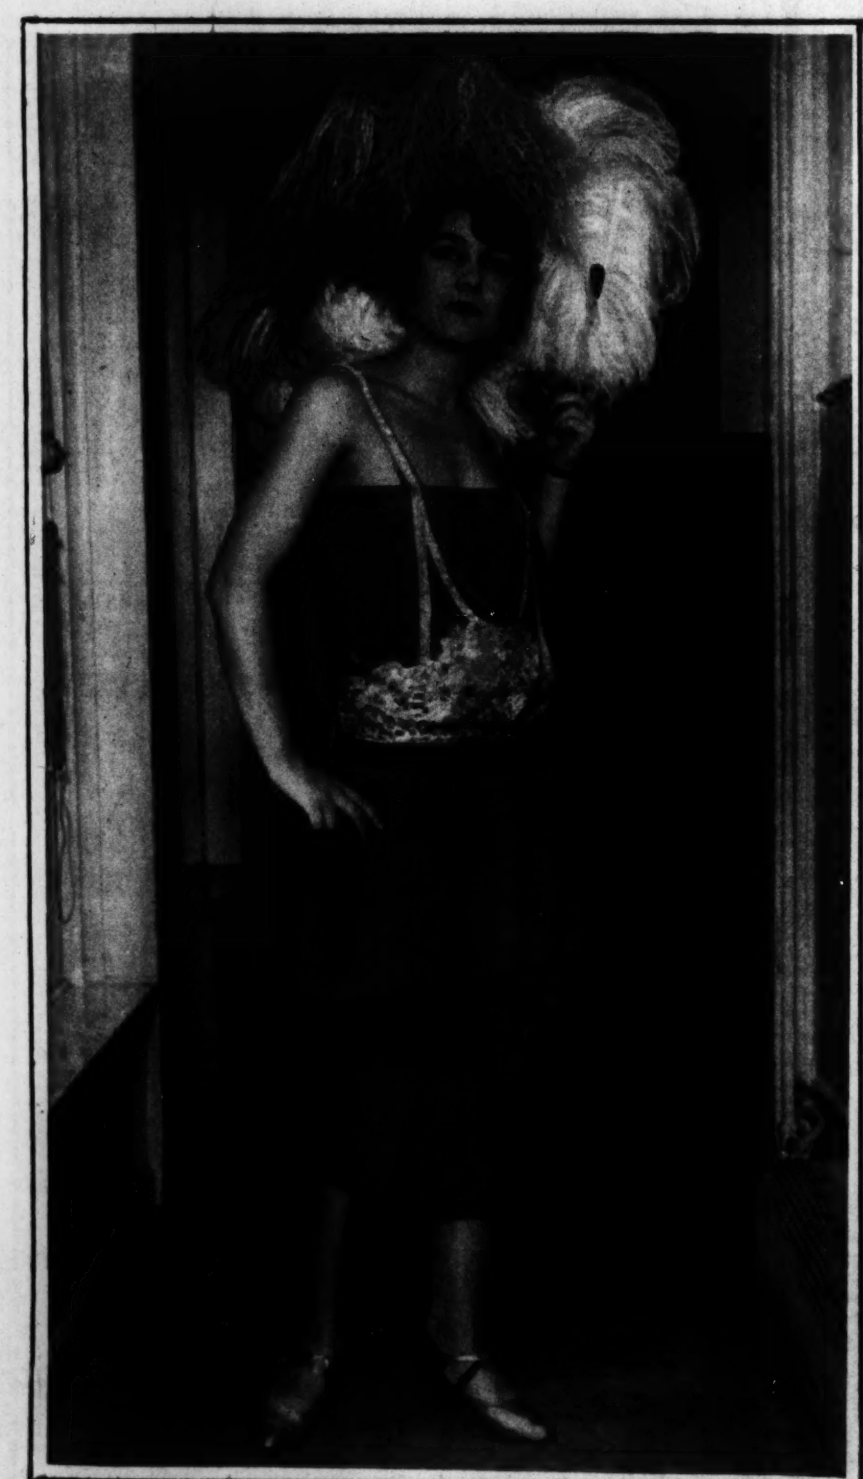
MLLE. LOLA TESSIER OF JEAN PATOU'S—When mother sees Lola gliding about in new creations, father begins to wonder when mother will come to her senses and quit ordering.



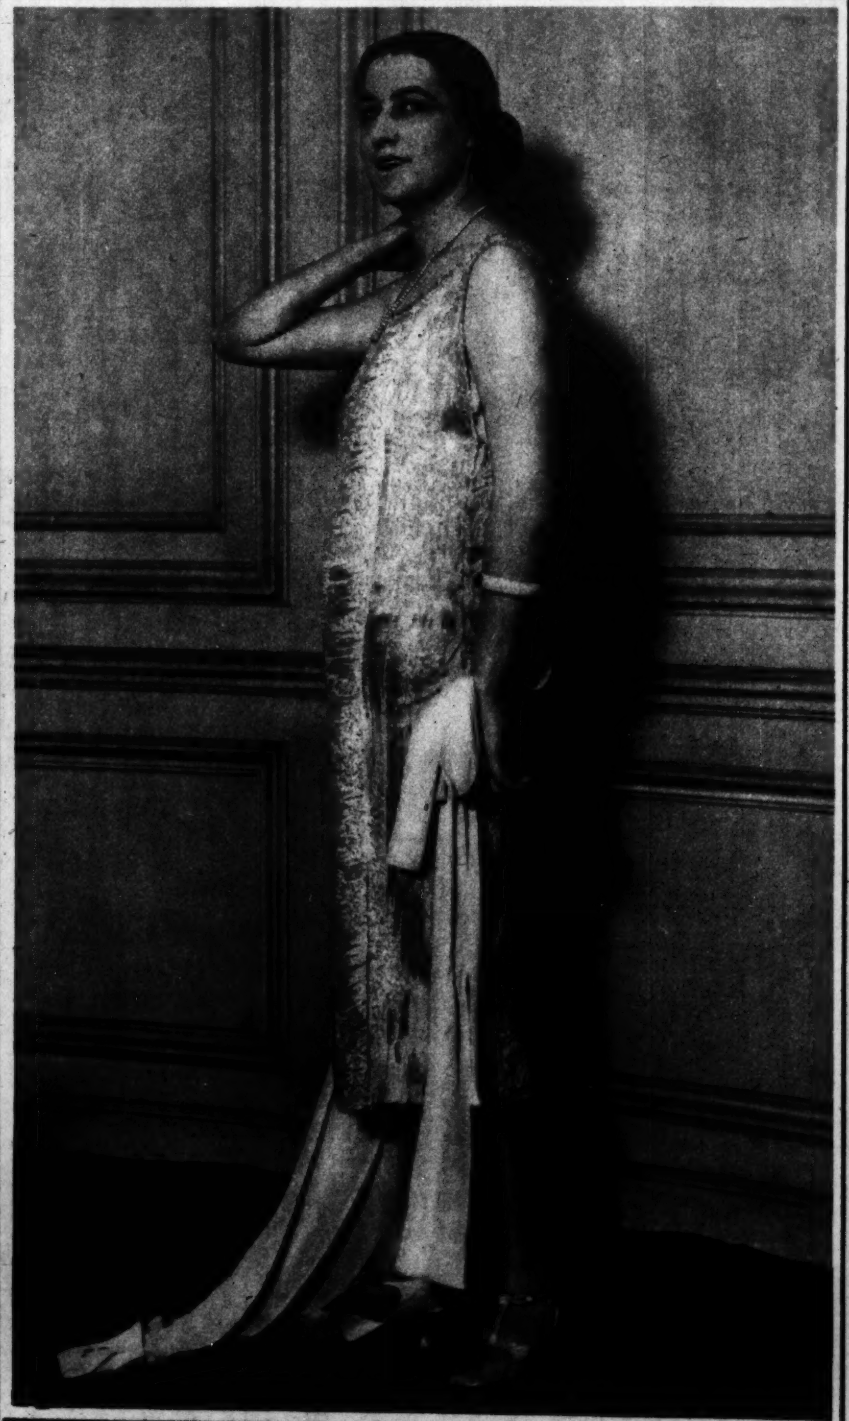
MLLE. GERTE VILLIERS OF LUCILLE, one of the famous twin sister mannequins of Paris. Miss Donnelly says of the lovely Gerte: "A real beauty in every point of detail—hair, eyes, teeth, figure, hands, feet. In addition she has the air of one of the titled ladies come to buy."



MLLE. COLLETTE GEBEAU OF PAUL POIRET'S—Her graces make the perfect gown more perfect, says Miss Donnelly.

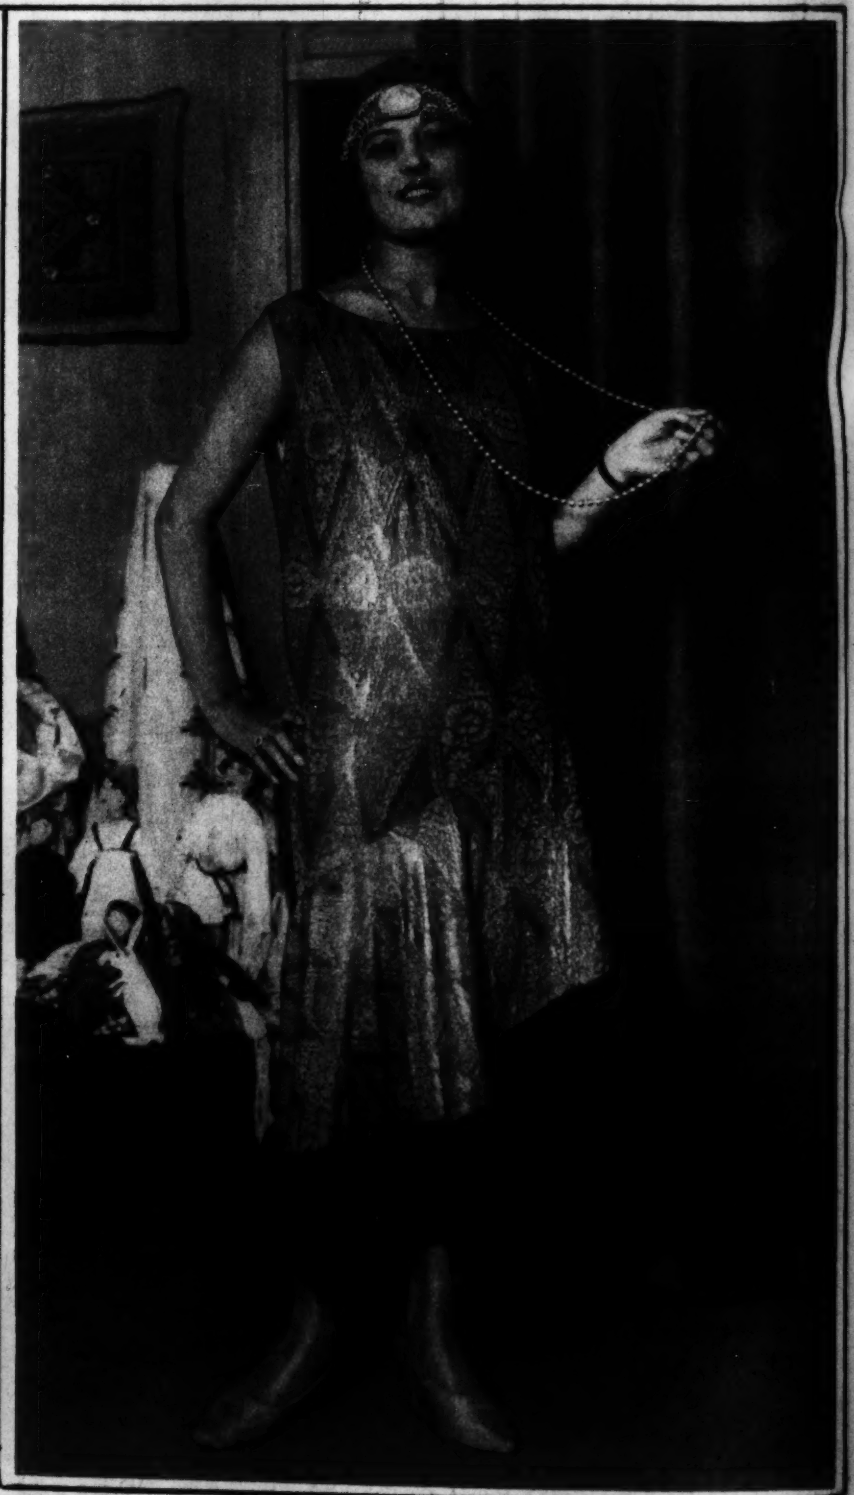


MLLE. DETHORBET OF WORTH—Her beauty brings a rain of shekels from women who buy hoping the gown will look the same on them.



MLLE. SONIA RIGAULT OF ANNA—"Reminiscent of Nita Naldi—wears gowns with a dash and verve. She has l'esprit and some left over." Our quotes describe Sonia as Miss Donnelly saw her.

(All photographs from Pacific and Atlantic)



MLLE. RENE CRIQUETTE OF THE HOUSE OF YTEB—Well endowed as to face and figure, and blessed with a native chic, she is indeed a superb femme, according to Miss Donnelly.

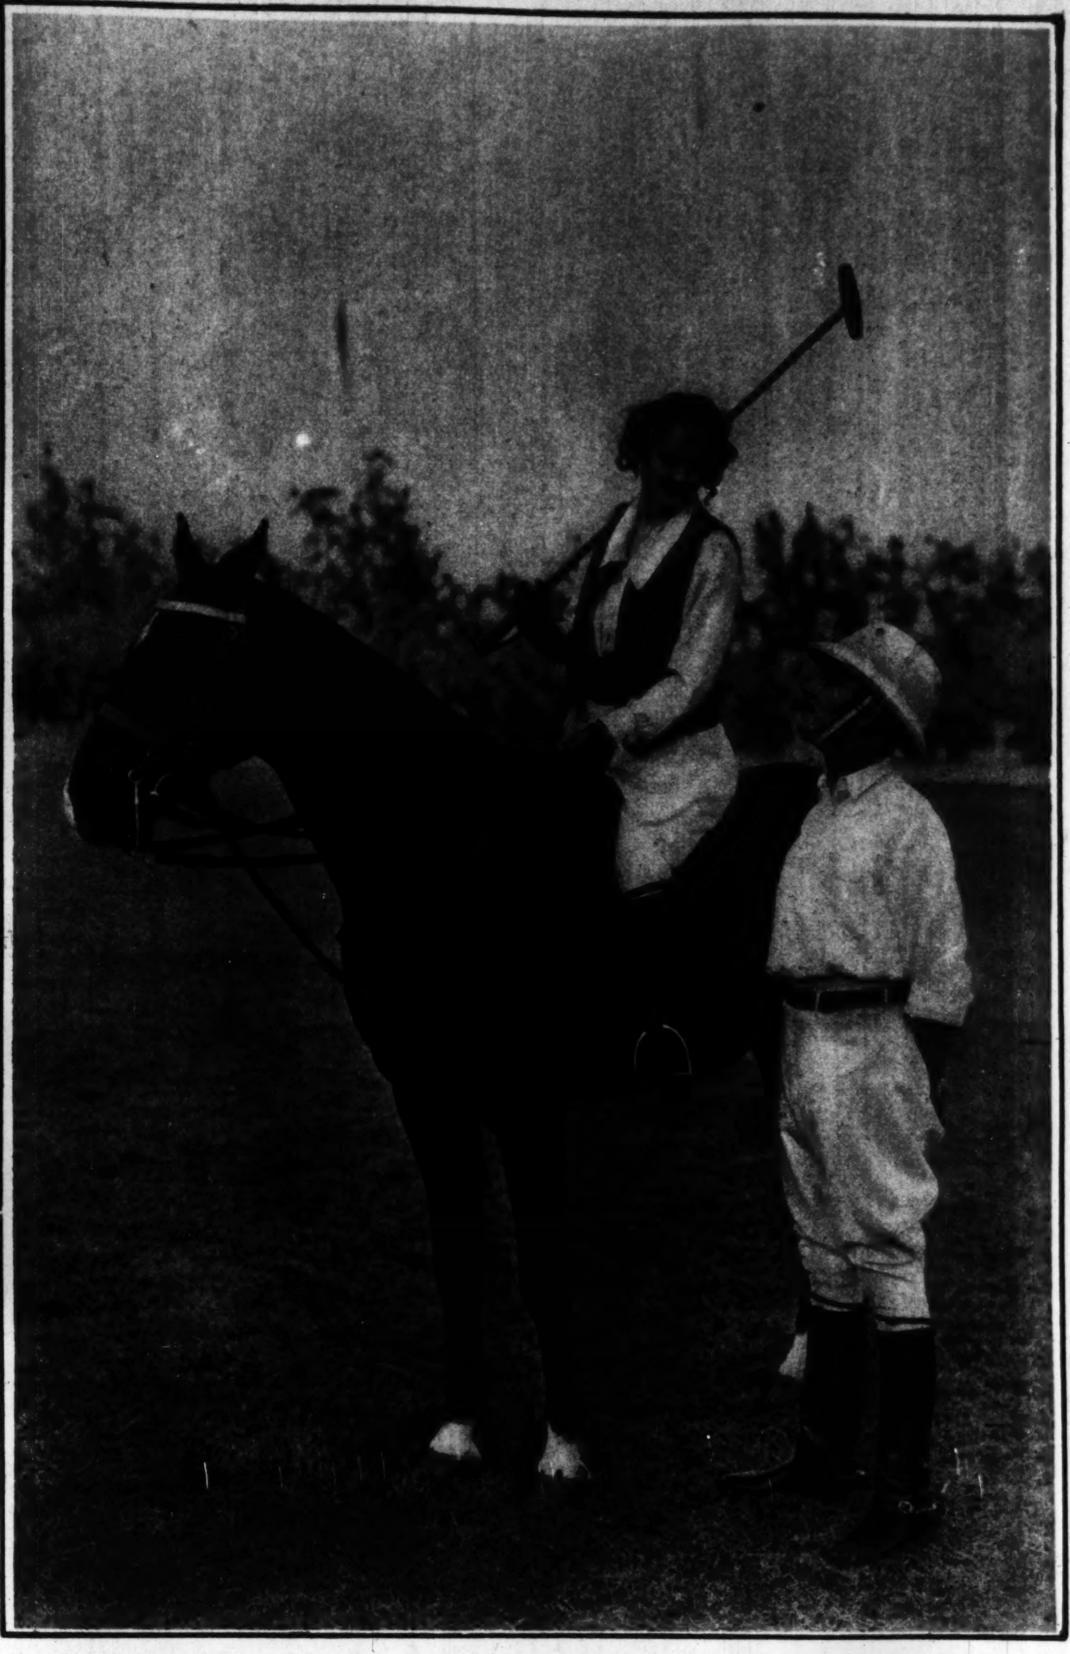
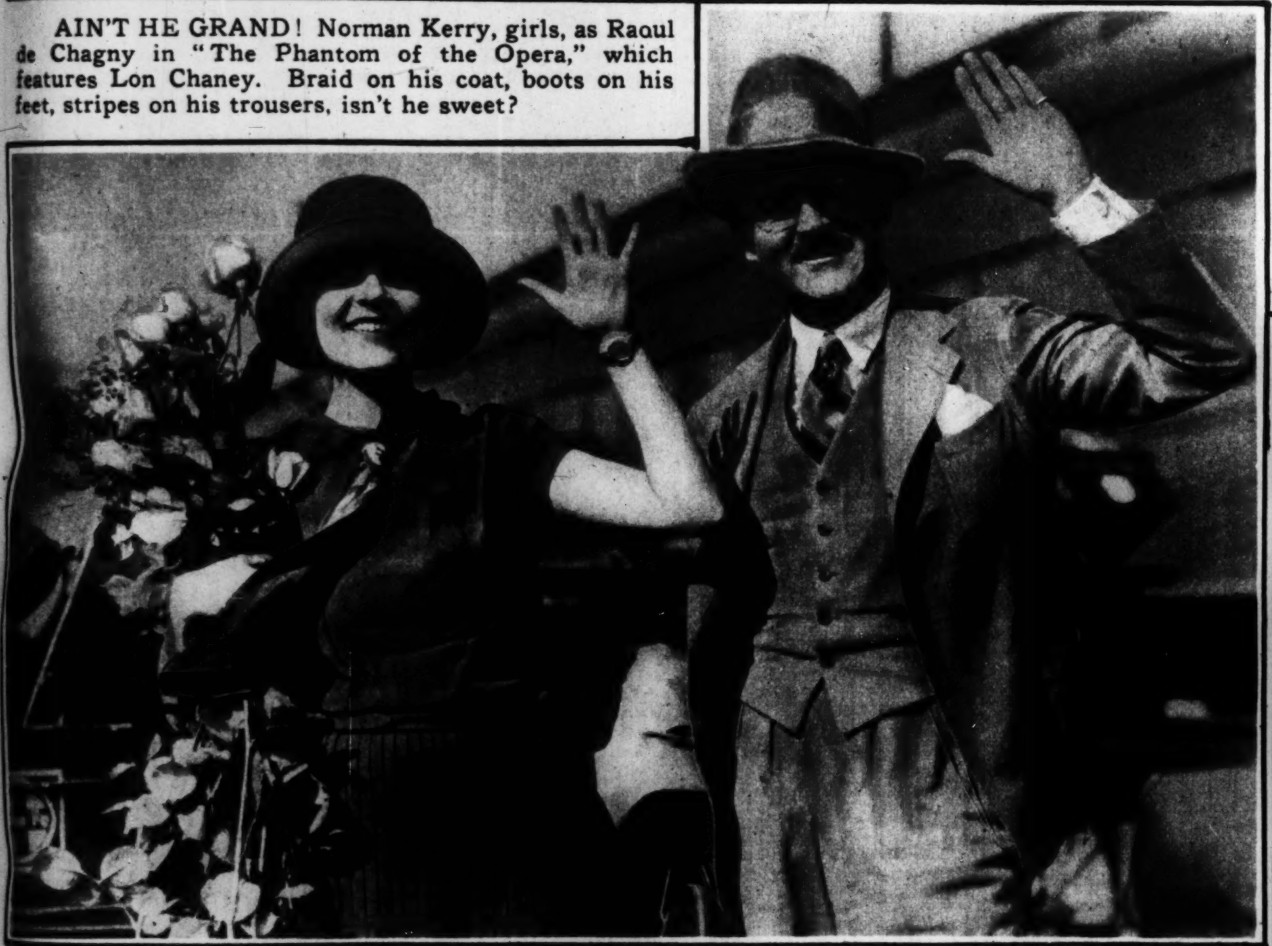
A LITTLE GRAY MOTHER and the boy of her heart are here seen talking it over. Do you recognize this perturbed, aged lady? None other than the so young Colleen Moore as she appears in "So Big" from the novel by Edna Ferber.



DORIS KENYON AND RONALD COLMAN make a good looking couple, don't they? They appear like this in the polo scenes of "A Thief in Paradise," a new First National Production.



THEY SOLEMNLY SWEAR to make no more pictures in Europe! "They" are Blanche Sweet and her director-husband, Marshall Neilan, as they were photographed just after their arrival in Hollywood after a fourteen weeks' stay in Europe, where they filmed exterior scenes for "The Sporting Venus," in which Miss Sweet and Lew Cody are featured.

LIFE'S A BEASTLY BORE to the littlest O'Malley when Daddy Pat insists on making him sit for pictures. Especially when it's bed and bottle time, and, judging from Sonny's expression of woe and weariness, that hour is near at hand.

THE LITTLE GOOSE GIRL and her charges make a pretty picture, don't they? Jane Novak wears this quaint getup in "Two Shall Be Born," a Vitagraph production.

THE GUMPS.
SIDNEY SMITH
IT'S A QUESTION OF MATHEMATICS - NOT GUESS-WORK - HOW IN THE WORLD COULD A PERSON FIGURE OUT SUCH A PROBLEM?
GUESS HOW MANY BEANS ARE IN THIS BOWL AND WIN THIS AUTOMOBILE
OH BOY - I WISH I COULD GUESS THE LUCKY NUMBER -
ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS A LITTLE SIMPLE ARITHMETIC - FIND OUT THE SIZE OF ONE BEAN - THEN FIND THE SIZE OF THE BOWL AND THERE'S NO REASON WHY YOU CAN'T FIND EXACTLY HOW MANY BEANS YOU NEED TO FILL THE BOWL -
BUT IT SEEMS TO ME IT WOULD TAKE A HUMAN ADDING MACHINE TO DO THAT - WELL, JUST TO SHOW YOU HOW EASY IT ALL IS I'LL DO THE TRICK FOR YOU - WHY SHOULD I HAVE A FIRST CLASS BRAIN IF I DON'T USE IT -
IT WOULD TAKE YOU A WEEK TO FIGURE IT OUT -
I'LL LOAN YOU MY PENCIL, PAPA -
LISTEN, BEANS ARE BEANS AND BOWLS ARE BOWLS - I'LL JUST BUY A BOWL THAT SIZE AND FILL IT WITH BEANS - THEN I'LL COUNT THE BEANS AND HAVE THE CORRECT ANSWER - BUT YOU PROMISED TO TAKE US TO DINNER -
I'M NEARLY STARVED
ALL RIGHT - BUT I THINK IT'S A FOOLISH WAY OF SPENDING YOUR TIME -
I'LL GO AND BUY A GOLD FISH BOWL AND A BAG OF BEANS - I'LL HAVE THE ANSWER IN TEN MINUTES - I MIGHT JUST AS WELL HAVE THAT AUTO AS ANYONE ELSE -
WE CAN'T SELL THE BOWL WITHOUT THE FISH - THAT LARGE ONE WILL COST $18.90 INCLUDING THE FISH -
I DON'T WANT THE FISH BUT I MUST HAVE THE BOWL - I'M CONDUCTING AN EXPERIMENT -
EVERY PROBLEM IS SIMPLE IF A FELLOW USES HIS HEAD - I'LL BE AT THE STEERING WHEEL TOMORROW - I HOPE IT'S A GOOD CAR - I DON'T WANT TO WASTE A HALF HOUR FOR NOTHING -
I DIDN'T KNOW THERE WERE SO MANY BEANS IN THE WORLD - IT TOOK ME ALMOST ALL NIGHT TO COUNT THEM - BUT WHAT'S WORTH DOING AT ALL IS WORTH DOING WELL -
WELL, IT TOOK ME ALL NIGHT TO DO IT BUT YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE A NICE AUTOMOBILE TODAY - WE'LL GO DOWN AND GET IT AND DRIVE IT HOME -
I HOPE YOU DIDN'T MAKE ANY MISTAKE -
GEE, PAPA IS SMART -
I HOPE YOU'RE RIGHT BUT I HAVE A FEELING SOMETHING IS WRONG - THAT GROCER WILL BE DUMFOUNDED WHEN I TELL HIM HOW EASY IT WAS TO GET THE RIGHT ANSWER - OH, THAT'S A DANDY CAR WE WON, PAPA -
348
I'M SORRY, MR. GUMP - YOUR ANSWER 45,096 BEANS SHORT - MR. PERKINS GUESSED NEAREST TO THE RIGHT NUMBER OF BEANS - HE WINS THE CAR -
I ALWAYS WAS A LUCKY CUSS -
IT'S AN OUTRAGE - A SWINDLE - I COUNTED THOSE BEANS THREE TIMES -
MAYBE YOU DIDN'T USE THE SAME SIZED BEANS -
WHILE YOU WERE COUNTING THOSE SILLY BEANS YOU MISSED MR. LOTT, THE REAL ESTATE MAN - HE SAID YOU LET OVER A THOUSAND DOLLARS SLIP THROUGH YOUR FINGERS BY NOT KEEPING YOUR APPOINTMENT - I WARNED YOU BUT YOU KNEW IT ALL - AFTER THIS MAYBE YOU'LL TAKE MY ADVICE - YOU MIGHT HAVE KNOWN THE BEANS YOU BOUGHT WOULDN'T BE THE SAME SIZE - I'LL FIX YOU - I'LL MAKE YOU EAT BEANS AND BEANS AND BEANS FOR THE NEXT MONTH -

IF AN OLD GEEZER LIKE COLUMBUS COULD DISCOVER A NEW WORLD I GUESS I CAN-BLAH! I'M SEASICK-
YOU GO UP TO YOUR ROOM AND STAY THERE- NO DINNER FOR YOU TO-DAY- YOU'RE NOT WORTH YOUR SALT-
YESSUM, MRS. BOTTLE-
AW, GEE WHISKERS- THAT SETTLES IT- WHAT'S THE USE OF TRYING TO BE GOOD WHEN IT JUST GETS YOU IN BAD?
POOR LITTLE EMILY MARIE- NO SUNSHINE FOR YOU OR NOTHIN'- I WOULDN'T MIND WORKING SO HARD BUT I HAVE TO NEGLECT YOU- THAT'S WHAT HURTS-
I KNOW YOU'RE ALWAYS CHEERFUL, EMILY, NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS- BUT IT ISN'T RIGHT AND I DON'T INTEND TO STAND FOR IT ANY LONGER-
EVER SINCE I'VE BEEN IN THIS OLD PLACE I'VE SCRUBBED AND POLISHED AND STOKED THE FURNACE AND WRESTLED PACKING BOXES AND BARRELS ALL DAY EVERY DAY- AND LIVED ON MUSH AND MILK TOO, BUT I DIDN'T KICK-
BUT NOW I DON'T EVEN EAT REGULAR- I'M ALL FED UP ON THIS BOTTLE BUNGALOW I AM- THIS IS NO PLACE TO BRING YOU UP, EMILY MARIE- WE'VE GOT TO MOVE-
AND WE'VE GOT TO GET OUT OF HERE WITHOUT BEING SEEN- WE'LL JUST DROP INTO THE ALLEY AND DO A FADE-OUT-
THIS IS A DIRTY TRICK, EMILY, BUT IT WON'T HURT YOU- DON'T YELL NOW- I'LL BE RIGHT DOWN-
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! THIS SUSPENSE IS TERRIBLE- TALK ABOUT FAST TRIPS- IF ANYTHING SLIPS NOW I'LL BUST ALL RECORDS, AND THAT'S NOT ALL-WHOOPS!!!
YOU SURE SAVED YOUR MAMA THAT TIME, EMILY MARIE- IF I HADN'T HAD YOU TO FALL BACK ON THIS WOULD HAVE BEEN THE END OF THE LINE FOR US-A KID THAT'LL RUN AWAY FROM HOME MUST BE BUG-HOUSE, EMILY MARIE- BUT RUNNING AWAY FOR A HOME- THAT'S A ROCKING-HORSE OF A DIFFERENT COLOR-

HE TALKS TH' BEST FIGHT Y'EVER SEEN !!
TH' ONEY WAY HE'D EVER FIGHT IS SITTIN' DOWN !!
HEY POP, DO YOU KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT FIGHTIN' ??
DO I ?? SAY WHEN I WAS A YOUNG FELLER OUT IN TEXAS, TH' BULLY OF TH' TOWN WHERE I LIVED STARTED PICKIN' ON ME TILL ONE DAY I UPS AN' LICKED TH' TAR OUTA HIM !! AFTER THAT IF YA MENTIONED TH' NAME "RIP WINKLE" THEM BIG ROUGH COWBOYS JES' TOOK THEIR HATS OFF !!!
GOSH!
ONE DAY, OL' JOHN L. SULLIVAN COME TO OUR TOWN AN' HIS SPARRIN' PARDNER GOT SICK, SO I STEPPED IN TO HELP JOHN OUT !! WELL I'LL NEVER FORGET THAT FIRST TIME IN TH' RING WITH TH' CHAMPEEN !! I JES' FEINTED WITH MY LEFT, - HOOKED HIM WITH A RIGHT — GEE!
THEN WHEN I SEEN I HAD HIM GROGGY, I STEPS IN AN' UPPERCUTS HIM RIGHT ON TH' JAW WITH MY LEFT AN' KNOCKED JOHN L. SULLIVAN STIFF !! OF COURSE IT NEVER GOT IN TH' PAPERS BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T WANT NOBODY TO EVER HEAR ABOUT IT !!!
YES SIR, BY RIGHTS I SHOULD'A BEEN TH' CHAMPEEN OF TH' WORLD! I'M STILL ABLE TO GO SOME WITH ANYBODY AROUND MY AGE !! JES' FEEL THAT MUSCLE !!!!
HOLY SMOKES! IT'S HARD AS TH' DEUCE !!
FAWTHAW, YOU OUGHT TO BE ASHAMED OF YOURSELF FILLING PERRY'S HEAD FULL OF FIGHT !!!
OH BOY !! POP CERTAINLY WAS TH' CATS !! GEE, I WISH I COULD HAVE EVERYBODY SCARED OF ME !! SOME DAY I'M GONNA TAKE A CRACK AT JACK DEMPSEY !! WOULDN'T IT BE GREAT IF I KNOCKED HIM OUT? WOW !!
CANDY S
G'WAN !! DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH !! YOUR OL' MAN CAN'T FIGHT !!
YER FATHER'S SCARED OF HIS OWN SHADDER!
S'CUSE ME IF I BUST OUT LAUGHIN' !!!
IZZAT SO? WELL YA SMART ALECKS, BY RIGHTS MY FATHER OUGHT'A BEEN CHAMPEEN OF TH' WORLD !! HE KNOCKED OUT JOHN L. SULLIVAN ONCE'T !!!
HA-HA THA'S A HOT ONE !!
HO-HO HO !! GEE WHIZ !!
HAW HAW HAW HAW
HE WAS SPARRIN' PARTNER TO JOHN L. AN' ONE TIME POP JABS WITH HIS RIGHT AN' UPPER-CUTS WITH HIS LEFT AN' BLOOIE — OL' SULLIVAN TAKES TH' COUNT !!!
G'WAN, THA'S A FAIRY TALE! MY OL' MAN COULD HALF KILL YOUR OL' MAN !!
YER DAD MUST'A BEEN DREAMIN'! MY FATHER COULD LICK YOUR FATHER BLIND-FOLDED!
YEAH, AN' ME FADDER COULD WHIP YOUR FADDER WID ONE HAND TIED BEHIND HIS BACK !!
G'WAN, MY POP WOULD MOIDER TH' THREE OF YER FATHERS!
AW'RIGHT I'LL SHOW YA! I'LL GIT MY OL' MAN!
ME TOO! I'M GONNA TELL MY FATHER!
AN' I'M GONNA TELL ME FADDER TOO !!
I GUESS YOU GUYS DON'T CARE WHAT HAPPENS TO YER FATHERS! GEE I FEEL SORRY FOR YOU'SE !!
KID BLACKIE WILL PAY $100. TO ANYONE STAYING ONE ROUND WITH HIM
THE BEARCAT SLUGGER
EXTRA FEATURE WITH THE HURDY-GURDY GIRLS AT THE ALACAZAM THEATRE ALL THIS WEEK
GOSH I'LL HAFTA TELL POP ABOUT THIS !! HE CAN KNOCK TH' HEAD OFF'A THAT GUY AN' GET A HUNDRED BUCKS BESIDES !!
FAWTHAW, THERE ARE THREE MEN OUTSIDE WHO WANT TO SEE YOU! A MR. FINNIGAN, MR. McADAM AND MR. CARTER!
H'MM! MEBBE THAT'S TH' COMMITTEE FROM TH' POLITICAL CLUB! THEY WAS THINKIN' OF RUNNIN' ME FOR OFFICE !!!
FAWTHAW! WHAT HAS HAPPENED?
WHAT DIDN'T HAPPEN ?? !! YOU TELL PERRY TO QUIT GOIN' AROUND TELLIN' PEOPLE I ONCE BEAT A CHAMPEEN FIGHTER — NOBODY'S S'POSED TO KNOW THAT, BUT ME !!

YOU'D BETTER BE CAREFUL AND NOT TAX YOUR BRAIN TOO HARD OR YOU'LL GET LIKE THAT MAN I READ ABOUT IN THE PAPER. HE LIVED IN ROME, GEORGIA, OR WAS IT OHIO, NO, I GUESS IT WAS IN MAINE SOME WHERES, WELL ANYHOW HE WENT CRAZY WORKIN' ON PUZZLES.
MY UNCLE GROVE WAS ALWAYS FOND OF PUZZLES. HE WAS A FUNNY MAN - HE HAD A BIRTH MARK ON HIS BACK THAT WAS A PERFECT PICTURE OF THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD. SO MANY FOLKS USED TO COME TO SEE IT, HIS WIFE HAD TO MAKE HIS SHIRTS WITH AN OPENING IN THE BACK SO THE POOR FELLOW WOULDN'T HAVE TO BE ALL THE TIME TAKIN' HIS SHIRT OFF
ONCE THERE WAS A PRINTER FROM OMAHA WHO SAID THE PICTURE ON GROVES BACK WAS THE MOST WONDERFUL THING HE HAD EVER SEEN OUTSIDE OF NIAGARA FALLS

THERE'S THE BELL. WHO'S AT THE DOOR THIS TIME OF THE MORNING?
UNCA WALT GO SEE.
SKEEZIX COME OUT AN PLAY WITH JEAN?
NO JEAN, SKEEZIX IS EATING HIS BREAKFAST. HE WONT BE OUT FOR QUITE A WHILE.
NOW YOU FINISH YOUR BREAKFAST. AND YOU NEEDN'T HURRY. JEAN WILL WAIT.
GOES A DOORBELL AGAIN, UNCA WALT.
AIN'T SKEEZIX THROUGH YET?
NO JEAN, YOU RUN ALONG AND PLAY. SKEEZIX ISN'T THROUGH YET
I SEE THE PRINCE HAS FALLEN OFF ANOTHER HORSE. HE'S NOT ONE WHO CAN TAKE A FALL OR LEAVE IT ALONE.
HERE, HERE, YOU LITTLE RASCAL! YOU LET JEAN ALONE UNTIL YOU'VE FINISHED.
YOU SIT RIGHT DOWN AND EAT YOUR BREAKFAST. GEE WHIZZ! THERE'S THAT LITTLE RASCAL AT THE FRONT DOORBELL AGAIN.
NO! YOU CAN'T COME IN. RUN ALONG. I CAN'T BE BOTHERED WITH LITTLE GIRLS RINGING MY DOOR-BELL ALL THE TIME!
GREAT SCOTT, JEAN! HOW DID YOU GET IN? DIDN'T YOU JUST RING THE FRONT BELL?
NO I JEST COMED IN THE BACK WAY.
WAIT, MRS. BLOSSOM—PHYLLIS! LET ME EXPLAIN!
I DIDN'T MEAN IT—HONEST, I DIDN'T.
OH, THAT'S ALL RIGHT, WALT. I WAS JUST RETURNING A BOOK BUT I THOUGHT I COULD CATCH YOU IN A MORE AMIABLE MOOD LATER ON.
